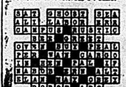
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Awarded O.B.E., Legion of Merit, Now Gets Wings

Montreal, June 7 — (CP) — Nine years ago a youth from Saint John, N. B., with the sky in his eyes wanted to become a fighter pilot.

Instead, because of his knowledge of electronics, K. R. Patrick became one of the R. C. A. F.'s top technicians with the rank of wing commander, doing secret research work that won from a grateful British government the O. B. E., and a Legion of Merit from the United States.

But the urge to fly never died and Sunday, as a flight lieutenant in the air force auxiliary, Patrick received his wings.

NURSE LEAVES FOR PERU

Fort Erie, June 7 — (CP) — Madge Lloyd of Fort Erie, is leaving immediately for Peru where she will continue her nursing career in the employ of a large American oil company working on extensive development projects on the South American republic.

Miss Lloyd, a veteran nurse of the Second Great War, narrowly escaped drowning in the Mediterranean Sea when a ship was torpedoed on which she was en route to Italy. Recently she had been attached to a Toronto hospital.

CAREFUL CRAFTSMANSHIP SHOWN IN MANY WAYS AT TRADE FAIR

Exhibits from nearly every country in the world fill the aisles of three buildings of the Exhibition Grounds to make the International Trade Fair an outstanding demonstration of mankind's skill and versatility in producing the commodities of commerce. To walk the aisles is to get a conception of vastness and quantity—if you pause and inspect closely, there are uncounted small items which reveal careful craftsmanship even in these days of mass production. In the Czechoslovakian exhibit (left) are many and varied fabrics of unusual design, some of which are being inspected by Shirley Griffith (left) and Mrs. S. A. Williams. Miss Griffith is wearing a dress made of the same fabric in a different design. Right shows a few items of Jamaican woven-ware, with the distinctive pattern on the hat woven to show on both sides. Dorothy deSouse displays them effectively.

British Guards Regiments Will Provide London With Greatest Show of Year

By DENNIS SMITH

London, June 8 — (Reuters) — Famous British guards regiments magnificent in scarlet, white and black uniforms, will provide London with its greatest show of the year Thursday when tens of thousands will throng to see the traditional ceremony of trooping the color.

This year, for the first time since the war, the regiments will wear full dress.

Thursday the wheeling columns in their scarlet tunics and black bearskins, will march to the Horse Guards parade, fronting Saint James Park, which separates Buckingham Palace and Whitehall. There they will draw up beside the swinging plaids of the Scots pipers and the green of the Irish Guards.

"Trooping the colors" is the term for saluting by beat of drum the flag or "color" of a regiment.

From the earliest days it has been the custom for men in action to rally round some prominent object which was easily recognizable — a pole with a truss of hay tied to it or later the famous Roman Eagles. Knights in the Middle Ages rode into battle with their personal banner and, as many regiments were originally formed as the personal bodyguard of some noble, it became the custom for the banner to be used as a regimental symbol.

The British Army has not used its colors in action since two officers lost their lives in 1879 saving their colors from the Zulus, but the ceremony of escorting the colors has remained.

It was turned by the Duke of Cumberland in the 18th Century into an impressive parade much as it is seen today. One story had it that he inaugurated the slow march of his officers to pick out those still incapable after their previous nights carousals.

The ceremony, which traditionally takes place on the King's official birthday — not his real one which is in December—will begin with the arrival of the King on horseback, dressed in the uniform of the Scots Guards, whose color is to be trooped this year.

On his arrival the massed bands of the five guards regiments of foot — Goldstream, Grenadier, Scots, Irish and Welsh — will thunder out the national anthem. For the 2,000 troops on parade there follows the gruelling ordeal of the inspection when they must stand rigid without twitching a muscle until the King has moved along all their ranks.

The King then retires to a saluting base and the troops march past in line headed by their bands each with its drum major.

As the King takes his place at the head of his guards to march with them back to the palace, a salute of 53 guns — one for each year of the King's life — will roar out above the cheering crowds.

Lewis Denounces Coal Operators As 'Fat Cats'

Washington, June 8 — (AP) — John L. Lewis opened soft coal contract talks Monday — with a blast of denunciation at the operators.

He called them "fat cats . . . . magnificently opulent . . . digging deep and without restraint into the national purse."

He made two points clear about any agreement replacing the contract expiring June 30:

1. The United Mine Workers have no wage proposals, but they "expect improvements."

2. They want guarantees under the 1947 miners' welfare fund which has paid out nothing because it is tied up in a legal dispute.

He was directed to negotiate with the Southern Coal Producers Association by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, against his will and under injunction. Goldsborough acted under the Taft-Hartley Act which Lewis called "the first major thrust of fascist tyranny in the republic."

Directing his remarks at the operators, the U. M. W. leader said:

"You and your industry are magnificently opulent . . .

"You are digging deep and without restraint into the national purse. From time to time you raise outcries against the men who mine your coal, and while the gullible public is bewildered by our outcries, you pluck more doubloons from the consumers of coal.

"In this fashion and with hardened conscience you have become the most corpulent of our native fat cats."

A hot dispute over miners' death and injury benefits — as well as pensions — clouded the start of the new contract talks.

Guard-rail posts on Ontario highways have been cut down 18 inches, from 54 inches to 32, as indicated with rule by Ernie Bradley, maintenance overseers on Highway 10 from Chatsworth south to Primrose. The original idea was to put them below average snowplow wing and reduce damage to posts in winter. Stunting the posts also saves miles and miles of steel cable, makes them more crashproof and about halves the amount of white paint needed.

SAYS FOUR MEN BEAT HIM

Baltimore, June 8 — (AP) — John Chilcote, 30-year-old war veteran paralyzed from the hips down, told police court Monday four men beat him after he blew his automobile horn at them. Two of the men, Frank Franklin, 36, and Joseph Boslusny, 26, were fined $200 while the other two were still sought by police. Chilcote said he was waiting in his specially-equipped car for a traffic light to change when the car containing the four men passed through. He blew his horn and the men stopped and attacked him.

LOOKING FOR PIPER

Calgary, June 8 — (CP)—Police were listening instead of looking for a culprit today — a bagpipe skirling Scotsman. A group of Calgary residents—apparently adverse to the traditional Scottish pipes — complained that a man in their district was disturbing the whole neighborhood by continually playing the pipes.

OFFICE NURSE

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

"You mean to tell me — Well, naturally, I thought you knew! Charlotte and Bill got married Sunday, right after church. Charlotte went with Bill to Pennsylvania. She and/Bill . . . ."

But Bill's sister did not get the chance to say anything more; Betty Jane had hung up.

It was Betty Jane who appeared at the office the following morning with reddish, swollen eyelids. She hated to go to the office looking the way she did, but she couldn't stay home crying all day.

She had no way of knowing that it was a day when Dr. Holbrook, too, would have given almost anything he possessed not to have to be there. For Elissa had arrived home the night before and Eric had had his talk with her.

Before his wife's return, he had told Janice that he wanted to marry her and that he was going to ask his wife to give him a divorce. Janice had not appeared as surprised, or quite as elated, over this piece of news as Eric had fondly hoped she would be. She had asked him if he were certain that that was what he wanted to do, and if he did not think that perhaps no one could buy happiness at the cost of unhappiness to someone else.

His talk with Janice had left him vaguely unsatisfied. After all, he would be making quite a sacrifice for her. Not, of course, that it would be too big a sacrifice for a man to make. He was more than willing to make it—to give up his wife, his home, their circle of important friends, even his large and lucrative practice, if need be.

If Janice had not appreciated the enormity of all this, Elissa had. True, she had not appeared nearly so surprised as Eric had expected when he announced, that first evening at dinner, that he wanted a divorce.

"Dear [illegible]," she murmured, her large violet eyes looking into Eric's over the rim of her coffee cup, "it's a good thing I came home. A divorce is pretty drastic, darling. It might ruin your professional reputation. And it does seem a shame to sacrifice all that you and I have built up during all these years."

"I know," Eric said. He was glad that Elissa appreciated the sacrifice.

• • •

"Sorry, darling — but I don't want a divorce." Elissa put her coffee cup down and got up from the table as if to indicate that her remark had ended the discussion.

Eric got up too. He followed his wife into the living room.

She sank into a deep chair and picked up a book from a low table. Eric knew he had a fight on his hands.

"May I ask your reasons for not wanting a divorce?"

"Certainly, darling." Elissa put the book halfway down toward her lap, giving him her polite, amused attention. "I simply don't want a divorce. Isn't that reason enough?"

"Hardly." His laugh was brittle. "There's more behind it than that. And I do want a divorce. I am determined to have one. I am trying to play fair with you, Elissa—with everyone."

Elissa smiled. "So am I, darling. I'm not making a scene, am I? I'm even willing to accept part of the blame myself, if our marriage has not quite—"

"You mean it has not been a marriage for a long time," Eric interrupted. "We don't love each other any more. We aren't necessary to each other any longer."

"Ah, you have placed your finger on it." Elissa's lovely violet eyes widened. "That's where my fault lies — I thought I had done everything that was necessary for you. I see now that I haven't. I should not have spent so much time away. We'll begin again, darling. We'll go somewhere together. Mexico or—"

• • •

"I don't want to go to Mexico." He tried to hold on to his temper. "You don't seem to understand, Elissa. I am in love with someone else. With Janice Hilary." Since he was being strictly truthful, as well as honorable and fair, there was no reason to conceal the identity of the woman he loved. "I have told her that I will marry her. She means everything to me. Surely you won't stand in the way of my happiness."

Elissa allowed her book to drop all the way into her lap now. "Of course I shan't, darling." Her whole face smiled up into his. "Only I think I know better than you where your happiness lies.

"Now, don't interrupt, darling!" Her smile was patient. "Perhaps you do love this girl. But love isn't everything, darling. What we have is just as important. And no one can hold on to that first excitement after a few years of marriage. Even you and your Janice would lose it.

"What would you have to take its place then, that I cannot give you?"

"Am I to understand then," he said stiffly—it was cold fear inside him rather than hot anger—"that you absolutely refuse to get a divorce?"

Elissa inclined her lovely blonde head.

Eric knew that further words were useless. What could he do against Elissa if she stuck to the stand she had taken? What could he tell Janice? How could he face Janice in the office in the morning?

And worse than that—how could he face himself now?

This particular day when Betty Jane had forced herself to take her red swollen eyelids to the office and Dr. Holbrook had wished he had not had to face Janice, was a day which Miss Willows recognized, from its beginning, as an unusual one.

To begin with, everyone except Miss Willows was late. So late, in fact, that Miss Willows began to wonder if she were going to have to manage the office without any assistance. It promised to be one of the "hectic" days; 32 patients were booked. Some of them were already sitting in the waiting room, casting furtive glances at one another over the pages of magazines they were pretending to read, and undoubtedly beginning to wonder if Miss Willows were going to run things all by herself.

Betty Jane finally came in, murmured a soft apology to Miss Willows and hurried across the waiting room.

Hmm, Miss Willows thought, what's eating her? Eyes all red and swollen, voice kind of wavery. Tiff with the boy friend, no doubt. People, Miss Willows decided, should keep their private lives away from a business office.

Dr. Holbrook came in shortly after that—through the back door that he, and sometimes Miss Hilary, used. From his own office he gave the signal which indicated that he wanted Miss Willows to come to him.

"Has Janice — er, Miss Hilary come in yet?" the doctor asked as soon as she reached him.

Miss Willows glanced at him. She thought, Good grief! He looks almost as bad as Betty Jane this morning.

She said No, Miss Hilary had not yet arrived.

"That's good!" The doctor emitted an enormous sigh and let his face unstretch. "Let me know the minute she comes in."

Miss Willows then asked if he would see Mrs. Smythe-Smith first — who really was first—or if he would take Miss Susie Fox who was an older patient.

"It doesn't matter," Dr. Holbrook returned. His face took on that strained expression again. Was it because Janice's name had been brought in, Miss Willows wondered.

She sent in Miss Fox.

Two more patients arrived. Then Mrs. Downey went out to get a bite of belated breakfast before she returned to see the doctor, Miss Fox was disposed of, and Mrs. Smythe-Smith had already entered the inner sanctum, when Janice finally appeared.

"I'm sorry I'm so late," she said to Miss Willows. Like Betty Jane, she did not sound sorry. But Miss Willows did not object. Janice might be having her personal problems as Miss Willows was well aware, but she kept them resolutely to herself.

However, to Miss Willows' surprise, Janice said now, "Miss Willows, I want to tell you something —rather personal."

Miss Willows nodded. She had learned that people often told more if you asked less.

"I am going away," Janice said. "I have to go away. I know it doesn't seem right just now with Mrs. McRae gone and no one replacing her, but I have to go, and immediately. That's why I was so late. I stopped to see about reservations. I got them for day after tomorrow. I know this will seem hasty to you, but I'm telling you because I know I can count on you to back me up when I tell Dr. Holbrook."

"Back you up?" Miss Willows asked.

• • •

"Yes," Janice said. She gave Miss Willows one of her warm smiles. "I want you to assure Dr. Holbrook that the office can get along without me. You see" — something like a shadow crossed Janice's candid eyes—"I promised I'd go for at least a month."

Stirling
Board Requisition Will be Larger Than Formerly

Stirling (Special) — Due to increased salaries and rising costs of supplies the Board of Education's requisition to the Municipal Council will be slightly increased over last year, following the report of chairman R. A. Patterson of the Finance Committee at last Monday night's meeting of the board. The public school levy will be $6,500, an increase of $2,000 but the high school levy will be lowered to $500, a decrease of $1,000.

Will Return Surplus

In addition according to recent legislation the Board of Education will return the operating surplus of 1947 to the council, said amount to be applied against the carrying charges of school debentures. This will bring the actual levy to a level slightly above last year.

Principal C. A. Wells of the public school asked that the property committee make a survey of the school desks, some of which were in bad shape and in need of replacing. The attendance in May according to Mr. Wells was 168 the second best during the year. He also reported that the decorative shrubs for public school grounds had arrived and were very satisfactory. 12 Injured When Passenger Train Hits Open Switch

Accident Occurs Near Niagara Falls Station

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 9 — (CP) — A dozen persons were injured, none of them seriously, seven automobiles were almost completely demolished, the west end of the Canadian National express office was wrecked and two box cars were overturned at noon today when a C. N. R. passenger train ran through an open switch while approaching the Bridge St. station.

The heavy locomotive ploughed into a trio of box cars standing on the siding at the freight shed with such terrific force that one box car was telescoped, one plunged through the west side of the express office and the other turned on its side.

Seven automobiles parked in the yard near the express office were telescoped as wheels from the box cars broke loose and plunged into the vehicles, where passengers were awaiting the arrival of friends and relatives on the train.

At least five passengers in the vehicles were badly hurt and were rushed in Gunning's ambulances to the Greater Niagara Falls General Hospital and were given first aid by Roger Hunt. Doctors E. T. Kellam, A. B. Whytock and J. H. Davidson were quickly on the scene and gave medical aid to passengers and members of the crew who suffered injuries.

The passenger train was in charge of Engineer George Whittaker, Fireman Fred Tulloch, Conductor Ben Gamble, and Fred K. Davey, trainman, all of Toronto.

W. G. Brown, express checker, and his assistants, Maurice Wright and E. White, had a miraculous escape from injury. They were standing on the platform in front of the express office awaiting the arrival of the train. "As soon as we heard the rumbling noise we all beat it," Brown said. "When the crash was over we rushed back to help the passengers pinned in their cars. Mrs. Hildredth was pinned in the back seat of her car and we had a struggle to get her out."

Charles H. Fry, 463 Hiram St., and Richard Fruisch, 911 Kitchener Street, escaped from their taxi-cab a split second before the box cars broke loose and completely demolished their vehicles. "I was looking down the track and saw the locomotive suddenly go through the open switch and jumped and ran," Fry said. "The next minute the box car had crushed my brand new automobile completely." He shouted to Fruisch and he too escaped without a scratch.

COAL IN STORAGE SHED BURNS

Toronto, June 9 (CP) — Over 100 tons of coal, intended for suburban Swansea furnaces next winter, went up in smoke prematurely today as flames raced through a storage shed in a Swansea coal yard. Firemen fought the blaze for three hours before bringing it under control. No estimate of damage was available.

Seamen's Union's Strike Continues Into Fifth Day

Toronto, June 9 — (CP) —The Canadian Seamen's Union's strike against five Great Lakes shipping companies has entered its fifth day amid a welter of accusations and counter-claims.

The T. L. C. — affiliated union called the strike to try to force the lines into signing a contract with it. The C. S. U. ordered its men off the firms' ships and set up picket lines in Great Lakes ports.

But since navigation opened this spring the five companies — Canada Steamships, Sarnia Steamships, Colonial Steamships, Northwestern Steamships and Transit Tankers — have manned their 30 ships chiefly with members of a rival union, the Independent Canadian Lake Seamen's Union. They refused to deal with the C. S. U. on grounds it is communist-led.

Opening phases of the strike affected only those ships—union claims ranged to 18 — sailing with crews made up wholly or partly of C.S.U. members.

The striking union said Tuesday a blast of steam was blown at some of its men as they tried to persuade seamen aboard the CSL freighter Huronic to support the strike. They said the incident took place at Port Arthur while the ship was being loaded.

An officer aboard the ship said the incident was an accident. He apologized to union representatives who said the steaming was deliberate.

Meanwhile, T. G. McManus, C. S. U. secretary - treasurer, charged in a telegram to Transport Minister Chevrier that a C. S. L. vessel, the Starmount, carried three crews of what he called "strikebreakers" to Cornwall to man ships tied up without crews.

He said the Starmount was not licensed to carry passengers, nor did it have lifeboat capacity for more than its crew.

Promise of Rain Brightens Forest Fire Picture

Rouyn, Que., June 9 — (CP) — Promise of scattered showers in northwestern Quebec today improved the forest fire picture in this district where widespread fires are raging out of control in four townships.

But a blaze 15 miles south of Rouyn is still described as "menacing."

However no towns were in immediate danger and the village of Belleterre is now considered safe. The fire had crept to within three miles of the village Monday but a change of wind moved it back two miles.

Largest fires are south of Rouyn in the townships of Guillet, Devlin, Brodeur and Blondeau. But officials reported the situation "improved."

In Bellecombe township 30 men are battling a fire of five square miles burning through timber, slash and sections burned over by fires in previous years.

Lucien Castonquay of the Provincial Department of Lands and Forests at Rouyn, said the Bellecombe situation was "not so good." Today's expected rain however might change the outlook.

More than 200 men are engaged in fighting the four-townships fire that was still out of control Tuesday night except at one point where it had been arrested. Valuable spruce, pine and other hardwoods were going up in smoke.

To the east, in the Val d'Or area, more than 100 fires were still burning, some small and localized in settler's woodlots and others fairly large, spreading through tinder-dry wood.

Government's Commons Majority At Lowest Point Since 1945 Election

Ottawa, June 9 (CP)— Recent C.C.F. by-election victories have cut the government's Commons majority to its lowest point since the 1945 general election.

Liberal forces now command 124 votes, compared to a combined opposition total of 120. One of the 245 Commons seats was made vacant Tuesday by the resignation of Walter Tucker (L-Rosthern), Liberal leader in Saskatchewan.

Party standings, with general election totals in brackets:

Liberal, 124 (127); Progressive Conservative 66 (67); C.C.F. 31 (28); Social Credit 13 (13); others 10 (10; vacant 1 (0).

The three C.C.F. gains came in by-elections during the last 10 days. The Commons' third-ranking party grabbed Yale constituency from the Progressive Conservatives in a by-election May 31 and Ontario riding and Vancouver Centre from the Liberals Tuesday.

Two—possibly three—more by-elections are in the offing, raising the possibility of new opposition advances which would chop the government majority to two.

One will be in Rosthern and one in Laval-Two Mountains, where Liguori Lacombe, Independent, has accepted an appointment as magistrate. Mr. Lacombe's resignation takes effect July 15.

Justice Minister Ilsley, who represents Digby-Aannapolis-Kings, will retire from the cabinet at the end of June. He then will confer with Liberal party officials in Nova Scotia to decide whether he will resign his seat.

DIKES BREACHED BY RISING WATERS IN FRASER VALLEY

New Torrent Caused By Heat, Melting Snow

Vancouver, June 9 (CP)—British Columbia's mighty Fraser River, surging forward into the already-devastated flood zone, early today broke through two of its barriers about 16 miles apart.

The new torrent, precipitated by torrid temperatures and swift mountain run-off, breached dikes in the Pit Meadows and Lulu Island areas but army and navy authorities did not consider the breaks 'major." However, 200 weary workers toiled for several hours to patch the dikes.

Threats of renewed flood devastation also appeared in the flood picture of the B. C. interior where the Columbia River continued its upsurge.

The smelter city of Trail, B.C., 230 miles east of here, engaged in all-out defence activity on a 24-hour-shift basis. At nearby Castlegar, homes in some sections were already surrounded by water and residents feared the raging waters would sweep through the dikes and complete the threatened ruin.

The Canadian Pacific Railway mainline was cut at Clan William, about nine miles west of Revelstoke, less than 48 hours after the mainline was restored to within 69 miles of Vancouver. The trans-Canada highway was reported damaged in the same area.

In northern B. C., the Skeena River was again reported on the uprise and interfering with restoration of railway lines.

Re-establishment of Canadian National Telegraph service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert Tuesday night provided one bright spot in the flood scene.

Meanwhile, Maj.-Gen. M. H. S. Penhale announced the army would draw on active army services as replacements for reserve personnel as soon as possible. The announcement followed reports some reserve army flood workers had been threatened with loss of employment unless they returned to their jobs immediately.

Weather officials gave little relief today from the three-day heat wave which has greatly increased the run-off from melting snow-caps. Although a northerly flow of air is expected to result in slightly cooler weather, high temperatures will prevail in most parts of the province.

Dikes in the lower Fraser Valley, weakened by continued pressure, faced one of their greatest threats in the constantly rising Pacific Ocean tide, expected to reach a peak swell of 14.4 feet Thursday.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Synopsis: Skies are still cloudy over southeastern Ontario in the wake of the disturbance which moved across the Lower Lakes on Tuesday. Over the remainder of the province clear and mild weather prevails. Warmer weather is expected over the province today and Thursday. A disturbance in Manitoba is moving towards Northern Ontario where it will cause showers and thunderstorms tonight and Thursday. This unsettled weather will spread into Southern Ontario late Thursday and early Friday. Cooler temperatures will follow over Northern Ontario Thursday night and Friday but seasonably warm weather is expected to continue over Southern Ontario for several days.

By-Elections Reflect Dislike For High Living Cost and Restrictions

—King

Ottawa, June 9 —(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in a prepared statement that the C.C.F. victories in three recent by-elections reflect "the inevitable dislike felt by persons of all classes for high living costs and privations and restrictions of any kind."

C.C.F. candidates won two Federal by-elections Tuesday in Ontario riding and Vancouver centre and a third last week in Yale, B.C.

Text of Mr. King's statement follows:

The lead which the C.C.F. has gained in the recent by-elections reflects the inevitable dislike felt by persons of all classes for high living costs and privations and restrictions of any kind.

In Canada, as in other countries, all of these have been an inevitable consequence of war, and, in the main, are due to inflation, itself among the worst of post-war evils . . .

While conditions of the kind are immediately felt, they are not as readily understood. It so happens that this untoward tide of unfortunate sequences is today at the flood.

In the political campaigns and in personal canvassing, the worst aspects of the situation have been overemphasized. The irritation has been heightened by the constant criticism in the House of Commons by opposition political parties, none of which have anything in common except their desire to see the government weakened.

The C.C.F. party has profited most by this ill-mated combination. The Progressive Conservative party, by joining in the combination, has well nigh destroyed itself. It is fortunate for all but the C.C.F. that opportunity should have been afforded, thus early, of seeing these under-currents at work.

While inflation may be bad, and takes time to control, it should never be forgotten that there is one thing worse than inflation and that is depression.

The Federal government, at the risk of its own immediate popularity, has so shaped its policies as to restrict further inflation in the present, and to lessen the possibilities of depression later on. This, too, is a course of action not too readily understood.

It is, however, the long run rather than the short run which counts for most. It would be a mistake to attach too much significance to C.C.F. gains in the present.

Lull in Cold War Should Not Deceive Democracies

By RELMAN MORIN
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Something like a lull has fallen over the battlefields of the "cold war." But —

Lenin taught the Communists, in the early days of the movement, that pursuing a policy was somewhat like climbing a mountain. He said they would encounter obstacles, and often have to change direction. He predicted the necessity to turn and twist, and even to go downhill, before finding a new path and resuming the climb. The important thing was to keep the objective in sight.

The front is relatively quiet in Europe today.

Nobody is stopping trains or diving on transport airplanes over Berlin. No new government is under pressure. No new names have been added to the Soviet list of "war-mongers." Nobody has been assassinated for the last while.

And as you read the transcript of radio Moscow broadcasts, you are struck by the comparative absence of vitriol and vinegar and sulphuric comment. This silence is almost disquieting.

But it does not mean that the Russians have called off the dogs.

It means simply that they have encountered the obstacle on the mountain. And, for the moment, they appear to be turning back on the path. In reality, they are merely looking for the new path, the next opportunity.

The obstacle is a result of many different factors, all flowing, like small streams, into the main river. The collapse of Czechoslovakia, and the dramatization of it is the death of the well-loved Masaryk, was one. The successful rebuff of Finland to Russia was another. The Italian elections and the failure of the Greek guerrillas were others.

And the Marshall Plan, is still another.

So the people of Europe have a "will to resist" today, which they did not have three months ago or certainly six months ago.

To be sure, the Red Army could nevertheless go right from Berlin to Gibraltar as things stand today.

Russia could win the first round of a major war, but having occupied all of Europe, her problem would be the same problem that faced the Germans, and that they failed to solve: how to control so many millions of people who also had the "will to resist."

What will come next is hard to discern. Russia's first objective, must be to weaken that common will, or otherwise to get around it.

For that reason, the supporters of the Marshall plan are much worried about the effect, in Europe, of the present battle over proposed reductions in the amount of money authorized. Moscow radio was quick to comment on that. It noted the "disappointment in England," and stressed the controversy and confusion that had been aroused elsewhere.

Union Official Ordered Deported

Toronto, June 9 — (CP)—Rudy Hanson, United States - born representative of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO - CCL) was ordered deported to the United States by an immigration board today.

Hanson was the third member of the same union reported recently in a move by the federal government to rid the country of aliens with alleged communist sympathies. The others were Reid Robinson, eastern vice - president of the union, and George Knott, union official.

Hanson, arrested in Sudbury Tuesday night, was given until July 12 to clear up his family affairs in Canada. He was released on $500 cash bail and said he would not appeal the decision.

SHRINERS VISIT ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, N.J., June 8 (AP) —Some 12,000 costumed Shriners, representing temples in 159 cities of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Panama, marched along this resort's Main street today in bright sunshine to open their 74th annual convention.

Ban Ties Up Huge Russian Orders

Washington, June 9 — (AP) — Some $21,000,000 worth of Russian orders for American goods has been tied up by the virtual ban on industrial shipments to the Soviet Union clamped down March 1.

Officials gave this estimate today as Commerce Secretary Sawyer prepared to lift some of the secrecy over what goods can and what cannot be sold to Russia under the new trade policy.

Previously almost the only official guidance American business men had was that no goods could be exported which "might contribute to the war potential" of the Soviet bloc.

Indirectly, through Sawyer's announcement May 26 of an exception in Finland's case, it has been made clear that the ban definitely applies to machine tools, power generator parts, and many steel products.

NEHRU TO VISIT BRITAIN

New Delhi, June 9. (Reuters). —Prime Minister Nehru of India, has accepted an invitation from Prime Minister Attlee to visit Britain, it was learned Tuesday. He is expected to make the visit in October if conditions permit.

HOUSE MAY BE TOLD OF RUSSIAN SPY ACTIVITIES

Ilsley Warns Disclosure Would be Very Skimpy

Ottawa, June 9 — (CP) — Canada may get a look into Russian undercover activities in this country, though no more than a peek past a lifted corner of the R.C.M.P.'s curtain.

Under pressure in the Commons, Justice Minister Ilsley agreed Tuesday night to give "very careful consideration" to disclosing R.C.M.P. information on any spy rings and Russian-dominated organizations operating in Canada. But he warned that any disclosures would be skimpy.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) prodded the minister — who is in charge of the R.C.M.P. —into thinking the matter over during discussion of Mr. Ilsley's estimates for the force.

The Lake Centre member, recalling that the royal commission on espionage had found five Russian spy rings operating in this country three years ago, wanted to know what the situation was now on subversive activities — particularly Russian.

The Canadian people, he said, should be told:

1. The extent to which various organizations under Russian domination are in fact operating today in this country to the detriment of the country, and designed sabotage our system and our form of government."

Simplify Income Tax Law

2. Whether there are one or more spy rings operating now in the Dominion, as the Royal Commission found in its inquiry.

Mr. Ilsley said at first he did not know it would be in the public interest to discuss these matters in parliament, but later he agreed to look into it and see what he could say.

Earlier, the House moved toward simplification of the income tax law. It gave second reading—approval in principle—to a voluminous bill to streamline administrative procedure in income tax collection.

From Prime Minister Mackenzie King, the House received an announcement of a major reorganization of the Board of Transport Commissioners, which will in future be headed by an exchequer court judge instead of by a direct government appointee as at present.

NUDE BATHING REPORTED

London, Ont., June 9 —(CP)—Nude bathing along the Thames River has blossomed with warmer weather and London township police are taking action against the unclad swimmers following a wave of protests from township residents.

Police have received reports of nudes cavorting along the river bank near the university at the foot of Warncliffe Road and at the blind fourth concession of the township. Some reports have claimed boys and girls were mixing in the parties.

GUAY'S MILLS BURNED

Ste. Agathe, Que., June 9 (CP) —Fire Tuesday night destroyed Guay's Mills in Lac Brule, two and a half miles north of this Laurentian Mountain centre.

Damage was estimated at $75,000, but no one was injured.

A spark flying from a dynamo is believed to have caused the blaze.

Increased Trend of Credit Sales Seen By Retail Credit Assoc. Group Forum

Banff, Alta., June 9 (CP) — Customers are buying more goods on credit today than they did a year ago, it was revealed at a forum held by the Department Store and Wearing Apparel group conference of the National Retail Credit Association.

The forum followed addresses before more than 1,000 international credit conference delegates Tuesday by W. H. Baldwin of New York, Vice-President of General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and Capt. A. A. Nicholson of New York, assistant to the Vice-President of the Texas Company.

The Department Store and Wearing Apparel Group Forum was held under the chairmanship of W. E. Ryan, general credit manager of Broadway Department Stores, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif.

Delegates said collection percentage of outstanding accounts has shown a tendency to decline in recent months. They also said credit customers now constitute about 50 per cent of those who patronize larger establishments in Canada and the United States.

An impromptu poll of delegates indicated that charge accounts collected on the day they fall due now average between 50 and 60 per cent. Delegates said this is indicative of a healthy return to more normal levels.

The increased trend of credit sales has been evident since the lifting of controls which discouraged this form of purchase during the war years and immediate post-war era, and now was gaining more and more adherents in the ranks of retail customers.

Four-Week Truce Becomes Effective Early on Friday

Nine-Point Armistice Plan Proposed by Bernadotte

By MAX BOYD

Cairo, June 9 (AP)—Arabs and Jews replied today to the United Nations proposal for a four-week truce in Palestine and members of each camp said they accepted unconditionally.

Authoritative Jewish informants at Lake Success said the Israel government approved unconditionally the plan of the U. N. mediator, to become effective at 2 a.m. EDT Friday. Arab spokesmen in both Cairo and Amman, Trans-Jordan, said the Arab acceptance was without strings.

The Arabs replied well before the deadline set by the mediator. The Jewish reply, probably because of communications difficulties, arrived from Tel Aviv 50 minutes after the deadline.

Foreign Minister Fawzi Pasha Mulki of Trans-Jordan announced in Amman that all Arab states accepted unconditionally Count Folke Bernadotte's nine-point armistice plan, proposed to become effective at 2 a.m. EDT Friday. In Paris, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel, told reporters "we are, in general, disposed to accept a truce."

The Arab answer to the United Nations Mediator's proposal was delivered to Bernadotte in Cairo at 6:30 a.m. EDT, 90 minutes before the deadline set for replies. Text of the reply was not disclosed here immediately.

Count Bernadotte declined to say whether the Zionist reply had been received in Cairo by the deadline. He said there would be no further news until early evening. This indicated he was allowing several hours for his advices to reach interested authorities and the U. N. at Lake Success before making any public statement.

Heavy Casualties Feared

Egyptian planes bombed central Tel Aviv today even as the Israeli leaders were meeting to consider their truce reply. It was feared casualties were heavy.

Jewish army headquarters said that during the night Israeli planes bombed Arab artillery positions at a former radar station near Kfar Biddu and Nebi Samwil, from which shells had been hurled into Jerusalem. Fighting also continued on the coastal route to Tel Aviv, where the Jews have part of an Egyptian force encircled, and in the north at the Arab "triangle of strength."

Bernadotte listed his nine truce terms as:

Manning Says Ontario Voters Had Little Choice

Edmonton, June 9 —(CP) — Premier Manning of Alberta, commenting Tuesday on the Ontario elections which Monday returned Premier Drew's Conservative government to office with a reduced majority, said "It is regrettable the people of Ontario had so little to vote for. They were given a choice between the old-line parties and socialism — and after all, that isn't much of a choice."

C.C.F. VICTORIES COST LIBERALS 2 FEDERAL SEATS

Socialist Party Wins by Large Majorities in Ontario and B. C.

(By The Canadian Press)

C.C.F. victories in Vancouver Centre and in Ontario riding have cost the Liberals two House of Commons seats.

The Socialist triumphs Tuesday in by-elections in traditionally-Liberal strongholds came just a day after the C.C.F. rose to official opposition stature in the Ontario legislature. Last week the C.C.F. won the Federal by-election in the British Columbia riding of Yale, long held by the Conservatives.

Winning candidates Tuesday were Rodney Young, 38-year-old law student, in Vancouver Centre and Welsh-born labor organizer Arthur Williams, 52, in Ontario riding. Williams sat in the Ontario legislature in 1943-45. The by-election was Young's first political venture.

Both led their nearest opponents by pluralities of roughly 2,000 votes.

The House of Commons standing now is:

Liberals 124; Progressive Conservatives 66; C.C.F. 31; Social Credit 13; Independent 4; Bloc Populaire 2; Independent Liberal 1; Independent Progressive Conservative 1; Independent C.C.F. 1; Union Des Electeurs 1; vacant 1.

Complete Returns

The Vancouver seat was vacated last December with the appointment to the Senate of former Veterans Minister Ian Mackenzie, who had represented the riding since 1930. The Ontario riding seat became vacant with the death of W. E. N. Sinclair, a Liberal.

Complete returns from Ontario riding's 150 polls gave Williams 10,301 votes, compared with 8,324 for Lyman Gifford, Liberal, and 7,555 for Mayor Frank McCallum of Oshawa, Progressive Conservative. The riding includes the automobile - manufactuing city of Oshawa, east of Toronto, and surrounding communities.

Complete returns for the 183 polls in Vancouver Centre gave Young 9,935 votes, Ralph Campney, Liberal, 7,570 and Lyle Jestley Progressive Conservative, 5,242.

Williams worked in coal mines in his native Tredegar, Wales, before coming to Canada in 1929.

His political experience started in Britain where he was a Labor party organizer.

He now works as union organizer.

Young, a former railroad and shipyard worker, has been a C.C.F. member 15 years. He joined the army in 1940 and fought in Italy and western Europe.

Name Committees On Equalization And Estimates

Two of the major items of business on the agenda of the Hastings County Council during the current season will be the striking of estimates, and equalization of assessment.

At the opening session yesterday afternoon, Warden George West named committees on Estimates and Equalization. The latter committee went into special conclave at 9.30 this morning while the Estimates Committee will hold a special meeting before council convenes on Thursday morning.

Following are the committees:

Estimates Committee — Jos. Davis, Chairman; Harry Coulter, Fred Campbell, Harold Wells, Selden Homan, Clarke T. Rollins, C. H. Buskard, Jas. Sprackett, S. A. McCarey, A. A. Harvie, Geo. West, Warden; Ross C. Bailey, Treasurer; E. S. Denyes, Clerk.

Equalization Committee — H. A. Harrison, Chairman; Ben. Bleecker, Bartley Walsh, Chas. Rush, J. W. Morrison, Fred Moorcroft, Carman Kleinsteuber, A. R. Jones, J. A. [illegible], P. A. Kellar, Henry Howard, E. S. Denyes, Clerk; Geo. West, Warden.

16,684 Votes Cast In Hastings West

Unofficial election returns for Monday's election show there was a total of 16,684 votes cast in the riding of Hastings West, or approximately 200 votes less than were cast in the riding in the last provincial election in 1945.

Figures released today by Garnet E. Dobbs, returning officer for the riding, show that Sandercock received a total of 8487 votes; Hughes received 5274 votes and 2923 ballots were cast for Ridley the C.C.F. candidate.

These figures, it was noted, are not official as the official count will not be known until the ballot boxes are opened on June 15th.

Warden Intimates at Opening Session That County Home Will be Sold at City's Offer

Recalling the fact that the City of Belleville had offered to purchase the County House of Refuge, at the January session, Warden George West, reeve of Madoc Village, strongly intimated at the inaugural meeting of the June session of Hastings County Council yesterday afternoon that satisfactory interim offer had been made and acceptance would be strongly recommended.

During his opening address, Warden West told his council, after reminding them of the original offer by the city, that the House of Refuge Committee had visited several potential sites for a new Home in the county, and a few had been found favorable.

The offer of purchase of the Home by the city, and discussion and possible action on the selection of a site for a new building and farm, forms one of the major items of the current session.

Further in his address, the Warden said that the county was in a flourishing condition, with timely showers presaging bumper crops. "Other county industries," he said, "were also progressing, with lumbering in the northern areas, and mining in the Madoc region doing well and having no trouble in finding markets for production."

Must Rewire Buildings

Committee members, the Warden went on, had worked hard with the various chairmen especially those of the House of Refuge Advisory Board, and the Finance Committee which faces the important problem of rewiring all buildings this year. The Roads and Bridges Committee had carried out its duties well and although the system had been in rather bad shape at the beginning of the year, it is now in a state of fair repair and would improve as time went on.

The Agricultural Committee had worked hard on reforestation projects with the result that new reforestation plots had been planted with the aid of junior farmers, school children and older students.

The Warden predicted a busy session ahead and asked for the full co-operation of council as a whole. He urged committee chairmen to keep their estimates as low as possible, and all councillors to study each question brought before them carefully and give them earnest consideration.

During the brief business session, council unanimously endorsed a Northumberland and Durham Counties Council resolution requesting the Ontario Government to object to the proposal of importation, sale or manufacture of margarine.

Recommendations of potential sites for a new County Home located in the vicinity of the village of Marmora were promulgated to council, and laid on the table for future reference.

Accept Invitation

Council decided to accept an invitation of a "Moira Valley Field Day" on July 18, which will consist of a motorcade through the Moira Valley, with luncheon being held in Stoco.

A report of a meeting of the County Agricultural Committee read to council containing recommendations of $400 for Junior Farmers Extension work; grants of $100 to each county forest for maintenance of firebreaks and replacement of fences, and the securing of services of a forest superintendent. The report also recommended that grants to local fairs be increased from $100 to $150 and that to the Belleville Exhibition from $200 to $250. Other grants recommended were those to the British Empire Cheese Exhibition and the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association. It also urged that a suitable program be carried out for school forestry competitions.

Stressed Advertising

A. O. Dalrymple, county agricultural representative, briefly addressed the council and urged that more stress be placed on advertising the county. "While in Western Ontario," he said, "I heard that Hastings was nothing but woods and rock. I find since living here that it contains some of the best farming land in the province."

Pointing out that he has an assistant, Mr. Dalrymple told council that he expected to make further strides in junior farmers work this year. He felt he could get along better with the younger men than with the older ones, since the latter had more or less ideas of their own. He expected to hold the annual livestock judging competition and felt he had increased interest by the offering of more, if small, cash prizes.

The Cattle Breeders Artificial Insemination unit here was progressing favorably and would be one of the best of the ten planned for the province, he said.

Council before adjournment accepted an invitation to a dinner being held at six o'clock tonight at the Batawa Shoe Company's plant. Following adjournment, the body visited the Cattle Breeders Unit on the second concession of Sidney, as a whole.

School Journal, "The Elevator" Ready for Sale

All wrapped up in a yellow gold cover, the 1947-48 edition of "The Elevator" goes on sale at the Collgeiate today. The cover, designed by Blatherwick and Stackhouse, shows Herbie, the teachers' problem, waving a friendly greeting and inviting you inside.

The ninety-six page issue follows the same pattern as has been used in the past few years combining the best features of a school magazine and year book.

There are essays, short stories, and pictures galore. All school clubs have their pictures in the magazine with a short write up of their activities. There are pictures of the graduating class as well. Form News, a short sketch of each class, catches the whole school.

A special page is given over to a picture and a write up of the Memorial Organ, the students' living memorial to their fallen alumni in World War II.

Athletics and drama are given as complete a coverage as time would allow, and the Humor section is augmented with several cartoons.

Editor Bill Wesley and his staff of thirteen have produced a first-class journal. Business manager Barry Shapiro and a staff of seventeen have the Belleville advertisers well represented.

Miss Priest and Mr. Archibald of the Collegiate staff were consulting directors.

Fur Trapping Still Attractive To Many Men

The excitement of early trading days still lurks in the 1948 fur business. Every spring and fall the urge to trap becomes like a fever and men and women, old and young alike start the search for furs. Starting in November and up until the 20th of March, trappers from Consecon, Shannonville, Lonsdale, Marmora and many northern centres as well bring their furs to Belleville to sell. These are mostly the furs from coons, mink, beaver and muskrat.

Trapping is not exclusively for the young and fit. Oliver Hill is one of the best trappers; he has a bad leg, but every spring finds him bringing in his quota of skins. Sandford Lawrence from Marmora, well over 70, is well-known as a hunter and trapper. He also acts as guide for the "summer people" and is a crack shot.

Woman Among Number

After March 20th, muskrats are the prize and last spring a woman well over 50 years of age trapped along the shores of the Bay of Quinte and brought in more than some of the men.

Then the excitement of trading begins—will it be a good year? No one knows! No matter, the thrill of the bidding takes place and excitement runs high!

One of the oldest fur traders in Belleville was Harry Yanover, a resident for over 41 years, formerly from Europe. Mr. Yanover passed away last January but Mrs. Yanover and son are carrying on his business. They have a small factory in their cellar where the processing takes place. The days of the pioneers have passed away, the long voyages by water are over and the tedious trips overland by foot no longer exist but the thrill of trading is not dead yet!

Thurlow Council Concurs in Motion By City Council

Thurlow Township Council at its regular May meeting endorsed a resolution protesting the permitting of trucks from the United States entering Ontario with loads in bond and travelling over provincial highways and streets.

It was felt that heavy traffic is detrimental to the condition of public highways here and United States trucks are providing unfair competition to the transportation systems of the province.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Association of Mayors and Reeves and to the Hon. George Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways.

Council has arranged for a weekly garbage collection at a cost of 50 cents per month to users of the service. Application forms have been mailed to resident property owners and tenants. Property owners will be billed on a yearly basis for the service while tenants will be billed at periodic intervals throughout the year.

The council concurred in the recommendation of the Belleville city council regarding building restrictions in the annexed area of the township.

Trenton Man Held at Thorold

Thorold, June 9 — (CP) — In a surprise move by Canada Steamship Lines officials, a replacement crew was put aboard the freighter Battleford here today and the ship cleared port a few minutes later. An escort of 40 R.C.M.P. officers and Provincial Police was provided, but no resistance was encountered from the Canadian Seamen's Union picket line.

The Battleford, owned by the C.S.L., one of five Great Lakes shipping companies blacklisted by the C.S.U. in an effort to make them sign a contract with the union, has been crewless since June 6 when her Canadian Lake Seamen's Union crew was induced to leave by a C.S,U. boarding party.

Three C.S.U. pickets were arrested by police following the Battleford's departure and were charged with obstructing police.

The men, Clifford Gunter, 22, of Trenton, Michael LeBano, 27, of Vancouver, and Clifford Hubert, 21, of Fort Erie, are being held in Welland county jail.

Colored Cheese Price Decreases On Local Board

The price of colored cheese fell off sharply on the Belleville Cheese Board Tuesday evening when for the first time since the opening of the board this season the colored variety sold lower than the white.

A total of 1795 colored cheese sold at 32 7/8 cents as compared with 33 1/4 cents on Thursday. White cheese sold at 33 cents, as compared with 33 3/16 cents last week.

Cheese buyers expressed the thought that the large number of colored cheese being made at the present time was mainly responsible for the dropping off in price.

A total of 2682 large cheese, plus 1698 ten-pound cheese were offered on the board. White cheese numbered 887.

There was brief discussion as to when the board would again meet, it being decided to meet every Tuesday evening until the price is set for overseas shipment. Following were the factories represented and the cheese each offered:

Police Blotter

Failure to lock his hotel room door cost H. A. Barnard, Brunswick Ave., Toronto, his wallet containing approximately $60 in cash.

Barnard told police that he had rented a room at the hotel and when he got up in the morning missed his wallet. He admitted that he had failed to lock the door.

Police are continuing to check closely for motorists who fail to observe city traffic by-laws and over the night apprehended several drivers exceeding the speed limit while driving on Dundas Street. The motorists were summonsed and paid speeding fines into the city coffers.

Hitler's Building Relics Clutter Up Nurnberg

Nurnberg, Germany, June 9 — (AP)—Hitler left a lot of stones lying around here and the Nurnberg City Council wishes somebody would cart them away.

To start with, anything connected with Hitler is gall and worm-wood to the Nurnberger now. The Fuehrer left one huge stadium one big congress hall and one hardly started new stadium as bitter reminders.

The stones are the worst of all. They are big chunks of granite, each carefully cut and marked. Each had its destined place in the plan to make Nurnberg "the" Nazi city and eventual capital of the world.

Grandiose Plan

The plan was grandiose. A giant hole was dug for the stadium, designed to seat 400,000 persons. Rail lines into it were laid out so as to lead to the important centres of all European countries. The podium would have been on a direct line with the famed medieval tower of Nurnberg, symbol of German strength.

Near by was the indoor Nazi rallying place, the congress hall. Only the exterior was finished, a circular pile of granite. Bombs and capitulation ended the Hitler dream.

The land around both huge projects is dotted with the granite stones. They are too heavy to steal —probably the one thing in Germany safe from thieves. They aren't much good for building because there are not enough stone saws in all Germany now to cut them up.

Thousands of Blocks

There are thousands of the granite blocks, each about three feet square. In three years of brain cudgelling, Nurnberg city fathers haven't figured out anything they could be used for.

The same sense of frustration goes for the foundations of the proposed stadium, so vast in scope it is breath-taking.

The congress hall monstrosity is just as much of a nuisance. The outer walls, all that was finished, are so perfect they look like the curtain on a stage. Inside, where Hitler once planned to address 60-000 of his followers, there is nothing.

Alterations Too Expensive

Although the city needs living space, Prof. Herman Egelseher, chief of the building department, rules out the congress hall as a dwelling of any kind. Cutting it up for building blocks would be too expensive.

"The best would be to let this heap of stones become a ruin," he said. "Why should we be interested in such objects of a fool?"

The unfinished building played one last dirty trick on Nurnbergers, Egelseher recalled. During air raids it was used by citizens to store their valuables. When the war ended they returned for their things and found them gone — stolen.

Probably only Hitler and his top men, now dead, know how much money was dumped into the Nurnberg venture.

Herbert McCabe Heads Local Liberal Assoc.

After being dormant for some years the Belleville Liberal Association was re-organized at an enthusiastic meeting held in the clubrooms on Front Street on Tuesday evening. There were more adherents at the meeting than at any time during the recent election campaign and it is the purpose of the organization to immediately purchase a hall, where social evenings can be held and where the business of the association can be conducted. In conjunction with this meeting was another held for the organization of the South Hastings Liberal Association and officers were elected for both ridings.

It was also proposed that a strong membership committee would be formed and the objective was set at 2,500. Cards will be printed and given to those joining the local association. The officers of the newly-formed association will meet in the near future and appoint the ward chairmen and also the poll chairmen and those who will be appointed to the executive committee. During the evening speeches were delivered by A. B. Collins, McLean Haig, Frank Follwell and the recent candidate Bernard Hughes. Mr. Hughes thanked all of his supporters for the co-operation and help given him during the campaign and wished for the Liberal party every success.

Delegates Appointed

Mr. A. B. Collins, Mrs. Herbert McCabe and Frank Follwell were elected as representatives for the Belleville association to the convention to be held in Ottawa in August at which time a new leader will be chosen. Peter McLaren, Gerald Weaver and Arthur Gough will represent South Hastings. A lively election for officers was held and the following have been named.

For the Belleville association, President, Herbert McCabe; 1st Vice President, H. P. Rush; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. H. McCabe; 3rd Vice President, Maurice Callaghan; Secretary Treasurer, Allan A. Simmie and for South Hastings, President, Arthur Gough; 1st Vice President, Irvine McGaughey, 2nd Vice President, J. L. Bird; 3rd Vice President, Mrs. George Wilson and Secretary Treasurer, Miss Jean Mathews.

Another meeting to receive reports of the committees appointed will be held in the near future.

Earth Tremor Felt In Montreal District

Ottawa, June 9 — (CP) — The earth tremor which shook Montreal Tuesday night was recorded on the seismographs at the Dominion observatory as "approximately of the same intensity as the May 7 quake which occurred near Montreal," officials reported today.

Distance from Ottawa to the epicentre was given as about 100 miles and officials said the first indications were that the epicentre was probably west of the city.

The shock was recorded at 11:04:36 p.m. EDT and lasted about 2½ minutes. Another seismograph station at Weston, Mass., recorded it about 12 seconds later.

2. The mediator to exercise his discretion to determine whether men of military age are among immigrants in such numbers as to give one side a military advantage.

Immigrants Banned

3. The mediator to keep a check on all immigration at ports of embarkation and debarkation and place U. N. observers on ships bearing immigrants.

4. The mediator may ban all immigrants during the first week of the truce.

5. Movement of troops or war materials from one Arab country to another or close to the fighting fronts to be prohibited for the four-week period.

6. All fighting fronts to be stabilized during the period, and no increase in fighting strength or in war materials to be permitted, but routine troops replacements may take place.

7. War materials not to be imported into the territory of any interested party.

8. Relief to be administered by the International Red Cross to the populations of both sides in such municipal areas as Jerusalem and Jaffa.

9. All war-like acts, on land, sea and air to be prohibited during the truce.

It was reported in Tel Aviv that at least one American general and a score or more lesser officers are known to be in active command positions in the army of Israel.

T. C. Shore of Toronto, a special representative of Bernadotte, arrived in Haifa Tuesday from Cairo. Jewish sources said he was making arrangements for military observers who would be called in if there is a truce.

Disasters by Flood

The period of trial and disaster through which the people on the Pacific Coast are passing through seems unduly prolonged and gives some hint by which the people of other parts can understand the greatness of the problems which press upon that part of Canada and the United States. The story has been a tragic one with heavy loss of life and the loss of treasure in the form of buildings and property swept away by floods. The use of soldiers to build and support dikes and the coming of military engineers indicates how earnestly the fight is being waged against the rage of the elements through the great volume of snow on the mountains melting under the intense heat of spring weather. Yesterday stories told of the complication of the situation by the tidal waves from the Pacific Ocean surging in and threatening to destroy the efforts of man in the construction of barriers and strengthening of the dikes.

Throws Light on Early Era

China has been making pottery and porcelain of great beauty for thousands of years. The art is still here in this twentieth century and contributes to the world's riches and treasures. Some of such wealth can be viewed in the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto. Recently there was opened on view there a special exhibit of one hundred and fifty objects in the fresco gallery. These are familiar to westerners as "table ware" — cups, bowls, plates, wine and tea pots besides vases, jars and sundry containers. These have been shown for, their beauty of form, color or exquisite glaze. Rarities in the groupings included black pottery imitations of bronze vessels of great antiquity from about 1200 B.C., green glazed porcelains of the third century, A.D., and some fine examples of the earliest "true" porcelain extant, dating from perhaps the sixth century. Some of these are very rare products of the Sung kilns and are well represented as are pieces from the Ming and Ch'ing periods. These made a picture of the development of Chinese porcelains from the dawn of history to the present day.

Studies in these works of art and use throw a flood of light upon history. Such products of man's genius give the observer opportunity to meditate on the course of human progress. Such poetry is the product of an age of great culture and the mention of the date 1200 B.C. indicates something of the great antiquity of such works of man's hand and mind. They indicate something of the distant past when man first appeared on the earth and after long ages of development reached the stage when it was possible to produce such exquisite works of art that their great age does not detract from them but adds to them as objects of beauty and as proofs of man's progress in culture.

Cripps' Statement

Further examination of Britain's import program will have to be made if world prices continue to rise more steeply than Britain's export prices.

Sir Stafford Cripps, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave this warning when he spoke at a Press Conference in London on Britain's balance of payments position.

Dealing first with the wide gap between imports and exports in the first four months of this year, he pointed out that while the difference was given as £174,000,000, when certain hidden factors were taken into account the true invisible deficit was probably less than £100,000,000.

At the same time, there had been a very considerable reduction in the current visible deficit with the Western Hemisphere. Increased exports to that area and substantially reduced imports from it had had the result that the estimated deficit from January to April was £53,000,000 less than from September to December last year — almost exactly in accordance with the Government's forecast.

"The state of the United Kingdom dollar trade is of course not the only factor which affects the rate of drain upon our gold and dollar reserves. There is, for example, the dollar trade of the rest of the Sterling Area as well. We do not publish figures of the drain on our reserves at more than quarterly intervals, but I may tell you that April brought no unpleasant surprises."

Discussing the rest of the world, Sir Stafford said that the last four months showed a substantial rise in imports and a smaller rise in exports, so that the balance was £25,000,000 less favorable than in the preceding four months. The excess of imports over the estimate on the assumed half-yearly basis was £79,000,000 while the excess of exports was only £19,000,000.

"This circumstance is the main single explanation of the fact that the visible gap in our balance of payments has not been narrowing at the rate we hoped for. The explanations are partly, that we have been able to make increased food purchases from countries like Denmark, Palestine and some others in order to vary our diet, but chiefly that the prices of goods from these countries have risen higher than the forecasts."

Sir Stafford was asked how much of the purchases under the European Recovery Program were in addition to were in addition to what Britain would have purchased if there had been no E.R.P. He replied: "The answer is none, because we do not regard E.R.P. as a means of increasing our standard of living. We regard it as a means of helping us to rehabilitate ourselves and our industry for the next three or four years."

Dealing with the position of the overall balance of trade by the end of the year, Sir Stafford said: "I do not think upon the present price trend that, unless there is a marked falling in import prices by the end of the year, we are likely to achieve an overall balance."

Laugh and Grow Fat

"Through being funny I put on so much weight before the war that I had to have all my suits altered! You see, we were playing at cinemas, giving five or six shows a day. One day, to be funny, I started to peel and eat a banana — the audience laughed so much I had to do it at each show! I was very glad when I stopped that act and got back my normal weight."—Coco Aslam, famous French comedian, speaking in the BBC's magazine program, "In Town Tonight."

First Jet Airliner

Britain recently made aeronautical history. The world's first jet-propelled airliner was given its first flight early this month. The machine is a Vickers Viking passenger plane similar to those used by the British Overseas Airways Corporation and other airlines in various parts of the world. It is powered by two Rolls-Royce Nene jet motors in place of Bristol-Hercules piston engines. These motors have a thrust of 5,000 lbs. each.

Like all successful writers, Stephen Leacock was constantly being importuned by ambitious would-be authors to import to them his magic recipe for writing success. They wanted to know just how he wrote his delightfully funny paragraphs. To this supplication, the humorist would reply: "It is not hard to write funny stuff. All you have to do is procure a pen and paper, and some ink, and then sit down and write it as it occurs to you." "Yes, yes," the would-be writer would prompt. "The writing is not hard," Leacock would conclude, "but the occurring—that my friend, is the difficulty."—Wall Street Journal.

JUST FOLKS

NEW GRANDPA

His eyes were a-gleam and his tongue was a-wag.
It was plain as could be that he wanted to brag.
"The grandchild has come, and the doctors agree
That they've never seen such a baby!" said he.
And I tried to reply to the news that I heard,
But no chance would he give me to utter a word.

"The nurses all say it, and them I believe,
For nurses, I'm certain, would never deceive:
He's a marvellous baby, from hear to his toes.
Has remarkable hands and a wonderful nose!"
But fearing perhaps I might think him absurd,
He made certain that I shouldn't get in a word.

I wanted to say I'm a grandpa myself,
But he kept me shut up like a book on a shelf.
I wanted to say I had grandchildren four,
And had listened to nurses and doctors before,
But his ravings kept up, for it never occurred
To the newly made grandpa to grant me a word.

Exchequer Court Judge to Head Transport Board

Ottawa, June 9 (CP)—A top-level reorganization of the governing body of Canada's railways was seen today as a possible prelude to a widened investigation into railway problems.

The government overhaul of the Board of Transport Commissioners, putting an exchequer court judge at its head, was regarded in some quarters as move toward meeting provincial demands for a royal commission.

There was speculation that the move—announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King Tuesday —would be followed by a broadening of the Board's projected freight-rate inquiry.

At the same time, though, it was reported unlikely the provinces would be granted their request for a cancellation of the recent 21-per-cent freight-rate increase awarded the railways by the Transport Commissioners.

Under the government's planned set-up, the Board of Transport Commissioners—now made up of government appointees — will be headed by exchequer court judges serving 10-year terms.

The first such appointee will be Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, wartime chairman of the National War Labor Board.

He will be appointed to the exchequer court so he can take over the chief commissionship now held by Col. J. A. Cross, former Saskatchewan Attorney-General. Col. Cross, 72 and due to retire in 1950, had turned in his resignation to take effect when the government wishes.

In making the announcement, Mr. King gave no official indication of any direct connection between the move and the dissatisfaction of seven provinces with the Board's recent freight-rate decision.

Turkish Govt. Collapses Under Fire From Critics

Ankara, June 9 — (AP)—The government of Premier Hasan Saka collapsed today under harsh fire from critics of its domestic economic policies.

Foreign policy played no part in the disputes which led up to the Saka cabinet's unexpected resignation early this morning. Turkey is receiving United States aid under the Truman doctrine, intended to protect Greece and Turkey from communist pressure.

President Ismet Inonu accepted the cabinet resignation but immediately asked Saka to form a new government. Informed political sources said the new cabinet probably would have new ministers of economics, labor, commerce and perhaps of agriculture. Necmeddin Sadak is expected to continue as foreign minister.

Saka has been premier since last September, when the cabinet of Premier Recep Peker fell in a similar dispute. Saka had been foreign minister in the Peker government and as such helped set up the arrangements for the $100,000,000 American aid program.

One of the loudest complaints, against the government and the most frequently heard, concerned the wheat shortage. Normally, Turkey produces more wheat than she consumes, but recently she has been importing grain to meet consumer demands.

HOUSE MAY BE

This announcement followed reports that such a move would be the government's answer to provincial demands for a general Royal Commission inquiry into the railways.

On the only vote of the day, the Commons voted 97 to 38 to defeat a C.C.F. amendment that would have prevented the government from cancelling at any time the budget tariff reductions on British textiles entering Canada.

Wants Reductions Passed on

The government sought such power to make sure the tariff reductions were passed on to the Canadian people, Mr. Abbott told the House.

From the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. benches, the House heard demands for a national policy for the development of hydro-electric power.

T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) and E. G. McCullough (CCF-Assiniboia) joined in this theme while the Commons debated a measure to set up a power commission for the North-west Territories.

In the night session, Mr. Diefenbaker raised objection to the Justice Department authorizing publication last week of a combines commission report alleging the existence of a combine in the optical goods trade.

He suggested such publication —involving conviction "before the bar of public opinion—", "should not be permitted in advance of actual prosecution.

Justice Minister Ilsley, under whose department the combines investigation administration comes, defended the practice.

In the Senate, the Red Chamber heard Senator Ian Mackenzie (L-British Columbia)—just up from the House of Commons—give notice that he would move for the establishment of a committee to study long-discussed reform of Senate rules and Senate representation.

Create Appeal Board

The committee will be asked, he said, to study the question of giving the west representation in line with its growing population. Present Senate membership is based on the distribution of Canadian population at the time of Confederation.

In the Commons, Finance Minister Abbott's new income tax bill called for a wide change in the administrative system, aimed at consolidating and simplifying the present method of collecting income taxes.

One feature will be the creation of an income tax appeal board. At present, taxpayers have only the expensive recourse of an appeal to the exchequer court. They may go to the new board by paying a $15 deposit, which is refunded if the appeal is allowed.

Another major provision is that farmers and fishermen will be enabled to average out their income over five years for income tax purposes.

J. M. MacDonnall (PC—Muskoka-Ontario), financial critic for the Progressive Conservatives said the bill would have the effect of making the Commons an "automatic rubber stamp" for the will of the government.

Mr. Abbott said that was not the case. He declared the bill had been under intense study and preparation for months, and it had not been possible to bring it in earlier.

STIFF SHOULDER

Stiffness of the shoulder with plenty of pain, particularly nights when you try in vain to find a position that will ease the pain enough to permit you to sleep, and limited use of the shoulder and arm, is the characteristic picture of bursitis—subacromial in most instances, subdeltoid in some instances.

There are several bursas (sacs inclosing thick serous fluid, making a pad or cushion over a bony prominence exposed to pressure or friction) about the shoulder. More familiar situations of bursas are those over the kneecaps — when inflamed and swollen they are commonly known as housemaid's knee; and those over the tip of elbow, when inflamed known as miner's elbow or tennis elbow.

Because shoulder bursitis is not diagnosed in many instances the trouble is maltreated or not treated at all, on the false assumption that it is "rheumatism" (and that, if you ask me, is always a false assumption, for of course there is no specific disease or ailment a physician can identify as "rheumatism"), or because of an incorrect diagnosis of neuritis.

Here I ask my readers' indulgence while I take time out to kick myself. When I had subacromial bursitis I had a fool for a doctor—he thought I had neuritis—and not until a year after the trouble had passed did I learn that it had been bursitis. For a fracture of the opposite shoulder at this time called for X-ray negatives of both shoulders (for comparison), and the negative revealed that the bursa had calcified — a common sequel of bursitis. I kick myself because the doctor who muffed the diagnosis was that eminent quack the conductor of this column. Haven't I said here again and again that whoever treats his own illness has a fool for a doctor? It never occurred to me to consult a real doctor when I had bursitis, except on a few occasions when the pain exhausted my endurance and a kind colleague came in and gave me a shot of morph—and of course that was no time for him to attempt a careful examination.

I kick myself because, had I known what really ailed me, aspiration of the bursa (insertion of needle and withdrawal of fluid, even only a few drops, to lessen tension within the unyielding sac) might have brought early relief. Or injection of a local anesthetic in or around the inflamed bursa would have given reasonable comfort for days or perhaps long enough for complete healing and cessation of the disability.

This method of treating shoulder bursitis calls for a certain amount of skill on the part of the physician, just as diathermy (electro-coagulation) of tonsils or injection treatment of hernia or hemorrhoids or varicose veins does, but it is far more effective and satisfactory to patient and physician than the old-time fuss and feathers ever could be.

A good many victims of shoulder bursitis who are maltreated as badly as I was, come out of it less luckily than I did. They get "frozen shoulder" — permanent limitation of movement and usefulness of the shoulder, because instead of having the necessary passive movements (manipulation by an attendant) and then regular active movements or exercises), from the time the acute inflammation begins to subside, they made the mistake of petting the lame shoulder, avoiding all movement, and so permitting adhesions to develop which make the joint more or less stiff or "frozen." With this dis-use of the arm of course weakening and atrophy of all muscles about the shoulder girdle begins in a few weeks, and the ultimate result is just too bad.

That Old Reliable the Lawn Mower Just a Monster to Many Weary Men

By B. U.

Come out from behind the sports page chum and take a good look at your front lawn. Horrible isn't it? Don't go around to the back because it is worse there than out front. The only way to brighten up the place and make it respectable is to cut the grass, and you know it. But we are above suggesting that you should drop this page, grab a lawnmover and start manicuring that grasshopper's mattress.

If you would like sane, sound advice on how to keep your lawn in condition, the right man has come to you. Keep a goat. This is more reasonable than it sounds. Where else will you have the dual advantage of a mower that provides the laird of the manor with refreshment when the job is done? If you have a large lawn keep two goats. This lawn-goat ratio can be maintained simply during the summer time and in the winter you can have goatskin rugs on all the floors buy a new gas powered model that all but wipes the operator's brow. When she sees the latest creations in lawn clippers she will be only to glad to cut the grass herself, thereby leaving you alone and peaceful in the hammock. What is subtler than this approach?

If all things fail and you must use that miniature chariot in the basement advertise for small boys willing to learn a trade with pay. This invariably draws the ambitious type, as newspaper ads always do, and the smaller the lads are that respond to your philanthropic offer, the better the job will be done. If the high cost of living has you using last year's hankies, and the wife is still in the good old look dresses, spare the family budget by treating the slaves to a cool glass of lemonade. Lemonade works wonders on the small fry.

"Please tell me how I can get him back, if possible, for I don't see how a person's mind could change so fast. I also would like to know what you think I should do with his pin, give it back or keep it."

In a situation of this kind it is a smart girl who is willing to realize that there is no program that can be recommended for "getting back" a friend whose ardor has cooled. It is completely futile for anyone to try and map out a campaign of strategy to stir up interest where it has been lost. It is not necessarily

LAST SEASON, or breaks

By the end of 1947 more than 14,000 Londoners had ruefully checked over their ransacked possessions and called on their local "Bobbies" to report the loss of jewelry, furs, clothing and cash.

Small Part Restored

Of £880,000 worth of property stolen from London homes, only £26,200 was restored. Nearly £250,000 of articles vanished from autos during the same period of which little more than 10 per cent was recovered.

Stolen goods under miscellaneous headings reached a total value of £750,000. Of these all but £76,000 worth were never traced. While high-priced stolen jewelry is usually smuggled out of the country, most garments find their way into retail stores through the black market and are bought as legitimate goods.

A small proportion, however, changes hands furtively in public houses, cafes, pin-table saloons aboard is rarely retrieved. No clue, for instance has revealed the fate of the Duchess of Windsor's jewels — major pieces of unique design stolen from her temporary home at Ednam Lodge, Sunningdale, Berkshire, in October, 1946.

These, in most criminal circles, would have been considered 'too hot to handle."

Thomas Warren Celebrates 80th Birthday

Marmora (Special) — Royal Thomas Warren, familiarly known as Thomas Warren celebrated his eightieth birthday quietly at his home on Forsyth Street on Monday. Tom is the oldest native of Marmora and has a long record behind him as a painter, taking up the profession when a youth and still intermittently wielding the brush. Relations and close friends numbering about forty made surprise calls on Sunday to tender congratulations. His only daughter Grace acted as hostess for the occasion.

"Tom is the son of a marriage which united two old pioneer families. His parents were Thomas Warren and Annie Jones and incidentally he was born on the next property north of his present home. His stalwart build and activity do not befit his age but are more typical of one some years his junior. His memory of the events in Marmora's history during his lifetime is amazing. He is a member of Marmora United Church, Marmora A. F. and A.M. No. 222 and of the Canadian Order of Oddfellows of many years' standing. For some years he served on the Marmora village council as councillor.

He has the wishes of a host of friends that he will be spared for many years to come.

Super Wind Tunnel of 1,500 M.P.H. Will be Built by British Scientists

Bedford, England, (Reuters)—Britain's "city of scientists" near here is rapidly expanding.

A huge research station to centralize all British experiments in supersonic flight is being built.

It will cost £20,000,000 ($80,000,000) and will ultimately have a staff of 5,000 of whom about 1,400 will be scientists. Although some equipment will be ready for work within a few months, it is estimated that the station will not be completed until 1952.

Two main items in the plan are a wind tunnel capable of operating at 1,500 miles an hour, twice the speed of sound, and a giant runway five miles long and six hundred yards wide.

Ironically enough, this most up-to-date wind tunnel will incorporate equipment captured at German ultrasonic research station in Brunswick.

At least two pewerful wind tunnels are planned, in which models will be tested to guide the experts in their investigations of supersonic flight, and these are largely responsible for the heavy cost of the project.

Voracious Wind Tunnels

Wind tunnels which work up to and beyond the speed of sound need an immense amount of power to drive their fans and keep them cool.

Consequently, the Bedford station when working at peak load will use at least 200,000 horsepower or about the same as a city like Manchester, with a population of nearly 750,000.

It requires 120,000 horsepower to drive air through a large wind tunnel at a speed of 1,500 miles an hour.

The five-mile runway is to enable pilots, if they are not satisfied when their plane has taken off, to land again safely. The first 3,000 feet of the runway, which will cost £2,000,000 ($8,000,000), is expected to be ready towards the end of the year.

Directing the stations scientific experiments is W. Perring, a wartime scientist who worked as an apprentice in historic Chatham Dockyard and later trained as an architect at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.

It was mainly through Perring that the Allies learned how Hitler's V-2 rockets worked. He did much of the investigation into salvaged bits of the rockets and reconstructed one from them.

Private Welfare Agencies Need Public Support

Hamilton, June 9 — (CP) — The life of any private welfare agency depends on its relations with the public, Dr. H. S. Stewart of Hamilton Tuesday night told the Canadian Conference on Social Work.

In an address to delegates attending the annual dinner, Dr. Stewart, president of the conference, said voluntary public support was back of every private agency. And it was the agency's problem to maintain "intelligent and cordial" relations between itself and the public.

As a rapidly developing profession, social work was tending to withdraw itself from public understanding, said Dr. Stewart. And the public would not pay out money for something it did not understand.

Philip S. Fisher of Montreal urged increased co-operation between public and private agencies.

President of the Canadian Welfare Council, he said that in discussing private agencies one was faced with "an extraordinary divergence," in the history, the setup and the thinking of all manner of agencnes across the country.

In Canada's welfare field, as in other fields of human endeavor, there were "vast" resources of experience, knowledge, intelligence, lying only half-used, partly because we have not had the wisdom to seek them out, partly because mechanisms have not been in existence to make them nationally available.

He said that at this conference he realized there would be strong advocacy in one field or another of both Dominion action and provincial action.

But he hoped that to get the greatest possible extent" the considerations kept in mind would be welfare considerations, not political ones.

Huge Numbers Canadian-Built Locomotives Built for Export

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 9 — (CP) — Canada is shipping hundreds of steam locomotives to Asia, Africa and Europe, and at the same time is getting started on a large diesel-electric locomotive industry.

Latest order is 100 steam jobs for India, worth about $12,500,000, which follows a previous Indian order for 150 on which work is just underway.

These orders are being filled by Montreal Locomotive Works, Ltd., and the Canadian Locomotive Co., Ltd., of Kingston.

Spokesman for the Montreal company at the Canadian International Trade Fair here state that in addition to the Indian orders, the following others have been received since the war:

Belgium 160; France 100; Egypt 20; Nigeria 16; Rhodesia 14; Portuguese East Africa 8; Newfoundland 6.

On display at the fair is a 1,000-horse power diesel-electric switching locomotive made in Montreal, the largest and most powerful built in Canada, the first of an order of 40 for Canadian railways, with further Canadian and foreign orders in the offing. It weighs 115 tons, is 45 feet long and 14½ feet high. Preparations are being made to produce 1,500-horse power diesel-electric road switchers in 1949.

Other Canadian railway equipment is going abroad. Canadian Car and Foundry Co., Ltd., is showing at the fair the latest in day coaches and baggage and express cars; also work train equipment, including ballast cars destined for South Africa.

The rail equipment companies don't expect to make many, if any, sales at the fair, but their show is "big stuff" draws lots of attention from world visitors, perhaps because most men have a small-boy hankering to get at the throttle of a locomotive, and they get some of the "feel" even in the immobilized diesel-electric. But its mostly a male crowd.

Red Cross Executives Here for Regional Meeting

MR. W. B. HANNA

MRS. A. C. McKENZIE

The Canadian Red Cross Society, Ontario Division, is holding a regional meeting in the St. Thomas' Parish House Thursday. This will be the first meeting of this kind to be held in the city and two meetings are scheduled, one at 2:30 p. m. and one at 6:30 p.m.

One of two senior executive members to attend the meetings will be Mr. W. B. Hanna, newly-elected president of Ontario Division. During the war years, Mr. Hanna served as president of Vaughan township branch, and as chairman of the Red Cross prisoners of War Liaison Committee, directing the inquiries of anxious persons seeking word of friends or relatives held in enemy prison camps.

With the cessation of hostilities, Mr. Hanna was chosen to head a committee formed to assist in the project of re-uniting families and assisting the men and their families. Personal time and sacrifice were unstintingly given by Mr. Hanna while serving as voluntary chairman of the committee.

Experienced Organizer

Mrs. A. C. McKenzie, chairman of Ontario Division Branch Program Committee, will also be on hand for the regional meeting. A full volunteer during the war years, Mrs. McKenzie well exemplified the ideals of the organization, "Charity, Humanity and Service".

At the time of the inauguration of the Emergency Nursing Reserve, under the auspices of the Ontario Division of Red Cross, Mrs. McKenzie was a district leader, giving her full time to travelling throughout Ontario, organizing reserves to the extent of 15,000 trained women.

Mrs. McKenzie is a member of the management committee and the executive committee of the Ontario Division, and has a wide knowledge and understanding of small branch problems. She is visiting many branches to assist in the organization of peacetime programs.

The above are two speakers who will be heard at the regional meetings held in the St. Thomas' Parish House on Thursday. The meeting is open to those participating and interested in the work and efforts of the Red Cross.

Edgar Ray Heads Sidney Religious Education Council

The annual convention of the Sidney Religious Education Council was held in Frankford United Church.

Mr. Walter Morrow welcomed those present at the afternoon session. An interesting discussion on "The Learners" was conducted by Miss Margaret Robb, representative of the Ontario Religious Education Council. Rev. G. A. Puttenham, Rev. A. C. McCallum and Rev. W. Neelands through addresses and leadership of discussions brought much value and inspiration to Sunday School workers.

The afternoon session closed with a very impressive worship service conducted by the Sidney Baptist Sunday School. The ladies of Frankford United Church served the convention a very delicious supper and after a short recess the evening session reconvened. The King Street Sunday School, Trenton, led the evening worship. The slate of officers brought in was as follows:

President, Edgar Ray; 1st Vice President, Clarence Copeland; 2nd. Vice President, Albert Warren; Secretary Treasurer, Leslie Finkle; Children's Department, Mrs. Glen Meyers; Girls' Department, Mrs. B. Mitts; Boys' Department, R. H. Smithrim; Young People, Ross Marshall; Adult Department, Walter Lindenfield; Home Department, Mrs. Dan Smith; Teacher Training, Rev. G. A. Puttenham; Missionary Department, Mrs. M. B. Sine; Press Secretary, Mrs. Harry Coulter.

The resolutions adopted by the convention were:

Resolved that in view of the growing menace of intemperance the teaching of total abstinence and temperance education in Sunday Schools should be stressed.

Resolved that the executive consider the establishing of a leadership training school this fall.

Each school should endeavor to send at least one representative to an O.R.E.C. leadership camp at Glenmore on Lake Simcoe or a camp where leadership training is given.

A series of four brief talks under the heading "It worked with us" was as follows:

"I Can't Teach Without Praying", Mr. M. B. Sine. Prayer is the soul's sincere desire.

"Securing Personal Commitment for Christ", Rev. G. A. Puttenham, the expectancy is for the child to give itself for Christ.

"A Method of Teaching I have tried", Mr. Walter Lindenfield, "Your method is part of you, is Christ working through you.

"A Plan we Tried in Our School," Mrs. Warren Harlow, While trying to earn an attendance prize much else of great value is gained.

Mrs. M. B. Sine gave a temperance talk followed by a film.

Miss Margaret Robb spoke on making a Sunday School evangelistic. Evangelism today as always is a life caught on fire which cannot help touching other lives.

An impressive service of dedication conducted by Rev. H. H. Lackey concluded the convention.

The convention has an invitation to hold the next convention at the Sidney Baptist Church.

HEART DISEASE RESEARCH

Washington, June 9 — (AP) — Legislation launching a government-backed program of heart disease research was passed Tuesday by the House of Representatives. It goes back to the Senate. The bill proposes a national heart institute under the public health service with public and private agencies asked to co-operate.

Princess Anne's Parents Consent Says Spokesman

Athens, June 9 (AP) — A spokesman for ex-King Michael of Romania said today Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma is being married here tomorrow with the full consent and agreement of her parents.

He declared that Anne's uncle, Prince Xavier of Bourbon-Parma, spoke without authority in Paris Monday when he said the Bourbon-Parma family did not approve the marriage.

"Anne has a mother and father with whose full consent and agreement the wedding is going to take place," the spokesman said. "The reason Xavier made this statement is because he is under the complete domination of the Catholic church and is most anxious to protect his position."

(Xavier is a pretender to the Spanish throne.)

Although the spokesman said Anne's mother and father will not be in Athens for the wedding, that fact should not be taken as "evidence that they disapprove. The fact that Prince Erik, Anne's uncle, is here and will attend the wedding as a representative is the best evidence that the wedding has been approved by the family."

Mr., Mrs. Don Jandrew Honored With Post-Nuptial Shower

Schoharie—About seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone in honor of their daughter, Barbara who was married recently to Mr. Donald Jandrew, of Bloomfield. The home was decorated with roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bride was lovely in a pale blue silk jersey dress with a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Clare Campbell furnished music for the evening and Mr. Clare Warren conducted a contest.

Miss Norma Foster read an address to the bride and groom and many lovely gifts were presented, in a decorated basket, by Karen Tubbs and Bobby May. Mr. and Mrs. Jandrew thanked their friends for their kindness and invited all to visit them in their new home.

Delicious refreshments were served by several of the girls.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"How Can I Get Him Back?"

A girl of 19, who signs herself "Baffled" asks me a question that appears in so many of the letters I receive from teenagers that this column is an answer to all of them.

This girl says that she had been seeing a good deal of a certain chap who seemed to enjoy her company as much as she enjoyed his. Because, after going with her for some weeks, he gave her his club pin, she felt she had good ground for believing she really meant something to him.

To her surprise, however, the dates and the phone calls suddenly stopped. There was silence, without any explanation.

"Foolish as I was," she writes, "I stayed in and waited to hear from him. After four days of waiting I went out bowling with my girl friends and there I met him. He spoke to me very casually about things in general and it was then I knew our friendship was over.

"The next day I spoke to him, and he told me he had thought thing were getting too serious and he had to stop it. To that I had no answer, so we said good-bye on a friendly basis.

"Please tell me how I can get him back, if possible, for I don't see how a person's mind could change so fast. I also would like to know what you think I should do with his pin, give it back or keep it."

In a situation of this kind it is a smart girl who is willing to realize that there is no program that can be recommended for "getting back" a friend whose ardor has cooled. It is completely futile for anyone to try and map out a campaign of strategy to stir up interest where it has been lost. It is not necessarily impossible, of course, for a young man to find out that the girl he left is the one he really wanted, and to try to get her to take him back. But it is only when he has the wish to return himself that there is any hope of a reunion. It cannot be brought about by strategic planning on the girl's part.

It just happens, however, that if a girl is wise enough to accept the situation, and go about her other business, that course sometimes turns out to be a successful one in reviving the ex-boy friend's interest. What she cannot do by conscious trying, sometimes happens very unexpectedly when she is content to leave it alone. Many girls seem to think that to show their departed boy friends that they are devastated by their loss will soften their hearts and bring them back. Actually, however, the reverse of this is true, for no man wants a girl so clinging and spineless that her only happiness is to hang around his neck.

On the other hand, if she shows that she has other interests, and can adjust her life very well without him if she has to, he may come to the conclusion that she is more worthwhile than he had thought. And even if he doesn't she will have done herself a good turn by adopting this course, for it is almost certain in the end to bring her a new heart interest.

Favorite Fabric

SHANTUNG HAS consolidated its position this season and is absolutely the big summer fabric attraction both in silk and in the less-expensive rayon. Silk shantung tailors beautifully and appears in delightful suits for general and resort wear. For town we have this two-piece shantung daytime dress with a bow-tied gilet. The red jacket is nipped in at the waist above a box-pleated peplum. Unpressed pleats give fullness to the navy blue skirt. The printed gilet is in navy and white.

Fashion Flashes

HOW FAR BACK are the lingerie people going? Now it's not only pantaloons complete with knee ruffles threaded with ribbons, but chemises and camisole petticoats as well. The camisole slips like the other garments, are of cotton. One group is in dotted Swiss in delicate hues, trimmed with triple rows of Val lace. Some are matched to pantaloons.

A HINT of things to come in the millinery scheme of things is the hat of straw trimmed with velvet or satin, in some cases, the fabric being more than a trim, rather an integral part of the model. All of which means that it won't be long before the all-satin and all-velvet hat is with us once more.

LAST SEASON, or rather, last Autumn, the fur-lined coat started to go places. This year, coats and capes lined with furs ranging from coney to ermine, are expected to increase in popularity, with much emphasis on moleskin dyed in beautiful colors. Same formula for capes. A flare back topper in mahogany brown is lined with moleskin dyed shocking pink.

MAYBE the fox family, silver, white neck, platina and blue, are not overly smart when worn as jackets, but just the same, we notice that silver fox, said to be the least smart of all the fox family, is appearing again not only fashioned into lavish stoles, but made up into cape jackets, and worn by very fashionable ladies. So we guess silver fox is "in" again!

FINGERS ARE FLYING as women knit ribbon dresses, now that the requisite ribbon is here again from abroad. For about fifty dollars, much time and skill, one can knit a frock that costs between two and three hundred dollars at retail. Well worth considering, don't you think?

DO YOU KNOW what some bright girls do with those little jewelled catter pins, so popular just now? Well, they stick them around the crown band and down the streamers of big straw hats, for dress-up wear.

COMING IN for early summer wear are afternoon frocks in satin, many in navy, brown and beige. Simple style, short of sleeve, low of neck, these dresses rely on clever draping and fabric for their attraction. Shops report that good satins are a sellout.

Thank-You Notes for Wedding Presents

Wedding presents are important presents . . . planned and chosen with special thoughtfulness by relatives and friends. They represent the devotion and generosity of the givers . . . a considerable amount of thought and time and effort. . . and undoubtedly too, more or less of a strain on the budget.

Such special kindness and generosity deserve prompt and warm-hearted thank-you notes.

Here are some "Do's" and "Don't's" to guide the bride-to-be in writing her thank-you notes:

Do write a thank-you note for every wedding gift you receive. This courtesy is due your relatives and friends who have devotedly tried to choose something that will make you and your bridegroom happy, your new home proud. Don't be casual. Don't take your wedding gifts for granted.

Do write a note. Don't lazily and rudely send a printed thank-you card (or even an engraved one!). These ready-made cards, to "thank" your relatives and friends, are in atrocious taste, unforgivable. Telephoning your thanks won't do either. Nor does a verbal "Thank you for your lovely present" when you next meet the giver, express proper or courteous appreciation.

Do enter your gifts, as they arrive, in a "Bride's Gift List": the description of the gift, the giver's name, perhaps the name of the store from which the gift was purchased, the date of arrival, and that most important last column . . . the date of your acknowledgment and thanks. Supply yourself with good-looking note-paper, a comfortable pen, black or blue-black ink, and a good supply of stamps.

Do write your thank-you notes promptly. If possible, write each day the notes of appreciation for the gifts that have arrived that day. This is not only more thoughtful of the giver, who will be eagerly anticipating your note of thanks, but also it's easier to write an enthusiastic note of thanks if you write it at once. Don't postpone writing your thank-you notes until after the wedding.

Do thank for the kind thought that prompted the gift, as well as for the gift itself.

Do mention the gift specifically. Don't say, vaguely, "your gift," giving the donor the grim impression that you can't remember just what the gift was.

Do write friendly, warm-hearted notes. Don't be afraid of being too enthusiastic! Write each note as if you were chatting with the giver . . . let your "tone of voice" get into your words!

Do include your fiance's thanks and appreciation.

Do say the appreciative things about the gift that you know will rejoice the giver. Comment enthusiastically about special features of the gift . . . the charming color, perhaps, or the beautiful design, or the handsome material and so forth.

Do, whenever possible, give your notes a crowning glory by telling how you and your prospective bridegroom are planning to use the gift in your home-to-be.

These notes you write for this most important occasion of your life are not only golden links in the chain of old friendships, but are revealing introductions of you and your quality to many new friends, relatives and friends of your bridegroom-to-be.

Write your thank-you notes promptly and graciously, brides-to-be. . . and "live happy ever after"!

Gene Bearden, 'Throw-in' In Deal With Yanks, May Be Key to Cleveland Flag Chances

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A "throw-in" in a deal between New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians two years ago, Gene Bearden loomed today as the key player in the Indians' pennant chances.

The wavy - haired southpaw came along as excess baggage when the Tribe acquired Allen Gettel and Hal Peck in a trade that sent Sherman Lollar and Ray Mack to the Yankees.

No hurler in the American League has pitched better ball. Bearden's earned run average of under 1.50 in easily the best in the majors. Only Vic Raschi of the Yankees, with seven victories in eight decisions, boasts a better won-and-lost record than Bearden's 6-1.

Bearden gained his sixth victory Tuesday night when he pitched the Indians to a 2-0 triumph over the Red Sox in Boston. It was his second shutout of the season, both against Boston. The victory increased the Indians' first-place lead over the Athletics and Yankees to 3½ games.

The Indians collected only five hits off Lefty Mel Parnell, but one was a home run by manager Lou Boudreau, his sixth of the season. It came in the fourth inning with one on and precipitated a heated argument between the Red Sox and umpire Charley Berry. The Sox and most of the Boston home crowd of 33,032 claimed the blow was foul, but Berry ruled otherwise.

Yanks Now Second

The Yankees moved into a second-place tie with the Athletics, coming from behind to edge out Chicago White Sox 3-2 in a 12-inning night battle at Yankee Stadium. Detroit Tigers nipped the A's 2-1 in another "squeaker" at Philadelphia.

Bobby (Golden Boy) Brown drove in the winning run for the Yankees with a two-out single in the 12th. It scored Yogi Berra from second base.

Hal Newhouser continued to climb back by holding the Athletics to seven hits. It was his 5th straight victory after four consecutive defeats. Loser Lou Brissie matched Newhouser in the hit department, but was charged with his fifth loss when the Tigers scored two runs in the sixth. It was Philadelphia's fourth straight loss, its longest losing streak of the season.

The Senators came from behind three times to tie the score then tallied twice in the seventh to nip St. Louis Browns 6-5 in a night game in Washington. Carden Gillenwater and Mark Christman led the Nats' 12-hit attack.

Wilks Saves Game

St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within four percentage points of the National League - leading New York Giants by defeating Philadelphia Phillies 7-5 in a night game in St. Louis. Harry (The Cat) Brecheen gained his sixth victory against one defeat, but Ted Wilks saved the game for him with some brilliant relief pitching.

Scoring six runs in the first two innings, Brooklyn Dodgers staved off a couple of desperate Cincinnati rallies to nip the Reds 6-5 in Cincinnati. Willard Ramsdell, relieving starter Ralph Branca in the third, allowed only two hits in 6 1/3 innings.

Winnipeg, June 9 — (CP) — Last fall's great showing by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Grey Cup final and the brilliant effort of R. J. Speers' cold Lord Fairmond have fanned western interest in football and racing to a new peak.

Commenting on the more seasonal of the two western sport topics, Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan says it is too bad Sweepblu and Last Mark are ineligible for the Canadian Derby in Winnipeg next September.

Sweepblu, third in the Prince of Wales Plate behind Lord Fairmond and Last Mark, was declared out of the Derby in April when owner Hatch informed the Racing Association he was not going to pay the next instalment on the starting fees. Last Mark never was nominated for the race.

Allan says: "East-west rivalry makes for interest in the Canadian Derby. Winnipeg racing fans would relish another duel between Lord Fairmond and Last Mark who have sawed - off in two meetings to date."

But the Racing Association has turned a deaf ear to supplementary nominations for the three-year-old and the year-old classic and the saw - off will have to be decided elsewhere westerns lament.

Different Colored Horse

The football situation is a horse of a different color with Allan. What troubles Allan is "the tendency to take the Western Canada championship for granted. It's no good building a team good enough to humble the Argos, if through over-confidence it fails to get out of its own league."

Allan places Blue Bombers in the same boat as Joe Louis. He says Louis is a "fat, old man going through the motions, and if he loses to Walcott it will be because he has failed to engage in serious training."

Allan is not alone in his contention that Bombers will have to knuckle down if they are to get by Calgary and Regina. Bomber coach Jack West warns:

"The team with the best condition will go east . . . I have seen many players miss stardom and lose championships because they lacked condition."

West has a tough situation to deal with in Winnipeg. Some Bomber players call West a "milk and coca-cola coach." Allan says there's a feeling along the Avenue that Bombers may get a surprise this year despite their high class imports.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Two slashing slugging middleweights will go to the mat tonight in what is expected to be one of the goriest go's in pugilistic history. Tough Rocky Graziano, who wrested the title from Tony Zale last July in the steaming cauldron that was Chicago's Civic Stadium, meets his old foeman in a titular match in Ruppert's Stadium across the Hudson River, because Rockey the Rough, has been barred from fighting in N'Yawk.

• • •

There are several new departures in the brawl. The fighters will wear eight-ounce gloves and if the bout goes the limit, which is extremely doubtful, the bout will be decided on the single vote of the referee under the New Jersey code which eliminates referees.

• • •

On the strength of their previous encounters, two all told, and other considerations, Graziano is expected to enter the ring favored to win at 5 to 12. Most of the wise gentry who fondle the green folding lettuce are betting on a knockout for the Rock, because they believe that neither champion or challenger could stand up for forty-five minutes of fighting such as is inevitable with their styles being what they are.

• • •

Graziano is eight years younger than the challenger. The Rugged Rock from New York's east side is 26 years of age. Zale passed his thirty-fourth birthday a few days ago. While Zale has led a model life, has kept away from the bright lights, lurid night-spots and the blandishments of both sexes who would fawn on him while the going is good, nevertheless he cannot escape the toll exacted by the old gentlemen with the scythe and whiskers.

• • •

There is, too, the previous clashes of these two formidable sluggers to take into consideration. On Sept. 26, 1946, Zale entering the ring for his first important test since leaving Uncle Sam's armed services, battered Graziano into submission after six rounds of slashing slugging fighting which saw both boys on the floor at different times.

• • •

Last July, in a broiling atmosphere in the Chicago Civic Stadium, a brutal, blood-hungry vengeful Graziano, smashed and battered Zale into such a helpless wreck that the fight was stopped in the sixth round. And this time, too, both fighters were smashed to the canvas by the thundering fists of the opposition.

• • •

It is therefore conceivable that tonight's battle will be along similar lines. There is no love lost between these two. It will be a fistic battle with no punches pulled. It will be a battle to the titular death, so to speak, and both Graziano and Zale will go out there to end it as quickly as possible through the smashing artillery of their hard-driving fists.

• • •

Due to circumstances that barred Graziano from fighting in New York, he has had but one battle since winning the championship. He is said to be something less than impressive in his victory over Sonny Horne in Washington several months ago. Zale has had three tune-up matches since being deprived of the middleweight bauble, designed, 'tis said to give him a chance to practice marksmanship. He knocked out three obscure foemen in short order.

• • •

Both fighters are confident they will win by knockouts. Rocky says he will stretch Zale out on the canvas in four rounds. He has been training hard for the brawl and is said to be in prime physical condition. Zale who claims, the heat was a prime factor in his Chicago defeat, too has trained long and hard and expects to look down on the unconscious Graziano by the time round three ends.

The fight is being staged by the Tournament of Champions and the receipts are expected to be in the vicinity of $350,000 and $400,000. Rupperts Stadium holds 25,000. Tickets for the bout have been priced at $30, $20, $10 and $5 for reserve seats and $3 for general admission. The advance sale is well ahead of $240,000. The bout will be broadcast but not televised.

Girls' softball, kiddies, is not dead in this village after all, albeit has not reached the organized stage. The other evening two teams from the Deacon Shirt Company, to wit, the Sportswear and Shirtline, joined in mushball battle at the Queen Alexandra School diamond, and emerged all evenstephen. The score was 19-19. 'Twas a goodly tilt, 'tis said, with the lasses refraining from any hair-pulling methods to settle arguments, and going out there and giving their all for Alma Mamma Deacon Shirt.

• • •

Bill (Deacon Shirt) Moore postcards us from his favorite haunts up around Kitchener way, with a picture of the community pool on the other side. Bill wags that "when Belleville decides to build it's swimming pool in 1987, a committee from this village look over the pond in Kitchener. It is 185 by 75 with filtered spring water. Three feet to nine feet deep. Nine hundred can enjoy the seating capacity."

• • •

What should be a tidy tilt in senior baseball circles takes place in Exhibition Park come Saturday night when the undefeated Peterborough club clashes with Batawa's rampaging Shoemen. The Petes at present are on top of the heap with four wins and no losses while the Shoemen are hugging their backs with three wins and one defeat. (This is being written on Tuesday). The brawl may result in a tie for first place or ensconce the Murphy-led Petes more firmly in the top slot.

• • •

Since it is rumored that Gordy Muffit has been attached to the Shoemen hurling staff, and if his alleged sore arm is better come Saturday, Manager Easton may throw the sturdy right-hander at the Liftlock prides. In any event, Ken Peacock who has been carrying the chucking load of the Shoemen on his slim shoulders will be ready for duty, and if the rangy one maintains his present hurling form, Perdue's Prides may get a surprise. Game is under the kleigs and will get under way at 8.30, we hope.

London, June 9 — (CP)—Aer Lingus, Eire's state-owned airways, will transport no more greyhounds to England until a more humane method of carrying them has been devised.

The airline ran 30 flights a week, shipping the dogs from Irish breeders to English trainers — but nearly 10 per cent of the animals were either dead or in such bad condition that they had to be destroyed.

Too-rapid ascents and descents and bumpy flying weather were blamed for the injuries. Experimental flights now are being carried on to find the best heights at which to fly the dogs.

Test pilots report the high - strung greyhounds become hysterical at 4,000 feet and their lungs are in actual danger of bursting at 10,000 feet. At any intermediate height changes of pressure may alter a dog's track possibilities permanently.

Pressure chambers — though expensive — may be only the solution to the problem.

Champagne flowed in Piccadilly Circus after the Fulham Municipal Football Club captured the Civil Service League Cup.

Here's how the revelry started:

The players, happily clutching their cup, were going down the escalator in Piccadilly underground station on their way home from the field of conquest. They met an unidentified couple on the way up, happily clutching a magnum of the finest.

Conversation ensued. Upshot was that the wine-carriers emptied the bottle into the football trophy and players and bystanders passed it from hand to hand while the crowd grew denser by the minute.

Here's another champagne story but without a happy ending yet:

Sir William Cooke's colt, Happy Knight, won the 2,000 Guineas in 1946 — and hasn't come home in front since.

Last April 3 at Sandown, Sir William was so sure the losing sequence would end that he bought a bottle of champagne to celebrate Happy Knight's impending victory. But an outsider, Ben Lomond, won and Happy Knight ran fourth.

Sir William saved the bottle. Happy Knight was favored to win at Birmingham May 18. The bottle was in readiness. Ben Lomond was also entered Ben Lomond won again. Happy Knight came second.

Two-Year-Old Hurler Awaits Battery-Mate

Montreal, June 9. (CP) — Johnny Van Cuyk, Jr., has baseball down pat.

"Pitch," says somebody, and without a second thought the two-year-old son of John Van Cuyk, star hurler of the Montreal Royals, goes through the rhythmical motions and complicated windup of a big league twirler.

These professional antics are old stuff to Johnny. Whenever his dad is taking his regular turn at the ball park Johnny junior is also pitching, pitching hard to get out onto the field.

"It's all I can do to keep him off the fence," laments his mother.

And if Johnny's not swinging an exploratory foot over the fence, he's running frantically through the stadium laneways pulling at trousers, and trying to interest somebody enough to take him "out to my daddy".

Ever since the Van Cuyks spotted Johnny in a Montreal orphanage—a year ago—Johnny junior has been on the "inside" of baseball. He knows all the pitchers.

Right now, Johnny is awaiting a kid brother to do his catching. But Danny has the chicken pox and orphanage officials won't "release" him until he's better.

Meantime Johnny is jittery. "A good pitcher is only as good as his catcher".

Finest 10-Bout Card of Season Seen at Toronto

Toronto, June 9. (CP)—One of the smallest amateur fight audiences of the year Tuesday night, watched one of the finest 10-bout amateur mitt cards put on here in some time.

Feature of the night was the main bout between Alan McFater of Toronto, and Clayton Kenny of Ottawa, which McFater won by a technical knockout.

McFater slugged Kenny to the deck three times before Referee Bobby Laurence stopped the bout at 40 seconds of the fifth and last round.

In a 126-pound preliminary bout, Ernie Kelleher of Guelph knocked out Toronto's Tommy Corrick at 2.55 on the third round. Their fight was a rugged affair while it lasted but Corrick uncovered his chin once too often and the hard-hitting Kelleher finally clicked.

Other results included:

140 lbs.—Bud Pipher, Oshawa, decisioned George Beadle, Toronto (3).

126 lbs.—Bill Thatcher, Guelph, decisioned Jim Knight, Toronto.

118 lbs. —Bert Baxter, Toronto, decisioned Steve Guaglino, Brantford (3).

150 lbs.—Bill Eagan, Toronto, knocked out Tom Washington, Niagara Falls, at 1.34 of first round.

160 lbs.—(Semi-Final)—Russ Barko, Hamilton, and Bob Shanks of Toronto, fought to a five-round draw.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 9 — (AP) — There must be something special about a middleweight championship fight that makes it end in a knockout, an argument or both... and there's no reason to believe that tonight's third slugfest between Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale will vary the pattern . . . Let's go clear back to 1894 when Jack Dempsey, the nonpareil, won general recognition as middleweight champ by knocking out a guy named George Fulljames in 22 rounds . . . the original Jack had one fight against Johnny Reagan, for instance, when the ring was submerged by water after four rounds. They moved 20 miles away and finished a four-hour, 45-round battle in snow and cold with Dempsey winning by a knockout . . . Then Dempsey was stiffened by George La Blanche in 32 rounds but retained his title because La Blanche used a "pivot" blow which subsequently was declared illegal and anyway George was overweight . . . the nonpareil finally lost his title to Bob Fitzsimmons on a knockout.

Rhubarb Patch

Ruby Robert outgrew the class but he continued to claim the middleweight title until he won the heavyweight crown in 1897 ... about 1907 an amazing kid named Stanley Ketchel came out of Montana's mining country to earn the championship . . . off the records and the memories of oldtimers, there hasn't been a knocker-outer like him before or since that time . . . Still Stan's slugfest with Billy Papke can be bracketed with the Zale - Graziano series for excitement and uncertainty . . . Later there were such guys as Johnny Wilson, who got into a celebrated rhubarb in 1921 when the Cleveland Boxing Commission tired to reverse the decision of one of its own referees, Harry Greb and Mickey Walker.

Rochester Wings Stretch Winning Streak to Six

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings, who got off to a poor start, are showing signs of becoming a factor in the International League pennant race.

The parent St. Louis Cardinals, in an attempt to please long suffering Rochester fans, dispatched much of their surplus talent to the Wings and the boys are starting to click.

Tuesday night, the Wings stretched their winning streak to six games, nosing out the tail-end Baltimore Orioles, 3-2 in ten innings.

The victory enabled them to move to within a game of the 4th place Jersey City Giants.

Max Surkont limited the Orioles to six hits in posting his 3rd win of the year. The Orioles scored both of their runs in the seventh inning when Wing shortstop Bernie Greger committed 3 errors.

The Wings tallied the winning run on a walk, sacrifice and Chuck Diering's double off Johnny Wittig, starting and losing pitcher.

The Toronto Maple Leafs outslugged the front-running Newark Bears, 10-8 in a hard-hitting contest.

Toronto jumped on starter Bob Keegan for five runs in the second inning and the Leafs were never headed.

The Bears tallied for five runs in the seventh inning with Ted Sepkowski highlighting the uprising with a grand slam homer.

Greatest Golfing Show on Earth Starts Thursday

Los Angeles, June 9 — (AP)—The greatest golfing show on earth, the United States Open, gets under way tomorrow on the long, tough Riviera course calculated to stamp the 1948 winner a worthy champion.

It is the most coveted title for all the links domain, bringing together the finest American professionals and amateurs. The field that starts the gruelling 72-hole trek, ending Saturday, will be one of the best.

One lone foreign entry, Bobby Locke, from far-off Johannesburg, will battle for top honors.

The winner of the three-day, four-round grind will earn his laurels. One miscue and the chance most likely will be gone for ever.

Long - hitting Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, Va., learned that lesson last year. He missed a putt of 30½ inches at St. Louis that cost him the championship. Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., tied him for 72 holes and won in the playoff.

Rocky Graziano Favored to Win Over Tony Zale

Newark, N. J., June 9 — (AP) — Noisy Rocky Graziano meets stolid Tony Zale in Ruppert Stadium tonight in the rubber match of their violent ring series.

At stake this third time is Rocky's world middleweight championship, won from Zale July 16, 1947, in Chicago. In the first fight Sept. 27, 1946, in New York's Yankee Stadium, Zale was victor by a knockout.

Both previous battles were bloody, boisterous affairs ending in the sixth round. Odds are 8-1 this one also will not go all the 15 rounds.

Betting odds that last week favored Graziano 5 to 12 narrowed on the eve of the clash to 1 to 2. Zale is 34 years old and Graziano 26, and this age differential is counted Zale's only handicap. As punchers go, there's little to choose between the two.

The champion is assured $120,000 or 40 per cent of the net. The challenger is guaranteed $60,000 or 20 per cent of the net.

The sleek, quiet Zale won the middleweight championship in 1940 and served in the navy during the war. The tough, tousle-haired Graziano served in the army but his war record led to a ban against him in Illinois and other states.

In New York Rocky is kept out of the ring because of charges he did not report an alleged bribe offer. Graziano contends it was just a joke.

Zale said he would end tonight's fight in three rounds. Graziano wouldn't name a round but he expressed confidence of victory.

"Naw, I ain't nervous," Graziano said. "The district attorney didn't make me nervous. The army didn't make me nervous. This is just a fight. It don't make me nervous."

Salida, Colo., June 9 — (AP)—Lloyd Martinez, 19-year-old Salida boxer, died Tuesday night during a bout in an Amateur Athletic Union boxing tournament here. Cause of death was not immediately determined.

He died an hour later after being rushed to a hospital.

History of Olympics Outlined in Program

New York, June 9. (CP)—The story of the Olympic games, embodied in a beautifully-produced 176-page souvenir program for the 14th Olympiad to be held in London this summer, will help finance the expenses of the United States Olympic team.

Outlining the history of the games—from the contests of ancient Greece through to the 13 previous games of modern times—the book is a multi-colored, magazine-sized wealth of information.

Recorded for the information of sports fans—and of equal interest to thousands of others—are hundreds of highlights of previous games such as:

The marathon hoax in the 1904 games at St. Louis, when the winner admitted having ridden more than half the way in an automobile.

The well-known story of Jim Thorpe whose medals for his feat of winning the pentathlon and decathlon events were taken from him when it was discovered he was technically a professional.

Listing the winners of all modern games, the program is a goldmine of sports background in neatly tabulated and profusely illustrated records.

Added to the Olympic aspects of the games, the program also includes complete historical sketches of each of the sports which make up the game. An entire section is devoted to "The Place of Sport in Britain"—concerning such activities as golf, hunting, mountain climbing, cruising, cricket and the like.

The Parliament of Canada has just passed "an act respecting The Bell Telephone Company of Canada". Here is what this act means to the telephone-using public:

More and Better Telephone Service

A Period of Unequalled Growth

In the 34 months since V-J Day we have added 350,000 telephones—many more than in the preceding ten years. We now serve 1,360,000 telephones—22 for every 100 persons throughout Ontario and Quebec. We have never before provided so much new service in so short a time.

This unprecedented pace has been maintained with the aid of new capital from Canadian investors. More will be required.

The Continuing Demand for Service

Yet, despite this rapid growth, we still have 96,000 unfilled orders for telephones and another 69,000 requests to change party lines to individual service. Thousands of new orders are coming in every month.

Long Distance calls are three times pre-war levels.

Many new buildings, switchboards, lines and other equipment must be provided as rapidly as possible. The next decade may well see more telephone construction than during the preceding 68 years of our history.

Rural Telephone Service

Rural telephone service has expanded, and will continue to do so. In the territory we serve, 55 of every 100 rural homes and businesses have telephones. In 1945 only 39% had service.

Vast Construction Program Continues

Parliament has given the Bell Telephone Company permission to increase its authorized capital by $350,000,000.

The Company can now continue to go to investors for the money necessary to further the greatest expansion and improvement program in its history.

This construction program is necessary if the Company is to carry out its obligation and satisfy the public's continuing demand for more telephones and more telephone service.

• • •

Our objective is to extend and improve the service so that ultimately we can give every applicant the kind and quality of service he wants, when and as he wants it.

Our farm program calls for still more telephones, for fewer parties on each line, and for more new switchboards.

Dial Telephones

New dial equipment is being installed in tremendous quantities.

Today we have more dial telephones than the total of all our telephones in 1942. Now 70 out of every 100 telephones are dial. More exchanges will be converted to dial operation.

Financing the Program

Much of the new money necessary to extend the telephone system must be obtained from thousands of people who wish to invest their savings.

The principal means of securing this new capital will be by issuing additional shares of our stock from time to time with the approval of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

It was for this purpose that the authority of Parliament was obtained.

Best Service — Lowest Cost

The skill and enthusiasm of telephone workers will be devoted to turning the materials obtained with the new capital into service of the highest standard.

The public can be assured that The Bell Telephone Company of Canada will continue to provide the best telephone service at the lowest possible cost.

Some little thing may spark an interest of far-reaching effect. My eagerness for learning bridge plays came suddenly. It started with a deal like the one you see here:

NORTH

♥7 6 5
♦K 10 5 2
♣K 10 5 2

WEST
♠J 8 2
♥A K Q 9 2

SOUTH

♥10 4
♣A Q J 9 6

My opening with the south hand was a club. Partner assisted. My next bid was diamonds. Partner assisted. My next bid was game in clubs thinking this would stand as a final decision.

But my partner changed it to a bid of game in diamonds. This disturbed me. Partner knew I had heard his assist in each suit. Why should he assume my decision was wrong? How dare he?

It was soon apparent why he dared. From my bids he had read the number of cards I held in each suit. He added these to the number of cards in each suit held in his own hand.

He discovered from the order of my bids that my hand contained more clubs than diamonds. He realized that we had enough trumps in either suit. He knew then that clubs would be better employed as a side suit than as trumps.

The first two tricks went to opponents with hearts. A third heart lead was ruffed by me in south. There was still a spade to worry about. Of a sudden a saving play loomed up before me:

When opponent trumps are drawn my clubs will be good. On my fifth club can be sluffed the dummy small spade. Dummy can then ruff my second south spade and there will be no spade losers.

This happened because diamonds were trumps. Had clubs been the trumps, the spade trick could not have been saved. Sluffing on a fifth trump does no good. By then dummy has no trumps to ruff with.

This impressed me with a fact. With enough trumps in either, make trumps in the suit most evenly divided in your pair.

Some, such little thing may be a bridge to your bridge.

OLD PICTURES OF HITLER HIDDEN

Kitchener, June 9 — (CP) — Workmen ripping down sections of a store that was to be renovated found two old portraits of Adolph Hitler hidden between the ceiling and rafters. The building formerly was the meeting place of the Kitchener branch of the old German Bund, and members apparently hid the pictures for brighter days which failed to materialize.

Kiwanians Hear Lester B. Pearson At Convention

Los Angeles, June 9. (CP) — Lester B. Pearson; Canadian Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs, Tuesday, called for "a wider and more powerful association" of Western European and Atlantic democracies.

Speaking before the convention of Kiwanis International here on "The United States and Canada in the Post-War World", Mr. Pearson noted that Article 51 of the United Nations recognizes the right of collective self-defence within the U.N.

The Rio Inter-American pact and the Brussels five-power pact already marked one such association, "but a wider and more powerful association than these is required to stop the aggressor.

"The resources of the new world must be added to the defensive determination of the old. But this should be done not merely by supplying arms and by giving guarantees. . . .

"What is required is an association of Western European and Atlantic democracies under Article 51 of the Charter, every member of which will take on equal and reciprocal obligations for collective defence and mutual aid in war, and work together for freedom and prosperity in peace.

"The Canadian government has already stated through its Prime Minister and its Secretary of State for External Affairs its acceptance of this doctrine and given assurances of its will to co-operate with the United States in its translation into action. . .

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma sent me to the market for a duzzen eggs, saying, Now for land sakes be careful. I sollemly warn you, if you come back here with any of those eggs ruined and tell me you tripped and fell, I sollemly warn you, that's all. You've got just as many feet to stay up with as everybody elts, so why should you trip any oftener than other boys? she said.

Because I'm just a naturel tripper, I said.

Which I am, and ma said, You meen you're a naturel gazer with your head in the clouds and your feet trailing nobody knows, where. Now get started, and remember what I said, she said.

Which I did, and I met Lucky Leroy Shooster at the market buying a half a duzzen lemmons, and we started to walk home together, Lucky Leroy saying, What's you walking so careful for?

Because I been warned not to trip with these eggs, I said, and Lucky said, Aw, you'll probably trip no matter how careful you are. I'm the only lucky guy around here. I'm lucky rite now to be carrying lemmons instead of eggs in case I do trip, but I wont trip even with lemmons. Hay, look out, you pritty near tripped rite then, he said.

Which I pritty near did, saying, Well heck, you're making me nerviss accusing me of going to trip every second. You're hipmotizing me, I said.

Okay, I'll do you a favor, Lucky said. You can carry my lemmons and I'll carry your eggs for you, he said, and I said, Will you garantee to get new ones for any you brake, just in case you're not so lucky with other people's eggs?

Hay, I'm doing you enough of a favor offering to carry them and give you the use of my luck, Lucky said.

The result being I started to run to get home as soon as possible no matter what happened.

Which nothing did except 2 eggs cracking a little in the excitement.

Ottawa — (CP) — Trade Minister Howe's noted disenchantment with the smaller numerals came in for a ribbing in the Commons Tuesday night.

A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) told the House of the United States' fabulous "Betcha Million" Gates, the market operator who would bet a literal million at the drop of a hat.

"I've often wondered what would have happened," mused Mr. Smith, "if Betcha Million Gates ever met up with "What's a Million Howe."

Decatur, Ill. — (AP) — Firemen spent ten minutes chasing a fire before they put it out Tuesday night. They made it on the fourth try.

The fire was in an empty freight car on an Illinois Central train. By the time the fire engine got to an intersection where the train had been, it had moved on.

The firemen backtracked a block, sped two blocks parallel to the tracks, and dashed down another side street to the railroad intersection.

By the time they got there the burning car had passed that point.

They made two more similar trips before they caught up with the fire.

The train's crew, meanwhile, knew of the blaze, but didn't know the fire engine was chasing the train. They had kept the train moving, looking for a side street with a fire hydrant.

The freight car's sides were burned up. The firemen were a little hot, too.

Roscoe, Calif. — (AP) — Night after night Jack Foster, 38, sits astride his parked motorcycle at an intersection here holding a sign which reads:

"Who hit me?"

Foster was involvel in a collision with a truck at the same intersection last May 10. He was in hospital for many days and still has an injured right leg.

He says that in order to become eligible for compensation because of the accident he must identify the truck in the accident and find a witness.

Philadelphia — (AP) — Benjamin N. Banks, Philadelphia haberdasher, was given the air in court Tuesday — and Benjamin was well pleased.

Banks filed suit, claiming that the air-conditioning apparatus of a chain restaurant next door to his haberdashery was dehydrating his third floor.

Judge Frank Smith decided he'd better investigate. After a visit to the Banks establishment, he reported the inside wall in Banks' building nearest the air conditioner was "covered with multitudinous tiny cracks" and that the wall paper was breaking up.

The jurist gave the restaurant 30 days to correct the condition.

Artificial Silk Prices Examined By Committee

Ottawa, June 9 (CP) — The Commons Prices Committee today begins its examination of artificial silk prices after concluding its probe into the cotton side of the textile industry Tuesday.

The cotton inquiry was completed at least three days ahead of the tentative schedule which the committee has been following in its textile inquiry.

The detailed statements of their companies' finances and past operations submitted by witnesses from the industry did not become the fruitbul source of questions that have arisen in the committee's earlier investigations.

Attention has been almost exclusively concentrated on the relatively simple subject of production and its decline from the peak reached in the first three years of the war.

The industrial witnesses were G. Blair Gordon, President of Dominion Textile Co., Ltd.; Edward Fox, President of Canadian Cottons Ltd., and William J. Whitehead, managing director of the Wabasso Cotton Co.

Mr. Whitehead said worker efficiency in his company's plants had declined from a pre-war level of 94 per cent of the potential output of the plant to between 70 and 80 per cent.

Mr. Fox said his company had experienced no decline in efficiency but that absenteeism, no problem in pre-war days, now averaged slightly more than six per cent.

Mr. Gordon said his company now pays the highest wages in its history. He added, however, that as piece rates go up, productivity goes down.

Assembly Quashes Appeals Against Synod Decisions

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Bitter Nova Scotia controversies in which two ministers were accused of violating the constitution of the Presbyterian Church in Canada echoed Tuesday at the church's 74th general assembly.

The assembly quashed an appeal against decisions of the Synod of the Maritimes and Cape Breton presbytery. Both appeals were filed by Rev. A. A. Murray of Sydney, N.S. One was heard in camera.

The first appeal dealt with minutes of a church court which last year convicted 29-year-old Rev. Perry Rockwood of Truro, N.S., of following "a divisive course" in his sermons. The one heard in camera concerned Rev. Frank Lawson, moderator of the Halifax-Lunenbury presbytery, charged by an individual member of the Cape Breton presbytery last March that he had denied the virgin birth of Christ. The charges were rejected by the presbytery for lack of evidence but a supporter of the charges said they would be repeated before the current assembly here.

Dr. Murray said the Rockwood minutes should never have been approved by the Synod without first being read publicly.

Judicial committee chairman Rev. W. J. Graham of Thorold, said evidence was "insufficient and irrelevant" when he asked dismissal of Dr. Murray's appeal against Cape Breton presbytery's decision.

Earlier, Rev. S. Banks Nelson of Hamilton and Rev. W. Stanford Reid of Montreal urged a "clean up" of motion pictures both on this continent and Europe. They supported resolutions for a stricter movie censorship and increased production of religious films.

The assembly also went on record as being opposed to "the nation's sin of drunkenness." A resolution protesting radio liquor advertisements was approved.

"Our country will suffer badly if we neglect our rural churches" said Rev. W. M. Sutherland of Whitechurch, Ont.

In a report he said many rural pastors become discouraged and pessimistic. His recommendations were that travelling allowances be paid country ministers and that congregations keep churches and manses repaired. He also urged more adequate pensions for retiring ministers.

Question Draws Protest From Senator W. Euler

Ottawa, June 9 (CP)—Senator Ian Mackenzie (L-British Columbia) Tuesday night moved in the Senate that a special committee be set up to examine, among other things, the present allocation of senatorial representation.

He asked that the committee if formed, give special consideration to the matter as it affected the four western provinces.

Distribution of population had changed since the time the number of Senators who represent the various areas in Canada had been settled. The population of Western Canada had increased greatly and Senator Mackenzie wanted the committee to decide if present senatorial allocation gave adequate recognition to that area.

The committee also would examine the rules of the Senate.

But in moving his resolution, Senator Mackenzie himself overlooked one of the rules—he failed to have notice of his motion entered on the order paper.

His slip was pointed by Progressive Conservative leader John Haig.

Speaker King ruled that notice of motion could be considered given and Senator Mackenzie proceeded to read his resolution.

Senator Mackenzie asked the committee to recommend what revision can be made the rules and regulations to enable the Senate to perform definite and constructive functions.

It was Senator Mackenzie's night. Earlier he read a list of 29 questions about oils and fats which he wished the government to answer.

One of them—is the government aware of any member of either House of Parliament who is identified with the promotion of the production of oleomargarine in Canada?—drew a protest from Senator William Euler (L-Ontario).

Senator Euler, whose legislative efforts to legalize sale of margarine in Canada have met with no success in the last three sessions of parliament, rose and asked if the question referred to him.

Member Wants To Know if Spy Rings Operating

Ottawa, June 9 (CP) — John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) challenged the government in the Commons Tuesday night to tell the country whether Russian spy rings—uncovered during the war—are still operating in Canada.

In a cautiously-phrased reply, Justice Minister Ilsley replied that he would have to give "very careful consideration" before making any statement on the extent of the government's information on possible subversive activities.

The exchange between them came while the House was considering Royal Canadian Mounted Police estimates, and Mr. Diefenbaker recalled the R.C.M.P.'s role in the spy investigation of 1945.

At that time, Mr. Diefenbaker said, the Royal Commission on espionage had turned up the existence of five separate Russian rings in Canada. He wanted to know what evidence there was to support this finding, and he wanted the information up to date.

The government, he said, should "give the people some idea of the degree to which foreign organizations under Russian domination operate to the detriment of the country, to undermine and sabotage our form of government."

The minister replied he did not have that knowledge himself. He questioned whether it would be proper, even if he got it, to give the House information on police activities.

The Lake Centre member said he was not looking for disclosure of police methods or details of their investigations.

"But when a Royal Commission says that several spy rings exist," he declared, "I want to ask whether there are in fact such spy rings operating...the Canadian people have a right to know if spy rings are operating here today."

Baxter's Majority In Prince Edward Now Given as 55

Picton (Special) — A few minor changes were made in the election returns from Prince Edward-Lennox yesterday as results were re-checked. Official figures will be released shortly by R.O. Thomas Walker. Latest figures give Donald Baxter, Liberal a majority of 55 over James deC. Hepburn, Progressive Conservative. The Independent Conservative Thomas Creighton polled a total of 997 votes. Each of the two main candidates had majorities in nine polls.

A huge crowd gathered in town to hear the returns. Mr. Baxter was paraded through the streets on top of a car. At a gathering in Bloomfield hall, his home village, friends presented him with a silver tray and Mrs. Baxter with roses.

The Progressive Conservatives blame their defeat on dissension in the ranks of the party. In Monday's election, 659 more voters went to the polls than in 1945. A total of 13,394 votes was cast compared to 12,735 in 1945. In Prince Edward section, 72 per cent of qualified voters marked their ballots.

WESTERN KIDS BIGGER

Regina — (CP) — Children not over 54 inches in height and between 5 and 14 years of age now can ride for 5 cents cash or purchase 8 ickets for 25 cents. Some municipal tram lines designate a "child" as under 50 inches. Regina citizens believe that western children are bigger.

Union Organizer Held at Sudbury

Sudbury, June 9 (CP)— Rudy Hanson, U.S.-born representative of the International Union of Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers, was arrested here Tuesday on orders of the Dominion Immigration Department. He will appear before an Immigration Board in Toronto.

R.C.M.P. officials refused to say upon what charge Hanson had been arrested, but it was believed he was accused of being an alien with Communist sympathies. This is the same charge that resulted in the arrest and deportation several weeks ago of Reid Robinson, eastern vice-president of the union, and George Knott, union official.

Mr. Hanson was in Sudbury at the request of the Sudbury Local of the Union to assist in negotiations on an employee's medical and hospitalization plan with Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Ltd. The union had also asked him to help in negotiations for a wage agreement with Canadian Industries Ltd.

Nels Thibeault, President of the Sudbury Local, said he had officially protested Hanson's arrest to Mines Minister Glenn.

Hanson entered Canada last July and took up temporary residence at Kirkland Lake. It is reported he recently asked the Immigration Board to advise him of any decision to refuse extension of his permit to remain here.

CHANGE-COURSE YEARLY

Persia has many good-sized rivers but few are navigable. Shifting sands, blown around by terrific windstorms, cause them to change their course yearly.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

The New York Stock Exchange Monday bore out predictions that it has been marking time for the last three weeks and that the next move would be upward.

At Monday's close it was back to its mid-day averages, which constituted a peak since August, 1946.

It is too early yet to say whether the market is on a definite move, and some profit-taking may be expected. However, the fact that it has withstood profit-taking and the later doldrums of recent weeks has been taken as a consolidation of earlier advances.

The bulk of Monday's trading came in the final hour following gradual rises through the day. The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 1.1 points to 71.3.

The late action was partially reflected in Canadian markets, and industrial issues strengthened. Bell Telephone featured both Toronto and Montreal markets at a new high.

Grain markets pursued an uncertain course and prices were mixed in Chicago and down in Winnipeg. Winnipeg July rye declined its 10-cent limit.

SOUND RETREAT

Retreat is a call on a military bugle or trumpet, sounded at sunset. In the army it marks officially the end of the day's routine..

TWIN LAMBS BORN; ANOTHER 10 WEEKS LATER

London, Ont., June 9 — (CP)—Add this event to wonders in the animal world: An 11-year-old Shropshire ewe on the Alfordale farm, two miles north of nearby Talbotville, gave birth to twin ewe lambs March 13. Just 2½ months later, on June 2, the same ewe gave birth to another lamb. "Never heard of anything like it," said agricultural officials.

OFFICE NURSE

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

"Then you are coming back?"

Janice gave Miss Willows a startled look.

"I—why, yes, so far as I know."

Miss Willows reached across the desk to give one of Janice's hands a quick, firm pressure. "Don't worry," she said. "The office can get along well enough. After all, Betty Jane has been here long enough now to handle nearly anything that might come up. And I will promise to do more than any part."

It was just then that the outside door flew open. And at the same moment, several other doors also opened, but less dramatically.

Betty Jane opened a door from the room where she had been closeted with Miss Susie Fox; the door to the doctor's inner office was opened and Dr. Holbrook himself stood there in a last-minute polite leave-taking of Mrs. Smythe-Smith.

Miss Willows jumped up to stand behind her desk. And Janice turned around.

A man stood at the outer door, an unshaven disheveled, wild-looking sort of person. He held a shiny revolver in his right hand.

"Merciful heavens!" Miss Willows gasped. The doctor's office, in all her long years of loyal service, had never been held up before.

"Oh!" Betty Jane groaned and caught hold of her patient, but it was the young nurse, and not the patient, who crumpled to the floor in a dead faint.

Dr. Holbrook started to step forward—then stopped. He was not looking at the man who held the pistol; his eyes were focussed on Janice.

"Don't anyone move," the man said, as a holdup man should. Only this one did not look at anyone except Janice Hilary. As a matter of fact, everyone in the room, or in the doorways leading to the room, was looking at Janice.

If she was aware of this Janice did not show it. She did not seem the least afraid or thrilled or as though she might keel over. She took a step toward the man with the gun.

"What do you want?" Her voice sounded perfectly natural. She might have been addressing a patient who had just entered the office.

"You know what I want," the man said in a menacing growl, taking a step toward her.

"But she is no longer with us," Janice said. Her tone now was the reasonable, reassuring one a nurse would use with a patient who had gotten out of hand. "You know that she left some time ago."

* * *

Miss Willows thought, Janice is behaving foolishly—and bravely. She also thought that it would be better if it were the doctor who was taking command of the situation, even if his office nurse did usually run everything.

"It isn't Eileen I want to see," the man with the revolver said. His voice was as cold and full of steel as the thing he held. "It's you." The menace had turned into a threat. His eyes were wild and full of hatred.

"What do you want to see me about?" Janice asked. She spoke in the same cool, courteous tone. She even took another step toward him, perhaps to show him that she was not afraid, and so make him come to his senses. Or perhaps—who knew?—to protect all of those others, and mainly the doctor, whom she not only loved but who might be the one in gravest danger.

"Just this!" The two short words were followed by two staccato shots. The man turned and disappeared through the doorway swiftly and dramatically as he had entered.

"Janice!" this cry came from Dr. Holbrook. He moved into the room toward Janice, who now leaned against the desk, having fallen back those few brave steps she had taken forward. "Are you hurt?"

That was a useless question. Aanyone, doctor or not, could see that she was. The hand pressing against her side could not prevent the white blouse of her uniform from slowly turning to a deep red.

Miss Willows came quickly from around her desk and put a firm arm around Janice's slender waist. "Of course she's hurt!" she snapped—Miss Willows who had never snapped at Dr. Holbrook, her idol, before. "Do something. Don't just stand there."

She turned on Miss Susie Fox and Mrs. Smythe-Smith. "One of you ladies get some cold water and throw it in Betty Jane's face. We'll need her help, too. A fine time for a nurse to faint."

A fine time, she might have added, for a doctor to give in to his personal feelings. For Dr. Holbrook still behaved like a man in a stupor. He raised one hand to show Miss Willows — or anyone who cared to look — that it was trembling like the motor of an old model T Ford.

"I—you'd better send for Dr. Richards," he said, his voice trembling, too. He sank down in the chair Miss Willows had vacated and covered his face with his hands.

Meanwhile, Miss Susie Fox had come back with the water. Miss Willows took it from her, and instead of tossing it in Betty Jane's face—Betty Jane had opened her eyes and was struggling to sit up—she threw it on the doctor.

Afterwards, Miss Willows could not believe that she had done such a thing. To Dr. Holbrook himself! But then, afterwards, the doctor could not believe that he had lost control of his nerves for a few minutes.

Betty Jane could not believe that she had fainted, and the only explanation she could give was that she had not slept the night before.

But perhaps the most unbelieving of them all was Janice herself when she woke up on the day she was supposed to have flown to Mexico to find herself in a hospital.

The unforeseen, as Miss Willows had foreseen, had indeed come to pass.

It was rather nice, Janice decided, being a patient instead of a nurse. It was nice just to lie in a comfortable bed with fresh-smelling linen, with the shades half-drawn and the room filled with flowers.

Of course, she reflected, she should be on her way to Mexico. But this was almost as good. Mexico would keep. Everything would keep. She did not want to do anything or think about anything or anyone for a long, long time.

The nurse, her white skirts rustling, her face lighted up with a cheerful, purposeful smile, popped her head through the doorway to inform her patient, brightly, that she had a visitor.

"But I don't wont to—" Janice began, then she saw who the visitor was and said all right. She could not refuse to see Betty Jane. She had refused nearly everyone else, except, of course, her family.

"You musn't stay long," the nurse warned, ushering Betty Jane in, one finger pressed warningly against her lips. "Our patient is doing nicely, but we don't want to tire her."

"Oh, I won't! I'll only stay a few minutes," Betty Jane promised. She handed the nurse a bundle wrapped in green wax paper that could only be more flowers.

I wonder, Janice thought, if I'll get this many flowers at my funeral. Not that the flowers weren't lovely. But in her present mood Janice was too indifferent to be grateful for them.

Still, she thought, smiling at Betty Jane, she was glad it wasn't her funeral. She was not too indifferent to be glad that she still was alive.

* * *

"My you look wonderful!" Betty Jane said. But she did not sound as though she meant it.

I must look a wreck, Janice decided. She had not, up until now, cared. She still did not care too much. "How's everything?" She said.

She did not care very much how "everything" was, but it was polite to ask and Betty Jane would expect that much from her.

"Just fine! Just fine!" Betty Jane said. "I know you must be worried, thinking I won't be able to take your place. But honestly, even Miss Willows says I'm doing all right."

"I'm sure you'll do much better than I," Janice said.

"I could never do that," Betty Jane said modestly. "But the office is all I have now. That's one reason I had to come to see you, Janice. I wanted to tell you, only I don't know how..." Her voice faltered, but she managed to go on in a moment. "Don't you be sensible, like I always thought I was. What I mean is, don't you put the office first. If you want to stay a way a long time or anything — well, just you do it."

"Thanks," Janice said. She was not quite sure what she was thanking Betty Jane for, but she knew that the other girl was trying to help her. That was why Janice added, "I am going to stay away. As soon as I'm able I'm going to Mexico, for a vacation. And" —it seemed now that Janice was beginning to think, whether she was ready or not—"you can tell Miss Willows something for me, if you will."

Betty Jane said that she would be glad to. She said she was glad Janice was going away."

* * *

"I'm not coming back," Janice said. "That's what I want you to tell Miss Willows. And I think she will understand—I think she'll be glad."

"I'm glad, too," Betty Jane said, and then she burst out crying. She managed to stop almost immediately. "I—I'm sorry. I didn't mean to. But—oh, Miss Hilary, please marry that nice young man of yours! If you don't, I just know you'll live to regret it. No man will keep on waiting for a girl forever."

"My Bill, he up and married someone else." Betty Jane gave an argument that was convincing. "A girl he always said he couldn't stand, too. But I kept him waiting too long; he thought I put my work before him. Common sense and love don't mix at all."

"Maybe you're right," Janice said. "Anyhow, I'll think about all that you've said. I'm terribly sorry, Betty Jane, about your young man. Only, truly, I feel sure that he couldn't have been the right young man, and that the right one, for you, will come along some day."

RIVAL UNIONS STAGE BATTLE ON CANAL BANK

Large Groups Camped Mile From Each Other

Cornwall, Ont., June 10 (CP)—A second man has been charged with having an offensive weapon following Wednesday night's seamen's riot nere.

Armond Larose of Montreal was arrested by police today in a gasoline storage shed just west of here. Police said Larose, a member of the Independent Canadian Lake Seamen's Union, was carrying a blackjack.

Jacques Drapeau, 28-year-old Montreal seaman, was fished from the canal Wednesday night and charged with illegal possession of a firearm. Police said Drapeau had brandished a revolver. Montreal police said Drapeau was a C.L.S.U. member signed to the crew of the Canada Steamship Lines vessel Arcadian.

Two truckloads of 150 C.L.S.U. men left here today for Cardinal, 40 miles west, where 30 of them manned the C.S.L. freighter Hastings.

The lockmaster at Cardinal canal said the remaining seamen left in the direction of Cornwall. He added he had learned the C.L.S.U. intended to man all strikebound ships between Morrisburg and Aultsville.

At other points along Lake Ontario the six-days-old strike was comparatively quiet. The Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) struck to force five shipping firms to hire C. S. U. crews. The firms — Canada Steamships, Transit Tankers, North West, Sarnit Steamships and Colonial Steamships — have charged the C. S. U. with communist domination and have hired crews from the C.L.S.U.

Carries Through Threat

Trouble at Cornwall apparently started when J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, head of the C. L. S. U., carried through a threat to send 200 ment to Cornwall to move C.S.L. and Sarnie vessels.

In Toronto, T. G. McManus, secretary of the C. S. U., said Wednesday a general lake seamen's strike of C. S. U. members might develop "if the R.C.M.P. do not portect our pickets at Cornwall from further violence from Sullivan's goons." The strike would affect nearly 28 shipping companies.

In Cornwall a combined force of R. C. M. P., provincial and city police said they felt confident they could handle the situation.

Mayor Lloyd D. Gallinger told the C. S. U. they would have protection of city police if attacked by the C. S. L. U.

At Port Colborne, the C. S. U. halted unloading of a coke cargo from the freighter Joseph P. Burke owned by Sarnia Steamships.

In Welland, 31 members of the C. S. U. went on trial Wednesday charged with mischief and assault arising from the boarding of the collier Glenelg April 22 in Welland canal. The Grand Jury found true bills on these counts and no bill on a conspiracy charge.

Labor Secretary Of United States Dies in Capital

Washington, June 10 — (AP)—Lewis B. Schwellenbach, United States Labor Secretary who stood on the side of labor in all inner-cabinet policy struggles, died today at the age of 53.

He fought passage of the Taft-Hartley Act and other measures aimed at restricting labor from the time he took the cabinet post June 30, 1945.

Death came after an illness of several weeks but bad health had prevented him from taking an acting part in recurring American labor crises for the last few months. A White House announcement said cardiac failure was the immediate cause of death.

President Truman, in Schwellenbach's home state of Washington on a speaking tour, was notified immediately. There was no indication who Truman might pick to succeed him.

David A. Morse is labor undersecretary and has been serving as acting secretary during Schwellenbach's illness.

Schwellenbach took over the department after Frances Perkins, one of the original members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, resigned. Previously he had been a United States Senator and a federal judge.

Of late, he had had little to do with settling labor disputes as Congress had whittled away his department's powers.

The political philosophy that caused Schwellenbach to be designated a Liberal — his critics placed him even further to the "left" — was established early in his political life.

He campaigned at home for old age pensions and proposed taking over idle factories and lands to give work to the unemployed.

Research Plane Has Flown Above Speed of Sound

Washington, June 10 (AP)—Air Secretary Stuart Symington said today the United States air force research plane XS-1 several times has flown "much faster than the speed of sound."

Symington told a press conference that so far as he knows no other plane has achieved super-sonic speed, that is, faster than sound travels.

The first and only pilot to fly the XS-1 beyond the so-called sonic wall is Capt. Chas. E. Yeager, 25, a fighter pilot who destroyed 13 German planes while serving with the air force.

Yeager is a test pilot assigned to the air material command at Wright Field, Ohio.

Baltimore, June 10 — (AP) — The Baltimore Sun today published its last cartoon from the pencil of Edmund Duffy, who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1930, 1933 and 1939. The paper explained Duffy "has concluded that he wants to take things a little easier."

FLEET OF FAST MERCHANT SHIPS NEEDED—CHEVRIER

Vessels Built in War Now Becoming Obsolete

Ottawa, June 10. (CP)—Canada will need a fleet of fast, modern merchant ships if she is to compete with other countries on the high seas, Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday in the Commons.

Merchant ships built for the government during the war and later sold to private Canadian firms now are becoming obsolete, he said.

The Minister made the statements in replying to criticism of the Canadian Maritime Commission by some Liberal and Opposition members.

Mr. Chevrier said the question of representation from the Maritimes is receiving consideration. The Board was established only a year ago and it was difficult to give all regions immediate representation.

He said the Commission has very definite and valuable functions to perform. For one thing, the Commission is trying to interest Canadian merchant shipping companies to invest in new ships.

The Commission now administers ships sold by the government to private companies which could not pay full cost of the vessels immediately. The companies now are being allowed to sell the ships to foreign countries if the revenue from the sale is used to build new ships in Canadian shipyards.

Call For Prison Reforms

This policy, said the minister, would offer employment for Canadian shipyards and would be developed gradually.

Highway Traffic 12 P.C. Higher Than Last Year

Ottawa, June 10 — (CP) — Highway traffic at the Canada-United States boundary in April was 12 per cent higher than the same month last year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday. Increased American traffic was mainly responsible.

U. S. traffic entering Canada was 25 per cent greater than in April, 1947, while Canadian traffic returning from the U. S. was 15 per cent less. Aggregate number of border crossings was 538,700, including 396,700 foreign entries and 142,000 returning Canadian vehicles.

Of the foreign inflow, 69,900 cars entered on traveller's vehicle permits, 310,500 were nonprofit or local entries and 16,300 were commercial vehicles. Canadian traffic returning comprised 9,500 units remaining abroad more than 24 hours, 120,000 staying for shorter periods and 12,500 commercial vehicles.

Dry Ice Will Be Used in Attempt To Quench Fires

Experts Hope to Produce Rain Over Fire Districts

(By The Canadian Press)

Forestry officials will co-operate with meteorological experts in an attempt to produce rain over the forest fire areas of northern and northwestern Ontario, it was announced today.

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests said today it will co-operate with the Dominion Meteorological Service in experiments with dry ice which it is hoped will produce rain to quench raging fires in the Chapleau, Missisagi and northern Ontario districts.

The experimental work depended on "the existence of correct cloudy formations," the Department said. A careful study was being made today of cloud formations over the fire areas.

Dry ice was flown today to sudbury from Toronto, but a heavy smoke pall lying over the city and Lake Ramsay postponed the experiment. The smoke had closed in on the lake like a fog, grounding planes.

600 Pounds Ready

Six-hundred pounds of dry ice has been stored at a frozen food locker in Sudbury until the air clears.

Forestry officials have said a three-day rain is "the only thing that can bring the big fires under control."

Meteorological officials in Toronto said success of the experiments would depend on a high degree of water content in clouds over the burning areas. If the clouds contained mainly ice crystals rain would not likely be precipitated.

Weathermen could not actually make rain. But where atmospheric conditions were likely to produce rain, showers could be "hurried along."

A 100-mile-wide band of showers had moved during the night from Fort William northeast of Nakina and southeast to Sault Ste. Marie. The showers were "fairly frequent" and deposited about two inches of rain over the area. The rain belt was expected to have passed over the Chapleau-Mississagi fire area by noon today. The outlook for Thursday was variable cloudiness.

The fire situation forced suspension of operation of pulpwood camps and sawmills in Northeastern Ontario. It was estimated more than 4,000 bushworker were thrown out of work temporarily.

As fire crews strove to cope with spreading outbreaks, the Canadian Forestry Association reported that fires so far this year in Ontario and Quebec had destroyed an estimated $34,000,000 of forest wealth.

The Chapleau fire had spread over 330 square miles of mixed timber, including white pine, jackpine, spruce, birch and poplar, and compelled bulldozer-equipped firefighters to retreat near Seabrooke Lake, 30 miles south of Chapleau.

A high wind caused further spreading of the Mississagi fire. For nearly two weeks it has burned through cutover and standing timber, mostly white pine ,devastating 250 square miles.

Near Rouyn in the Quebec fire area the gold-mining village of Belleterre was declared out of danger with a fire stopped three miles from its outskirts. Spruce, birch and other species of timber were destroyed in four townships 50 miles south of Rouyn.

EX-KING MICHAEL, PRINCESS ANNE WED IN ATHENS

Couple Met at Wedding of Elizabeth and Philip for First Time

Athens, June 0 — (AP) — Michael, youthful ex-king of Romania, and Anne, a 24-year-old Danish Princess of the House of Bourbon-Parma, were married today in the Royal Palace here.

In a ceremony which took slightly more than 20 minutes, Archbishop Damaskinos of the Greek Orthodox Church united the Royal families of Romania and Denmark. Anne and Michael first met at the wedding last fall of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip of London.

Anne, wearing a rose - colored embroidered tulle dress with a veil and an 11-foot-long train carried by three pages, was given away by her uncle, Prince Erik of Denmark.

King Paul of Greece acted as best man for Michael, who wore the dress uniform of a Romanian general.

Archbishop Damaskinos, wearing Byzantine Ecclesiastical vestments and his golden Episcopal crown, pronounced the solemn phrases of the Orthodox Church marriage ceremony amidst a deep hush in the crowded hall.

The archbishop, former regent of Greece, spoke the last words of the ceremony: "Isaiah Horepse" ("With the help of God, dance"). In accordance with the ancient rites, Michael and Anne made three turns around the table. While they "danced" thus, they were showered with rice and rose petals. The royal pair's crowns were connected by a ribbon, symbolizing their union.

One slight change was made in the Greek Orthodox ritual. In the purely Greek ceremony the couple wear artificial or natural wreaths of lemon blossoms attached, one to the other, by ribbons. Today, however, they used the gold-burnished crowns, as in the Russian Orthodox ceremony.

The crowns did not actually rest on their heads, but were held directly over them by attendants.

Anne and Michael are expected to honeymoon at Iatoi until next Wednesday, and then leave for Switzerland. They cancelled earlier plans to spend part of the honeymoon on the Island of Rhodes, which is to be headquarters for United Nations mediation conference on the Palestine war.

QUEBEC FACING GENERAL ELECTION IN SEVEN WEEKS

Union Nationales and Liberals Well Into Preparations for Voting July 28

Quebec, June 10. (10)—Quebec faces a general election in seven weeks with the Union Nationale government and Liberal opposition well into their preparations for voting July 28.

Date of the election, awaited since April 1 when the Provincial legislature rose after a turbulent three-month session, was announced Wednesday by Premier Duplessis.

The Union Nationale Government, elected in August, 1944, chose a Wednesday for the voting, as promised earlier by the Premier who reserves the day, dedicated to St. Joseph, for his important moves.

The Premier told a Three Rivers audience last Sunday that provincial autonomy and anti-communism are the "predominant" problems of the day.

The Liberals, led by Adelard Godbout, Quebec Premier during most of the war, are expected to contest the Union Nationale's bid for re-election with a platform calling for co-operation with the federal authorities and for social reform.

L'Union Des Electeurs, Quebec branch of the Social Credit Association of Canada, plans to contest all seats as a third party.

At the moment of dissolution, party standings in the Quebec House were as follows:

Union Nationale, 62; Liberals, 33; Bloc Populaire, 1; Nationalist 1; Independents 3; Vacant (Montreal-St. Louis), 1; Total 91.

Premier Duplessis' government elected 48 members August 8, 1944, and increased its strength by four with by-election victories in which it won one Bloc Populaire and three Liberal seats. Another Liberal seat was vacated.

Total number of votes cast in 1944 was 1,329,927, a heavy increase from 563,297 in 1939, because women voted in provincial general elections for the first time.

Greatest Menace to West Is 'Fifth Column Technique'

—SMUTS

Cambridge, England, June 10—(AP)—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts declared today that the "fifth column technique" is the greatest menace to the western world.

Smuts, who recently was defeated as Prime Minister of South Africa, said the technique was the modern substitute for war and served the aggressor as well as war itself.

The white-bearded statesman spoke at ceremonies at which he was proclaimed Chancellor of Cambridge, an honorary academical post.

Smuts contended that, while the fifth column menaced western civilization, preparedness for war was insurance against it.

"It is a fair inference that if we are reasonably prepared and our house from the defence point of view is in good order, we have nothing to fear," he said.

The correct counter-measure was firmness.

"For those who treasure the western heritage, the hour was struck to call a halt to this fifth column and its advance to the west, and to say to the great power behind it in clear terms: Thus far and no further. The hand of friendship is offered in all sincerity, but only on that irrevocable condition."

Fifth Column aggression did not envisage a shooting war and its makers would not lightly risk one.

"The sick family of western Europe is slowly convalescing from the pestilence of war. In America vast financial resources are being mobilized for the purpose. One can but express deep gratitude to the statesmen who are moving in this great cause of a resurgent Europe."

Marriage, Divorce and Re-marriage To be Studied by Presbyterian Church

By KEN BOTWRIGHT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 10 — (CP) — A study of marriage, divorce and re-marriage in Canada will be conducted by a committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The church's 74th General Assembly was scheduled to end today. A full-scale debate on two articles of faith — predestination and divine election — was expected during final stages of the eight-day session.

A national committee on marriage, divorce and re-marriage was suggested Wednesday night in a report from Montreal presbytery. The report urged the committee to recommend provisions for civil marriage in every province.

Rev. Louis H. Fowler of Port Hope, said increasing agitation by divorced persons in Ontario for civil marriage was based "on misconception of civil law". Actually a type of civil marriage already exists where ministers may marry divorced persons with a non-religious ceremony, he said. But Presbyterian church law provides that ministers may marry only the "innocent party" of a divorce.

This placed the responsibility of determining the "innocent party" on the minister, Mr. Fowler explained — a responsibility many ministers wish to avoid by having civil marriages instituted.

"Is the church to say 'I believe in the forgiveness of sins' and you and I, as ministers, add to ourselves 'except adulterers?' " he asked.

Earlier, Assembly members voted 84-43 against a proposal to send ministers-in-training to the Divinity Faculty at McGill University.

The Assembly approved 1948-49 budget estimates of $600,000. Actual allotments for church work in Canada and abroad totalled approximately $400,000.

"Our people are not realizing 100 per cent of the needs of our church," said F. A. McDiarmid of Ottawa. "Not 50 per cent contribute towards the church's budget."

Application for a $50,000 loan for MacVicar Memorial Church in Montreal — Moderator C. Ritchie Bell's charge — was referred to the Board of Administration for consideration. Dr. Bell's church was razed by fire last March 6. Loss was estimated at $200,000.

Brilliant Military Display Of Trooping of the Color Cancelled But No Rain Falls

Lonton, June 10 (CP)—Thousands of children with tears in their eyes tried to make Mounted Police horses and Trafalgar Square pigeons compensate today for the brilliant military display they did not see.

Tens of thousands had gathered to witness the trooping of the colors to mark official celebration of the King's 52nd birthday. Children of all ages were prominent in the close-packed crowd which had waited for hours, for this was a special occasion.

After nine years of austerity khaki dress, the guards were to parade in all their glory of tall black bearskins, red tunics and blue trousers with bright red stripes. The cavalry were to have glittering breastplates and nodding plumes.

In suburban London, thunderstorms darkened the morning but umbrella-carrying crowds surged towards the Horse Guards parade ground hours before the ceremony was due to start. The sun began to peek through.

Then an unobtrusive police car circled the parade ground, its loud-speaker going, warning the crowd that further rain was in prospect and that the display had been cancelled.

Protesting in the strengthening sunlight, children were led from the parade ground by their parents, who tried to explain the reasons for the postponement.

Every police horse was surrounded by parents and children and tears vanished as the docile beasts were patted. Under the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square the crowd was so thick that even the aces among the pigeons found it hard to make a landing and gorge on the sudden affluence of crumbs.

To a barrage of questions, Buckingham Palace officials responded: "let us not start rumors."

Gossip spreading among the crowds inevitable centred on the possibility of a royal illness, but this received no encouragement from official quarters, who insisted that the weather alone was responsible for the cancellation.

Equally without confirmation were crowd rumors that Scotland Yard had received reports of a bomb attempt being planned.

A war office official said the risk of rain had to be taken into account because of the effect a downpour has on scarlet uniforms, valuable and hard to replace in Britain's age of austerity.

The King was to have ridden as Colonel-in-Chief of the famous British Guards Regiments from Buckingham Palace to the parade ground, with a retinue of mounted officers.

Hitler Accomplished Only Half Of His Goal in Plan to Destroy Jews

Nuernberg, June 10 — (AP)—Hitler accomplished only half of his goal in his plan to destroy the Jews. Documents in war crimes trials here disclosed there was a master plan to gas 11,000,000.

A cold, impersonal discussion of the "final solution of the Jewish question" took place at a conference Jan. 20, 1942 in Berlin.

A record of the conference was introduced in the trial of the Nazi ministers.

Prosecutor Robert Kempner claimed the document put full blame for the Jewish annihilation on the ministers, including the foreign office.

Attending the conference were Stuckart of the interior ministry; Freisler, of justice; Luther of the foreign office; Meyer and Leibrandt of the occupied east and Neumann of the "four-year plan."

A chart was laid down listing 11,000,000 Jews, even including those in the British Isles.

Minutes of the meeting said:

"Under proper direction the Jews should now be brought to the east in a suitable way for use as labor. In big labor gangs, those capable of work are to be employed in road building in which task undoubtedly a great part will fall out through antural diminution.

"The remnant that finally is able to survive all this must be given treatment accordingly . . ."

The plan succeeded in the extermination of upwards of 6,000,000.

Even half-Jews were included in the extermination program. Quarter-Jews were to be given the choice of sterilization or death. The minutes of the meeting recorded this as a "voluntary" phase of the plan.

FINDS HALF-PENNY DATING BACK TO 1813

More than vegetables are being found in the Bedford vegetable garden on the Belleville - Rednersville county road.

Last week Mrs. R. Main, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bedford who are seen regularly on the local farmers' market, found a half-penny dating back to 1813 which was minted in recognition of the Duke of Wellington, then Field Marshal Wellington. Mrs. Main picked the coin out of the dirt while working in the garden.

But finding ancient coins on the Bedford farm seems to be a rather frequent occurrence as Mr. Bedford states he has found several at various times. According to Mr. Bedford his garden plot is on the site of a former homestead which years ago was burned.

FIRST STRAWBERRIES SELL AT 60 CENTS

First home-grown strawberries of the current season were offered on the local produce market this morning as a vendor from the Brighton district displayed a crate of berries at 60 cents per box. Approximately 35 boxes of berries were offered by the vendor.

First offering of home-grown berries is a bit earlier than in normal years, it was stated. Providing there is sun for ripening it was expected there would be a fairly plentiful offering of berries for the Saturday market.

Tactical Exercise Held for Officers

Recently a tactical exercise without troops was held for the officers of the 9th A/Tk. Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery (ALI) in the area south of Northport, in Prince Edward County. The Belleville unit proceeded to the area direct while the Battery at Napanee arrived via the Deseronto Ferry.

The selection of suitable anti-tank gun positions was the main topic undertaken but a considerable amount of instruction and practice in the use of wireless was also worked in during the time, four sets being in steady use.

After the exercise, which was under the direction of Lt.-Col. J. M. Cousins, Commanding Officer, the officers were the guests of the Regiment's Honorary Colonel, Lt.-Col. P. H. Wills. Colonel Wills' hospitality was greatly enjoyed by all the officers present. The units returned to their stations by unit transport.

Remand Made At Request Of Crown Attorney

Simcoe, June 10 — (CP) — Seth Linton, 42, charged with the fatal shooting of two men on Linton's Charlitteville township farm June 6, was remanded to June 17 when he appeared in a Simcoe court today. The remand was made at the request of Crown Attorney W. E. Kelly.

Linton was charged with the murder of Louis Stewart, 43, and John Kipp, 36, of nearby Vienna shortly after police discovered their bullet-riddled bodies near Linton's farmhouse. The two men had gone to Linton's farm to persuade Stewart's wife, who had been keeping house for Linton, to return to her husband.

Police said Mr. and Mrs. Stewart had agreed to a reconciliation, but that Linton objected to this arrangement. A quarrel ensued and blows were struck. Stewart's 12-year-old daughter, who was present, told police Linton then chased the two men from the house and shot them.

Proposed Juvenile Court Endorsed By County Council

Hastings County Council will join forces with the Belleville City Council in the establishment in the city of a proposed Family Relations and Juvenile Court. Trenton Town Council will be approached in the near future regarding representation on a special committee being formed to further the proposal.

Council unanimously endorsed a motion at the Thursday morning session to the effect that it appoint two members to the committee. Named to the committee to represent the county body are, Warden George West, reeve of Madoc and Deputy Reeve Ben Bleecker, Sidney Township.

The motion was an aftermath of addresses on Wednesday by the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, Albert College, chairman of the general committee Mark Vanner, secretary, and Al. Davis, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. here.

$4,000 Annually Required

It was pointed out that the cost for the appointment of a judge and other expenses necessary would be roughly $4,000 a year.

Dr. Howard in his address said that the Belleville Inter-Service Club Committee had "given me backing" at the start. The City Council co-operated to the fullest extent, and had appointed a committee which had in turn appointed two members. Trenton would be approached along similar lines and he appealed to County Council to join the movement and give it fullest support.

"These juveniles are not criminals," he said, and ordinary courts will not handle such cases. The only system is the criminal courts which are not vitally interested in the salvation of these youngsters. The Department of Justice has made juvenile courts possible where particular stress can be placed on the need of these youngsters."

"We are asking you to give your wholehearted support to something that is intended, not to salvage youngsters, but to save them from being salvaged."

Canadian Church Leader Prohibited Crossing Border

Buffalo, N.Y., June 10 (AP)— A United States immigration official said Wednesday a Canadian church leader had been prohibited from crossing the border on his way to a meeting of the World Council of Churches in The Netherlands.

S. J. McDonnell, acting district director of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Rev. Dr. Harvey George Forster of Welland, Ont., had been temporarily excluded because "his entry might be deemed prejudicial to the interests of the United States."

McDonnell said Dr. Forster was stopped on a train at Niagara Falls, N.Y., last Friday while he and Mrs. Forster were planning to go to New York City en route to the church meeting in The Netherlands.

Dr. Forster of Niagara district superintendent of All Peoples Missions of the United Churches of Canada. He has served on labor conciliation boards in the area and spoken frequently at Canadian labor rallies.

Welland sources reported the couple left Montreal by plane for London Tuesday night.

INSULATED SIDING

POLICE COURT

The date for the retrial of charges under the Opium Narcotic Drug Act against Dr. Ernest M. Carefoot, MacDonald Ave., was again set forward in county police court today when the accused appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The trial was adjourned until July 8th, when a definite date will be set for the hearing.

The charge against Dr. Carefoot is the result of the Crown appealing the dismissal of a like charge against Dr. Carefoot two years ago.

There was a comparatively brief session of county court as seven of the 12 cases listed for trial were enlarged to a future date. Three of the cases involving traffic violations and one charge under the L.C.A. were settled out of court.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

The investment picture in Canada will be examined next week at the annual meeting of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

Some 200 representatives of the institutions concerned with raising a large part of the money which goes into Canadian business and industry will meet June 12-16 on board ship and at Murray Bay, Que. About half of them will then proceed up the Saguenay tosee the aluminum industry at Arvida and Shipshaw. Delegations are drawn from across the country.

Markets Wednesday

New York Wednesday opened with a follow-up to Tuesday's sharp advance, slowed down, but finished ahead, The Associated Press 60-stock average advancing .2 to 71.5 for a new high since August, 1946, and ahead .2 of its mid-May peak.

Most of the gains were made n the first hour and earlier gains were shaved generally to fractions at the end. Steels and then oils held the foreground.

Canadian exchanges held back from New York's high activity but showed advances. In Toronto the industrial list closed slightly ahead and base metals and western oils made better gains. Golds were off.

In Montreal papers, utilities and oils topped a firmer selected industrial list.

With corn leading, Chicago grains advanced, but Winnipeg quotations were of, with July rye losing its 10-cent limit.

Union Organizer Arrested After Police Scuffle

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—Joe Sullivan, Canadian Seamen's Union Organizer was arrested today following a scuffle between pickets and police at Toronto harbor. He will be charged with obstructing police.

The trouble started when C.S.U. pickets, led by Sullivan, attempted to board the John Irwin, tanker of the Canadian Oil Company, after a crew from the rival Canadian Lake Seamen's Union had gone aboard under police escort.

The regular crew walked off Sunday in sympathy with the strike called by the C.S.U. against five major shipping companies.

The picket line was sent reinforcements when word of the move by the C.L.S.U. was passed along.

Police say Sullivan attempted to force his way onto private property in an effort to reach the vessel's side. They say he pushed a police constable when warned against trespassing.

Trial of Seamen Set for Sept. 7

Welland, June 10 — (CP) — Trial of 31 seamen charged with conspiracy to damage the collier Glenelg and render her unseaworthy, was traversed today until supreme court sittings here next Sept. 7.

Crown Attorney T. F. Forestell moved the trial be traversed when Judge H. E. Fuller quashed an indictment against the members of Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.), charging "mischief" because it did not allege any of the accused "wilfully" damaged the ship at Thorold last April 22.

A charge of assault against the seamen will be heard at the supreme court sitting and a new indictment on the mischief charge will be presented to the grand jury at that time.

Fires Destroy $34,000,000 In "Forest Wealth"

Montreal, June 10 — (CP) — The Canadian Forestry Association said Wednesday that forest fires so far this year in Ontario and Quebec have destroyed $34,000,000 in "forest wealth." A spokesman said this included lost lumbermen's wages as well as merchantable timber.

Total destruction in Ontario was estimated at 450,000 acres, 40 per cent of which was said to have been land covered by merchantable timber. Of the estimated 89,600 acres destroyed in Quebec only about 10 per cent was said to have commercial value.

Losses in 1947 for the whole of Canada were set at 613,000 acres.

County Council Accepts Offer Of $300,000 From City For County Home and Farmland

Hastings County Council at its Wednesday afternoon session, voted unanimously in favor of acceptance of the offer of the City of Belleville to purchase the County House of Refuge and its 75 acres of farmland for the price of $300,000.

The motion was placed before council by Reeve Fred Campbell, Thurlow Township, chairman of the House of Refuge Advisory Board, and seconded by Deputy Reeve Wilfred Spencer, Rawdon Township, member of the Board.

Approval of the transfer of the property from county to city was received yesterday from the Ontario Minister of Public Works and Welfare.

The County Council will immediately consider potential sites and adjoining farmland, for the erection of a new county home, which, it is expected, will house 125 inmates. Offers have been received from Madoc, Stirling, Tweed and other county communities while the Advisory Board have inspected several sites in the immediate vicinity of hte city. No action was taken at the Wednesday session on the selection of a site.

Delegations Heard

Decision to accept the city's offer followed intermittent discussions on the question, which ranged from sites to sale and from sale to sites. Delegations were heard from Madoc and Marmora villages which extolled the virtues of sites in their respective communities. It is expected that other county communities will offer sites, before the conclusion of the present session.

Early in the discussion the question arose as to what would happen if the city took over the home and land immediately. No home, it was pointed out would be available for at least two or three years until the new one was built.

On Certain Basis

Deputy Reeve Spencer informed council that the Advisory Board had gone into this aspect of the question and any arrangements to sell would be on the basis that the county retain the Home until the new one was available.

"But," he added, "the city should take possession of the land immediately. It is hardly fair to keep the city from taking over the land, subdividing it and selling it immediately while prospects are good."

Reeves Vincent Lynch, Marmora Village, and Archie Harvie, Mayo, felt that depriving the Home of the land for the next two years would increase the cost of operation since no produce would be forthcoming.

If such was the case, there would be a loss, Deputy Reeve Spencer said. "But if we purchase a suitable site and land now we could utilize the farmland for production of crops and offset the loss incurred by the turning over of the present Home land to the city."

The county should at least get this year's crop off, stated Reeve Joseph Davis, Monteagle, and if possible retain an acre or two for gardening purposes while the new Home is being built.

Transaction Will Take Time

County Clerk Erle Denyes said there would be so difficulty in harvesting this year's crop. This transaction will take a lot of time to complete. Reeve Charles Rush, Hungerford, supported the idea that if another site and land was purchased immediately produce could be raised on it. Transportation costs would not be great and cattle could be transferred immediately. There would be no great difficulty.

Deputy Reeve Spencer urged the purchase of a new site immediately. "We are going to find little obstacles such as this one in a transfer of this size. We must expect to find them, and surmount them the best we know how. There will be a loss here, and a gain there but we shall come out all right in the long run."

Right Thing to do

"But this is the right thing to do, I believe, and one that should be a profitable move on the part of the county."

Deputy Reeve Bleecker, Sidney wanted to know the cost of the new sites. He felt council should be informed as to what will be paid.

"Reeve Lynch, Marmora" said County Clerk Denyes, 'has submitted prices on two sites near his village, while the Advisory Board has an option on a site in Sidney Township."

The clerk's announcement regarding the option drew Chairman Campbell to his feet, "The Board felt," he said, "that if the city of Belleville goes in with the county on the new home, it should be near the city."

The Board had found a site one mile west of the corporation that rather appealed to it. In fact so much that it took an option on the property, but that does not mean it will be purchased.

85 Acres of Land

The farm has eighty-five acres of good land, with no stones, no bushes, in fact every inch of it can be plowed. The barn is not much good but the property contains a handsome seven-roomed house. One field comprises sixty acres. The property is located on the Front Road of Sidney Township and the new watermain runs in front of it."

"The Board saw the Stirling sites," the chairman said, "and they are very nice but after a great deal of discussion, it believes that the superintendent of the new home has a great deal of business to do at the county buildings. It appeared to us to be more convenient for him to have the farm close to the county buildings and to the hospital. We have rather decided to recommend the Sidney site but would like council to see it and decide for the best of the county."

Site Worth $20,000

Deputy Reeve Spencer told council that the Board chairman had omitted the most important item — the cost of the Sidney site. This, he said, was $20,000. "It is a lovely piece of land, and we can purchase more if needed. The view is splendid — and of all the properties the Board visited around the city, it is the choicest."

The Board had looked at the Leavens property, east of the city. This could be made a showplace as it is practically on an island with a creek curving around it. It contained 60 acres, and with landscaping could be made a very attractive piece of property. Its value was placed at $8,000.

Referring back to the Sidney property, the deputy reeve said the house on the property could be sold for eight or nine thousand dollars. If sold, it would substantially reduce the original cost of $20,000.

Reeve Lynch, Marmora, was of the opinion that the question of the new Home being a joint one between city and county should be settled before any site is purchased. Reeve Charles Rush concurred and stated that the new Home should be one of the county exclusively. "If the city wants to buy the services, all well and good, but I am not in favor of the Home being a joint one."

Wants it Farther Away

Reeve Wells, Stirling, maintained that the new site should be more than a mile out of the city. "In a few years you will be surrounded by the city again and you will have to seek another new location."

Discussion ended at this point and the motion placed before council and ratified.

The Stirling delegation, headed by ex-wardens William West and George Thompson, placed the advantages of sites near their village before council. They were far from the city traffic and that of highway; in the midst of choice farmland and with nearly every facility available. Water and hydro was available, and if needed, good fishing was nearby.

Hub of the Wheel

The Madoc village council attended in a body, and was introduced by Warden West. The main advantage the delegation pointed out was the central position of Madoc in the county. It was the hub of the wheel and location there would reduce costs of transportation from all parts of the county. One speaker left that financial advantages resulting from the location of the Home had been the city of Belleville's for a good many years, and he said, it should be given now to some smaller community.

No definite action was taken on the selection of the new site but it is expeced some decision will be reached before the end of the session.

Ford-UAW Wage Negotiations Open Next Week

Windsor, June 10 (CP)— The Ford Motor Company of Canada and the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) will begin negotiations Monday on the union's 1948-1949 wage demands, it was announced here today.

Roy England, President of Local 200, said George Burt, the union's Canadian director would accompany his six-man bargaining committee to the sessions.

A cost-of-living increase "to compensate for the loss in wages caused by rising prices" since May 1947 (date of the opening of last year's negotiations) was the chief demand. The union did not specify how much this raise should be, but it said 15 cents an hour in its recent submission to General Motors Corporation.

It is expected that negotiations also will be opened at the Canadian Chrysler Company this month.

The Ford 200 negotiations will ask for five cents an hour to go to a special social security fund to provide workers with company-paid-for hospitalization, life insurance and sick benefits.

HOGS

Toronto, June 10 — (CP) — At Stratford today quotations on hogs to farmers were $29.35, to truckers $29.50. At Hull hogs off truck were unquoted and dressed Grade A were unchanged at $29.50 delivered.

County Council Concurs in Number Of Resolutions

Hastings County Council at its Wednesday session unanimously concurred in a Peterborough County resolution requesting the Dominion Government to give more consideration to income tax exemptions for people in the lower brackets.

The resolution recommended that exemptions for single men be increased from $750 to $1,500; married men, $1,500 to $3,000, and the exemption of parents having children eligible for baby bonus be increased from $100 to $200.

There was no discussion on the matter except one member warned that while "I am in favor of this resolution we must remember that when expenditures come up, we will also concur. You cannot increase expenditure if you reduce taxation."

It also concurred in a Peel County resolution that the Ontario Government be requested to amend the Municipal Act to provide fixed assessment so it will not apply to or effect taxation for county purposes. But it took no action in Renfrew County request for concurrence requesting revision of the Highway Traffic Act to compel all motor vehicles to stop at railway crossings.

Resolution Tabled

Goderich County Council's request that all doctors "who make hospitals their workshops and where some of them make a living," be taxed 25 cents a day for every bed-patient day, the bill to be paid the hospital when the patient pays the doctor, was tabled.

"There's no point in a resolution like that," a member stated. "The doctor will pay it likely—but then he'll raise his rates, and he'll be better off in the long run."

Council also took no action on a Waterloo County resolution that the Minister of Education be requested to make provision for remuneration for trustees of township school areas.

Taken Up by E.O.A.

Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, said this matter had been brought to the attention of the Ontario Educational Association. It was felt at the E.O.A.'s convention that the right men could not be secured gratis. They were allowed ten cents per mile mileage one way for eight meetings a year, but in many cases were forced to attend as many as fifteen. The Thurlow reeve felt that a door was being left open too wide and suggested the resolution be revised and presented it again. Council however ordered the letter filed.

A Marmora committee in charge of securing funds for the construction of a proposed small hospital in that village, requested the rescinding of a grant of $5,000 made by County Council last year. The committee communication stated that the overall cost of construction had reached such a high figure that the project was being no longer entertained. It therefore requested that County Council rescinds the grant.

Council referred to the committee of the whole on by-laws a request from County Judge J. C. Anderson that a permanent court stenographer and judge's secretary be secured for the county at a salary of $2,000.

C.C.F., Liberals Have Majority Of Candidates

Regina, June 10 (CP)—The C.C.F. and the Liberals seemed slated today to account for the majority of the candidates in the June 24 Saskatchewan general election with Social Credit next in line.

With nominations due to close at 2 p.m. MST today, it was expected that close to 150 candidates would file papers for the election. Fifth seats will be contested on the June date while the tow remaining seats will be decided July 22.

Only the C.C.F. has indicated it would contest the full 50 seats up for decision on June 24. The Liberals had picked 41 candidates and Social Credit 38. The Progressive Conservates had c[illegible]red their intention of running [illegible] candidates.

Voting in two of the 52 ridings—the far-northern constituencies of Athabaska and Cumberland—had to be postponed because late spring thaws made early election organization impossible.

In an attempt to end the domination of the legislature by the C.C.F.—which holds 47 seats —the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives have joined hands in a number of ridings to run coalition candidates. One such instance is in Weyburn where Premier T. C. Douglas will be seeking re-election.

Combinations of Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and Independents are lined up against the C.C.F. in each of the three two-members city ridings of Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw.

Marmora, Stirling and Coe Hill Delegations Request Grants For Their Community Centres

An appeal for a grant to assist in the construction cost of a Recreational Community Centre in the village of Marmora, not only elicited the sympathy of Hastings County Council, but inspired two of its members to ask for grants for similar projects, Wednesday afternoon.

A Marmora delegation headed by Bernard Hughes, chairman of the Community Centre committee, had no sooner outlined its project and solicited a grant of $1,000 than Reeve Wells, Stirling, leaped to his feet and told council that his village had a similar project under way and a grant of five or six hundred dollars would be mighty welcome.

Scarcely had the smiles disappeared from staid councillors' faces, than Reeve Clarke Rollins informed the council that back in his township of Wollaston around the Coe Hill district, there was no such thing as a community centre, a hockey rink or a baseball diamond.

"But there was plenty of vacant land," he said, "and the boys back there had started work on, not a covered rink, but an open-air field which would serve a far-flung community with facilities for hockey, baseball, picnics and general community get-togethers."

Shortage of Money

It was a grand idea, the Wollaston reeve pointed out, but hockey rinks, baseball diamonds etc., were not the only shortages in that district. There happened to be, at the present time, a 'distinct shortage of money.

So with the council apparently lending a sympathetic ear to appeals for grants for similar projects in other communities, the Wollaston reeve felt it was a timely spot to get in a plug for his township and a $500 grant. Which he did.

As a more or less fitting climax to the community-centre-grant complex of the council, Reeve Peter Kellar, Bancroft, rose majestically to his feet, and informed council that back in his village the boys and girls were contributing to a hockey rink which would cost in the neighborhood of $26,000.

Smiles Disappear

A hush fell over the council. Smiles disappeared as if swept away by a magic brush. They waited for the blow to fall, and were prepared to shout for adjournment, if it proved too heavy.

But Reeve Kellar was enjoying himself. It was his moment. He looked over the suddenly-quiet group of council colleagues. He hesitated a moment. Then he smiled and said: "It's all right gentlemen, I'm not going to ask for a grant—yet."

The Marmora delegation through Mr. Hughes pointed out that practically the entire cost of the community project, which started with the idea of building a rink only, had been subscribed by the good people of Marmora, Deloro, Rawdon and Marmora and Lake township. The Agricultural Society had given the committee its grounds for one dollar, and the grounds had been returned to it. Contracts had been let and work started.

Heating Plant Needed

But as the heating plant of the centre was planned to be placed in a basement to avoid fire hazards, it was necessary that a basement be dug. And here trouble started. A few inches below Mother Earth was solid rock. This will necessitate blasting and other work which will incur between $1,500 and $2,500 additional cost. So it was felt the County Council might assist with a grant of $1,000.

The new community centre, it was pointed out by another member of the Marmora delegation, will be named in honor of Dr. Hamilton Crawford, well-known physician of Marmora and Deloro. Some time ago a memorial hospital was planned to the cost of which County Council had granted five thousand dollars. The hospital project had been abandoned, and the $5,000 returned, or rescinded. So, the delegate pointed out, with the return of the five thousand dollars, it wouldn't be so much of a hardship on the county to grant $1,000 to the new community centre.

All three appeals were referred to the committee on Ways and Means.

Consultative Committee Report On Secondary Education Laid Over After Length Discussion

Lengthy discussion on a report of the Consultative Committee on Secondary Education, was a repetition of former long-winded debates on the question of high school areas, and like its predecessors was laid over for further action, by members of Hastings County Council yesterday.

As a result of popular approval of the establishment of larger high school districts, the report stated, Centre Hastings municipalities of Rawdon, Huntingdon, Marmora and Lake, Madoc, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, Tudor and Cashel and the villages of Deloro, Marmora and Madoc had passed the necessary by-law. Those that did not act were Hungerford Township and the villages of Tweed and Stirling, although the Tweed Board of Trustees had passed a resolution dissolving its Board.

In South Hastings, the townships of Tyendinaga and Thurlow had passed by-laws and Sidney Township and the villages of Frankford and Deseronto did not.

No Recommendation

It was pointed out that as the above-mentioned municipalities had not passed the necessary by-laws, and as the Dept. of Education will not approve the formation of a small high school district until the Royal Commission on Education makes its report, the Consultative Committee on Education here does not care to make any recommendation at this time but will continue its work in establishing larger high school districts in the county.

Target of sharp criticism last year, the Committee had tried hard to do something this year, Reeve Harry Harrison, chairman, said. No time had been lost.

Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro, said that the committee had worked hard and made an honest effort to put the high school area scheme before the public. "It seems too bad," he went on, "that some municipalities are not financially able to do it."

Marmora in Bad Position

Reeve Vincent Lynch, Marmora, said that if no action was taken this year it would mean deferment again till next year. It puts Marmora in a bad position.

"Is this high school area business going to be compulsory or not?" he demanded. "In the meantime Marmora pupils are suffering. If this school area is to be formed, action must be taken in June so it can be in operation by January next. The government should take a firm stand on this question as children in schools such as our are suffering."

Reeve Clarke Rollins, Wollaston told council that there was a possibility of increased grants when the Royal Commission on Education brings down its report, which will greatly affect building this type of school.

To Buy Education

Public School Inspector R. H. Macklem, however, said that it was not the intention of all high school areas to construct new buildings. South Hastings is going to buy its education from Belleville.

Reeve A. Jones, Huntingdon, deplored the fact that some municipalities had "passed up" the idea. It is the first time the children of the country have been offered the same education as those of the city. If people were properly educated they would jump at the idea. It is the best thing ever offered the people of this county.

"I don't see why we should not ask the government to incorporate an area for those who are willing to come in," Reeve Buskard said. "It may not be practicable but if one community wants to stay out why should those that want to come in be penalized? This county council can recommend the formation of such an area."

Whole Idea Changed

Chairman Harrison told council that the whole idea of the Department regarding high school areas had changed in the last two years. Many districts comprising two or three high schools had been set up under one board. This was the type suggested for Centre Hastings, but it was told there were too many pupils and distance too great for transportation. He suggested that all schools operate so that Marmora would have a junior high school at least.

Regarding the formation of smaller high school districts, Chairman Harrison said that High School Inspector Rendall, Toronto, had informed him that the Department would not permit this, because there was not sufficient assessment in the area to back up the project. It was unfortunate, he said, that Hungerford Township could not see fit to pass the by-law. Tweed was willing, but would be isolated unless Hungerford went in.

County Clerk Eerle Denyes reminded council that the proper procedure was that all high school boards must dissolve and the necessary by-laws passed and sent to County Council which would get the approval of the Department. Rendall had warned if Hungerford and Sidney did not come, others need not prepare by-laws.

May Have Reason

Reeve Buskard felt it was "too bad that Hungerford had not agreed on this point. I suppose that township has a reason but in the meantime parents in some municipalities are paying transportation costs where others do not.

Deputy Reeve Seldon Homan, Thurlow, demanded to know "what is the obstacle in a democratic country like this. In a large school area of 11 mill on assessment, why shouldn't we have the area. Let those who want to go in go. Others can remain as they are."

"Inspector Rendall told us that we could not have an area because we have only a one million dollar assessment," Reeve Lynch said.

"Yet North Hastings can carry on an area with eleven municipalities. I think the Department should make a stand and either permit small areas or force them into one big one."

The matter was laid over.

County Forester Urges School Competition

Encouragement of public school competition in forestry by Hastings County Council would greatly aid in the work of reforestation within the county, County Forester Edwards, Napanee, told the council in a brief review of reforestation work yesterday.

"School planting," the forester said, "was a new effort in the county this year. It was done mainly by elementary school pupils although some high school students took part."

These schools now have competitions and have been invited to plant in the county forest areas with cash prizes given to the winners. Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac Counties are taking up the competitive work with prizes given to first, second and third winners.

The winning school can enter the provincial competitions where prizes are given to the first four finishing in that order. "This is the first year that there have been enough entries from Hastings to warrant the competitions taking place," the forester said.

Pupils Taking Part

The total number of pupils taking part in the different inspectorates were, South Hastings 120; Centre Hastings 62 and North Hastings 78. Each school planted a half-acre or 600 trees. Lots have been laid out and will be marked with the name of the school. There is more to the competition than just planting. Points will be given on judging on survival, and a forestry quiz. Schools will also make a leaf collection to aid pupils in the identification of trees.

Mr. Edwards pointed out to county council members that more effort should be made to encourage this type of competition within the county for it will assist greatly in reforestation work in the area.

Warden Praises Work

Warden George West told council he had been in attendance when the school planting took place and he was greatly pleased with the way the children took to the work and the interest they showed in it. They deserve a lot of credit for their efforts.

Forester Edwards pointed out to council that the 80-acre Actinolite forest requires work of fencing and setting up of fire-breaks. Firebreaks had been established. These consist of a twelve-foot strip of land, plowed and grass-free. It is insurance, and well worth the cost.

In the northern area at Birds Creek there is plenty of land to plant. Two blocks of ten acres each are complete, while two other ten-acre blocks are three-quarters completed.

Potato Planting Well Advanced In West Counties

Toronto, June 10 (CP) — The weekly crop report of the Ontario Agricultural Department released Wednesday night said potato planting was well advanced in Dufferin, Grey and Halton. Rain was needed to help pasture and hay crops in some Western Ontario sections.

Tobacco planting kept farmers busy in Norfolk and Oxford. Ninety per cent of the corn crop was sown in Welland. Late apples were in full bloom in the Niagara Peninsula while growers completed spraying of pears, plums and cherries.

Hastings looked for an earlier-than-average haying season with a bumper crop. Northumberland reported a week of 'wonderful growth" in the hundreds of acres planted in tomatoes, corn, potatoes and grain.

Carleton, Dundas and Glengarry reported crops in good condition. Sales of cattle for expert continued active in Frontenac. Pastures showed improvement in Grenville, Lanark and Leeds.

In the north, planting was almost completed. Most districts reported the need for rain to help pactures.

Truce

Truce extending over four weeks in the Holy Land between Arabs and Jews becomes effective Friday. Here lies hope that this proposal will net results of the greatest benefit to the two sides in the warfare which has been going on with destruction of life and property. At least this step forward has been achieved and it will be the prayer of many millions that the result will be a solution of the problems which have set the opposing sides at war. The truce halts the present military action of the two sides and provides the opportunity for study of the issues and the possibilities of making a settlement by agreement satisfactory to both.

Saw Motor's Possibilities

Pioneers in the automotive industry have given the world an immense advance in means of transportation and in speed of life. Their foresightedness has helped to transform so much the conditions of modern life. What they have achieved would have been unthinkable even a generation ago. Progress in the past few years has swept forward at an increasing tempo.

One of the great builders of the early motor age through his connection with the automotive industry has just died, Charles W. Nash, at the age of 84 years. Such names as those of Henry Ford, Sr., W. C. Durant, J. D. Dort, Dodge Brothers and William S. Knudsen are associated with his in this rapid transformation of the means of travel and distribution not only for this time but for all time in the future for progress will not go backward.

These men have elevated the standard of living, so that today without a car people are virtually "lost," at least handicapped and at least miss those many opportunities the possessors of automobiles have for travel in their own country and in the United States and for learning to know and appreciate the beauties of these countries. They have helped to modernize through the very need the cars and trucks have created — that of modern highways built to stand the heaviest traffic and to stand up against the tempo of this age. Millions know their own countries better because of the car's appearance. Roads today are wonders of construction, as for instance, the "clover leaf."

These great industrial leaders have opened up the country in a manner that contrasts with the early development of the country. Of course they came on the scene at a time when the world was ready to take up the motor car. It did not take the world long to recognize that the car had assumed its role.

The leaders in the manufacture of cars, especially the leaders whose names are so familiar because they are borne by cars, will never be forgotten.

Health and Relaxation

It will soon be summer in fact for the week after next brings the official opening of summer and the end of spring. July too is just three weeks away.

Already the urge is felt for the relief that vacation brings. With holidays just ahead everyone is planning something about the annual cessation from the usual labor and the tour or the departure to the lakeside. Planning for holidays is as restful and pleasant as the vacation, doctors say. In Industrial Health Bulletin the Committee on Industrial Medicine of the Canadian Medical Association says it should be so for it takes the mind off immediate concerns and present problems loom less large in the light of these pleasant vacation thoughts.

Everyone knows how easy it is to become tied up in his own problems that one has increasingly the feeling that they are "getting us down." Pestering worries crop up at night to keep us awake. Early in the morning we may be awakened with the same chain of troublesome thoughts churning up our minds. We speak of this state of mind as "mental tension."

If it continues for any length of time the unhappy sufferer becomes tired and finds that sleep no longer rests him. He appears to be a stired in the morning as when he went to bed the night before. The efficiency of his work goes down. He can't meet the day's problems with vigor and worries about not being able to do so. Thus a vicious circle is established.

It seems that people who develop habits of relaxation at regular intervals are more successful than others in preventing themselves becoming involved in these vicious circles of mental tension. By sports or hobbies or reading, indeed in a great variety of ways, they detach themselves for a time from the "daily grind."

There is no better opportunity to get a new slant on things than during the relaxation of a holiday. So plan it for that purpose—for rest and enjoyment. Automatically you will be planning it for health.

In Czechoslovakia

Eduard Benes is no longer President of Czechoslovakia as reports from Prague told several days ago. Yesterday Premier Gottwald was given the post and the premiership went to the deputy premier, Zapotocky.

"Why was it necessary, from a particular viewpoint, for Eduard Benes to be removed from the presidency?" asks the Montreal Herald, and answers, "Because he had helped to shape the new Czechoslovakia that came into existence nearly thirty years ago and the newer, born in 1945.

"Because, in conjunction with the elder Masaryk, he had built democracy into the foundations of Czechoslovakia. Because he was Czechoslovakia's last contact with the Western World — the sister democracies where he was held in almost as high esteem as in his own land.

"No man who had done what Benes had done for his country, said and written the things that Dr. Benes had said and written, could longer keep pace with Moscow. He was an obvious obstacle in the path of the communization of Czechoslovakia.

"And now he has gone, what of Czechoslovakia? Have we heard the last of liberty there — until another emancipation is purchased with blood?"

In typical style of communism Gottwald was the only candidate named to succeed Benes. In fact Gottwald was using all the executive powers of the president since Benes was removed. Benes, the man who refused to sign the communist constitution for Czechoslovakia, was not wanted in the communist-controlled government.

Safety at Sea

Progress in travel is marching on. There was a time when to take a voyage over the ocean was something to think about — that was in the days of the sailing ship when voyages were stretched out for months.

But inventions have come. The steamship has taken the place of the sailing ship. Planes are in the air.

The other day at a meeting in London, England, of the International Conference of Safety of Life at Sea a resolution was made that all passenger ships of every nation should carry at least one motor propelled lifeboat.

June

There are times of the year when man, with his collection of intricate contrivances, competes with his environment and even occasionally seems superior to it; but not in June. Here he is definitely reduced to being a spectator, fortunate if appreciative, fortunate anyhow to be on hand at all.

Nature is probably neither kind nor unkind, but in June it looks kind. At least it looks beautiful. The sum of wisdom is to get the most one can from this. To accomplish it one needs to be accessible to mislaid, forgotten surges of spirit. And there is the chance of new and unimagined ones. These continue possible to all who have not committed emotional suicide by means of indifference or cynicism. — The Printed Word.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

Lately a man asked me what was the best fishing rod to buy. He wanted to take up fly fishing. I assured ham that there was no such thing as a best fishing rod. It was the man, not the rod, who caught the fish.

This may seem a snidey sort of answer to give to a poor chap hell bent for heaven through the sport of angling. But there is a wide-spread notion in the world today that if you buy the best tools, half the job is done. It just isn't so. A clever or skilled man with poor tools is not merely better, he is a hundred times better, than a dub with the best tools on earth. In fishing this can be witnessed any day of the week.

Fishing, however, is the humblest demonstration of it. All over the country, in the next few days, are being held graduations, convocations, in high schools and colleges, at which armies of youth are being invested with diplomas and degrees. But somehow it is not the successful candidates mounting the platforms to whom my heart now turns; but to the inevitable percentage of the boys and girls who aren't there. The ones who failed.

At one of our biggest universities, out of some 4,000 students of engineering, over 600 failed their year. This is a lot of grief for one college. Multiply it by the number of schools and colleges on the continent and there are thousands of kids hurt and humbled right now, at the loveliest season of the year. What can we say to comfort them?

We can inform them, strictly on the q. t., that the best men and women in this world are not necessarily holders of diplomas and degrees. It is the brains, and the character back of the brain, which makes the successful man, regardless of diplomas, regardless of tools, of money, of opportunity, of even luck itself.

Take it easy, son, wherever you are hiding this day while the college bells chime.

The man who gave the world bells had no degree, but only a dream and a hammer.

ILLNESS OR FUNCTION?

I want to thank you for your recent article stating that painful menstruation is really mental. I heartily corroborate that statement as of today. For nine years (I am twenty-one) I had been suffering or at least I thought so.

(Excuse me, please, but I find in my files the article to which you refer, and the title of it was Sickness, Eh? It's Really a Kind of Weakness (Mental). I deplored the wrong mental attitude of too many mothers, teachers and even physicians who follow nineteenth century principles, towards the menstrual function.)

. . . . and for years I had been laboring under the impression that menstruation was the way the body excretes impure blood or something of the sort—I'm sure this notion is common to girls. But today when "the curse" started, I was ready to take a different attitude, thanks to your teaching and the movie "Mom and Dad". Instead of becoming tense and dwelling on the thing I just refused to think about it, went out, had dinner with friends, took a two mile walk, and tonight, instead of being sick in bed as I would ordinarily be I'm feeling wonderful and not sick in the least. I felt I had to write this letter and urge you to tell all your girl readers again and again that menstruation is a function and not an illness, a perfectly normal, healthy function if the girl will learn to regard it in the sensible way.

(Signed, ————)

Thank you, for a million girls whose education has been neglected as was yours.

For girls and/or their mothers I have a pamphlet titled Hygiene for Girls and Health for Women. It is available on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope. Please do not use a clipping and please do not call it "feminine hygiene", for hygiene is the science of health and has no gender.

Another young woman wrote: You said that if there is pain (dysmenorrhea) it is either imagination or bad breathing. As far as "mental attitude", for gosh sakes I am not so weak minded that I don't know whether I feel pain or not."

I offer six bottles of Ol' Doc Brady's Sure Cure — I mean a complete set of the works—24 Little Lessons in the Ways of Health—to any one who can show that I said that.

What I do say is that menstruation is a normal function and the girl should not alter her daily routine because of it. She may continue her regular studies, exercises, work, athletic activities, swimming just as though she were not menstruating. The notion that this function makes a woman "delicate" or more susceptible to fatigue or illness of any kind than she is at any other time is just plain stupid. All this applies to girls who have fair health. Invalids should follow the advice of their own physicians about these things.

Unhappily for girlhood and womanhood in America there is still too much hokum in the instruction of education girls get in regard to this function.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Iodism

How far do you have to go before you get iodism?
(W. C. D.)

Answer—Not much farther than your physician advises. Iodism is the condition produced by too much iodine or iodide. It is a medical question and I doubt that anything of the kind ever happens unless iodine or iodide is taken in medicinal doses. So the question is not within the province of this health service. I do advise taking medicinal doses of iodine or iodide in any circumstance.

Psychology

From many years of reading I have received the impression that you do not subscribe wholeheartedly to the precepts and dictrines of psychiatry or what has lately come to be recognized as psychosomatic medicine. Yet in your booklet Save Your Skin you say, in reference to cancer: "If the physician finds no sign of malignancy, that is, cancerous degeneration or 'growth', the reassurance such a diagnosis gives the patient is in itself a powerful curative factor; just as worry or fear retards or prevents recovery." Are you perhaps getting less cocksure and more liberal minded, Doctor?
(H. J.)

Answer—I hope so. Is that psychology, psychiatry or psychosomatic medicine? Then it is true what they say about the rapid strides medicine is making nowadays. Yeah, I believe in phychology, psychiatry and psychosomatic symptoms and treatment, but, my dear sophomore, must one stop and attach a big red label to such teaching so that all sophomores will know it is Psychological?

U.S. Trade Policy With Russians In Guessing Phase

Washington, June 10 — (AP)— United States policy on trade with Russia settled into a "keep-'em-guessing" phase today under strange circumstances.

To the secrecy over what goods the Soviet Union will be licensed to buy in the United States was added another puzzler: what she actually has been allowed to get since the United States clamped down on export licenses March 1.

Plans for Commerce Secretary Sawyer to tell what American goods Russia has been getting recently, as a rough guide to what she can have in the future, were cancelled abruptly Tuesday.

No reason was given for the cancellation, but it was learned authoritatively that State Secretary Marshall made a personal call on Sawyer shortly before the plans were changed.

Speculation over why the state department might object to disclosure of buying authorizations already given Russia centred on possible fear of its effect on the current battle in Congress over funds to aid Western Europe.

The House of Representatives voted a $1,000,000,000 slash in the global aid program and Marshall has urged the Senate to restore the reduction. Otherwise, he said, the Soviet-opposed European recovery program will be turned into a "mere relief project."

Sawyer told reporters he will release data later — he did not say when — on types and value of goods shipped to Russia, after the shipments have been cleared. He declined to go beyond that except to say that "some" industrial goods have been cleared to Russia since March 1.

Says Strap May Do Good if Applied In Proper Place

Edmonton, June 10 — (CP) — Welfare Superintendent Charles B. Hill believes that the strap "may do good if applied to that part of the anatomy provided for the purpose."

Strappings, distinct from floggings, were an accepted practice in child raising.

The dissertation on discipline was part of a protracted cross-examination of Mr. Hill by E. D. Arnold, counsel for the Calgary Herald, during a hearing Tuesday by the provincially-appointed Royal Commission of three judges inquiring into Alberta's child welfare conditions.

Hearings, held more or less regularly since last November, resumed Tuesday after a 10-day adjournment through illness of the chairman, Chief Justice W.R. Howson, of Alberta.

The commission was set up to investigate allegations of malpractice by Mr. Hill's department — statements in a report published last July by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire after a survey by welfare authority Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa.

Mr. Hill had been asked for his views on corporal punishment. There had been stories published about boys being flogged in Edmonton's south-side detention home.

Talk about children being beaten "was news" to him, Mr. Hill said, but strappings were administered if ordered by court authorities.

Whitehall Notebook:

Parliamentary Secretary To Food Ministry Becomes 'Pin-Up Girl of Midlands'

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 10 — (CP) — Thanks to 25,000 tons of barley, Dr. Edith Summerskill, food ministry parliamentary secretary, may well be the "pin-up girl of the West Midlands."

Good-looking, red-haired Dr. Edith Summerskill, who holds the food ministry barricades against innumerable Commons questions, heard the prptests of Midlands' members of parliament about beer shortages in their area.

Capt. John Baird, Labor member for Wolverhampton East and a dentist, said Midland breweries produced a "tenpenny" beer which now sold for 1s (20 cents) a glass. Some people called it "Strachey" after Food Minister Strachey and others called it "Wallop."

F. G. Bowles, Labor, Nuneaton, said beer shortages and quality has caused "a suppressed feeling of disappointment, if not of anger and fury."

"If the Honorable Lady can do away with 'tenpenny' and keep the pubs open she will be the pin-up girl of the West Midlands," said H. D. Hughes, Labor, Wolverhampton West.

Dr. Summerskill gently chided the members for suggesting the beer-drinkers of the Midlands suffered any more than others in the United Kingdom. After listening to the appeals of the members she felt that as an occasional drinker of "shandy" (a mixture of beer and ginger beer) she was "an amateur in the presence of professionals."

Then came the good news. The Food Ministry proposed to allocate 25,000 additional tons of barley annually for beer-making. This would work out at an increase of 3½ per cent in beer supplies in industrial areas.

"The day has gone when you had the 'tough' publican who was there only to throw the drunks out. Some of our best public houses in these days are conducted by women who rely on their knowledge of handling men and not on their capacity to throw them out," she said.

"As we banish poverty and insecurity our public houses will become places where good fellowship rather than strong drink is the main attraction."

FIJI PLANS EDUCATION

Suva, Fiji — (CP) — Fiji has a 10-year-plan which, it is estimated, will cost $1,844,000. Under the 1945 Colonial Development and Welfare Act, Fiji has been allocated $4,000,000.

Constitution Benes Refused To Sign Now Law

Prague, June 10 — (AP)—The new Czech constitution, which President Eduard Benes refused to sign, became the law of the land Wednesday.

A government announcement to this effect did not say by what executive signature the document was made valid.

The presumption is that communist Premier Klement Gottwald signed it after Benes handed in his resignation Monday. Gottwald is considered the leading candidate to succeed Benes. Parliament will choose the new president Monday.

The new constitution, adopted unanimously by parliament a month ago yesterday, proclaims Czechoslovakia a people's democratic republic in "the great family of Slav nations."

By the constitution, parliament consists of a single house of 300 members. The deputies were chosen at a single-ticket election May 30.

The voting age is fixed at 18, and the minimum age for holding public office at 21. Women have equal rights with men.

Civil Service Raises Entrance Age Limits

Ottawa, June 10 — (CP) — In line with a policy of finding employment for older persons, the Civil Service Commission today announced a relaxation in the entrance age limits for a number of classes in the public service.

Age limit for customs excise clerks and customs excise examiners was raised from 35 to 45 years while immigration inspectors received a five-year concession from 35 to 40. The new limit for immigration guards is 50, an increase of 10 years.

Greatest relaxation was made in the case of customs guards, messengers, elevator operators, watchmen, packers and helpers, and cleaners and helpers, who now may enter up to the age of 50. The previous limit was 35.

There is no change in the customary 35-year limit for clerks, stenographers, typists and office appliance operators in the grades one and two.

MISSION SHIP SAILS

"Has Helped Me," This Woman Says of Syntona

Had Sharp Pain in Back and Hip. Suffered From Nervousness, Stomach Trouble, Couldn't Sleep. Tells Her Experience.

MRS. NELLIE CHURCH

"Yes, I've been using Syntona and I must say it has helped me very much," said Mrs. Nellie Church, 396 Barton Street East, Hamilton, Ontario, when interviewed recently regarding her experience with this medicine. Like so many others, Mrs. Church has found that Syntona is really helpful people suffering from common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, nervousness, rheumatic pain or general, overtired, rundown condition. Here is her experience:

"I was very miserable with stomach disorders, suffering from heartburn, gas, and sour acid risings after my meals. I had become nervous and my sleep was so poor I continually felt fatigued and rundown. In addition I had a very severe pain in my back and hips that made it difficult for me even to do my work.

"I tried a great many things without benefit, but Syntona has really helped me. It cleared away the gas, sourness, and heartburn, so I feel more like eating my meals once more. The pain in my back and hip is improved so much it scarcely bothers me, I sleep much better and am not nervous and tired as I was before. I am very pleased to recommend Syntona."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

WEDDINGS

HARRIS—ROBINSON

Marmora, (Special.) — A wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized in St. John's Anglican Church, Peterborough, on Saturday afternoon, when Florence May Robinson, of that city, became the bride of Norman Aubrey Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, of Marmora. Rev. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson performed the ceremony before a background of iris and branches of spiraea.

Wedding music was played by F. C. Mann, organist of St. John's, and during the signing of the register, Mr. Victor Coleman sang "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin with seed pearls and beaded work forming flowers around the heart-shaped neckline. A full gathered skirt fell into a long graceful train, and her full length veil of fine net was caught to a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of red roses with lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Jack McGowan, was her sister's matron of honor, and Mrs. George Robinson, a sister-in-law, was senior bridesmaid. They wore similarly fashioned dresses of yellow and pale green organza, with matching gloves and shoulder length veils with headdresses of yellow roses and Spring flowers. Miss Jean Knott, a bridesmaid, wore a princess gown of blue bengaline taffeta, with matching lace mittens, and a shoulder length veil and blue flower headdress. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Betty Harris, sister of the groom, wearing a frock of pink taffeta, with matching hat and white gloves.

All the attendants carried Colonial bouquets of many colored sweetpeas, tied with streamers to match their gowns.

Mr. Harry Harris, of Peterborough, was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. George Robinson and Gordon Harris.

For the reception held at the Club Aragon in Peterborough, after the ceremony, Mrs. Robinson received the guests wearing a dress of salmon pink crepe, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Harris, mother of the groom, assisted, wearing a blue crepe frock, with black accessories and a corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris left for a honeymoon in Toronto and Niagara Falls. For travelling the bride chose a dress of pink silk jersey, with a picture hat and lace gloves in matching shade, the whole ensemble topped with a blue shortie coat.

Following their return Mr. and Mrs. Harris will reside at 123 James Street, in Peterborough.

ALMEY—GRIFFITHS

Mixed flowers were used to decorate Bridge Street United Church, for the afternoon wedding, June 5th, of Irene Vera Griffiths, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Griffiths, George St, and Brian Almey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Almey, of Trenton, Ont. Rev. D. C. Amos was the officiating clergyman, and wedding music was played by Mr. Alec Gordon, organist of the church.

Miss May Griffiths was her sister's only attendant, wearing pink chiffon, and carrying a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Ernest Almey, of Trenton, ably performed the duties of groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Ted Earl, and Tommy Whitehead, of Barriefield Camp, Kingston.

Out-of-town guests were from Barriefield Camp, Kingston, and Toronto, Ont.

CLARK—LAUDER

Mauve and white lilacs formed a beautiful setting in Smithfield United Church, for the double ring marriage ceremony, on the afternoon of June 2nd., when Rev. Wm. Sunter united Ellen Maria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lauder, of Smithfield, in marriage with Frederick George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, of Milford, Ont. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. C. Snider, A.T.C.M., and the Smithfield Junior Choir, which preceded the bridal party down the aisle singing "O Father All Creating", and sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in ivory satin, fashioned with a net yoke embroidered with crystal beads, a flared and scalloped skirt with a full length frilled front panel of net, and a full length embroidered veil, which fell gracefully from a pearl and crystal bead headdress. She wore a double strand pearl necklace, a gift of the groom, and carried a shower of red roses, bouvardia, ageratum and hawthorn, tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Clifford McCoy, of Belleville, was the matron of honor, and Miss Ruth Chapman, of Trenton, was bridesmaid. They wore similarly fashioned gowns of corded taffeta in blending shades of aqua blue and blush pink, styled with fitted bodices, and full bustled skirts. They also wore long matching gloves, and carried pink and cream arm bouquets of roses, ageratum and hawthorn with matching roses in their hair.

Mr. Jack Clark, of Milford, was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Clifford McCoy, of Belleville, and Mr. Clarke Weese, of Toronto.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors where white lilacs, pink tulips, lilies-of-the-valley, and sweet peas, with tall pink tapers, decorated the tables. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a suit of lime green, with brown accessories, and a corsage of carnations with lilies-of-the-valley. She was assisted by the groom's mother, in a gown of copenhagen blue and white printed silk, with black accessories and a corsage similar to that worn by Mrs. Lauder.

For travelling to Quebec city, and other Eastern points, the bride chose a suit of poudre blue, with white mohair hat, and white accessories, and a corsage of sweetpeas.

Family Beats High Cost of Living By Using Two-Room Trailer as Home

There is a housewife in the city who has solved the housing problem and seems to be enjoying her solution. Married eighteen years with a boy of ten, Mrs. James Powell has the enthusiasm of a bride with her first "real home."

This ingenious little family bought a two-room trailer and made their way from Vancouver to Toronto travelling through the States as far as Chicago. It took them a month and they thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Besides mother, son and husband, a grandmother of seventy-eight made the journey. Upon arrival in Toronto, the husband joined the staff of the Canadian National Railway as an electrician and from there was transferred to Belleville. That was last December.

Came Here in December

During the winter the family lived in their trailer on a vacant lot in the southern part of the city. From December until May they spent exactly nine dollars for coal and five dollars a month for light. The one expensive item is food which must be bought from day to day because lack of adequate storage facilities, but when everything is averaged out the living expense is not exorbitant, and it is possible to live on as little as $21 a month.

During the war her husband joined the Air Force as a radio technician and during his years of service developed osteomylitis in his leg. After the war he opened a radio appliance store in Kirkland Lake only to find that the intense cold was injurious to his health. The family packed up and travelled out to Vancouver where they were told the climate would be more sympathetic to his condition. They stayed in Vancouver for 18 months, during which time the wet and cold was almost continuous.

Trailer Solves Problem

They were able to find a small house to live in, 35 miles out of Vancouver, but as her husband was employed in the city proper the distance was too great. They moved into one room in Vancouver, which necessitated putting their boy in boarding school. While at school he contracted pneumonia and the constant damp did nothing to improve her husband's health. They were back where they started! What to do! Then came the solution—a trailer.

"It's fun," she stated. "What a relief not to be at the beck and call of landladies or well meaning relatives and while my husband is building a home on MacDonald Avenue I almost hate to think of moving!"

"Even the bad times are not too bad," she recalled. "Before we moved to Belleville my little boy had to have his tonsils removed. There was no room at any of the hospitals and the operation couldn't be delayed. We were staying at a trailer camp in Lakeview, Ont., at the time and one morning at nine o'clock Dr. Fenton from Islington and Dr. Watson from Port Credit removed my little boy's tonsils. The whole thing was over in twenty minutes."

Noise Boils Egg, Drives You Nuts, Say Men Who Know

By SAUL PETT

New York — (AP) — It's no joke. Noise can boil an egg, kill bacteria, seriously affect digestion, raise brain pressure, thicken the ear drums, stiffen the small bones, drive you nuts.

This I am told by various sound experts. This, I believe; you don't have to. Maybe your days are quiet; mine are full of decibels. (A decibel is a unit for measuring sound, which is one-tenth of a bel, which the dictionary says is "a unit for the logarithmis expression of ratios of power and "—but what the heck, maybe you have to catch a train.)

Just the other morning, one of the kids turned on the radio real loud to 85 decibels. On the way to work, I fought through street traffic worth 80 decibels. A nearby riveter almost tore my head off with 95 decibels. The subway express train produced 100 decibels.

Scientists at the Bell Laboratories tried to reassure me. Noise, they said, is not painful for most people until about 120 decibels, Niagara Falls makes only 90 decibels. So does a lion roaring only 18 feet away.

I went over to the National Noise Abatement Council to see what's being done with the decibels. They were both frightening and reassuring.

More than 50 cities, they told me, now are carrying on anti-noise campaigns Memphis, Chicago and New York are among the quietest of their size, which are scarcely audible to the human ear but loud enough for a dog.

The people at the noise abatement council quoted Dr. Edward Podolsky who quoted two other doctors who found that:

"Shrill sounds, projected into a liquid medium coagulated proteins, broke down ethyl acetate to produce acetic acid, cracked vegetable oils with the generation of acetylene gas, and, to a slight extent, even changed starch into sugar.

"They demonstrated in a spectacular way that an egg could be soft boiled in a few minutes when subjected to the effects of an intense sound . . . It was found that sounds in the range of the supersonic region actually killed bacteria."

"Is it any wonder then," asks Dr. Podolsky, "that some people could be driven to insanity, to desperation, murder, or to suicide, by incessant noise?"

At the council, they told me that a few years ago, in Paris, there was an apartment house watchman by the name of Lucien Delforge. Lucien was happy until the neighbor below bought a radio and turned it on full blast from dawn to dusk. Then the neighbor on the left bought one. Soon people all around Lucien had radios blaring.

He was desperate. He bought the most powerful radio he could find and opened all the windows. It did no good. Lucien got madder and started shooting. He killed the building caretaker—the only man around who didn't have a radio.

It's no joke.

Helpful Pointers on Canning

Whenever home-makers meet during the summer months the conversation is sure to get around to food preservation with exchange of ideas and often heated arguments on canning, freezing and jam making. Such discussion brings up views on the advantages of one method over another . . . whether to use tin cans or glass sealers for canning and whether to try the newer method of freezing.

In many communities there are excellent facilities for freezing in locker plants. Some people have installed units in their own homes. This modern method is fast gaining popularity. It does keep freshness and flavor of most fruits and vegetables as no other method can.

Canning is, however, still the most common method of keeping perishable summer fruits and vegetables for winter use.

One way to keep up-to-date and insure good products is to have at hand the latest edition of bulletins issued by the home economists, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Then you will be ready when the first strawberries are in. The bulletins are based on the experimental work done in Canada's Kitchen. These methods smooth the way to sure and satisfactory results.

The two publications are "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" and "Freezing Fruits and Vegetables." These may be obtained from the Division of Extension and Publicity, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Here are some of the helpful pointers contained in the canning bulletin.

Quantity of Syrup to Make: Estimate the amount of syrup required for fruit to be canned. Make syrup before preparing fruit by adding water to sugar and bringing to boil. Skim syrup if necessary and keep hot.

When canning fruits by the Cold Pack method, for each sealer allow:

¾ to 1 cup syrup for such fruits as blueberries.

1 to 1½ cups syrup for such fruits as raspberries, strawberries, gooseberries, cherries and peaches.

1½ to 2 cups syrup for such fruits as apricots, plums, pears, and rhubarb.

When canning fruit by the Hot Pack method, use the minimum amounts of syrup suggested for Cold Pack.

Miss H. McGeary Addresses W.M.S. On V.O.N. Activities

Mrs. A. H. Fisher, secretary of Community Friendship in the afternoon W.M.S. Auxiliary of Tabernacle United Church, introduced Miss H. McGeary, superintendent of V.O.N. in Belleville, at a meeting of the Tabernacle ladies in the church parlor, Tuesday afternoon. Miss McGeary spoke on the work of the order ,saying in part:

"In these days of "specializing" some groups in our community are out of touch with others, although all are interested in many related projects." Speaking of health, she said, "Health is threefold, mental, spiritual and physical, each reflecting on the other two. Health is like a three-fold cord, if one strand is cut the whole is weakened. The Victorian Order gives special bedside nursing care to all who are in need, regardless of race, color or creed, so our nurses are really 'missionaries of health'. Women of church missionary societies understand that, since this is also a branch of your medical missionary work, and is manned by your representatives in mission hospitals.

Mnetal Health Important

"Nurses emphasize a 'preventative' way of health, which has developed through the past twenty years. The next twenty years will be dedicated to mental health, for one and one half percent of Canada's population suffers from psychosis, and from 65 per cent to 95 per cent of all mental illnesses are considered preventable. For, in many cases, the foundation has been laid during pre-school age years, and is the effect of early childhood experiences and environment. Dr. Billings, of Kingston, now holds a mental health clinic each week at Belleville General Hospital.

Free Services

"School Health Service", continued the speaker, "is also provided by the local V.O.N. at St. Michael's Academy and at Cannifton School, with the authorized school nurse supplying this service in Belleville Public Schools. A toxoid clinic with the Medical Officer of Health, gives monthly immunization against diphtheria and whooping cough ,and a dental clinic, the only one of its kind in Canada, is conducted by Dr. Jack Marshall in conjunction with the former, for infants and children of pre-school age. There is also a weekly baby conference when the nurses meet the mothers, weigh the babies and advise as to increased formulas, and child development.

Miss McGeary referred to cooperation with the Children's Aid and the acceptable assistance received from the recently inaugurated Homemaker Service in Belleville, the cost of both these services being flexible and arranged according to the family's financial circumstances. "But", she stressed, "the nurses have to be invited into the homes, although they are very happy to go where ever they are needd and can be of assistance".

Appreciation Expressed

Mrs. A. D. Archibald, president of the Tabernacle Auxiliary who presided during the meeting, and conducted opening exercises and the business period, when secretarial reports from different departments were received, expressed the grateful appreciation of the listeners to Miss McGeary, for a very interesting and informative address.

Mrs. Charles Hogle appealed for warm, used clothing to be packed for shipment to File Hills Indian School, in Saskatchewan.

A comprehensive report of the W.M.S. Presbyterial held in Tabernacle Church during the month of April, was read by Mrs. F. B. Jarrell. An appropriate duet, sung by Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Rowlands, with Mrs. Hogle as accompanist, was much appreciated. Mrs. W. J. Harrison conducted a Worship period, the theme being "A Model Mission—The Children in Need—A Model Message—Redeem the Time, for the healing of the nations".

Mrs. Archibald dismissed the meeting.

Modern Women Measure More Figures Show

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—British women—like their United States cousins—are growing taller and more curvaceous.

Spokesmen for several of London's leading mannequin houses, commenting on Hollywood reports of a recent census by a film studio there, said: "We, too, are constantly being asked for larger models than those demanded before the war."

Rosemary Chance, Lucie Clayton and the Mayfair Academy all find British women are bigger-busted and "hippier" than they have been for years. But—despite Britain's starchy rations—they are smaller-waisted, further accentuating the growing hipline.

Two decades ago the average female figure was much straighter, usually having 35 or 36-inch bust and hip measurements and a waist of 27 or 28 inches. Today the waist has shrunk about two inches; and hips are at least two inches larger than busts.

Jaeger spokesmen say today's average stock sizes are 14 (bust 36, waist 27 1-2 ,hip 39) and 16 37 1-2, 29, 29, 41) with occasional demands for size 12 (34 1-2, 26, 38). Canadians buyers also generally ask for 14 and 16.

Berlie Corsets say the average size is bust 34, waist 25, hip 38. They agree the 1948 woman is bigger-busted, smaller-waisted and bigger-hipped than her mother in the 1920's with the demand for the "straight" Berlie falling and the "hipped" model rising.

Export experience, says Berlie, shows most Canadian women are broader-shouldered and straighter-waisted than British women. Often they are bigger-boned, though not necessarily heavier.

British women's feet are also getting bigger. A Lotus' and Delta shoe company spokesman said: "Women's feet are wider now than they have been for years, due to the amount of walking done. There is no noticeable increase in length, however.

"The largest, narrowest shoes for export go to Canada and the United States".

British film stars are following the hippy trend, as this table of bust, waist and hip measurements shows. The first two are teen-agers.

On arrival in Toronto a banquet was served and at eight o'clock the mysteries of the Rebekah Degree were conferred on two candidates by the staff.

A social hour was then enjoyed before departing for home and all reported a very enjoyable evening spent in Toronto.

ANCIENT TATTOOING

In ancient Rome muscular men traced the veins in their arms with blue paint.

Skirts and Dresses Go Longer And Longer in Montreal Show

Femininity is here to stay — for next fall and winter at any rate and, of course, this means the "new look" is with us yet. For those who find this depressing news, take heart and realize there's a psychology behind this fashion decree. Those women who have complained bitterly about the selfishness of men who have ignored their feminine frailties; those girls who have heretofore lugged everything from a typewriter to a desk without the assistance of any male should be thankful that femininity is coming back! Hide those muscles built up during the short skirt era when women strode shoulder to shoulder with men equal in everything that stood for hard work and for nothing else! Relax and let the men work for you!

Longer and Longer

Those girls who have been cutting off the hems off their long dresses had better get busy and sew them back on—the die has been cast! Latest news from the Normandie Roof Fashion Show at the Mount Royal shows long skirts for daytime wear and even longer for the cocktail hour. The ballerinea skirt and fussy slip are not quite so popular. The full gored skirt and pencil skirt take the lead. Matching shoes and stockings are "new" and include such colors as mauve, green, grey and blue. Little jackets, nipped in waists and heavy beading are popular. Black is still good, but pastels-shades for summer are best in rural areas.

Fur coats this fall are featuring two types—twelve inches off the ground will be the average type for about 75 per cent of the women and the usual three quarter length and a new seven-eighth length which is most flattering. While the United States feature nine inches off the ground or even ankle length—Canadian women will not be so extreme. Twelve inches off the ground is a good business length and fourteen inches, semi-dress.

Suitable For Business

There is a certain amount of debate among the women about the longer clothes. Some business girls feel that they are not practical. However, perhaps the real trouble is that they are not "fashion-wise." Business wear should never be fussy. A good suit is always acceptable and the longer length in a skirt cannot noticeably hamper any work. The short, stout girl or the tall thin girl should watch her buying at all times. There are clothes to suit all types and a careful discussion with a competent sales person will aid to sensible buying.

BICYCLE EXPORTS SOARING

Birmingham, England — (CP) —The United Kingdom exported 157,343 cycles during March to set a record. During the first quarter, 17,452 motorcycles went abroad compared with 12,534 last year and 4,943 before the war.

Ruthless Minority May Gain Power Salisbury Warns

London, June 10—(Reuters)—Fear that a "ruthless doctrinaire minority" might gain power in Britain was expressed by the Marquess of Salisbury, opposition leader in the House of Lords, as a reason why he moved today the rejection of the government's bill to curb the lords' powers.

He maintained that the bill, reducing the period in which the lords can delay a Commons bill from two years to one, would go far to establish single-chamber government and deprive the country of a vital constitutional safeguard of its liberties.

Lord Salisbury said that there was a section in the labor party which regarded the electorate as a ladder on which to climb to power.

Such people believed not in the rule of democracy but in the rule of particular political clique to which they belonged.

"Imagine! even six-week-olds can digest Libby's without upsets"

Yes, clinical tests prove that even a six-week-old baby can digest Libby's Baby Foods easily, without upsets.

The reason—because in preparing foods for your baby's inexperienced little stomach, Libby's take an important extra step. After straining, Libby's Baby Foods are Homogenized—rough fibres are pulverized, tough food cells are exploded open, the nourishment is released for immediate digestion. Libby's Baby Foods are actually ten times finer in texture than foods which are only strained.

Think what this means at the critical time when you start feeding fruits and vegetables! What a continued safeguard it is! No other baby food offers the added advantages of homogenization.

Doctors' Incomes in Canada Show 60 P.C. Increase in Past 7 Years

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—Incomes of Canadian doctors leaped 60 per cent from 1939 to 1945, it was disclosed today.

The figures came from the Bureau of Statistics, which released results of a survey showing the average Canadian doctor made $3,900 in 1939 and $6,200 in 1945. In the latter year 17 per cent of the medicos had incomes of more than $10,000 compared with only 4.2 per cent six years earlier.

The survey, covering the years 1939, 1944, 1945 and 1946 showed the average net income fell by $400 to an estimated $5,800 in 1946 but this was explained by the large number of new doctors entering practice from the armed forces or medical schools in that year.

Net income of established doctors continued to rise from 1945 to 1946, the report said.

Highest in B.C.

A breakdown of the income figures showed the highest average net incomes were earned in British Columbia. Doctors in that province average d$6,700 in 1946, compared with $6,400 in the priaries, $5,800 in Ontario, $5,600 in the Maritimes and $4,800 in Quebec.

Doctors with an independent practice did best in medium-sized cities. In 1945 the average net income of men practicing in cities with a population between 25,000 to 100,000 was $8,500, compared with $5,900 for independent practitioners in cities over 500,000 and $8,100 for those in cities from 5,000 to 25,000. Doctors who combined in independent practice with salaried work earned most in cities of from 100,000 to 500,000 population.

Incomes Vary

Incomes in the medical profession vary with the degree of specialization. In 1946 the average net income of general practitioners was $4,500, while doctors with a party specialized practice earned $7,000 and doctors with a full yspecialized practice earned $9,700.

Among full specialists, the incomes of obstetricians, gynaecologists and surgeons were well ahead of doctors with other specialties. Obstetricians and gynaecologists averaged $13,500 in 1946, surgeons $12,300, specialists in eye, ear, nose and throat, $9,100, pediatricians and specialists in internal medicine $8,400 and specialists in other branches of medicine $7,400.

In all four years covered by the survey, doctors from 45 to 49 years of age had higher net incomes than any other age group. A similar breakdown shows that, on the average, doctors with 20 to 24 years of practice were at the height of their earning power.

Post-graduate training is shown to have a marked effect on subsequent income. In 1946 doctors with no post-graduate training had an average net income of $4,000, doctors with one year of post-graduate training $4,800, two years $6,200, three to five years $7,500 and six or more years $7,500 and six or more years $8,300.

For full-time salaried doctors, the survey shows that salaries in medical administration are well ahead of other types of salaried employment. For instance, while doctors in medical administration were paid an average salary of $5,900 in 1946, doctors in public health service aggregated $4,400 and doctors in hospital service averaged $4,300.

Cease-Fire Orders Go Out to Arab, Jewish Forces

By MAX BOYD

Cairo, June 10 (AP)—Cease-fire orders are going out today to Arab and Jewish troops in the field.

Premier Tewfik Abu Alhuda announced in Amman, Trans-Jordan, Wednesday night that Trans-Jordan forces in Palestine already have been ordered to cease fire at the appointed deadline—2 a.m. EDT Friday.

Foreign correspondents accredited to the Arab Legion were requested to sign a pledge not to enter Jewish-occupied territory during the four-week truce.

In Tel Aviv, Israel's Foreign Minister, Moshe Shertok, said in announcing his government's acceptance of the United Nations-engineered truce, that Israel was ready to issue a cease-fire order to Jewish troops.

Count Folk Bernadotte of Sweden, U. N. mediator, told both the Arabs and Jews Wednesday night he hoped they would notify every commander on the Palestine battlefield of its date and hour in order to avoid misunderstandings.

Count Bernadotte said he would call a peace conference as soon as possible on the neutral Mediterranean Island of Rhodes.

Assailed Acceptance

Irgun Zvai Leumi, former Jewish Terrorist organization, assailed the Israeli government's acceptance of the truce and charged the government with a grave blunder in nut demandnig withdrawal of Arab invaders from Palestine soil. It also criticized acceptance of immigration restrictions and claimed the truce under such conditions, would mean deterioration of Israeli's jpolitical and military status.

The U.N. Secretary-General, Trygve Lie, said at Lake Success that Count Bernadotte was asking six coastal vessels and 63 military officers to supervise compliance with the cease-fire terms.

The mediator said the U.N. Consular Truce Commission, composed of representatives of the United States, France and Belgium, will supervise immigration and other controls during the truce, through 63 military observers. These officers will be under supervision of a group of Swedish colonels who arrived in Cairo Wednesday to be his aides.

Watch Main Roads

During the truce, Count Bernadotte said, military observers will be stationed at all Palestine ports and airfields and all main roads will be watched. If immigrant men of military age arrive in small numbers, they will be placed in detention camps.

Although agreeing to the cease-fire unconditionally, Sherto was understood to have tol Count Bernadotte he regarde some of the mediator's interpre tations as departures from th Security Council resolution.

Shertok said he would ask certain technical modifications relating to immigration, war materials and necessary supplies fo Jerusalem.

Announcement of the truc raised hopes that, after six at tempts, the U.N. might finall succeed in bringing at least temporary peace to the Hol Land, torn by strife for two yea and by open war since May 15.

And despite announcements the truce agreement, scattere fighting continued Wednesda night. Egyptian, Iraqi and Syria communiques reported Arab at tacks by land, sea and air. Jewish communique from Te Aviv reported land and air ac tions at various points. In Jerus alem the Arabs said their arti lery shelled the Jewish agenc building, nerve centre of Pale stine Jewry, and scored 15 direc hits.

Increased Tidal Power Of Pacific Ocean Intensifies Critical Flood Situation

Vancouver, June 10 (CP)—The relentless battering of weakened water-logged levees along British Columbia's mighty waterways continued today as increased tidal power of the Pacific Ocean intensified the critical flood situation.

Dykes, guarding 20,000 acres of fertile Lulu Island farmland, withstood the assault of a 14.2-foot spring tide which late Wednesday night passed Sand Head Point at the mouth of the Fraser, and Queensborough.

With a 14.4-foot tide, highest of the year, expected tonight, flood officials said only a "miracle" would hold back the raging waters of "Old Muddy."

The Canadian Pacific Railway's Kettle Valley line from Calgary to Hope, B.C. was broken by a bridge washout at Balfour, 330 miles east of here. Nearly 15 miles of track between Balfour and Procter, on the south end of the lake's west arm, were torn up.

A flood-formed lake, 15 miles long and 2 1-2 miles wide, covered the Kootenay Valley below Creston. With the river level at 23 feet above normal and now out of control, workers battled to save the unflooded portion of land. Patrol crews were posted on the last remaining dyke to watch for danger spots, particularly on the southwest tip which was bearing the brunt of wind-whipped waves.

A break-through Wednesday of a secondary dyke at Trail sent the Columbia River almost up to sidewalk level on Bay Avenue, the main thoroughfare.

Lobbies Flooded

Flood waters covered the basement and lobby of a downtown theatre and rose to five feet in the Crown Point hotel.

All beer parlors, licenced clubs, liquor stores and pool rooms were closed by order of S. P. Coates, flood relief director in an effort to increase the numbers of volunteering for dyke work.

Voluntary work crews on eight-hour shifts were assisted by 111 active army troops, artillerymen and paratroopers from Manitoba. The R.C.A.F. flew in a 25-bed Red Cross emergency hospital but no casualties have yet been reported.

The Columbia River rose three inches at Trail and Dominion government engineers expected a further rise of three feet before the crest is reached.

The cubic foot per second flow of the Columbia was given as 379,00, compared with Tuesday's flow of 366,000.

Main danger point on the upper Columbia was Revelstoke, 250 miles northeast of Vancouver, where the river level rose at the rate of a foot per day. Crack-up of Revelstoke's flood defence would unleash a devastating torrent downstream toward Trail.

Record June temperatures continued to melt snow and hasten the run-off from B.C. mountain ranges. The temperature rose to 80 degrees at Vancouver airport Wednesday, highest so far this year. Hope registered the highest reading in the province with 91 degrees.

Loses Suit to Obtain $3,600 from Estate

Toronto, June 10 — (CP) — Albert Patrick Harris, a mail carrier, Wednesday lost out in his efforts to obtain $3,600 from the estate of Abraham Torrance, suburban Etobicoke township farmer. Harris claimed he had befriended Torrance and that Torrance had promised to give him his farm. Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow ruled that evidence presented by Harris was "vague and uncertain" and that the 50 cents a week Harris said Torrance gave him for doing odd chores was intended as payment for Harris' services.

Paris, June 10 — (Reuters) — Four policemen and several demonstrators were injured when strikers attending a Communist meeting clashed with police and Republican guards at Clermont - Ferrand, central France, last night. Workers are on strike for higher wages in several of the town's factories.

Spent 27 Months In Russ Work Camp, Marries

Chicago, June 10 — (AP)—Mildred Schuller, 23-year-old American-born woman who said she spent 27 months in a Russian work camp, took out a licence Wednesday to marry John Krestel, 23, of Pelee Island, Canada's most southerly point. They met in Romania.

Miss Schuller of Gary, Ind., said through an interpreter that she was taken to Romania by her parents when she was two years old. Her father returned to the United States shortly thereafter, but she and her mother remained abroad.

At the end of the war, she said, the Russians picked up Romanian citizens and shipped them to Russia where they were employed without pay in foundries and steel mills. She lost weight at the hard work and was shipped to the Russian zone in Germany.

Her American citizenship proven by a birth certificate, Miss Schuller came to the United States. Her mother remained abroad.

SONG OF LOVE

Because it treats great music with the dignity and respect to which it is entitled, and because it has chosen to regard its historical characters as flesh and blood people instead of mere romantic puppets dangling on a tinsel string, I can recommend Song of Love to you as one of the finest films of its type ever to be produced. My mind has to go back to a Schubert picture with the late Richard Tauber (It was called Thine Is My Heart, I believe) to find a parallel for the eloquence and the artistry of this movie about Robert and Clara Schumann and Johannes Brahms. It is a pertinent rebuke to the way Strauss tunes are pulled about in The Great Waltz.

Glowing Musical Score

The movie sound track has never been provided with a more glowing musical score and extended excerpts from works by Schumann, Brahms and Franz Liszt are heard throughout the film and the wonder of the whole thing is that they complement, rather than drown out, the story which it has to tell. Arthur Rubinstein's piano playing has been dubbed in expertly and there is a large symphony orchestra conducted by William Steinberg. Katharine Hepburn throws her irritating mannerisms out of the window and concentrates on giving an incandescent performance as Clara Schumann and Paul Henreid plays Schumann with such delicate restraint, and such understanding that I think he should have been considered for an Academy Award. As Brahms, Robert Walker is surprisingly good.

Katharine Hepburn

Recalls It With Affection

This review is written from a distance of months. I saw it during a crowded schedule in Hollywood in October, but I can still sit down and recall it with affection ..... proof enough of its worth and its validity.

The story of Song of Love examines the subtleties and the quiet humor of family relationships. Over and above the public careers of the Schumanns and Brahms, there was the story of the people themselves. The film admits, at the very beginning, that it has not stuck to all facts, and has shuffled time about. The important thing, however, is that it has caught the substance if not the sum of the case.

An Adult Approach

The whole approach to the film is an adult one. It seeks not a flash, but a glow in its moods and it holds to a quiet, but very moving statement of its story. You see Clara Wieck marry Robert Schumann after a stormy courtship, marred by the ugly conduct of Clara's father. Deserting a brilliant pianistic career, she devotes herself to looking after her husband and caring for her numerous offspring. Into the home comes the young Brahms, to be accepted as a paying guest. The triangle situation which develops is treated with vast understanding and poignance.

There are many scenes which will stand out in your mind. The way in which the mental twilight closes in about Schumann is masterfully handled, ugly discords moving into the serene flow of music.

An Eloquent Rebuke

The scene in which Clara rebukes the flamboyant treatment of Liszt's transcription of Schumann's Dedication is another memorable piece of filmcraft. Clara sits down at the piano and plays the piece tenderly and eloquently, as it should be played, after Liszt has performed it as a vulgar showpiece. The way in which Clara finally realizes that Schumann's mind has gone beyond recovery is also marvelously conveyed.

I haven't mentioned, in detail, the performances of Miss Hepburn, Henreid and Walker, since they merge into the general excellence of the film. None of them, however, has ever done better work in the past. Henry Daniell also deserves a paragraph of praise for his brilliant performance of Liszt.

Paul Henreid

Selections Heard

You might be interested in knowing some of the selections that are heard, either in extended excerpt, or briefly. Dedication is used as a theme throughout the movie, and of course the popular Traumerei, in addition to Carnival, the Piano Concerto in A Minor, the Faust Opera and the piano quintet. Some of the Brahms Hungarian dances are also heard, the Lullaby, the Rhapsody in G minor, the second movement of the First Symphony and the Waltz in E Flat Major.

One of the only places Song of Love veers off into foolishness is where Clara Schumann rushes through a performance of Schumann's Carnaval on the stage so that she can run to her dressing room and attend to the wants of one of her babies. Even here, however, this improbable situation is handled delicately and beautifully.

Consecon Decoration Day At Christ Church Cemetery, Hillier

Consecon.—On Sunday, June 6th, the annual decoration day was held at Christ Church Cemetery, Hillier, with a large crowd in attendance. The century-old burial ground, where many of the early pioneers of Hillier township and surrounding district are resting, looked very beautiful and the profusion of beautiful flowers, with which loving friends and relatives decorated the plots, made a beautiful setting for the lovely new Anglican Church, recently erected, and dedicated last Autumn.

After the decoration of the graves, the memorial service, (the first to be held in the new church) was conducted by Rev. C. E. Heaven. He gave a fine message of hope and inspiration to the many who were privileged to attend. Mr. Fred Morton, at the organ, rendered suitable memorial hymns.

The little church was beautifully decorated with June flowers, on the altar and sanctuary. Friends from Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Wellington and Consecon were in attendance.

Zion Hill Auxiliary "At Home" to Several Visiting Societies

The W.M.S. Auxiliary of Zion Hill United Church, were "at home" Wednesday afternoon to a large gathering of ladies, representative of several other Auxiliaries.

A very fine program was presented, with the devotional period being led by members of the Foxboro Society. Mrs. Cranston, president of the Zion Auxiliary, presided, and welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Ralph Sills, Presbyterial vice president for Belleville Section, introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. F. R. Harback, who chose as her subject, "The Challenge of Western Mission Fields", and spoke of the need for Christian missions in the Canada of today. Much of Mrs. Harback's address was based on her personal experiences while on a Canadian mission field in Western Canada.

Mrs. W. B. May, Presbyterial secretary for Mission Bands, made a strong appeal for more co-operation from auxiliary members with the leaders of Bands, and Mrs. S. Homan, Presbyterial corresponding secretary, spoke briefly on the work of her department.

A solo "Bless This House", contributed by Miss Jean Sills, with Miss Ruth Brintnell as accompanist, added much to the entertainment of the afternoon. At the close of the program the Zion Hill ladies served delicious afternoon tea, and appreciation was voiced for their gracious hospitality.

Brighteners

Philadelphia —(AP)— There's a room surplus in Philadelphia for the June 21 Republican National Convention.

"It's embarrassing," says city officials.

"It's unexpected," says Republican Housing Committee workers.

In February, a room shortage loomed. Five thousand promised hotel rooms would barely accommodate the 2,188 delegates, plus members of the press, radio and television, and Republican officials. Then Mayor Bernard Samuel ordered the setting up of an auxiliary housing committee which went out and obtained some 10,000 rooms.

"We have nearly 5,000 rooms, mostly in private homes, with no takers," C. P. McGlinn, committee chairman, said.

It is believed that scarcity of tickets to the convention is keeping many potential visitors from coming.

OFFICE NURSE

BY. ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

Janice's words and smile were so warm and sincere that they almost convinced the other girl.

"Oh, thank you, Janice," she said, "so very much! I'll try to remember what you said, if you'll remember what I did. But I know I mustn't stay any longer, or say anything more."

She was right, as just then the nurse popped her head through the doorway again to say that the visitor had stayed long enough. "We must not tire our patient."

The next afternoon another visitor was announced.

"No," Janice said, "I don't want qto see Dr. Holbrook. Please say that I—"

"But it isn't Dr. Holbrook," the nurse corrected. "It's Mrs. Holbrook. Of course, if you—"

"I'll see Mrs. Holbrook," Janice said. She was curious to see this visitor and to find out why Mrs. Holbrook was calling instead of her husband.

Elissa Holbrook was much more beautiful than the picture on the doctor's desk. She was, in fact, about the most beautiful woman Janice had ever seen; very blonde and aristocratic and exquisitely groomed.

Apparently, Mrs. Holbrook was similarly impressed with Janice. The first thing she said was, "You're lovely. I expected you to be pretty, but Eric did not tell me you were so very lovely."

Janice did not believe that she looked lovely, but it was nice of Mrs. Holbrook to say so.

"I brought you a little something." Her visitor laid a square white box by Janice's side, drawing off her white kid gloves as she sat down. "I'm glad I didn't bring flowers," she added, looking around and smiling faintly and understandingly.

"Yes, I do have enough flowers," Janice admitted; then, having opened the box, she pushed aside the tissue. "Oh, this is gorgeous, simply gorgeous!" It was a dainty bed jacket of white satin trimmed with creamy lace and a blue bow.

"I expect you're wondering why I came," Mrs. Holbrook said.

Janice was wondering, but she said that she was glad Mrs. Holbrook had come, no matter what her reason.

"I had about decided," Elissa Holbrook said, "when I heard about you, how brave you were and all, that perhaps I ought to change my mind and give Eric a divorce. Now that Ive seen you, Janice, I am sure of it."

"But now that I've seen you," Janice said, "I don't want you to do that."

"You mean you don't want Eric?" Elissa's violet eyes grew larger.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Holbrook—for everything," Janice said quietly. "I don't know why, but I don't even want to see Eric again. I'm terribly sorry, too, if I've caused you any unhappiness."

"You haven't," the doctor's wife smiled at her — not her usual amused smile but one that must have come from deep within her. "You've really done me a great favor."

Janice supposed she was only being kind. For Mrs. Holbrook was obviously kind as well as beautiful. What a fool her husband was not to appreciate her.

"Now," Elissa's smile broadened, "I can really make a success of our marriage. You see, my dear, I guess I didn't appreciate having a good husband. I shall stay at home, instead of always running off somewhere or other. I also thought I might adopt some French war orphans."

"Oh, that would be marvelous!"

"I think it will be," Elissa said. "I think Eric will get to like it, too—having children in the house, growing old gracefully. I know he was willing to make any sacrifice for you, but since I know him better than he knows himself, I honestly believe that he will be just as satisfied, eventually, not to have had to make any."

"I'm sure you are right," Janice agreed. She knew that Mrs. Holbrook was telling her, quite frankly, that her husband would soon recover from his love. Eric would find that he could live without Janice. And this did not hurt Janice, since she had realized—just in saying so—that she was no longer in love, either.

• • •

Mrs. Holbrook said that she must be going. She thanked Janice again. She laughed, a gay, excited laugh, her beautiful face even more beautiful now that it looked so animated.

"I really mean it, my dear — thank you for everything. I hope you get well soon and have a nice vacation, and I hope you, too, will find happiness."

That same day, after supper, the nurse said there was someone else to see her.

Janice thought she knew who it would be; someone she wanted to see, yet did not want to see.

She told the nurse to ask the visitor to wait a few minutes. She said she would like to put on her new bed jacket. She also would like a mirror and her lipstick.

"That's the ticket!" the nurse exclaimed. "We are getting better. Wanting to pretty up a bit. That's always a good sign."

The jacket was every bit as gorgeous on as off; the blue bow was really quite fetching. Janice was pale, but with a becoming, delicately tinged paleness, and her hair, tied back like a little girl's was a soft dark cloud against the pillows.

She was confident that she looked all right, even for this visitor.

Janice's new visitor stopped short at sight of her, standing still to stare, without saying anything.

"Aren't you even going to say hello?" Janice asked. Her heart was thudding so loudly beneath the lovely bed jacket that she was sure the sound of it filled the quiet room.

"H-hello," Ben said. His voice sounded queer, as though it had a difficult time getting through his windpipe.

"Hello, yourself," Janice returned.

"Yo—you look swell," he said, still standing and staring.

"Thank you." Janice smiled on him. "Won't you come in and sit down?"

He came in and sat down, rather stiffly, on a chair.

She had never known Ben to be tongue-tied before. Probably it was because most men were uneasy in a room where someone was ill.

"Aren't my flowers lovely?" Janice tried to put him at ease. "Thank you so much, Ben, for the ones you sent." She did not know which ones were his, but she knew he had sent some of them.

He seemed to be looking at the largest bouquet, a white vase filled with crimson roses with stems that must have been three feet long.

But Ben had not sent those. They had come at suppertime, between Janice's afternoon visitor and her present one. There had been a card with them. It had read:

> I am sorry that you do not want to see me but I do not blame you, my sweet. I shall always feel for you what these red roses signify. Be happy, Janiee. Ever yours, Eric.

The roses would fade and die, and Eric would forget that he had loved her, Janice knew. But while they lasted, they were very beautiful.

• • •

"Are you — really okay?" Ben asked, still through that clogged windpipe.

"I'm fine," Janice said. "Just fine." Saying it, she found that she was. She was happy, not sad.

"If you weren't," Ben said, "I'd never have forgiven myself. I told you that that day when you wanted to go with me to find Edna Mae. I was afraid that fellow McRae would make trouble."

"I guess he blamed me because Eileen left him and he hadn't been able to find out where she had gone," Janice said. "And, of course, he thought I had practically kidnapped his little girl."

"He might have killed you!" Ben growled. "And your father tells me you aren't going to let them prosecute him."

"Why should I? The poor man is sick; he needs treatment, not punishment, and I'm going to see that someone helps him."

Ben just grunted at this. "I suppose," he said, "your doctor will do it for you."

"You mean Dr. Richards?" Janice asked. Her eyes held a shade of mischief.

"You know who I mean." Ben looked glum. "I suppose," he added, "he's been here every day."

"Dr. Richards?"

"No, Dr. Holbrook."

"I haven't seen Dr. Holbrook," Janice said. "Mrs. Holbrook was here."

"Mrs. Holbrook! What did she want?"

"She wanted to give me her husband."

"Give you—That settles everything then."

"Not quite," Janice said, the mischief in her eyes deepening. "You see, I found I didn't want him. I found I didn't even want to see him again."

"You—did you tell her that?" Ben's blue eyes were incredulous.

• • •

"Yes, I told Mrs. Holbrook she could keep him," Janice was enjoying Ben's disbelief, although she knew that soon she must make him believe her. "I'm going to Mexico," she said.

"Your mother told me." Ben was beginning to sound more like himself. There was a new look coming slowly into his candid blue eyes. "You don't suppose," he said, "after you have a little while alone and get to feeling better, that I could fly down there too, do you?"

"There's no reason that I know of why you can't," Janice was saying. But her eyes were saying much more. They were telling him that what he thought might be so, really was. They were saying, I love you and I am in love with you, since now I know they are one and the same. Or, at least, that she knew the difference was different from what she had thought it was.

"Janice!" That was all Ben could say.

But it was not all he could do.

When the nurse popped her head through the doorway to say that the visitor had stayed long enough, she popped it out again immediately.

She shut the door again, too.

The patient was not tired; she was well. And love, so the nurse decided, certainly was something! She hoped that those two would make the Cinderella story come true, that they would live happily ever after. And somehow, she felt sure that they would.

Subject of speculation ever since the automobile industry returned to peacetime passenger car production, a radically new Ford will appear in dealer showrooms in major Canadian cities later this month.

Specifically designed to compete in the low price field, the 1949 Ford differs as sharply in its structural and operational features, and represents as great an advancement, appearance and comfortwise, over previous corresponding models as did the larger cars introduced by Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, a few weeks ago.

The 1949 Fords will be introduced in two series. The Custom series includes the Tudor Sedan, shown here, a Fordor Sedan and a Club Coupe. The DeLuxe series includes Tudor and Fordor Sedan, Club Coupe and a Business Coupe.

New Model Ford Displayed in N.Y.

New York, June 10 — (AP)— The new model Ford was unveiled yesterday in a private preview, and you would never know that she is the great grand-daughter of old tin Lizzie.

The car is lighter, lower, longer and more expensive than old models. Interior and exterior color is imaginative, but there is a marked reduction in the use of flashy chrome finishing inside and out that characterized so many post-war automobile models.

What strikes the eye immediately is the styling. It's described as "functional," with a low silhouette which is unbroken from the blunt nose to the fenderless rear. A balance was achieved by moving the body forward five inches to cradle it between the wheels.

Mechanical improvements are stressed by Ford engineers who made scores of changes such as rubber engine mountings to reduce vibration, a 10-per-cent increase in gasoline mileage in normal operation and a 25-per-cent improvement with the optional engine overdrive.

The style change is emphasized by the large windshield and windows, a maximum of 20 square feet of glass.

Prices in the United States of $1,113 to $1,980 are 8.7 per cent higher than current models and are subject to revision in July. They are higher in Canada.

USES STALL-FEEDING

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Stall-feeding of beef cattle is rare in Australia's temperate-to-tropical climate, but one farmer uses a system likely to be taken up by others. He gives four weeks concentrated grazing and finally stall-feeding with home-grown chaff, oats and meadow hay. He markets more than 100 prime Herfords each year.

Song Prophetic Of Boy's Death In Jerusalem

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, June 8 — (Tuesday) — (AP) — It had seemed incongruous in the first place to hear a little Jewish boy about nine whistling "Only Five Minutes More."

He strolled along in tennis shoes, shorts and a blue blouse.

An Arab mortar salvo began. Five of them fell 30 yards away and the little boy and I, the only persons on the street, lay flat alongside a high wall. The sixth one fell short and hit the street only 10 yards away from us. Lucky, I thought, only an incendiary.

Then I heard the little boy scream once and go quiet. I sprinted to him and saw a pool of blood.

"Where are you hit?"

He answered calmly: "I am going to die."

There were flecks of blood in the froth which appeared on his lips. A Hagana staff car raced down the street. I stopped it. We loaded the little boy into the car. He didn't cry.

We hurried him to hospital. The nurses and doctors worked on him but soon stopped.

He was dead.

Curt Simmons, Phillies' $60,000 Bonus Boy, Begins to Pay Dividends on Club's Investment

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Apparently all that was troubling young Curt Simmons was a case of big-league jitters.

Off to a poor start, the 19-year-old high school graduate who received a record bonus of $60,000 from Philadelphia Phillies last summer is beginning to pay back dividends.

The solidly - built southpaw gave the most impressive performance of his brief career last night when he outpitched the great Ewell Blackwell as the Phillies defeated the Reds 3-2 in Cincinnati.

The victory, which advanced the fifth-place Phils to only 2½ games behind the first-place New York Giants in one of the closest races in National League history, was Simmons' third in succession. He now has a record of four victories and four defeats.

The Cardinals missed a glorious opportunity to take over first place when they suffered an 11-5 setback at the hands of Boston Braves in a night game in St. Louis. A victory over the Braves would have put the Cards half a game on top.

After presenting the Cubs with five unearned runs to drop an 8-7 decision in the opener, the Giants came back to win the nightcap 5-1. Sophomore Clint Hartung spun a neat five-hitter to register his third victory.

Knocking Howie Pollet out of the box with a six-run assault in the second inning, the Braves went on to gain an easy victory for southpaw Warren Spahn. The triumph left the third - place Braves only a game and a half behind the Giants.

Ralph Kiner's three-run homer highlighted a five-run first inning and gave Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-4 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers. The Pirates, also only a game and a half out of first place, trail the Braves by three percentage points.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers defeated the skidding Athletics 7-4. Philadelphia now is in third place four games behind the league - leading Cleveland Indians.

Early Wynn registered his 6th victory, as the fast - travelling Washington Senators whipped St. Louis Browns 5-2.

FINE FIELD IN OPEN

Los Angeles, June 10 — (AP)—Favorite Ben Hogan and about as fine a competitive field as the country has to offer tee off today in the 48th United States Open golf championship.

The pint-sized Hershey, Pa., star was the logical choice to lead the pack when the famed trophy is awarded at the 72-hole conclusion Saturday. Hogan has played some of his hottest golf on the 7,020-yard Riviera course.

Riviera is the longest layout over which the National Open has been played. Its par is 35-36 — 71.

R.C.A.F. Flyers Down Trenton Monarchs 14 to 6

Clubbing out twelve hits off three Trenton hurlers the RCAF Flyers downed the Trenton Monarchs 14-6 in a wide open game at the Fair Grounds Wednesday night. The Monarchs miscued eleven times to add to the confusion.

It was a good ball game until the bottom of the sixth inning with the Flyers leading at that point. Monarchs got three runs in the first inning on three hits and three errors. The Flyers tightened up after the first inning to give starting pitcher Dunning some support.

Flyers collected one run in the second frame when Marrietta came home on Wade's triple to deep centrefield. The Airmen picked up three more tallies in the fifth on two hits, a walk and an error.

Dafoe on the Trenton mound weakened in the sixth and was relieved by Ellis who pitched the Monarchs to their 15-14 triumph Monday night over the Merchants. Ellis' control was gone and he hit the first man to face him and walked two more before retiring the side.

Dafoe came to the mound again in the seventh but was nicked for three hits and a walk, and four runs and retired in favor of Carswell. Carswell gave up two runs in the eighth on a single and two errors.

Dunning Goes Route

Dunning went the route for the Airmen giving up seven walks, and seven hits for six runs. He whiffed fifteen Trenton batters.

The two hour and fifty minute contest was marked by poor fielding and numerous player shuffles in the Trenton lineup. Dafoe, starting pitcher for the Monarchs went five and one third innings and retired to left field. He was back on the mound in the seventh but was knocked out, retiring to the centre pasture for the remainder of the game. Ellis, second pitcher for Trenton, played right field, pitcher, and left field twice during the course of the game.

Two RCAF players saw action briefly. Titus went in to pinch hit for Hipgrave in the sixth and Maracle ran for Titus. Hladun, however, eventually wound up doing the chores as he was sent in for Maracle in the seventh.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The boys in the back room, the clubs, the beauty parlors and suds bistros are still talking about that Midsummer Night's Dream, or was it a Comedy of Errors that pinch-hitted for the scheduled ball game between Belleville Merchants and Trenton on the night the Drews, Jelliffes and Olivers went to the electoral mat.

• • •

There were so many errors, so our youthful Boyd Upper, who scored the game, informs us, that after the second chucker in the nine-act comedy, he jotted down only those plays that were good and saved three pages of paper besides four columns in the score-sheet.

• • •

When he returned to the office, somewhere near the witching hour of midnight, while telephones were still clanging, teletypes clattering, reporters dashing nowhere with sheets of copy in their hands, the "New Looks" from advertising, business, editorial and job rooms, delivering standings in tired soprano and alto monotones, via the telephones, adding machines hiccoughing, and spectator adherents of the three political faiths, smiling, swearing, or tearing their hair, young Mr. Upper staggered into the office.

• • •

He waved a score book in the face of the boss, whispered weakly through chattering teeth, "What a ball game" (He's a Queen's med. stude in the winter time, otherwise the three words would have been melted into "Wottagame") and collapsed on a chair.

• • •

"Take a look at that" he murmured after a shot of ice cold aqua pura had trickled down his already near frozen oesophagus, "Seventeen errors, two and a half hours sitting in a Scotch mist, twenty-nine runs, twenty-seven hits and two umpires."

• • •

"Why, these guys—pardon gentlemen—booted that ball around so often and so hard, that they made the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame look like they were walking on stilts. "Red" Townsend got three kinks in his neck at one time watching balls and strikes—and one of the catchers at the same time. Red Carson thought he was Nanjo Singh the first time a ground-hopper came out to him. He salaamed so low that the ball hit him on the head, and bounded away. Red turned his head toward Mecca, grunted a couple of Hindu cuss words—and repeated the performance the next time the ball came to him.

• • •

"After the game the fiery-topped one had four bumps in a row on the front of his noggin so that he looked like an American general in bathroom uniform."

• • •

After revival, our Mr. Upper sat himself down with pencil and pad and an hour later emerged with some sort of order our of the numerical chaos. By that time, the election excitement was nearly over and the cacophony of the telephone had dropped down to three shrills a minute. He did find time to answer one, but when the voice at the other end inquired, "What's the final figures?" he was still more or less in a baseball haze. He stared at the instrument and started, "Trenton 15 runs, 12 hits, 6 errors" and when the bloke at the other end started to jiggle the receiver, our Boyd realized what he was doing, and called for help. Baseball affects a guy that way sometimes.

• • •

If what was decided at the conclave of the Belleville Baseball Executive meeting the other night goes into effect, the Northern Electric team, underdogs for the moment in th loop standing, will parade a decidedly stronger front than heretofore against the Picton squad. It was decided by the exec to allow the Electrics to bolster their weak spots with reinforcements from the Kiwanis Juniors, who will be subject to recall at any moment. Its all for the good of the game methinks. It will make for keener competition and give some of the younger players a chance to get more baseball out of their systems.

• • •

For Secretary Earl Stewart's information, the Napanee-Picton game was rained out on Wednesday night, and the tilt will be played on June 23rd an open night for both teams. This was arranged by mutual consent of the rival managers, so Picton manager Walter Fraser informed us via telephone Wednesday afternoon.

• • •

One of New York's better after-dinner speakers is Dick Meehan, a professional ball player for some eighteen years and long an official on both diamond and court. The irrepressible Mr. Meehan once was umpiring a semi-pro game in Brooklyn and, if you were to ask him, making perfect calls. But one batter in particular objected.

"Call 'em right, Dick?" he growled as Meehan signaled a second strike. "That was a ball and you know it!"

"Young man," bellowed the man in the iron mask, "for eighteen years I used to think those were balls. But from where I stand now, I know they were strikes all along. Strike three! And you're out!"

• • •

There is a story going the rounds about Fritz Ostermueller of the Pirates, a rather ancient codger as ball players go. He even admits to being more than 40 years of age and, at times, is a quite effective pitcher. He hurled against the Cardinals in St. Louis and then hopped a plane for a quick visit home to Quincy, Ill. As he boarded the plane he handed his ticket to the stewardess.

She glanced at it casually and then the name caught her eye. It had a very familiar ring to it because she'd been at the ball game that afternoon.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "Ostermueller, eh? I'm very glad to meet you Mr. Ostermueller." Then she glanced at the destination and th entire story unfolded itself in her mind's eye.

"Tell me this, Mr. Ostermueller," she gushed. "Did you fly over today so that you could see your son pitch?"

'BLUE BABY' FLOWN TO TORONTO FROM WEST

Toronto, June 10 — (CP)—Velvet Peters, 8½-month-old blue baby from Saskatoon, arrived in Toronto Wednesday for a heart operation which, it is hoped, will save her life. Velvet slept in the arms of her mother, Mrs. Isaac Peters, all during the plane trip from Winnipeg.

It is expected Dr. John Murray, famed Toronto heart surgeon, will perform the operation within a week.

Canada's Team For Olympic Games Still Conjectural

Montreal, June 10. (CP) — Until sectional meets and zone trials sort out the pack, Canada's team in the Olympic track competition for men remains conjectural.

Between now and the last week of June the four Olympic zone competitions will be fought out at Montreal, London, Ont., Winnipeg and Vancouver. The cream of the crop will converge on Montreal for the Olympic finals and Dominion championships July 9 and 10. Performances there will determine the makeup of Canada's squad, 18 in combined track and field.

At the moment Canada's outstanding Olympic prospects appear to be Gerard Cote in the Marathon and Bob McFarland in the 200-metre event.

If anyone can upset Cote, that sensation-maker would likely be found among such distance men as Walter Fedorick of Hamilton, Lloyd Evans of Montreal, Ab Morton of Galt, Ont., and the veteran Scotty Rankin of Hamilton.

Bob McFarland, the sprinter-footballer of the University of Western Ontario at London, looks unbeatable for the Dominion crown in the 200-metre dash.

Parry Good Prospect

Jack Parry of Western is a good prospect for the 100-metre dash, but he will be up against two men who already have done 9.8 seconds for 100 yards early this season. They are Chick Turner of Vancouver and Ted Haggis of London, Ont., West Athletic Club.

In the 400 metres Ez Henniger of the University of British Columbia will command attention along with Parry and Mac Sanders, speedster from Sherbrooke, Quebec.

Sanders will also be seen in the 800-metre trial, more to his liking, but he will be up against such tough opposition as Jack Hutchins of Victoria who went 800 yards last year in 1:54.7. In an early meet this year he was four seconds slower.

Zone standard for the 800-metre event—equivalent to about 805 yards in Canada—is 1:58 and the Olympic Standard is 1:55.

Don McFarland of Western holds an Eastern Canada championship title with 1:56.1 for 800 yards. Other prospects for the Olympic metric distance include Gordon Haight of Hamilton, Ont., winner of the Governor-General's trophy as outstanding junior athlete last year, and Joe Taylor of Toronto.

Battlers Ready For Postponed Fight in N.J.

Newark, N. J., June 10 (AP)—Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale kept an anxious eye on the sky today as they sweated out the hours for their 15-round middleweight title bout in Ruppert Stadium tonight.

On edge after months of training drudgery for this third and rubber fight, the battlers were keenly disappointed when intermittent rainstorms yesterday set back the fray a day.

Today's forecast for "partly cloudy" weather was enough to keep them on the hot seat. They weighed in yesterday, champion Graziano at 158½ and Zale at 158¾, and don't have to repeat the ceremony today.

But should nasty squalls force another 24-hour delay, the gladiators will have to make the 160-pound division limit again Friday noon.

While Zale and Graziano were disturbed over the postponement, the promoting tournament of champions, Inc., counted on it to bring another harvest of dollars. Parry Good Prospect .. .. backers are called, already have a ticket sale of more than $377,000 and $70,000 for radio and movie rights. Whatever comes in today is pure gravy. Graziano will get $120,000 and Zale $60,000.

Betting odds on the fight remained stable with the rough, rugged New York title - holder favored at 5 to 11.

Other officers elected at the meeting were: vice - president, Alex Colvin, London; secretary, George Smith, Kitchener; treasurer, Douglas Wilson, Chatham.

Entries will be accepted until July 15 and all junior football clubs in Ontario are being asked to join the new organization. Teams represented at the initial meeting were: Windsor A. K. Paper Claims Loop In Quebec Raiding Minor Leagues

By The Canadian Press

The New York Herald Tribune Wednesday quoted two minor league baseball officials as saying the Quebec Provincial League has been raiding various minor league clubs for players.

Al Barallari, player-manager of the Portchester (N.Y.) Clippers of the Colonial League, was quoted as saying the Provincial League has been "waiving big money" in the faces of a number of men. "They've already got a number of former big-leaguers up there," Barallari was quoted. "Bobby Estalella, Roland Gladu and Adrian Zabala to name a few." "Last week I was offered $1,000 a month and later was told that I might get $500 more if I jumped."

The Herald Tribune said that Jean Pierre Roy, former Brooklyn Dodger, is "at the helm" for the Provincial League, in which he is managing the St. Johns, Que., club.

Willie Maney, secretary of the International League, was quoted as saying "the Provincial League is making a lot of trouble." Maney added that Paul Calvert, pitcher recently sold to Atlanta by the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, has apparently joined the Provincial League. He failed to report to Atlanta and has been indefinitely suspended by the International League.

Babe Ruth will be the last New York Yankee to wear the No. 2 uniform after all, it was announced in New York Wednesday. The long-ailing Bambino will don the suit with the number he made famous next Sunday when he will manage a team made up of members of the 1923 Yankee club in a game with an all-star team of Yankees of later years. Immediately after the game the uniform will be retired to the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

Jockey Gordon Richards, who has ridden 3,544 winners in his career, cracked two ribs in a fall Tuesday at Brighton, England, while making a desperate bid to end a 28-race losing streak. His mount, Austere, folded up three furlongs from the finish of the mile race. The 40-year-old champion, who had ridden 74 winners this season until his luck fell out June 1, was pitched under the hooves of the field. One horse was killed in the scramble.

Crack pistol shots from Canada, United States, Mexico and Cuba will assemble at Teaneck, N.J., Aug. 19 for the 17th annual International Pistol Tournament, it was announced in New York Wednesday.

Liverpool's soccer club chalked up its eighth straight victory of its North American tour in Brooklyn Wednesday night with a 5-2 victory over an all-star team of the Metropolitan American League.

Mimico Mountaineers handed the league-leading Owen Sound Crescents their first loss of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior season last night handing them an 18-10 setback. Veteran Jack Williams paced Mimico with four goals while Johnny Hewitt, Scoop Hayes and Dixon scored three goals apiece. Russ Slater scored three for the losers.

MADE TEMPTING OFFER

Port Chester, N. Y., June 10 — (AP) — Manager Al Barallari of Port Chester Clippers in the Colonial League said Wednesday night several players in the class B circuit had been made tempting offers by the non-affiliated Quebec Provincial League of Canada.

"Last week I was offered $1,000 a month and later was told I might get $500 more if I jumped," Barallari said.

Sixteen Senior Amateur Teams Go into Action

(By The Canadian Press)

Sixteen Senior Ontario Amateur Baseball teams donned cleats, last night as eight more games were written into the record books of four leagues.

In the intercounty baseball league three games were played. The league-leading Waterloo Tigers swept to an easy 10-1 victory over Galt Terriers, while London Majors defeated Guelph Maple Leafs 6-2 and Kitchener Panthers whitewashed Brantford Red Sox 7-0.

Welland continued their winning ways in the iagara District loop when the top-place Stokes hammered out a convincing 12-3 victory over Niagara Falls, .Y. Kimberley-Clarks. Houcks, from the Canadian side of the Falls, scored a neat 4-1 win over St. Catharines Athletics in the other Niagara game.

Up north, Frood Tigers pounded out an overwhelming 19-0 triumph over Garson, while last-place Creighton Cubs handed the leading Sudbury Shamrocks a 6-3 setback in the Nickel Belt Senior circuit. In the Timiskaming Senior league, Porcupine Combines moved into second place with a 13-9 victory over McIntyre Macmen.

Edmonton, June 10 — (CP) — Barbara Ann Scott has found editorial agreement for her oft-repeated wishes "for a long rest." The Edmonton Bulletin said editorially this week that if she didn't take one — from the news columns at least — Canada's Barbara Ann was going "to degenerate into a first-class bore."

"When we hear, day in and day out, how that fascinating young lady was presented with a car by the City of Ottawa, how she has turned professional, all about her movie offers, how she is worried to death about her freckles, and, finally, how she has figured out a way to beat the income tax —well, there is such a thing as too much Barbara Ann Scott.

"It would be a very great pity if this admirable young lady were to be completely smothered in saccharine adulation."

"Daddy!"

"Take me out to the ball game!" resounds more than ever pre-war throughout Japan, China and the Philippines, writes Jim (Edmonton Bulletin) Algeo.

Quoting Col. W. F. W. Hancock of Edmonton, recently returned from a Far East business trip, he writes:

"The people of Japan are baseball crazy. Every vacant sandlot, lane and any other available space where future Japanese Babe Ruths and Stan Musials can practise, are running at full tilt. It's not an uncommon sight to see the kids take to the diamonds as early as 5 a.m. and play until dusk."

Still Hockey

George (Edmonton Journal) Mackintosh notes that the Pacific Coast Hockey League's going pro leaves but three "so-called amateur" leagues in the Dominion— the Western Canada League, the O.H.A. and the Quebec League.

"It's probable that a considerable number of the players who figured in the coast loop last season will be looking for new berths because they are not keen on being 'tied up for life' in minor pro ranks," is George's reading of the development.

Bob Porterfield Finally Beaten By Maple Leafs

(By The AAssociated Press)

Bob Porterfield finally has been beaten.

The sensational Newark Bears righthander saw his nine - game winning streak end last night when the lowly Toronto Maple Leafs nipped him 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader. The International League-leading Bears came back to gain a split by winning the second game 8-2.

Porterfield and the veteran Oscar Judd waged an even duel until the last half of the sixth inning when first baseman Hank Biassati of the Leafs straightened out one of Bob's pitches for a home run.

Syracuse remained in third place, 2½ games behind the Bears, when they divided a doubleheader 1-3 and 5-1 with Buffalo.

Baltimore snapped Rochester's six - game winning streak, scoring two runs in the ninto to win 4-3.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, June 10 — (AP) — George Trautman, boss of minor league baseball, raises an objection to an inference in this column that there might be some connection between the recent baseball betting scandal and the low salaries paid to some minor league players . . . the player involved, Trautman points out, was collecting a salary somewhat above the general scale . . . Obviously, he shouldn't be tempted to sell out for a few measly bucks, but doesn't that also indicate that some kids are being paid below the scale — or that someone is cheating on the salary limits? . . . "You must keep in mind," adds George, "that without the so-called 'bushes' where men strive to keep the game alive because they love it and not because it is a pot of gold, major league baseball would be but a memory."... That's a fine and true statement, but right now we're concerned with the minor league player who is trying to make a living out of the game.

Timid Timmy

Timmy Temerario, now line coach for the Detroit Lions, tells this one about the losing streak that chased him right out of baseball . . . Timmy was coaching a team of "hitless wonders" through a long losing streak at Denison University . . . Then one day the team found itself in the unique position of having the bases full with no one out . . . . Desperately seeking a run to break the "jinx" they decided to try a squeeze play . . . the attempted bunt was just a pop fly to the pitcher, who wheeled around and threw to third. From there it went to second and to first, killing off all the runners ... "Four putouts!" exclaims Timmy. "That's how badly things were going. It convinced me baseball was not for me."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge gets along very nicely without much spirits. But the spirit of adventure is always present. Since many rules are still in controversy, the human element is bound to assert itself.

There came a tournament deal like this:

NORTH
♠10 7 4 3
♥J 4
♦9 4
♣A Q J 3 2

WEST	EAST
♠Q 6	♠J 9 8 2
♥Q 9 6 5	♥10 7 3 2
♦J 10 8 7 6	♦A Q 2
♣10 9	♣K 5

SOUTH
♥A K 8
♦K 5 3
♣8 7 6 4

At some tables the bidding went thus:

South	North
1 NT	2 C
2 NT	3 C
3 NT	Pass

Many players use an opening one notrump as a limit bid. All their hand contains is revealed in such an opening. It says they can go no higher unless partner has the additional stuff.

To show strength their partners respond with a notrump raise or a jump takeout. Their non-jump takeout shows weakness and says: "Pass and let me play it right here at my weak trump suit."

Horse Sense uses no weakness takeout to a non-force. Pass is how it shows weakness. Therefore, its takeout shows a suit that is truly biddable in a hand that has a true response.

This is why south bid two notrump over the two club response by north. North could have passed this. So, his rebid in clubs was encouraging. It prompted south to try game in notrump.

To some players the rebid of a suit indicates weakness. Sounds silly to me. A weak hand can pass. Bidding a suit twice shows more strength in it. This is horse sense, too.

In the play, west led diamond Jack. East covered with the queen. Many in south were defeated by it. Some made the contract by a bold holdup of the king. Foolhardy bravery need not be knavery.

Stirling

Bowlers at Tournament

Stirling. — Three rinks of Stirling bowlers attended the annual men's doubles tournament held on the greens of the greens of the Campbellford Club, Wednesday afternoon, and report excellent bowling. Those in attendance from here were Messrs. P. Mayhew, and Earl Fox, Bob Patterson and Fred Mallory, Ashley Brooks and Walter T. Elliott.

Messrs. Mayhew and Fox won all three games and second prize—a blanket each.

RECLAIM 1,400 ACRES

London — (CP) — Farmers and engineers here have combined efforts on a scheme to reclaim 1,400 acres of arable land from the sea on the coast of Britain. In a race against time they have 17 weeks to build a 5½-mile sea wall in time to prevent the equinoctial tides next September from flooding the land.

AT THE BELLE — Gary Cooper, Paulette Goddard and Howard Da Silva in scenes from Cecil B. DeMille's finest Technicolor motion picture, "Unconquered," showing today and Friday. The film reveals entertainment unequalled for thrills, adventure, romance and daring.

WILL HAVE NEW LOOK

Toronto, June 10 — (CP) — Suburban Forest Hill policemen will have the new look this summer, and be comfortable as well. Chief Constable W. Gordon Fraser has adapted the army type of battledress jacket for his men's use to give them a natty look and ease of movement.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 10 — (AP) — Sigmund Romberg, Hungarian immigrant who became one of the world's richest and most famous composers, will have his life story told on the screen.

M-G-M, which has already filmed the biographies (or reasonable facsimiles) of Kern, Schumann-Brahms and Rodgers-Hart, plans a Romberg feature next year. It will be based on his own recollections and his forthcoming biography, "Deep in My Heart," with generous hunks of his hardy operettas tossed in.

Sixty-year-old Romberg says he is slowing down. "Like all young people," he says, "I wanted to reform the world when I was young. Now I realize it can't be done, and I'm getting more rest."

B. C. Tour Off

Mickey Rooney is off to New York as soon as he finishes "Words and Music." His British Columbia tour didn't pan out, and Mick is now mulling with the idea of a South American jaunt. It will be strictly pleasure, "unless they can pay the kind of money I want down there."

Mickey has big plans for his father, Joe Yule, who is currently playing Finian in "Finian's Rainbow" on Broadway. The young star is handling his father's future movie deals (he has been playing Jiggs in the "Bringing Up Father" series)...

Ronald Reagan was relaxing in his "Jones Beach" dressing room when a woman poked her head in the door and asked for his autograph. Ronnie obliged and the woman said, "Thank you, now can you tell me where Ronald Reagan's dressing room is? I want his autograph, too."

Close-Ups

Sydney Greenstreet is a shadow of his old self, having dropped 25 pounds in his recent illness. He's getting around now, but still has to take it easy . . .

Donna Reed's European trip is off because she couldn't find a suitable baby sitter . . . Jules Munshin, who does a wonderful headwaiter act in "Easter Parade," was dropped by M-G-M, but he'll stay on to play first base in the Gene Kelly-Esther Williams-Frank Sinatra baseballer, "In the Good Old Summertime" . . . The original hard-luck film, "Three Musketeers," is back for retakes.

Bob Dissatisfied

Bob Hope is trying to decide whether to make his British film or tour the United States with a big outdoor show this summer. Meanwhile, he'll go East for some benefits and a heart-to-heart chat with his air sponsor. Bob has long been dissatisfied with his radio deal, particularly since he heard Walter Winchell will get a half-million yearly from his new pact.

Eddie Albert is becoming a one-man film industry with his 16mm educational shorts. He sinks his pay from movie jobs into more shorts. He's happy about the success of his film on human growth as explained to children.

Lucille Ball passed up a British picture to stay in Hollywood with Desi Arnaz. In case of an actors' strike (and talk of it grows more serious daily), she says she and Desi will head for vaudeville dates. That's one way of bringing vaudeville back.

Bing Crosby will have his longest film vacation this year. His first 1948 picture won't start until October, if then. Meanwhile, the groaner is building a house at Pebble Beach and generally enjoying his leisure.

Edmund O'Brien, Robert Stack and others of the "Fighter Squadron" company feel as though they're back in the service. They're up at Oscoda army air base in Michigan practically living the army life (okay, so the pay is better.)

AT THE McCARTHY — Turning the spotlight on the international underworld, Dick Powell, Signe Hasso and Maylia head the cast of Columbia's "To the Ends of the Earth" at the McCarthy Theatre, starting tomorrow.

Brighteners

Gloucester, N. J. — (AP) — Carefully, Mrs. Mary Herbert locked the doors of her home Wednesday. Three-year-old Madeline was romping on the floor and Mrs. Herbert didn't want the child to wander.

A little later Mrs. Herbert returned. From around the side of the house strolled Madeline. Her dress and face were dirty but she was smiling.

"Hello, Mommy," she said. "I fell out the window."

The child was hurried to the hospital. Doctors found no injuries.

Richmond, Va. — (AP) — A postcard mailed in October, 1894, by the city editor of the old Richmond Dispatch to a local correspondent has been delivered.

The card, addressed to Miss Kate Don Leavy, in some fashion reached Philadelphia. There it remained until May 10 of this year when a postal clerk noted that it should have been delivered in Richmond.

The postcard was sent on here for delivery to R. C. Don Leavy, nephew and nearest living relative of the original addressee.

Bremerton, Wash. —(AP)— A Bremerton fire alarm was turned in Wednesday from Long Beach, Calif.

It was fast work on a 1,500-mile alarm — the firemen reached the scene in time.

It happened this way:

Mrs. Marjorie Hall of Bremerton was talking to her mother, Mrs. Bessie Wright, in Long Beach, when she saw a fire starting in her davenport.

She excitedly told her mother. The mother, also excited, hung up, then called the Bremerton fire department long distance.

The department was a bit puzzled by the call but sent out a truck anyhow. It did a quick wipe-up job on the fire.

AT THE CAPITOL — Roddy McDowall stars in his first film for Monogram, as a boy who has great faith in his dog, in "Rocky," the drama now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same gram "Law of the Canyon," starring Charles Starrett and Smiley Burnette.

AT THE CAPITOL—Smiley Burnette, musical western comedian who co-stars with Charles Starrett in "Law of the Canyon." On the same program "Rocky," featuring Roddy McDowall.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching pop smoking to himself with a sattisfied expression, and I said, Hay pop, is smoking as bad for you as some people say it is?

I doubt it, but on the other hand I doubt it's as good for me as I say it is, pop said, and I said, Well does it make you feel as comfortable as it makes you look?

Well now I've often wondered if I look as comfortable as I feel when I'm smoking, pop said. The difficulty is, I know how comfortable I feel, but I can only guess how comfortable I look, he said, and I said, You look pritty darn comfortable.

By goallies that's exactly how darn comfortable I feel, pop said. I'm glad to have that settled, he said, and I said, Well anyways pop, how old do I have to be before I start smoking?

Well, the serious young fellows of my generation didn't start smoking till they were 21, pop said, and I said, But jimmininies, pop, the werld moves faster now. Look at jet planes, they go up like lightning, I said.

That's so, and come to think of it, look at the prices, pop said. Jet planes are suppose to go up like lightning. That's their bizzness, but prices go up like nobody's bizzness, he said, and I said, Sure, pop, that just proves it, everything goes quicker now. So will it be all rite if I stars smoking when I'm 18 instead of twenty-one? I said.

Maybe you better bring the matter up again a cupple of days before you tern eighteen, and we'll see how things are moving then, pop said.

Being the end of the subject for a while but probably not quite that long.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS

Fort Erie, June 10 (CP)—Four more United States counterfeit $10 bills, as worthless as bad pennies, have turned up in the Peace Bridge area, R. C. M. P. Constable Joseph Serada said Wednesday. Three of them were passed at Crystal Beach during the tourist rush of the United States Memorial Day holiday on May 30, and the other at Fort Erie during the weekend.

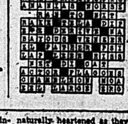
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



London Times Election Comment

London, June 10 — (CP)—The Times, commenting editorially on the Ontario election, says the chief feature was "the advance of the socialists" but adds that "the only real surprise is the defeat of Premier Drew in his own constituency."

Under the heading "Ontario decides" the Times notes Premier Drew's work to "strengthen imperial bonds" and says his opponents were only able to unseat him because he spent much of his time in the election campaign in other constituencies where the Conservatives appeared less safe.

"It is tempting to read portents for the Dominion-wide elections next year in the provincial results and especially in the results from Ontario with its industrial power and its population of nearly 4,000,000," the Times continues.

"Many C. C. F. members are naturally heartened as they look ahead. Elections for provincial legislatures are, however, largely governed by internal provincial affairs."

Swollen Columbia Building Flood To New Heights

Portland, Ore., June 10 (AP)—Flash floods and high tides heaped new threats on the water-weary Pacific northwest today as the swollen Columbia and Fraser Rivers built their three-week flood siege toward new heights.

Three cloudbursts and a five-hour downpour sent tons of water hurtling into the raging Columbia and more farmland was added to some 650 square miles already under water. The weather forecast was for more showers and thundershowers.

High tides rolled in from the Pacific, threatening anew more than 11,000 harassed defenders of almost swamped dykes. Leakage along the levees increased steadily.

The death toll for 22 days of flood was 32 increased by the drowning Wednesday of a 10-year-old boy, and a railroad division engineer.

The Red Cross in Portland said 335 still were unaccounted for in the Memorial Day flooding of Vanport ,Ore., war housing city of 18,700 and it issued a "critical list" of 121 names.

One cloudburst near Spokane in the eastern part of Washington State late Wednesday, sent a five-foot wall of water over a highway, flooded homes and devastated wheat fields and gardens.

Another struck Wednesday night in the Tower Yakima Valley in south-central Washington from Outlook to Pasco, near the huge Hanford plutonium works. Streets were flooded, communications disrupted and complete damage reports were lacking.

Rain pounded for five hours Wednesday on the Cascade Mountains in Washington. The downpour added more run-off to the Columbia, boosting the level behind the third flood wave now grinding down soggy dykes in the lower valley from Portland to the sea.

Take Everything From Sheep Except 'Baa'

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—Chicago packers claim they use everything in the pig but the squeal, and Dungarvan, Ireland, claims it takes everything from the sheep but the "baa."

This on the word of P. A. Casey, one of the few Irish exhibitors at the Canadian International Trade Fair.

They take the wool and they take the meat, this town of 5,000 on the south coast of Ireland, and then Mr. Casey and his associates take the pelt and make it into soft handbags and into linings for various leather goods, including shoes.

He carries with him a full, smooth sheep pelt on which he is getting autographs of hundreds of fair visitors.

Mr. Casey says that Ireland is export-minded and thinks she can sell at competitive prices, though like many other countries she suffers a present dollar shortage.

SHORTHAND WRITERS SCARCE

Melbourne, Australia — (CP) —A scarcity of shorthand writers is one of the main factors causing congestion in the courts here. "We're a dying race, and there's no substitute for shorthand in court work," said one of the official reporters.

Firefighters Dig In to Halt March Of Forest Fires

Rouyn Que. June 10 (CP)—With no sign of rain, veteran firefighters today dug in, determined to halt the march of hundreds of forest fires burning in many areas of Northern Quebec.

From the Maniwaki region to the Lake St. John district, the wall of fire was making steady progress.

Near Rouyn, one veteran bush pilot reported that he estimated fires covered an area of more than 100 square miles.

At Belleterre, 200 firefighters were successful Wednesday in checking the flames and putting the gold-mining village out of danger.

In the townships of Guillet, Devlin, Brodeur and Blondeau, 50 miles south of Rouyn, forest travel has been banned although the situation was considered "improved." Spruce, birch and other hardwoods were being destroyed hourly in the four townships.

One hundred miles north of Maniwaki, at Forbes Depot, a strong breeze fanned several large fires and kept them out of control.

In the Val d'Oor area, more than 100 fires are still burning, some small and local, others fairly large, spreading through tinder-dry wood.

At Trenche River, 50 miles west of Roberval on the western shore of Lake St. John, a fire was causing some uneasiness for forest rangers.

A Rouyn bush pilot described one fire: "I was flying north of Amos and noticed a small fire on a farm. When I passed by there a few hours later it had spread across the settler's land but by dusk it was still under control.

"However, by noon today when I flew over the same clearing, the fire had spread for about a mile. It was still spreading."

80 P.C. of Housing Demand For Rental Housing

Ottawa, June 10 — (CP) — A top government official said Wednesday one of the "most important" features of the housing situation is that people who can't afford to do so are being forced to buy homes at high capital cost.

D. B. Mansur, head of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, told the Senate Banking Committee the government had brought down its rental insurance scheme in an attempt to meet the situation.

He testified on the Commons-approved bill that would guarantee builders a certain level of return on their investment.

Mr. Mansur said 80 per cent of housing demand was for rental housing, but in 1947 only 30 per cent of new construction met this need. The bill was the government's reaction.

John Ramsden Is Murdered In N. W. Malaya

Singapore, June 10 — (Reuters) — John Ramsden, son of Sir John Ramsden, British land owner, was found murdered at his home in Northwest Malaya Tuesday night, police announced here.

He had been shot with his own shotgun, which was missing.

Police said that Ramsden, who was managing director of the Caledonia estate in Northwest Malaya, was apparently walking downstairs when his assailant fired. He rolled to the bottom of the stairs.

Police did not believe the murder was connected with the recent series of political murders in Malaya.

Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner in Southeast Asia, declared in a broadcast Sunday that communist "political agitators" were behind the fresh outbreak of lawlessness and violence sweeping Malaya.

Their attempts to impose "rule by gun and knife" in the plantations, mines and factories would be stopped, and their "bestial campaigns" struck down, he said.

House of Refuge Committee Recommends Sale of Home To City at Price of $300,000

Strong recommendation that the Hastings County Council accept the offer of a $300,000 purchase price for the County House of Refuge and farm was embodied in a report of the House of Refuge Advisory Board presented to council through Board Chairman Reeve Fred Campbell, Sidney, at the Wednesday morning session.

It was pointed out prior to the adoption of the report, that acceptance of the paper did not necessarily constitute council's acceptance of the city offer to purchase the home.

There was some discussion on the offer, but no definite action was taken at the time. The formal offer of the city promulgated to council earlier in the session was tabled pending the report of the House of Refuge Advisory Board.

The first offer to purchase the Home came in January with a quoted price of $200,000, the report stated. The Board intimated this amount could not be considered and at a later joint meeting of city and county boards, the city raised the purchase price offer to $300,000.

After thorough discussion of the question and a study of the advisability of sale from all angles the County Board passed a motion to recommend to County Council to accept the offer. In due course a written offer was received from the City Council quoting the $300,000 price.

Speaks to Report

Speaking to the report, Deputy Reeve Wilfred Spencer, member of the House of Refuge Advisory Board, told council that the question of sale had been given long study and serious consideration and the decision to sell was not arrived at quickly.

"The City of Belleville," he said, "is very anxious to acquire the building and the 75 acres of land. They want to use the building as a convalescent hospital, and with a buildinig boom now going on in the city and suburbs especially in the eastern limits where industrial plants are under construction and which necessitates the building of hundreds of homes, the farm lands will be subdivided into residential lots."

The present home, Deputy Reeve Spencer pointed out, was inadequate to house the number of inmates. At the present time it is badly overcrowded.

Feels Price is Fair

In their consideration of the matter, he said, the Board had studied every angle. It felt the price of $300,000 was fair. The site of the present home was one of the loveliest in the province, but as much as "we hate to leave this lovely spot, the Board believed that if it disposed of the land only to the city, in a short time the Home would be surrounded by the city itself and this would be undesirable from the Home standpoint."

"It will be well sold by us, and well bought by the city."

"The Board did feel at one time," Deputy Reeve Spencer told council "that it should keep the land, subdivide it and sell it as lots. But this County Council is not in the real estate business. It would be too heavy a job for us to undertake, so we decided it would be better for the city to do it."

"The Department of Welfare," he announced, "will pay 25 per cent of the cost of a new Home. I am of the opinion that we can relocate and build and possibly not cost this county one cent. For these reasons I, as a member of the Board, feel it is good business to sell."

Plan One-Storey Home

"The Board has plans for a one-storey Home which will cover a lot of ground. The only two-storey building will be that which will house the staff. The plan is one which will call for a building that is far safer, as far as inmates are concerned, than the present one."

Reeve George Sprackett, Tudor and Cashel, wanted to know if any estimates of the cost of a new Home had been received.

Chairman Campbell stated that the Board had nothing definite along these lines, and the present price of materials was difficult to estimate. Architects had submitted estimates in the neighborhood of $375,000 for a new Home which would house 125 inmates.

Reeve Wells, Stirling, asked council if members thought that the city and county could join in the Home question.

"It would only cause friction, in my opinion," Reeve Joseph Davis, Monteagle, said. "Partnership is the worst ship two people ever sailed in. My opinion is that we build and keep our own Home."

Chairman Campbell, through his Board's report, informed council J. Ludlow, Inspector of Homes, and J. Arnold Thomson, Belleville architect, had attended a Board meeting and submitted plans and specifications for consideration. Later Mr. Thomson was engaged to draw preliminary sketches and plans and submit estimates for a Home to house 125 inmates.

Approved in Principle

These plans were submitted which the Board approved of in principle, and later were approved, with a few minor alterations, by the Department of Welfare and Public Works, Toronto.

The Board had visited the villages in Centre Hastings and interviewed the reeves asking them to present a brief to County Council suggesting possible sites in or near their villages, also stating facilities available to a County Home.

Later the Board visited eight or nine potential sites east and west of the city of Belleville and found in many cases the water service could not be economically supplied. But they also found some desirable properties within the water area.

The report also stated that after due consideration and city assurance that the property would not be taxed except for garbage collection and local improvements, a petition calling for annexation of the County Home property was signed.

Charge $1 Per Day

The County Home had accommodated some of the inmates of the Belleville Home for the Aged following the fire which damaged the property, at a cost of a dollar per day per inmate. A delegation of the W.C.A. had waited on the Board and suggested that it build a joint home for the city and county.

This matter was thoroughly discussed and the Board unanimously decided that under no circumstances could it consider a joint Home except after a request from the City of Belleville.

The Board, following the City Home fire, had investigated the matter of insurance on the County Home and as a result, recommended to the Finance Committee that the insurance be raised from $55,000 to $100,000. The fire escape at the west end of the building was reconditioned.

Woman Faces Murder Charge After 15 Years

Yorkton, Sask., June 10—(CP)—In the second nearly-forgotten murder trial to be heard here in two days, Mrs. Nettie Thomas today faces a charge of murder in the 15-year-old death of her husband.

A King's Bench Court Jury Tuesday ruled the woman — confined to a mental hospital for 15 years after being judged unfit for trial in 1934 — was capable of standing trial for the shooting of Charles E. Thomas in 1933.

Mrs. Thomas was brought into the court room Wednesday immediately after 75-year-old Mrs. Nettie Ordinall stepped out — a free woman, after 25 years.

Mrs. Ordinall was found innocent of the 1923 shooting of her husband, Peter. Like Mrs. Thomas, she was found unfit for trial, following the slaying, but the case was revived following her discharge from hospital.

Thomas was killed in his farm home at Sturgis, Sask., by bullets from a .22 calibre rifle. His wife was arrested two weeks later.

The jury acquitted Mrs. Ordinall after 30-minute deliberation. A parade of witnesses told of a series of brutal beatings, given her by her husband. He was shot by his son, Peter, then 14, after Mrs. Ordinall had thrown boiling water over him, intending to blind him. The son who spent two years in reform school for his part in the shooting, said he would take his mother to his home in Winnipeg.

BLESSED ISLES

The Isles of the Blest, in ancient mythologies, were islands somewhere beyond the Western Ocean, where blessed mortals were thought to live eternally.

FLEET OF FAST

Gordon Isnor (L—Halifax) initiated criticism for lack of Maritime representation of the commission, J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Muskoka-Ontario) expressed his party's criticism of the commission.

On justice estimates, Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) and several other members called for prison reforms.

Justice Minister Ilsley said that some progress is being made in the matter of reforms. Segregation of prisoners has been started: A training school for penitentiary officers has been opened; salaries for guards have been increased and full-time vocational training for prisoners has been started in two penitentiaries.

He said lack of accommodation is delaying segregation of prisoners.

Mr. Ilsley also told the Chamber that he will ask the cabinet to approve a criminal code amendment which will ban the publication of crime comic books in Canada.

Some Heat Exhibited

Only heat in the day's debate was shown when Clarie Gillis, (CCF— Cape Breton South) charged that there is "too much manipulation and "not enough honesty" in the administration of justice in Canada.

John T. Hackett (PC—Stanstead), president of the Canadian Bar Association, angrily retorted it was almost criminal for Mr. Gillis to speak about "something concerning which his ignorance is rivalled only by his bitterness."

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) urged that the government discontinue appointing judges to sit on royal commissions. The practice brought judges to the "cockpit of party politics".

Study of the transport department estimates brought from Lawrence Skey (PC—Toronto Trinity), a suggestion that the Royal Canadian Navy carry annual supplies to posts on the eastern Arctic patrol. Mr. Chevrier said the Defence Department preferred to leave that work with the Transport department.

DANISH VESSEL STRIKES MINE, 150 DROWNED

Dry Ice Starts Rainstorm Over Forest Fire Area

Only Ten Minutes Elapse Before Heavy Rain Descends

By The Canadian Press

Use of dry ice to create rain over the raging forest fire area of Northern Ontario will be employed again today, an official of the Provincial Department of Lands and Forests announced.

T. E. Mackey, chief of forest protection of the department, said Thursday's experiment with dry ice (solidified carbon dioxide) was successful in that it produced rain over the Gogama area northwest of Sudbury, and aided firefighters in checking that blaze.

"If the right cloud formations appear the experiment will be tried again today," he said. "There were no clouds suitable early this morning."

Following a conversation with K. G. Pettit, Dominion meteorologist, Mr. Mackey said that rain fell Thursday 10 minutes after the dry ice had been dropped from an aircraft. Until early Thursday night, smoke from the fires kept all planes in the district grounded. A similar situation was forecast for today.

Will Co-operate

"We will co-operate with the Dominion government and keep supplies of dry ice moving northward as long as the experiments continue," Mr. Mackey said.

Dry ice forms nuclei around which droplets in clouds gather. The droplets freeze into snow and fall from the cloud, melting as they fall.

Every available man is being rushed to the Chapleau area in the Sault Ste. Marie district, additions coming to the region daily.

A light northerly wind, which isn't expected to cause "too much" trouble, is blowing in the Chapleau district. More than 900 men are fighting the three major blazes there.

Meanwhile the general fire situation in Northern Ontario was reported "a little better" although the Mississagi and Chapleau blazes still advanced. Smoke from the fires was seen as far south as Buffalo, N. Y.

As the Chapleau blaze, in mixed timber, edged closer to the main transcontinental line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, firefighters were forced to retreat over a wide area.

A bush fire four miles wide and nine miles long raged three miles from the Canadian National Railways town of Hornepayne. Townsfolk rallied to assist the fire crews.

Slackening winds and a reduced fire hazard permitted reopening of western Quebec timber limits in Papineau, Labelle, Montcalm, Jolliette, Bethier and Maskinonge counties. But fires roared unchecked 90 miles northwest of Rouyn.

FRASER R. ADDS 5,500 MORE TO HOMELESS ROLE

Mass Evacuation of the Valley in Sumas Area Moving Forward

Vancouver, June 11 — (CP) — The Fraser River today added 5,500 more persons to its roll of flood-stricken homeless but 350 miles east of here a little band of indomitable flood-fighters still battled to save the last of 18,000 fertile acres from the destructive Kootenay.

Mass evacuation of Fraser Valley residents in the Sumas Prairie district was expected to be completed today.

On a tiny green island near Creston in the Kootenay Valley, the fight for survival continued. Three families and 60 relief workers sent out an emergency call for 15,000 more sandbags to plug dykes giving way to the swirling Kootenay and Goat Rivers.

At the south end of the flood-made, 3,000 acre island, the Kootenay was lapping one inch from the ramparts' top. Water was seeping through in four places. Last reports said the hungry Kootenay and Goat Rivers still were climbing.

If the dykes gave way to release 23-foot flood waters, only three power boats were available in the district to carry them to safety. Rowboats were not safe on the boiling water. Creston was an hour and a half away by boat.

Crop Damage Heavy

Earlier two dykes in the area gave way to flood 15,000 acres in the Creston diking district. Crop damage alone was estimated at $1,500,000.

Labor Secretary Given the Gate

London, Ont., June 11 — (CP) — James Hare, recording secretary of the London Labor Council, was notified today he had been expelled from the post because of "unauthorized dealings with the Chamber of Commerce."

Mr. Hare said the action was a "direct result of my strong opposition to a $500 grant for the C. C. F. election fund."

Expulsion of the secretary was decided at a meeting of the executive held Wednesday night. It followed two previous attempts to "reprimand" Mr. Hare for criticizing the selection of C. C. F. candidates and for disagreeing with the council's decision to support the C. C. F. party in the provincial election held June 7.

Chief Constable Evers, New Liskeard, called the lad's mother here. The mother said it was "okay" for her son to stay where he was.

Call for Volunteer International Police Shows Weak Cog in UN Machine

By LARRY HAUCK

Lake Success, June 11 (AP) — Trygve Lie's call Thursday for volunteer international police is an official admission that the United Nations can't succeed without force.

The secretary-general's proposal, made in a speech at Harvard University, spotlights the weakest cog in the 58-country peace machine—the absence of armed strength to back up decisions.

The U. N. charter provides for international big-power contingents to do such a job. When the U.N. was founded this provision was singled out as the factor which would make the U.N. work where the League of Nations failed.

But after 2 1-2 years of bickering, military experts of the United States, Britain, Russia, China and France have been unable to agree even on basic principles for establishing the force. With this deadlock confronting the U.N., and no break in sight. Lie told his audience Thursday that a small stopgap force should be created to bolster the U. N.

It was understood here that the secretary-general is thinking of about 1,000 men recruited from small countries and paid out of the U. N. treasury.

The first reaction to Lie's idea was not very encouraging. The United States is giving the plan careful study but a spokesman said it was doubtful if Washington would agree to any force which might be construed as a substitute for the units called for in the charter and now buried in debate. Informed circles expect Russia to oppose Lie's plan.

Preliminary reaction among the small countries was surprisingly chilly. These delegates are usually the ones clamoring the loudest for action.

In this case their objections centre around a fear that assignment of force to the council would touch off a series of tough decisions to be backed up with military might. Such steps, they fear, would be more conducive to war than peace.

DOLLAR-SAVING PROGRAM SHOWING RESULTS—HOWE

Reduces U.S. Imports But Exports Increase

Ottawa, June 11 — (CP) — Canada's dollar - conservation program is beginning to show results, Trade Minister Howe told the Commons Thursday.

Imports from the United States are being reduced month by month while exports to American markets are increasing.

As a result, said Mr. Howe, there have been "substantial" savings in United States dollars since restrictions on imports and capital goods and equipment became effective last November.

Imports from the U. S. during the first quarter of this year totalled $187,000,000. This was $10,-00,000 higher than in the corresponding quarter of 1947, but was lower than the last two quarters of 1947.

The latest statistics did not show the full results of the conservation drive since some of the current imports were based on orders placed before the restrictions became effective. There would be larger savings during the remainder of the year.

The greatest savings had been made in imports of automotive equipment. Steel imports were 57 per cent higher than they were in the same quarter of last year, but it looked as though the savings expected from the conservation program "will be achieved."

Not Yet Decided

In a discussion on matters pertaining to aviation, Transport Minister Chevrier said the government has not yet decided who will be given the licence to operate a trans-Pacific service.

Says C.C.F. Aims To Socialize Products of Farm

Gravelbourg, Sask., June 11. (CP)— Agriculture Minister James Gardiner said Thursday night that the aim of the C.C.F. government is to extend its system of socialization to embrace the products of the fields and farms just as it now applied to the fur, fish and timber industries.

Speaking on behalf of E. M. Culliton, Liberal candidate for Gravelbourg constituency, the Federal minister said the C.C.F. planning board could tell the farmers what they were to do with their wheat and livestock. "This board could sell the wheat and then take out so much for the administration of government and return to the farmer just what it felt like."

"If you re-elect the C.C.F. government on June 24, you will be helping them to speed up plans which they at one time thought might take 20 years."

Official Denies Immediate Increase in Price of Beef

Toronto, June 11 — (CP) — The Toronto Telegram said today that reports have reached Toronto butchers that the Federal government will lift the ban on exports of beef cattle to the United States this Sunday and that an immediate jump of between 20 cents and 25 cents a pound in choice beef cuts will take place.

Retail butchers, acting on the report, began to break down their prices which will go into effect next Monday if the restrictions are lifted, the story said.

Official confirmation of the reports of ban lifting are lacking but a high official of one of the major packing companies is reported as saying he would not be "too surprised" if the Ottawa edict comes on Sunday.

Under the scale, sirloin cuts will cost the consumer around 95 cents a pound instead of today's 75 cents a pound. Round steak would cost about 90 cents a pound in place of the current price of 72 cents a pound.

It was predicted that under the new price range the live weight of beef would jump between 7 cents and 9 cents a pound.

Thursday the Retail Merchants of Canada sent telegrams to every party leader, every member of parliament and the price investigating committee at Ottawa protesting the ban lifting.

At Ottawa, an agriculture department official said the export ban would not be lifted for some considerable time.

"It won't come Sunday or even in the next two or three weeks," he said. Many things had to be considered before the step is taken.

It is known the department is giving additional study to livestock prices in Buffalo and other border markets, doubtless in preparation of material on which the decision on the date for lifting the ban will be reached.

A prominent Liberal member from the Prairies said he expected the ban would be lifted after the big movement of beef cattle to the markets starts. In Ontario the movement starts around July 15 and in the West around Sept 1.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner will have the final say when the embargo will be lifted. He now is in the West.

Unidentified Plane Bombs Korean Fish Boats, Kills 14

Seoul, Korea, June 11 (Reuters) —At least 14 persons were killed when an unidentified plane bombed and sank several Korean fishing boats just south of the 38th parallel, dividing the Russian and United States zones, Tuesday, according to delayed police reports reaching here today.

The Director of Korean Police said investigations were being made in an attempt to establish the identity of the aircraft.

The Korean press news service in a dispatch from the scene said the plane was American, adding that United States planes had been using the area for bombing practice.

Some newspapers reported the plane to be Russian.

United States army authorities in Korea said they did not know of any Korea-based United States planes being in the area where the bombing was reported.

Policy is to Take Children on Tour Of Shopping

Edmonton, June 11 — (CP) — Allegations that gloves, overshoes, hats and scarves were considered "luxuries" for Alberta Child Welfare Commission, wards were discussed before a Royal Commission Thursday.

Hazel Mary Armstrong, provincial welfare inspector, said complaints the welfare department failed to provide adequate clothing for its charges "came as a complete surprise" to her. She was testifying during cross - examination by Crown counsel Horace Johnson who had quoted excerpts from the Whitton report.

The Whitton report, published last July by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, made sweeping allegations of malpractices by the welfare department.

Miss Armstrong told the commission that during the war some articles were unattainable. She stated that her policy now was to take the wards on individual shopping trips, allowing them to select their own clothes.

She denied claims that the welfare department had a four-point policy of — give up the child, do not see it, do not nurse it, and surrender it by indenture.

She said the department did not "high-pressure" unmarried mothers into giving up their babies as a condition to financial assistance. She said that a mother could keep her baby if she wished without jeopardizing her chance of financial assistance.

Harry J. Wilson, Alberta's deputy Attorney-General, described the operation of Borstal institutions and said he considered them impractical for Alberta. They coped with approximately 60 boys a year while Alberta had only 15 boys yearly of the type handled by the Borstals. He added that he did not like "problem boy" institutions.

YANKS RISK LIVES TO SAVE MORE THAN 100 JAPANESE FROM FIRE

Tokyo, June 11 — (AP)—Four American military policemen risked their lives today to clear more than 100 Japanese out of a burning, seven-storey insurance building in downtown Tokyo. The Japanese, staying in the building in an attempt to save office records, ignored commands by Japanese police to leave. The American MPs, asked to intervene, entered the building and cleared it.

Prices Committee To Hold Closed Executive Meeting

Ottawa, June 11 (CP) — The Prices Committee's report to parliament will be among subjects considered at a closed executive session this weekend, committee members indicated Thursday night.

The closed session was called at the conclusion of Thursday's public hearings. but chairman Paul Martin said it had not been decided whether the meeting would take place today or on Monday.

Sources close to Mr. Martin have indicated that he does not consider that its work is finished and would be pleased to see its life extended beyond the present session of parliament, scheduled to prorogue about June 30.

Thursday an industrial witness, President Shirley Dixon Courtaulds (Canada) Ltd., said that an increase in the price of artificial silk products was likely but admitted that he would like to see the committee conclude its hearings before the increase was imposed.

Mr. Martin had drawn attention to the firm's 1947 net profit of $1,434,000, the largest in the last 12 years, and told Mr. Dixon he thought he would have to consider carefully before increasing prices further.

He explained, in connection with the price increase he predicted, that the firm is faced with a request for a straight 20-cents-an-hour wage increase.

The firm's average wage of $1.05 an hour is the highest in the industry, Mr. Dixon said.

He explained that expenses through obsolescence is not deductable from income tax. The firm, he continued, needs to spend $10,000,000 on new equipment but is not in a position to do it. Mr. Martin pointed out that the firm has earned 10 per cent on its capital in only one year since 1936.

"And we haven't kept modern" Mr. Dixon said.

Beaverbrook Says He Runs Papers Solely as Propaganda of Empire Views

London, June 11. (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian - born press magnate, told a royal investigating commission he runs his newspapers purely as propaganda organs for his Empire views, it was disclosed today.

The publisher's testimony, given March 18, was published by His Majesty's Stationery Office. He is at present in Canada.

Lord Beaverbrook, who owns the mass-circulation Daily Express and Evening Standard, told the commission he ran the Express "purely for the purpose of making propaganda and with no other object."

"Propaganda" was on "particular issues, my own issues, issues I have advocated all these years."

He listed these as Empire Free Trade, Empire Customs Union, "Empire unity for the purpose of securing peace, and if necessary for making war."

The publisher said his papers opposed British participation in the Marshall plan, adding "it began with opposition to the American loan in 1945 and so we go on building up; it is all part of our Empire conception".

Commenting on the investigation, the publisher said:

"The press seems to me to emerge with extraordinary credit. If that is so I would leave the press as it is, since they are doing a good job. I would let them continue to do so."

400 Passengers Aboard as Ship Sinks in Kattegat

Master of Ship Says Many Were Hurled into the Sea

Aalborg, Denmark, June 11 — (AP) — About 150 Danes drowned today when the passenger vessel Kjoebenhavn struck a Second World War mine and blew up in the Kattegat.

The vessel, carrying 400 passengers, went down 10 minutes after the dawn explosion ripped her apart. Scores of sleeping passengers were drowned in their berths. Many saved their lives by diving from the deck of the sinking vessel.

The 1,668-ton steamship, owned by the United Steamship Co. (D.F.D.S.) was en route from Copenhagen to Aalborg, Jutland.

The company published the names of 621 survivors, some of them crew members. Spokesmen expressed fear that the rest all were doomed.

Divers went to work quickly, but long after they began their search, there were no reports that any new survivors had been picked up.

Rescue crews said nine corpses were picked up by patrolling craft at sea.

One official said about 200 of the passengers probably were asleep in their berths when the explosion occurred. The rest travelled steerage and most of them spent the night in deck chairs.

When news of the disaster spread in Copenhagen flags were lowered half-mast on all ships in the harbor. Aalborg city is also in mourning.

The Danish state radio cancelled its regular programs to send out news bulletins of the disaster.

The first vessel to reach shore from the scene of the disaster was the Danish tanker Dangulf Lube, which carried 13 severely wounded. She touched at the small Hals harbor at 9 a.m. Ambulances were waiting and the survivors were hurried to the local hospital, where doctors had been standing by since early morning.

The Kjoebenhavn was travelling between Copenhagen and Aalborg when she hit the mine. Aalborg is northwest of Copenhagen across the Kattegat.

The company said the ship went down in 10 minutes, four miles south of the Aalborg bay lightship in the northern part of the Kattegat. Early reports to the company, it said, indicated only two lifeboats were lowered before the vessel sank.

Many Hurled Into Sea

The master of the mined ship, a Capt. Kill, said when the mine was struck many passengers were hurled into the sea.

"It was a terrible experience," he said, "but there was no panic among the passengers, they behaved with admirable calm.

"The explosion occurred aft, and the ship settled in the shallow water almost perpendicular. We managed to lower two lifeboats before help came.

"The steamship Fregga took off 220 passengers."

The British destroyer Onslaught and the submarine Truncheon, visiting North Denmark, stood by to help if needed.

Three of the first five bodies picked out of the sea were those of women.

JEWS ACCUSED OF VIOLATING U.N. ARMISTICE

Arabs Claim They Continued Shooting After the Deadline

Cairo, June 11 (CP)—An uneasy four-week truce in a four-week old war began in Palestine today but hardly an hour had elapsed before the Arabs had accused the Jews of violating it.

The Legion said the Jews continued shooting in Jerusalem and killed an Arab soldier an hour after the armistice began at 2 a.m. EDT—8 a.m. in Arab countries and 10 a.m. in Israel, which is on double daylight saving time.

Tel Aviv, the Israeli capital, had an air-raid warning an hour and a half after the deadline but no actual raid was reported. Reports from both sides showed most other fronts generally quiet.

A dispatch from an Associated Press correspondent said random shooting went on in the Holy City for six minutes after the truce deadline, and then stopped.

It was after this that the Arab charge was made.

The Jews announced their air force bombed Damascus Thursday night, spending 15 minutes over the Syrian capital. A report from Damascus said a Jewish plane dropped nine bombs there, mostly incendiaries.

Elsewhere on the eve of the armistice, the Egyptian defence ministry said Egyptian forces killed at least 300 Jews and took 10 survivors prisoner in raising a brief Israeli siege of Ntsanim, three miles southwest of Isdud.

Rhodes is Chosen

The Syrian army in a Damascus communique Thursday night announced "the fall of Mishmar Hay Yarden," Jewish settlement in upper Galilee. The Syrians previously had said they destroyed Mishmar Hay Yarden.

Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, U.N. mediator who arranged the truce, has chosen Rhodes, Greek island in the Mediterranean, as the spot for peace talks. He will leave here tomorrow on a tour taking him to Amman, Jerusalem and Rhodes and back to Cairo Tuesday.

Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, Secretary-general of the Arab League, called the League's political committee to meet here Monday.

The League includes seven Arab States. Six of them have sent troops into Palestine since Great Britain gave up her Holy-Land mandate and Israel proclaimed her statehood May 15. They are Egypt, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia.

Must Respect Truce

Thursday night Azzam Pasha said the truce did not mean war would not be resumed if "the enemy does not respect the truce conditions, if they insist on creation of a Zionist state or in case no agreement is reached based on a solution safeguarding Palestine's sovereignty and unity."

Israeli government leaders have said they will insist upon the sovereignty and independence of Israel and upon the partition of Palestine, recommended by the U. N. assembly last No. 29.

Col. A. Yates, MC, Dies Suddenly At Deloro Home

Col. Arthur Volkman Yates, M.C., general manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, died suddenly at his home in Deloro late Thursday evening. He had returned home from the Marmora Board of Trade banquet, at which he introduced the speaker, the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, of Albert College, and was reading when taken with a heart seizure and died soon after.

The late Col. Yates was in his 55th year and was born at Preston, Ontario, his parents being Mr. Thomas Yates and the late Mrs. Yates. In 1913 he took up residence at Deloro and taught school there for two years. In 1915 he enlisted with the First Battalion C.E.F. and served overseas in a highly creditable manner in recognition of which he was awarded the Military Cross. In 1919 he returned to Deloro and entered the service of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company in the engineering department. Later he assumed duties in the accounting department and became the chief accountant. In 1939 he succeeded Mr. F. A. Bapty as secretary-treasurer and upon the death of Mr. R. A. Elliott he became general manager of the company. He was a highly efficient executive and held the confidence and enjoyed the high esteem of the main officials of the company and of all who were associated with him. His death has brought sincere feelings of regret to them and also to a host of friends outside his business connections in many parts of the province and elsewhere.

Served Country Well

Col. Yates served his country well in the First Great War and at the time of the Second Great War he rendered efficient and great service in the organization of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and succeeded the late Col. Bywater as Commanding Officer at that time. In recent years and up to the time of his death Col. Yates was the Officer Commanding the Second Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Reserve, with headquarters at Picton. He was deeply interested in the affairs of the Canadian Legion and was a popular and valued member of that organization. In religion he was a faithful member of the Church of England and a parishioner of St. Paul's Church, Marmora.

Past Master of Lodge

Fraternally he was a Past Master of Marmora Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 222 and he was a former member of the Deloro Public School Board. He took a leading part in the social life of the community and was an active member of the Deloro Social and Dramatic Society. He will be much missed.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Christina Wilson, formerly of Hamilton; one son, Thomas Yates, a student at Albert College; one daughter, Miss Dorothy Yates, nurse-in-training at the Toronto General Hospital; his father, now residing in Preston; one brother, Ralph W. Yates, Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. Mildred Cross, Galt, and Miss Blanche Yates, Preston.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Fire Chief Lynch to Retire On September 1st and Deputy Chief Vance Will Take Post

Retirement of Fire Chief William Lynch as of September 1st and appointment of Assistant Chief Gerald Vance as fire chief to take effect on the same date, was recommended by members of city council in committee meeting Thursday evening.

The present fire chief will be retired on a pension of $160 per month for life but will be asked to serve in an advisory capacity. Salary schedule for Assistant Chief Vance when he assumes the chief's office in the autumn will be $3024 per annum.

Council members voted to discontinue the office of assistant fire chief at the time of the promotion of Assistant Chief Vance, and named Lieut. Stan. Waddell as captain. Commencing as of September 1st a fire captain will be on duty on each shift.

Partially Removed

When the terms of a recommendation submitted by Alderman Charles Hyde are completed the fence at the rear of the J. B. Boyce and Company property and blocking the entrance to the Riverside Drive, will be partially removed to permit traffic. The recommendation calls for the city solicitor to prepare the necessary agreements or leases with the Foley Foundry and Machine Company and with Mrs. Phillip Allore. Heavy trucks and transports will be prohibited from using the drive entrance between the hours of 8.30 p.m. and 8.30 in the morning.

The city engineer was authorized to proceed with the necessary grading of parking lots at the rear of Front Street stores at a cost of not exceeding $300.

Under a new system of garbage collection, garbage will be collected from city restaurants each day during the summer months, the owners of the restaurants to be charged for the additional service.

Owners Responsible

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle, at the request of council, reported that in his opinion property owners would be responsible for the cost of changing roof drains from the sanitary sewer to the storm sewers. Owing to overloaded conditions of the city sanitary sewer system the city has asked that all roof drains be disconnected from sanitary sewers.

The city comptroller was authorized to call for tenders for manhole and catch basin covers and also for tenders for the construction of an additional 500 feet of storm sewer on Northern Electric property. This was requested by officials of the Northern Electric Company it being desired by this firm to drain an auto parking area into the Catherine Street storm sewer.

The city will advise the Peerless Houses of Canada that it is the city's opinion that their company should authorize the firm of Gore and Storrie to proceed with a survey of property west of the city where it was proposed to commence a housing development. The city agreed that if the housing project was carried out the firm would be re-imbursed by the city for the cost of the survey.

Approve Plans

With the exception of certain changes regarding a small industrial area at the entrance to Pine Street, council approved of plans of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for the construction of 104 rental homes north of the Docter sub-division. When corrections to the plans are made, the council housing committee and Mayor Storey are authorized to approve of the plans.

The city will retain lots on Charles Street, North, which had been recommended sold to Mr. Argue. The special committee in making its report, stated the lots in question had definite industrial possibilities and recommended they not be sold.

No Objection

In answer to a request from the Board of Management for the Corby Public Library, the city will advise the board that council has no objection to the placing of a plaque to the memory of Sir Gilbert Parker, providing the plaque is erected inside the building. Council does object to placing of the plaque on the outside of the library building.

Junior C. of C. Members Meet Senior Directors

Proposed amalgamation of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce was discussed at the regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Senior Chamber of Commerce held Thursday at the Lanthorn Inn. Members of the Junior Chamber were present at the meeting.

The representatives of the Junior Chamber expressed the desire that should the two bodies unite they would be able to maintain their identity and at the same time work in close harmony with the Senior group. It was felt that there are a number of young men in the city who would join the Junior organization and later enter the senior body.

It was suggested that should amalgamation occur that the present junior Chamber of Commerce might exist as a young men's division of the Chamber of Commerce. It was finally decided that a committee of six, three members from each organization, be formed and that they discuss the proposed reorganization and submit a report to the directors of the Senior Chamber of Commerce at their next meeting.

A monthly report on the activities of the senior board was read by the secretary Mr. Freeman Burrows and there was some discussion regarding a coming membership drive.

County Buildings Will be Rewired At $10,000 Cost

Shire Hall, the courthouse building including the jail will be rewired this year at an estimated cost of between $10,000 and $12,000, according to the report of the Hastings County Finance and Public Property Committee presented to council yesterday by Chairman Joseph Davis, reeve of Monteagle.

Tenders had been received and opened, but no definite decision has been made as yet to the award. In any event, the court house is the first to be done, the report stated, as its condition is the most urgent.

The committee also recommended that a court reporter and secretary for County Judge J. C. Anderson be secured at a salary of $2,000. This was referred to the committee on by-laws in open council yesterday. Judge Anderson addressed council briefly outlining the work and the necessity of a permanent court reporter.

The committee also recommended that a grant be given to the Boys' and Girls' Camp at Moira Lake for the purpose of building a road.

Accounts Paid

Since January, a total of $7804.15 in indigent accounts was paid and $9496.68 to the Children's Aid Society. The latter costs have risen considerably due to the fact that all societies have increased their maintenance during the past several months. The County now pays as high as $1.09 to Toronto societies while the lowest is Belleville at 85 cents per day.

The report warned council to expect indigent accounts to increase from now on as an increase has been authorized by the provincial government to $3.00 a day in Class "A" hospitals and to $2.50 in most other hospitals. Belleville General Hospital is now authorized to charge $2.50 per day for indigents.

The report stated that the office of jail governor is still vacant but acting governor Sunderland, head turnkey is capably filling the position.

Rail Spur Line To Alemite Plant Soon Completed

With plans being finalized only a few weeks ago, the new railroad spur line to serve the Stewart Warner-Alemite plant and the city industrial areas is being rapidly rushed to completion with grades completed and the track laid in places. Ballasting of the track is still to be done, however, and it is expected this will take at least two weeks.

Although the event is not expected to take place until the latter part of June, officials of the Stewart Warner plant are already making plans for the official opening of the new spur line. It is expected that officials from the head office of the firm in Chicago, and railroad officials in the Central Division will take part in the ceremony.

The new spur line is approximately 4,000 feet in length with slightly over half of the footage being constructed by the Stewart Warner. Cost of the construction of the northern portion of the spur line is to be borne by the city.

The spur line will serve the present plant of Stewart Warner and also a new factory building which is planned for construction on the site now used as a recreation and baseball field north of Pine Street.

New Registry Office Needed Says Inspector

Suggesting that although an addition would alleviate the present overcrowded condition of the County Registry Office, L. Donald, Inspector of Legal Offices, Toronto, warned Hastings County Council yesterday that in ten years a new building would be necessary.

Mr. Donald had been called here to inspect the Registry Office, which is practically "bursting its seams" with accumulation of documents.

"If however, you decide to build a new building now, do not stultify yourselves. Better to go 'all hog' at the present than pay a lot more for larger buildings or additions in the years to come," he said.

He suggested the most desirable site would be opposite the public library on county property. The building, he said, could conform with the surroundings and the county buildings. An addition could be carried out to the rear of the registry office vault.

Ninety per cent of Registry Offices in Ontario, of which there are 66, are overcrowded, and in some cases county councils have provided additions and some new buildings. A great many of these buildings are of the old type and entirely inadequate to take care of real estate activities at present.

"Your Hastings County office is badly in need of attention with the vault being badly overcrowded. The rooms are inconvenient and unattractive. I hope this council sees fit to appropriate funds sufficient for an alteration or addition, if not for a new building."

Referring to Judge J. C. Anderson's request for a court reporter, Mr. Donald stated that Hastings and Leeds were the only counties in Ontario that do not have the services of a permanent shorthand writer. He supported the judge's request, pointing out the inconvenience and extra cost of having reporters come in from outside places.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 11 (CP)— All groups showed an easier tone in dull trading here today. Golds and industrials continued Thursday's downward trend and base metals opened strongly but weakened towards noon. Western oils were mixed.

The exchange's noon index showed industrials down .48, golds .72, base metals .55, western oils up .02.

Losses tripled gains in the base metals with Labrador, Pend Oreille, Normetal and Sherrit easing 5 to 15 cents. Waite Amulet continued strong at $8.35 up 5 cents. International Nickel advanced to a new high at 38 1-4.

Selected junior golds were down in quiet trading with senior issues easing on small losses. Eldona, Guayana, Macassa, Negus, Donalda and East Malartic were 2 cents to 7 cents weaker. Hollinger, McIntyre, Aunor, Giant Yellowknife and Preston were other losers.

O.P.P.'s New Radio FM System Soon in Operation in District, Key 200-Foot Tower at Stirling

Work of the Provincial Police in the Belleville district will be considerably eased in the near future when their new radio system now in the course of being set up is officially put into operation.

When the new system is completely installed, it will provide station to car, car to car, and car to station communication. In addition the station at Belleville will be able to communicate with any of the other Provincial Police districts in the province having radio. Belleville will make the eighth police district radio system to be put into operation, while Peterborough and Perth will follow shortly.

Official opening of the Belleville district radio system is expected in approximately two weeks' time when Commissioner W. J. Stringer will officially open the station. The police radio at Belleville headquarters will be in charge of Constable Jack Hinchliffe.

200-Foot Tower

Key mechanism for the local police district radio system is the 200-foot tower situated on the highest point of the Oak Hills, three miles south of Stirling. This tower is topped by a 27-foot antenna. The advantages of height is that the F.M. radio system is limited strictly by distance which can be overcome only by higher elevation of the broadcasting tower.

When the district radio system is in official operation police will be on 24 hour duty at the radio while also the main highways will be patrolled throughout the 24 hours of the day. Headquarters will be able to contact any patrol car regardless of their position on district highways, while in turn the cars will be able to communicate with the station. Power of the station transmitter is 250 watts, while that of the cars is 60 watts.

Antenna Stations

To facilitate communications in the extreme ends of the local district there are also small 60-watt antenna stations at Picton, Napanee and Kingston.

A total of 16 police cars will be radio equipped in the Belleville district headquarters and in the district detachment offices. Of these five will operate out of Belleville.

Although the local system is not yet in official operation, already signals can be transmitted and received between cars and the tower station, while tower signals from all over the province are heard. Technicians are still testing the equipment and are taking out the final bugs before the station is put into official operation.

Asks UK to Provide Transportation To Supervise Truce

London, June 11 — (AP)—Count Folke Bernadotte has asked Britain informally to provide air, land and sea transportation to help supervise the Palestine truce, a foreign office spokesman announced today.

The spokesman said Bernadotte will be given an answer when he makes the request formally.

An authoritative source said if Britain complies it will mean, in effect, a British blockade of Palestine's coast. Britain patrolled the Palestine coast for the last two years of her mandate to prevent immigration of visaless Jews to the Holy Land.

Instruments Test Pressure in Spine

Calgary, June 11 (CP)— Demonstration of instruments that determine the presence and location of nerve pressure in the spine, highlighted today's session of the Western Canada Chiropractors' Association convention.

The instruments were demonstrated by Dr. Lyle Sherman of the Palmer School of Chiropractic at Davenport, Iowa.

Thursday R. O. Muller of Toronto, Dean of the Ontario Memorial College of Chiropractic, said the main problem facing chiropractic schools is the entry of new students without chiropractic experience.

Other speakers yesterday included J. S. Clubine of Toronto, President of the Dominion Chiropractic Council and John Sturdy of Vancouver.

Kiwanians Conduct Tour of Plants By Rural Pupils

The Kiwanis Agricultural Committee sponsored a tour of a number of Belleville industrial plants for pupils of grade eight rural schools Thursday, to familiarize them with the industrial side of agriculture.

About 275 pupils were assembled on the Collegiate campus at 9.00 a.m. and divided into groups preparatory to embarking in buses. The buses alternated the stops so that the pupils were able to inspect Reid's and Roblin's Dairies, J. Wood's Mill and the Swift Canadian processing plant. Because of the success of this tour it is proposed that similar arrangements be made for future ones to be made on a larger scale.

Wm. Miller, Kiwanis Agricultural Committee chairman, was assisted in supervising the tour by Messrs. Stanton, Musgrove and Phillips. Buses were provided by Rawson's bus lines, Mr. Roldrick and the Frankford bus line.

FOOD PRODUCTION UP

Some 400,000,000,000 pounds of edibles will flow from U. S. food plants this year thanks to speedier, ultra-modern machinery.

Houston, Corbys Win Softball Tilts Under Lights

In a Commercial Softball League double header at the Alemite field last evening the Houston Lumber Company squad downed the Bell Telephone nine 8-0 in the opener and Corby's came from behind to dump the Moose Lodge 12-11 under the lights.

Because of a mix-up in the schedule the first game did not start until 7.45 but the hardy fans remained and were still there when the second game ended at 10.10.

Both pitchers retired the opposition in the first frame on strikeouts. A dropped ball, a walk and a double gave Houstons three runs in the second innings. Adams struck out but the catcher dropped the ball and he beat the throw to first. Locke walked and Woods doubled to left field. The ball got away from the left fielder and Woods raced in.

Cross singled for Houstons to lead off the third and was scored on Wardhaugh's double to left. Locke doubled in the fourth and scored as the centre fielder bobbled. In the fifth Wardhaugh got on on an error and was sent to second on Culkin's sacrifice, Adams home run to right field netted two runs. Locke tripled in the sixth inning and was squeezed in by Woods' sacrifice bunt to end the scoring for the Lumber lads.

Both teams pulled a double play in the third inning. Reid for the Phones popped out to the second baseman who relayed to first to trap Rose who had walked. In the bottom of the third Culkin popped out to the pitcher who fired to second to catch Wardhaugh who had doubled.

Winning pitcher Burshaw walked five, struck out 10, and gave up four hits for no runs over the seven inning route. Reid, on the mound for the Telephones, walked one, struck out eight and gave up seven hits for eight runs in six innings.

Climaxed by K. Baldwin's two-run homer in the seventh the Corby nine downed the Moose Lodge 12-11 in a see-saw battle in the nightcap. Both teams showed plenty of power at the plate with the winners getting ten hits and the losers eight.

The Moose opened the scoring in the first frame getting two tallies on two walks a single and an error. They added five more in the second on three hits, a walk, a sacrifice and an error.

Corby's came storming back in their end of the second to pile up seven runs on five hits, a walk and two errors with thirteen men coming to the plate. That was all for starting hurler Galpin who was relieved by Temple in the third.

Two hits and an error gave the Moose two more runs in the fourth to send them into the lead. The Corby's went one up in the bottom of the fifth on three hits and an error.

Baldwin replaced Sword on the mound for the Corby crew and gave up two runs in the sixth on two hits and two walks. With one down and one run behind in the seventh, Mills singled in the seventh and was brought home on Pitcher Baldwin's mighty home run into deep centre field.

For the Moose, starting Pitcher Galpin went two innings giving up one walk, and five hits for seven runs. He was relieved by Temple who struck out one, walked one, and gave up five hits for five runs for the remainder of the game.

Sword, starting for Corby's, went four frames, striking out one, walking five, and giving up six hits for nine runs. Baldwin came to the rescue in the fifth striking out three, walking three, and surrendering two hits for two runs in the remaining three innings.

Big man at the plate for Corbys was Pitcher Baldwin, who singled, doubled, and homered in four official trips. Mills, also of Corbys went three for five. V. Murray went best for the Moose in a losing cause getting two for three.

Seek 210 Officers For Armed Forces Among Student Vets

Ottawa, June 11 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton today announced a plan to obtain 210 highly-qualified officers for the armed forces, to be chosen from among student veterans now attending universities.

Ten of them will get commissions in the navy, 125 in the army and 75 in the R.C.A.F.

Mr. Claxton said in a statement the plan is that accepted student veterans who will graduate in 1949 will receive permanent force commissions at the beginning of their final year at university, that is, in 1948.

The students will get the full pay of a second lieutenant or equivalent. Tuition fees, as well, will be paid and allowances made for university books and equipment during the final year. This will be in lieu of monthly allowances payable under the Veterans' Rehabilitation Act.

Science and Rain

Ontario Forestry officials and weather and meteorological men have successfully joined forces in attempt to put to the test the question of the possibility of bringing rain upon the parched and flaming vast forest areas in the hinterlands of the Province. Losses through these forest fires have already run into millions and damage said to be almost irreparable has been done to the soil by reason of the intensely hot blanket of ashes resting on the soil surface from the consumption of the trees destroyed in the series of fires in the northern woods.

It was an opportune time to make a test for if there is success of any measure it will be the proof of a new agency which will be a friend of the forest riches of Ontario and become part of the system of protection of our vast ranges of forests. Any measure that will protect the woods and prevent further destruction or even a partial measure of successful control by this means in addition to the ordinary measures taken for the safeguarding of the wooded areas will be worth its weight in gold. Successful or even partially successful results would be a most precious achievement. There have been a number of attempts made in the United States to prove the efficacy of this method in condensing the moisture in the atmosphere and bringing it into action as rain where desired.

News of the intention to bring this control to the test now in the face of the disastrous fires which have been raging in the northern woods was announced on Thursday by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

If the dry ice sown from planes succeeds in bringing any amount of moisture condensation to dampen or extinguish the fires the effort will be the proof of the plan and will be of the greatest importance to every country. In Canada the results could be of the greatest importance.

As weathermen explain it, they do not make rain actually. But by the sowing of the dry ice crystals if they can speed up the arrival of the rain drops, stored in the clouds in the form of moisture, they will have achieved something of importance.

A short time ago and man would have put such reports aside as visionary and unreal. But already the scientific principle is known and accepted. Some success has already been reported in the tests made in the United States.

Canadians will watch with intense interest every plan to seed the clouds with the dry ice and send down the showers which could be of untold value if all that scientists think of the plan should prove effective.

Ship's Earnings

A liner on a pleasure cruise can earn dollars for Britain, so said a recent speaker on the BBC, Thomas Maltby. Smaller British ships are also dollar earners as they get paid for cargo services between overseas ports. Building or on order in British shipyards is a fleet of six fast streamlined cargo liners which will do just this. They will be trading between New York and Far Eastern ports and it is estimated that every one of them will be able to turn over something in the neighborhood of $800,000 every year. They are called unusual ships which will bring British prestige to Britain in foreign ports. The first to go into service will have one dummy funnel; in it will be the chart room, wheel house and captain's quarters. Shipyards in Britain will be launching many more ships this year for trading between foreign ports and with their earnings, they will be helping to bring nearer the time when many more liners can be used for cruises, according to Mr. Maltby.

Healthy Development

It is not the great disasters of the outside world that affect a child's personality—rather it is the kind of home training received. Parents, therefore, need to understand the mental and emotional as well as the physical problems of their offspring. As babies are bundles of desires and wants, parents must satisfy the basic needs, warmth, food, comfort, to keep the young emotional life in balance, says Canada's Health and Welfare. Affection and appreciation are of prime importance in inculcating self-confidence and in helping the child to feel that he will succeed. Consistent training is essential if the child is to gain a sense of security. Given the opportunity for adventure, the youngster learns to strike out on his own, to get along with others, and is thoroughly prepared for final independence from home and parents. The child has gained personal security and has become an emotionally balanced and happy adult.

Swords Into Ploughshares

Britain's industry firmly denies its decadence. With an ingenuity born of its great war struggle it is devising and applying new and better methods of doing old jobs or producing fresh materials. The Lord President of the Council, in a speech some months ago, expressed uneasiness lest anything might be done to damp down "the vigor and self-reliance of private enterprise" and there is ample proof that such a spirit is still very much alive.

The Midland Bank Review for May tells of some of the great improvements achieved. Some of them are common to all countries, like radar, the "seeing eye." Merchant shipping can now be far more safely navigated through fog, heavy rain and snow, and electrical equipment once used to detect land mines can locate nails in timber before the wood is passed through machinery, thus avoiding damage to saws and cutters, and it is employed by veterinary surgeons to find metal objects accidentally swallowed by cattle! An ignition tester has been devised to help check the performance of internal combustion engines.

Then the conversion and adaptation of surplus war materials to peaceful purposes. "Ammunition powder has found a new use as fertilizer for farms, and Bren gun carriers a fresh task as agricultural tractors. Metal sheets and joists originally destined for air-raid shelters have been turned into huts and storage space for ordinary trade purposes. Parachutes are being used to make wearing apparel, and even completed tanks are being converted for excavating open-cast coal. One firm using surplus war material, namely aircraft landing strip, has produced a composite steel and timber joist which is rot and rust proof . . ." — Hamilton Spectator.

Wishes Akin to Dreams

What are the world's children dreaming of? A group of Italian poets know the answer and they are saddened by it. "Children no longer know how to dream," they say.

The 12,000 children who responded to an invitation to tell of their wishes ("as near as possible to dreams") never got far away from a cold and hungry world. They wished for food and clothing and simple necessities. Five little Czechoslovakians wished for oranges, "of which we have heard tell, but have never seen."

Even among the winners of the contest, one little German boy wished to see his uncle's grave at Cassino and one little English girl wished to see the Sistine Chapel before it had been destroyed "in this atomic age." But to restore our faith in the dreams of childhood there is the little Italian girl who wanted a dream house "with red casements, vases of flowers, and a room where the sun could shine," and the French boy in Algiers who wanted a little donkey "to tell fables to."

These may be lonely, wistful little dreams from a sad-eyed generation of hungry children, but there is beauty in them, and hope, and something to make their elders think long and deeply. — Christian Science Monitor.

Britain's success in the bicycle business is marked. There is at present a rushing trade in exports of British bikes, no fewer than 1,449,662 being exported last year from the United Kingdom. The machines were turned out at 17 per minute. Britain knows the importance of export trade.

It has done me good to be somewhat parched by the heat and drenched by the rain of life. — Longfellow.

THE GOOD LAND

Land of plenty, land of homes;
  Land of childhood free from care;
Land, no matter where he roams,
  Man encounters more despair.
Land of laughter and of song,
  Land of church doors open wide;
Notwithstanding all that's wrong,
  Land of dignity and pride.

Land of happy motherhood;
  Land of countless evening prayers.
Land of everything that's good;
  Land that all ill-fortune shares.
Land where none in terror shrinks
  'Neath the threats of tyrants' might;
Land where every one who thinks
  Has the right to speak and write.

Land, the Lord has richly blessed;
  Fertile field and fruitful tree,
And of all joys, this the best:
  Land of precious liberty!
Those who fear the light of day
  And with whispering tongues deceive,
Father of us all, I pray,
  Let no son of ours believe.

Unique System Of Balloting Used In N.B. Election

Fredericton, June 11 — (CP)— The system of balloting to be used in the June 28 New Brunswick general election is believed unique in Canada.

Each party prints ballots containing only the names of its own candidates; or a voter can use a blank piece of paper supplied by the returning officer.

When a voter enters the polling place he is handed one party-printed ballot by each party contesting the seat. He is also given an initialed envelope by the returning officer.

The voter enters the booth, marks the ballot of the party he wishes to support by placing the usual "x" after each of the party's candidates in the riding, and places it in the envelope. He does not seal the envelope.

The returning officer examines the envelope to make sure it is the one furnished by him. Then, in the presence of the voter, he drops it into the ballot box.

If a voter requests it, the returning officer will furnish a blank slip on which the voter may write or letter the names of CCcandidates for which he wishes to vote.

When the ballots are being counted, any envelope containing more than one ballot is classed spoiled and all ballots in the envelope are invalid.

If he wishes, however, a voter may strike out any name appearing on the party ballot and write in the name of another candidate. In this way, a voter may use a party ballot but vote for members of another party or split his vote. Thus, in a riding where there are four candidates, a voter could vote for two on the party ballot, strike out the remaining two and add the names of the two candidates of another party.

If he adds the name of a person not nominated as a candidate or adds more candidates than there are members to be elected in the riding, the ballot is spoiled.

Quebec Liberal Members Hold Lengthy Caucus

Ottawa, June 11 (CP)—Quebec Liberal members of the Commons held a party caucus Thursday and corridor reports on the meeting indicate that government policies came in for much criticism.

A Quebec Liberal said that a "certain number" of cabinet ministers and their "bureaucratic" advisers were held "directly responsible" for the loss of the three recent federal by-elections and for the "poor showing" of the Liberal party in the Ontario elections.

He said that ministers attending the caucus were told that the government's fiscal policies were to blame for the setbacks. They were urged to give assurances that those policies will be changed.

The member said that the "beef" session was called to discuss federal participation in the Quebec provincial election July 28. The cabinet ministers were told that the party can make little headway in that province if the federal government does not give assurance that the tax burden will be lightened.

The member said demands made at the caucus may have some effect on the government, because the party cannot afford dissatisfaction in the Commons where it has a majority of only four.

Defence Counsel Criticizes Use Of Word Murder

Simcoe, Ont., June 11 (CP) — Use of the word "murder" in a newspaper headline was criticized Thursday by defence counsel for farmer Seth Linton, charged with the fatal shooting of two men.

D. E. W. Tinsdale, in an attack on press reports, said that "at this time no one can say whether there has been a murder." The case would have to be heard by a Supreme Court jury and use of the word 'murder' in a Toronto Globe and Mail headline last Monday might have an adverse effect on his client's chances of receiving a fair trial.

Linton was charged with the murder of Louis Stewart, 43, and John Kipp, 36, of nearby Vienna, on Linton's Charlotteville Township farm last Sunday.

Magistrate J. P. Innes said if Mr. Tinsdale thought unfair remarks had been made by the press he could "apply for change of venue." He added: "I may say here that in any cases tried before me the press has always been exceptionally fair."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this Newspaper.)

From a village of 3500 population in the wild and wooly came a letter typed on plain paper without professional notehead. The writer signed his letter like this: James A. Autumn, M.D.

I can find no mention of a physician by that name in the medical directory — which lists nine physicians practising in the village, but not James A. Autumn, M.D., nor does that name appear in the alphabetical list of the physicians of the entire United States. I suspect Dr. Autumn is a figment of some small-minded practitioner's imagination.

The mysterious Dr. Autumn asserts that Brady's column is "definitely outmoded . . ."

I'm glad the writer of the criticism still has some conscience, whether he or she is a physician or just a make-believe. It is conscience that makes the critic say definitely — which is equivalent to saying "I hope."

Dr. Autumn then mentions injection treatment of hernia and injection treatment of varicose veins —but carefully refrains from mentioning injection treatment of hemorrhoids These modern methods of treating certain cases of hernia (rupture, breach) and certain cases of varicose veins were given up many years ago. Dr. Autumn states magisterially, because they were found ineffective.

I'm glad the writer of the criticism ducked into the passive mood to say that, for it is impossible to pin him down when he talks through his hat—it is probably true that these methods were given up many years ago by many bunglers who had a try at them.

If the writer of the criticism or any real physician (that is, a Doctor of Medicine) asks on his professional stationery, and incloses stamped self addressed envelope, I'll refer him to sources in the literature, on which I base my recommendation of these methods of treatment.

As for the injection treatment of hernia — a method suitable in selected cases only—in my files are scores of letters from hernia patients who received the injection treatment and were cured, and from their letters it is fair to say that were it not for this modern alternative for the major operation most of these people would have remained more or less crippled.

Speaking of alternatives, I recall the case of the gullible customer who betook himself to the best advertised "clinic", spent his money like the proverbial drunken sailor, having a wonderful time for several days getting the works (back home he raised an awful squawk if his physician wished to have a $5 laboratory test made) and was finally informed, by the big chief, that his rheumatiz was due to his infected tonsils, all right, but owing to the condition of his heart tonsillectomy was out of the question, so there was nothing for him to do but go back home and try to endure his affliction with such trifling help as the pik—the family physician might give him.

Back home the poor geek sat down and wrote the story of his memorable trek to the wonderful "clinic"—evidently with the idea of impressing me rather than asking for advice.

Well, I told the man that in his place I'd have the septic focus in tonsil pasteurized, drained, sterilized, removed or destroyed —cleaned up, disinfected, eradicated — by diathermy—electrocoagulation.

At the time I doubted that the man would give serious attention but I had to offer the suggestion just to relieve my conscience. So it came as a pleasant surprise when he reported a year or so later that he had followed my advice, received diathermy treatment and finally recovered enough use of his legs to get around in comfort and indulge in considerable work and play.

This electro-coagulation or diathermy treatment of infected tonsils, as an alternative for the dangerous, radical tonsillectomy, is another modern method which the self - styled "spokesmen" for Medicine (such as the Pooh-Bah and his yes-men) never neglect a chance to brand "no good" or "tried and discarded as ineffective."

Many Forest Fires Checked but New Ones Spring Up

Rouyn, Que., June 11 — (CP) —Weary firefighters appeared today to be gaining a toehold in their battle against hundreds of separate fires burning in widespread areas of Quebec's northern timber limits, but a heavy rainfall still was needed to check all outbreaks.

While the worst of the destructive blazes were reported under control in four townships south of this northwestern Quebec mining centre, a new fire worried forestry officials as it raced unchecked through slash and second-growth timber only 15 miles from here.

In Montreal, the Department of Lands and Forests said that Papineau county now was completely open to travel, while in Gatineau, Labelle, Montcalm, Joliette, Berthier and Maskinonge counties the ban has been lifted in districts situated southeast of Maniwaki, Mont Laurier, Lac Maison de Pierre and Lac de Pin Rouge.

The fire nearest to Rouyn was burning in Bellecombe township south of here. Lucien Castonguay, regional forester, said no "merchantable" timber was being consumed. About 30 men had been fighting it since Monday.

A good rainfall, to augment water carried in back-pumps and three gasoline pumps, held the only hope of extinguishing it before it became too large to confine to one area.

Other fires, made up of countless small blazes, have been burning for more than a week in Guillet, Blondeau, Broudeur and Devlin townships.

The worst of these has been burning near Belleterre, a small mining town. G. A. Graham, of the Upper Ottawa River Forest Protective Association, reported this fire under control.

Mayor Storey Suggests New County Home be Joint Concern Between City and the County

Hastings County Council late Thursday afternoon, voted against the new Hastings County House of Refuge being operated jointly by the county and the city of Belleville. It will, as was the former home, be administered and operated by a County Council Advisory Board.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Wilfred Spencer, Rawdon township council went into caucus where the vote was taken by ballot.

Council adjourned immediately following the vote and no comment was given out.

A suggestion that the new Hastings County House of Refuge, be a joint concern between the county and the City of Belleville was placed before the county body on Thursday morning by Mayor D. L. Storey.

The city's chief magistrate in his address to council stated that the city would invest the sum of $100,000 which was being held for similar reasons, in the new home, if the proposal to make the project a joint one, was given favorable consideration by the county. The city needs a new home for the aged, but it would rather invest the $100,000 in the new county home.

"Patients in the General Hospital here are approximately fifty per cent city and fifty per cent county," the mayor pointed out. "And when the new convalescent home is established in the building just purchased by the city from this council and is in operation, it is reasonable to believe the inmates will be along the same ratio."

County to Have Control

"I believe and suggest that the hospital, county home and convalescent home should be operated by commissions under a general committee. In any event, if the city's offer of $100,000 is accepted by this Council, it would mean that we would have two members to the county's three on the House of Refuge Board which would give the county controlling interest at all times."

Asked if the county decided to operate the new home as its own concern, would the city be willing to pay for services for city inmates, the mayor said he thought this could be done, if the joint management proposal did not meet with county approval.

"Would you be willing to make it a joint concern, if we decided to build the new home in Bancroft?" he was asked.

The mayor smiled. "Definitely no," was his answer.

Willing to Have Powers

Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro, stated that in a partnership of this magnitude between city and county, a proviso should be inserted in the agreement whereby, in case of disagreement, one party could buy the other party's interest.

"I agree with that idea," said Mayor Storey. "I think that is good rain insurance."

"Some of us in the future might be in disagreement, and be saddled for life if the proviso was not there," commented the Deloro reeve. "I think that if it is placed in an agreement there would be little objection to a joint partnership."

Won't Go Higher

"Would you consider going a little higher than $100,000 for a share in the new home?" cautiously inquired Reeve Clarke Rolling, Wollaston.

The mayor smiled and shook his head. "No," he said. "We have already invested $300,000 and the people have to be considered."

The matter of joint operation with the city will be taken up later in the session, Warden George West told Mayor Storey.

County Council Strikes Rate Of 14 Mills, An Increase of Two, Due to Higher Expenditures

Estimated revenue and expenditures of the County of Hastings for 1948 were struck on a rate of 14 mills, an increase of two mills over the 1947 rate, the report of the Estimates Committee, presented to council yesterday afternoon revealed. The report was adopted by council without comment.

Increase in the mill rate is attributed partly to the cost of rewiring the County buildings and courthouse at an estimated cost of between $10,000 and $12,000. Other increases in expenditures are noted in Children's Aid Society, Administration of Justice, House of Refuge and Education costs.

Thurlow and Tyendinaga Residents Object to Closing Of Rail Crossing at Coal Chutes

Strenuously objecting to a recent Department of Transport order that the Canadian National Railways crossing at the coal chutes at the east end of the railway yards will be closed shortly, a delegation of second concession Thurlow, and Tyendinaga residents appeared before Hastings County Council yesterday afternoon, requesting support in urging the C.N.R. to instal safety measures at the crossing until such time as an overhead bridge can be built one mile east of the crossing on the Keen farm.

The Department of Transport order, the delegation claimed, will not only close the crossing but divert traffic along a road to the north through Hillcrest to Belleville.

Several members of the delegation, in brief addresses to the council, pointed out the danger at the crossing. There is not a signal nor a flagman there. Trains come to within ten feet of the crossing before stopping and then back up. Passenger trains fuel and water there and road traffic is held up continuously sometimes as long as 35 minutes."

Milk Drivers Held up

A Tyendinaga delegate said that milk-drivers are held up five and ten minutes at times. Sometimes it is longer. There have been a number of minor accidents at the spot and some very close shaves. "Do we have to wait for a fatality before something is done?"

Another Thurlow spokesman said he travelled the road 365 days of the year and he knew of the delay experienced at the crossing and the danger of crossing five tracks. The suggested north road is in very bad condition, full of narrow sharp turns and through a residential section. "It is not a good way. I am one of the heaviest taxpayers in Thurlow and I am willing to pay my share to help build this overhead bridge."

Had to Crawl Under Train

Mr. Keen, who resides one mile east of the coal chutes, told the council that many times he has had to leave his truck or car, and crawl through waiting trains to get to his house. And his children have had to do the same. "I will be glad to help out with the suggested bridge on my property and my charge for land will be very reasonable."

Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, said he was definitely in favor of a County Council resolution asking for safety measures at the crossing. Last week the delegation present waited on the Roads and Bridges Committee where a letter from the Board of Transport was read suggesting traffic be diverted north through Hillcrest.

"Highway No. 37," he said, "is carrying all the traffic it can hold without forcing any more on it. To dump further traffic at College Street is just plain silly. I realize the danger at the crossing, but it would be a hardship for Thurlow residents to close the crossing and divert them to No. 37 at least two miles out of their way. This would not be a final solution at that for some day there must be an overhead bridge to take care of city expansion alone."

Thurlow Opposed

"Thurlow," he went on, "is opposed to the closing of this crossing and asks support of this council in a resolution requesting that safety measures be installed there until an overhead bridge can be built."

Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro, asked if the railway would be interested in financing such a bridge. Reeve Harrison said the Board of Transport would pay 25 per cent and the county and suburban commissions 75 per cent subsidized by the Department of Highways.

"There is no reason why a railway should split a township in two and refuse the responsibility for railway crossings," declared the Thurlow reeve. "I think the Transport people are taking the easiest way out."

Limit to Stop

Reeve Buskard told council there is a limit to trains stopping at crossings and charges can be laid. Not only the railway can be fined but the operators of the trains as well. That was done in Toronto a short time ago. "It could be done here and teach the railway a lesson."

County Engineer Langlois said that the Dept. of Transport resolution had been sent to County Council thence to the suburban commission and back to the Board of Transport for recommendation.

A Board of Transport engineer had inspected the crossing and said it was bad. It would be impossible to put automatic signals there as there are too many trains. He also looked over the terrain east to the Keen farm with regard to possibilities of an overhead bridge. He later recommended that due to the number of tracks at the Keen farm the cost would be too great to erect a bridge. He also recommended that the crossing be closed and traffic diverted along road north of the tracks.

"Thurlow is seriously concerned over the closing of this crossing," Reeve Harrison said. "The only logical answer is putting on temporary safety measures at the crossing and later erect an overhead bridge."

He suggested that County Council ask the Board of Transport to re-examine the site of the proposed bridge, inform it as to costs and suggest the CNR put on watchmen to protect traffic at the crossing.

Council took no action at the time.

Road Expenditures Heavier This Year Than Last Report Given County Council Shows

County Roads and Bridges system expenditure up to the 1st of May this year is $41,106 as compared to $40,357 for the same period last year, according to the Roads and Bridges report submitted to Hastings County Council yesterday afternoon by Roads Chairman, Deputy Reeve Harry Coulter, Hungerford.

Approved road expenditure for the year is $172,000, apportioned $10,000 to suburban roads and the balance for county roads and bridges. Of the county's $162,000, approximately $15,000 is for new machinery; $119,000 for maintenace, with the balance for construction.

Snow removal costs last Winter from Dec. 1 to May 1st., including plowing, dismantling, sanding and shovelling, was approximately $14,000. This figure, however, does not include erection of snow fence last fall, purchasing chemicals for stock piles and getting out sand. The committee purchased 5,000 lineal feet of snow fence with metal posts, etc.

Damage Excessive

Damage due to Spring breakup was excessive, the report stated, the worst roads being those from Foxboro to Frankford; Belleville to Wallbridge; Frankford to Trenton and the area south of Ivanhoe. Two thousand three hundred and eleven cubic yards of gravel and stone were hauled to the three roads alone during March and April. Following the breakup minor flooding over roads in scores of places was experienced and a few had to be closed to traffic for a time. Fortunately the floods did not carry away any bridges.

Labor for roads and bridges work is still scarce although the wage rate was increased from 50 to 60 cents an hour.

Referring to dust laying, the report stated that 40 of the 60 miles planned to be sprayed with calcium have been covered. Asphalt has increased twice in price over last year so this material is becoming expensive. About 25 miles will be sprayed this year.

Madoc Road Suffers

The 3 1-2 miles of road-mix laid last year south of Madoc suffered more breaks than most of the other pavements. Adding up the broken areas only about a total of one-quarter mile has failed. The sharp deep holes can and are being repaired. The larger breaks cannot be repaired until the pavement is properly cured. So far only comparatively short sections have shown signs of "creeping".

An addition of approximately nine miles has been added to the county system this year, while 7 1-2 miles have been deleted. The road going back to the townships is in much better condition than the one taken over by the county.

While the committee has the same amount as last year, namely $172,000, County Engineer W. L. Langlois advised that the increase in wages passed in February will require from $6,000 to $7,000 more than last year to carry out the same man-hours work. In addition increased cost of materials means that the roads and bridges system will be less well off than last year.

Start Coe Hill Road

The Department of Highways has started construction on the Coe Hill road which it began last Fall.

There appears to be a possibility, according to the report, that the department may offer to make some improvement under its Development Plan on the road between Stirling and Hoards, if their whole plan which is understood is now being considered on the Stirling-Campbellford road, is carried forward. However no definite information has been received on this matter to date.

The report recommended a 4.5 mill-rate being levied for maintenance and construction of county and suburban roads and bridges for the year 1948.

Road Has Permanent Wave

In the discussion of the report Reeve A. Jones, Huntingdon Township told council that when the 3½ miles of the Madoc road "blew" he had received plenty of criticism. It broke up badly in the Spring and is now in a very rough condition. "I would like to see the Roads Committee do something to put this stretch of road in a decent travelable condition. By the looks of it they must have had a woman on the job last year, for the road has now a decided permanent wave.

Stirling's reeve Harold Wells suggested that something be done in the future about requesting the government to take over the road from Hoard's to Stirling. "It has taken over the stretch from Campbellford to Hoard's and stopped there."

County Engineer Langlois said that the Department had not taken over the road, but was paying for the work done by the county.

Deputy Reeve Wilfred Spencer, Rawdon told council that according to the information he received, $60,000 will be spent on the road from Hoard's to Campbellford, but nothing on the same road from Hoard's to Stirling. "Why should they fix up the Northumberland part of the road and leave Hastings out. This council should try to get the government to do a complete job."

There was no more discussion and the report was adopted by council as a whole.

Thirty Red Cross Branches Represented at Regional Meeting Held on Thursday

Mr. M. P. Duff, president of the local branch of Canadian Red Cross, was in charge of the afternoon session of the First Regional Meeting of the Ontario Division of Red Cross Branches, convened in the parish house of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, on Thursday.

Mr. Duff welcomed the delegates and introduced Mrs. McKenzie, Chairman of the Branch Program Committee who said she was expecting delegates' from thirty branches to register before the evening session; and she hoped that any disbanded branches will re-organize, and ask for a return of their charters. She then introduced her assistant, and other regional officers.

No Place Too Small

Continuing, Mrs. McKenzie said, "In these days we are all more or less disturbed, and feel a lack of security, so that it is difficult to decide upon the best ways in life. But, no place is too small for a Red Cross organization.

Work Expanded

"In order that this work may expand every branch must tell others of any special project undertaken and accomplished. Our peacetime program has expanded, and Red Cross is now 'international', so, when we plan we must think of all countries where there is need; and something helpful must be done to gain the confidence of all peoples. In this way we may help defeat communism. In England the thing to be done is to 'work harder, eat less, and grow shabbier'.

"Now is the time when Red Cross rooms should be busier, and this is an important point in our peacetime program.

Peacetime Program

"The Red Cross peacetime program includes several different departments, namely:—

Visiting,—in hospitals or county homes.

Sometimes happiness may be added to the lives of shut-ins, veterans in hospitals, or invalids, by taking them driving on a sunny Sunday, or with gifts from Sunshine Boxes. The holding of 'well baby' clinics; and supervising of 'free blood donor service'.

Welfare—This included elderly people and children in need of health services.

Education—A nutrition course for school children; dental clinics and dental health education. The supplying of milk and cod liver oil for school children, and a Homemaker's Service to parents with small children.

Disaster Relief—When help may be practical where people have been flooded or burned out of home and household effects.

Outpost Hospitalization— Several Outpost Hospitals are scattered through Northern Ontario. Sometimes a branch adopts one such hospital, and donates linens and other necessary equipment. Belleville Branch has 'adopted' the Whitney Hospital. There are three new Outpost Hospitals to be opened this Fall. There is always a need of linens and other supplies wherever there is hospitalization.

"The Junior Red Cross may receive needed assistance from senior branches," stated Mrs. McKenzie. "The Juniors are especially interested in under privileged children up to the age of sixteen years, and they bring relief in many cases of child accidents, illnesses and disasters.

"It is almost imperative that disbanded branches re-organize. When this is done the organization will be re-imbursed by the Ontario Division for any cost arising from re-organization, and the charter will be returned."

Mrs. McKenzie introduced Mrs. Thomas Tyrrell, Senior Supervisor for the Ontario Division of Swimming and Water Safety. Mrs. Tyrrell said in part: "Instruction for prevention, in case of accident with boats or from steep river banks, is necessary; lives may be saved through a knowledge of artificial respiration. Send your boys and girls to the Red Cross Schools of Instruction."

Mr. Kneff, Campaign Manager, spoke briefly. "The relation of the Campaign to the Branches," he said, "is the same as a tree to the roots. The branches cannot flourish without the campaign, and vice versa. If the Red Cross in any community is in a healthy condition, the campaign will find no difficulty in supplying financial resources for the work.

A Powerful, Resourceful, Instrument

"No matter how much is done by service clubs, or other welfare organizations, when they have completed their specialized and limited programs the Red Cross will do what remains unfinished. Red Cross is an added resourceful, powerful instrument for use in your community.

"In order to develop programs in a branch, busy business men must be interested in Red Cross projects which invite their response. Instil new blood into executives, to work in conjunction with the more experienced members.

Publicize Activities

The speaker continued, "advertise what is being done. Have a publicity chairman and a press reporter for your local newspaper, and keep your community informed of your interests and activities."

Mrs. Turner, Past - President of the Peterborough Branch, expressed appreciation to Mrs. McKenzie, for a very inspiring and informative address.

Two films were shown depicting "Water Safety" and "Out Post Hospitals," and the afternoon session adjourned.

Evening Session

The evening session of the Red Cross, Ontario Division, regional meeting was opened in St. Thomas' parish house with the invocation given by the Ven. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, followed by the toast to the King.

More than one hundred persons sat down to an enjoyable supper prepared and served by the ladies of the Parochial Guild under the supervision of the president, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, and assisted by the members of the Junior W.A. Following the dinner, the assembly adjourned to the upstairs hall to resume the business of the session.

Chairmaned by Mr. M. P. Duff, the meeting got under way with the introduction of a number of visiting executives from the various branches in attendance. Mrs. A. C. McKenzie introduced the delegates from the branches extending from Ottawa to Port Hope.

MRS. C. A. CAMERON HONORED

Mrs. Charles A. Cameron, Ottawa, former member of the Belleville branch was presented with the badge of service by Mr. Hanna in recognition of her splendid services while a member of the Belleville branch. This badge consists of a bar inscribed "Service" from which hangs a round medal bearing the Red Cross symbol. Mrs. Cameron holds the distinction of being the first Belleville member to receive the meritous award.

The speaker, Mr. W. B. Hanna, was introduced by Mr. Duff, and began his address by inviting the active branches to re-apply for their charters and get in on the large-scale peacetime program now underway. He stated that there were 295 branches active in Ontario today, led by a body of 50 executive members who met quarterly to deal with matters pertaining to Red Cross business throughout the nation.

Referring to surplus funds which have been subject to much controversial discussion, Mr. Hanna stated that a prepared balance sheet of Red Cross funds was submitted annually to be audited by the Auditor General of Canada, and that surplus funds were to be re-directed for peacetime work.

In speaking of the Red Cross blood transfusion service, which he believes will commence activities in Ontario by the first of October, Mr. Hanna explained that the system had been first given trial in British Columbia and was now making cross-continental progress.

As an illustration of the importance of this service, Mr. Hanna related an incident which happened recently in which the R. C. A. F. worked in conjunction with the Red Cross in order to save two lives.

"On a ship in the Bering Straits, off the Alaskan coast, a woman in childbirth was in need of blood transfusions. This situation was learned of in Edmonton, 1200 miles distant, and a plane carrying a doctor and two nurses, with the necessary blood, was flown to the aid of the stricken woman. Through the timely arrival of the doctor and the blood the lives of the mother and new-born child were saved."

Blood Free of Charge

The service is intended to supply whole blood free of charge to any hospital willing to administer it without charge to patients requiring transfusions, regardless of position. It is intended to have mobile clinics which will serve distribution centres. Technical equipment and staff will be provided by the national organization, while the branches need only supply quarters and panel of donors. In cases of emergency where whole blood cannot be supplied, arrangements will be made for a supply of blood plasma to be on hand.

Mr. Hanna concluded his address with the invitation to the ex-branches to renew their efforts in the communities. Expression of appreciation was expressed to the speaker by Mr. Wilson of Napanee.

Those persons to whom the credit was due for their efforts in making the session a success were the ladies who prepared the supper and the registrars, Mr. H. McCabe and Mrs. V. Lancaster, Belleville, and Mrs. J. Neville. The meeting was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem, led by Mrs. Neville.

"The work of mercy never ends."

Social Work Must Continue For All Time

Hamilton, June 11 (CP)—The importance of social work on the international front was discussed by a United Nations official Thursday night at the Canadian conference on social work.

Sir Raphael Cilento, director of social activities division of the U.N. Economic and Social Council, told the gathering of some 800 welfare workers that the U.N.'s success or failure depended on its realization that the social welfare of the individual was "the mainspring of security."

Social work, by its very nature, must continue for all time, he said. His division had chosen social welfare services—and child welfare first of all—as its initial project.

A lengthy discussion of "residence laws" occupied C.C.S.W. delegates at an earlier session at which they heard an American delegate report that his state had successfully abandoned these rules which could cause hardship to a family that had moved to a new district.

Finding itself in needy circumstances, such a family often was unable to get welfare assistance because it hadn't lived in that area long enough.

E. P. Reid of the Social Welfare Department, Rhode Island, said his state abolished its settlement law six years ago.

C. W. Lundy of Victoria, director of welfare, said that anyone in Canada should be able to reside anywhere he chose—and be eligible there to receive all benefits. It was "inconsistent" to talk of one world when moving across a state line could change one's rights.

At a business session of the conference Dorothy King of Montreal, director of the McGill School of Social Work, was named President of the conference. She succeeds Dr. H. S. Stewart of Hamilton.

Mr., Mrs. M. Mastin Honored by Friends In Consecon Community

The spacious farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mastin, Consecon, was the scene of a miscellaneous shower, from friends of the community, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Mastin, recently married.

Approximately sixty - five guests were welcomed by the hostess to the attractive rooms, effectively decorated with many colored iris blooms, backed by potted ferns.

Miss Betty Dempsey, of Ameliasburg, read an address of congratulation and welcome to the guests of honor, while a large basket decorated in pink and white, and filled with parcels wrapped in pastel colors, was presented by four little girls, Dawn and Dianne Mastin, nieces of the groom, with Ella Watson and Vivian Adams.

After opening their gifts Mr. and Mrs. Mastin expressed sincere thanks and appreciation for the many beautiful and useful articles disclosed, and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, who were Miss Barbara Mastin, Mrs. Wm. Mastin, of Rednersville, Mrs. Casey Mastin and Mrs. Albert Sager, of Belleville.

Mrs. Maurice Mastin had been honored earlier in the week with a linen shower in the home of Mrs. Casey Mastin, Franklin Street, Belleville.

Food Costs in Trailer Same as in Home

In the story of the family's experiences in getting housing and economical living in a trailer which appeared in Thursday's edition of the paper it was stated food costs were $21 a month. This should have been around that much a week instead Mrs. Powell said the big saving was in no heavy house rent to pay but cost of living would be same as living in a permanent home.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

On Friday afternoon the June meeting of the Bridge Street United Church W.M.S. was held in the ladies' parlor. After the opening hymn and invocation, the business was conducted by the President, Mrs. Finkle. Mrs. Langlois was called upon to give a chapter of the Study Book, "Great is the Company", and very capably conducted her listeners in imagination, to the different countries, where the Bible for the first time changed the life of its people.

Two members of the C.G.I.T. Francis Finkle and Shirley Fox gave piano solos and the members of the C.G.I.T. conducted a candle-lighting worship service, of affiliation with the W.M.S. Their leaders, Mrs. Howie and Mrs. Berry assisted the girls taking part who were, Doris Wickett, president of the Junior group, who acted as leader and Susanne Smith, Shirley Fox, Marylea Fox and Earla Wilson, as candle lighters. The girls presented a gift of $35 to the W.M.S.

The meeting closed with refreshments.

How Teetotalers Acknowledge a Toast

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are teetotalers, and we would like to have your guidance as to the proper thing for us to do when a toast is proposed . . . for example, at a dinner in a home or a public dinner or other occasion. . .and wine or other alcoholic drink is served for the drinking of the toast.

B. W.

That depends. If you and your husband are interested only in your own total abstinence from alcoholic drinks, you may do what many total abstainers do . .. lift the glass to your lips, but without drinking any of the wine or whatever-is-served. In this case, your raising of your glass with the others is your gracious acknowledgment of the toast. This procedure is quite customary with many people who don't drink alcoholic beverages . . . and others are usually so casual about it that they don't even notice that the person isn't drinking.

But if to you and your husband total abstinence is a principle you believe everyone should abide by; if perhaps you belong to a temperance society or organization; and if, therefore, you feel that even raising a glass containing an alcoholic beverage is a violation of your principle and would be a bad example to set, you should pledge your toast with water, if no other non-alcoholic drink is served. No explanation or apology is necessary . . . and of course no feeling of criticism should be shown. The point is that you and your husband will be doing what you [illegible] consider the right procedure, the honest procedure. Be right . . . but be graciously right . . . not self-righteous.

Who Should Give Her in Marriage?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman::

The wedding is to be in September, a church wedding, with bridesmaids, ushers, and so forth. Is it proper for the bride"s brother to give her in marriage, if her father is living and able to do so? The bride-to-be does not think it proper to have her brother give her awa yunder these circumstances. What is the proper procedure. . . . would it be proper to have her walk up the aisle alone?

H. M.

It is not possible to give a definite answer to this question without knowing more about the circumstances. If the denomination of the church in which the ceremony is to be performed does not require that the bride be given in marriage, the bride might merely walk up the aisle with her brother, and there would be no further procedure about the giving-in-marriage. Or if she is to be given in marriage, she might walk up the aisle with her brother, and then at the proper time in the ceremony, her mother might rise in her place in the first left pew and say "I do" in reply to the minister's question. Or if the bride has no mother, and her father is not present at the wedding, she may properly walk up the aisle with her brother who would give her in marriage.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Arms and the Woman

Comes now the season when arms are out in the open. It would be well for a woman to have a look-see at hers now and then. All the beautifying goes to the curly locks, the gardenia complexion, the rosy fingertips and, maybe, the figure. For feminine fins there are no cosmetics or general solacements. They get along on their own, as best they can. That's bad. Beautiful arms are a grand and glorious pulchritude asset.

The skin on the arms, lacking cosmetic attention, is often unsightly, rough, red or pebbly with gooseflesh. In beauty shops, you can have a hand and arm massage that will bring almost immediate improvement. With the help of the sister or the mama of the family, you can have this treatment in your home. "You do my arms, I'll do yours." A nice little game for two girls to play.

Your mother or sister can help you with the treatment

First, a rousing scrubbing with warm soap suds and a heavy brush. Scour like everything from fingertips to shoulders, fluffing up a rich suds. Rinse well, dry thoroughly.

A massage follows. If you must keep an eye on the good looks budget, substitute lanoline or cocoabutter for cream; both cost considerably less; both are excellent mediums for soothing the skin, refining the texture.

Start at the fingernails, forcing the lanolin into the surrounding cuticle. Thumb your knuckles well. Give your elbows a few creamy wallops; elbows are seldom what they should be. The flesh is coarse there, likely to be grey.

Form a bracelet of fingers and thumb, go edging up from wrist to shoulder, moving the arm on which the fingers work so there is fir mpressure. Smooth from wrist to shoulder with the palm of the hand; you will remove dead skin scales that are ever present ,give the flesh a rough appearance .

In a large tin salt shaker place some cosmetic meal; you can get this delightful toiletry at any cosmetic counter. Sprinkle over the oil to form a pack.

Right here is where you need help. Have someone wring large turkish towels out of steaming hot water, wrap them around your arms. Repeat half a dozen times. Remove the pack with the moist towel, dry well, have a friction with borated talcum.

If your arms are inclined to freckle, rub them with the pulp of a lemon at night. Don't be scornful of this old fashioned bleach; it really works.

Scrawny arms are due to malnutrition or finicky eating habits; no external application will make them plump and beautiful, put dimples in the elbows. The best cure will be found in consuming a quart of rich milk a day, having a hot cereal for breakfast, a bowl of crackers and milk at bed time.

Fashion Flashes

SOMEWHAT REMOVED from the basic spat shoe of gray suede and black patent leather, is today's version. The new model is a "shell" shoe with very high heel and a very high back with ankle strap. Heel and front quarter are of the patent, the rest gray suede.

THE WONDERFUL combination of fashion and the practical gets stronger all the time. Now we hear tell of a new invention, an ornamental earrings that conceals a hearing device. When it will be marketed, we don't know, but it's said to be on the way. Then there's the bracelet lighter, an English invention soon to appear.

DOING WELL after a long absence is the chiffon dress so nice for afternoon wear. Navy blue chiffon is used for a pretty frock, made with a deep square neckline finished with a self bow at one side. The fabric is tucked vertically all the way down to a deep hemline flounce. Short sleeves.

FORWARD jutting hats are cited for fall, but, say most women, these hats will have to have something to offset the popular bonnet and off-the-face type of hat. At any rate, beige felt makes a flat hat with a forward-thrust brim that is something like the prow of a ship. It ties under the chin with a narrow dark brown velvet ribbons, and the top is massed with tiny ostrich plumes shaded from beige through deep brown to pink.

NO END to clever ideas for rainy day togs. Latest is a smart raincoat complete with a full cape which is detachable, to be worn as a hood when occasion demands.

BROWN AND beige checked wool is used for this suit which is youthful, gay and pretty—surely a good combination. The jacket is short and very much fitted. It extends barely below the waist and just covers the hipbone. The sleeves are three-quarter length with deep cuffs. The separate white collar is detachable and the full skirt is flared.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Let Anyone Rush You

If there is ever a time when one should refuse to be rushed, it is when one is considering matrimony.

Of course, there are innumerable young couples who rush themselves into it and that is bad enough. But it is even worse when a young man or a young woman agrees to marry because he or she has yielded to pressure from some one else.

Here is a chap who describes himself as a "young, happy-go-lucky Marine," and who is teetering on the brink of marriage for no better reason than that the girl in the case wants a wedding now.

His story is that he has been going with the girl for a number of years, beginning when he was 13 and she was 12. Even now, he is only 17 and she, of course, just a year younger.

A few months ago when he was home on leave, the girl suggested that they get married, but he told her he wanted to think about it a while.

"I knew then as well as I do now that I shouldn't marry her," he says. "I hate to disappoint her, because I know that she is sure that I am going to marry her. You know that I couldn't very well support her at this time, and that we wouldn't be satisfied, as she would, to settle down.

"I have told her all of this, and tried to reason with her, but she doesn't understand. If I don't marry her, I know she will marry someone else. And I certainly don't want her to do that as I like her and want to marry her later. So please tell me what to do—should I marry her now, or wait until I am discharged, and how can I get her to wait?"

Now, this boy obviously knows very well himself that it would be extremely foolish for him to get married at his age, and at this point in his life, when he is not by any means ready to support a wife and a possible family. He should stand pat on that decision.

As to how to get the girl to wait for him, that is another matter, and something on which he will just have to take his chance. If he finds himself weakening because she holds before him the threat that he may lose her, he might consider the fact that there would be a very strong possibility that if they married now, the marriage would come to an untimely end in a very short time. The career he has chosen is going to take him from home for long periods of time, and there are very few 16-year-old girls who are going to be either happy or satisfied married to a husband they rarely see. Inevitably, she would want the fun and the companionship normal for any 16-year-old, and it would be very hard, indeed, for her to keep her mind on her absent husband. The same would hold true on his side.

So, my advice to this boy who signs himself "Happy Single" is to be the wiser one of the two and refuse to let himself be rushed.

AIR FORCE DAY, SATURDAY, JUNE 12th

Curtiss' JN 4 D's in World War I

Air Force Personnel Will Welcome Thousands Saturday

Ottawa, June 11 (CP)—Hoping for fine weather, the Air Force stands by Saturday to welcome thousands of men, women and children and show what the peacetime birdmen are up to.

To make things as easy as possible, they even had mass parking lots for John Doe, and nursery grounds where expert baby-sitters—the Nursing Sisters who form a part of the service—looked after the kids while mother and father gawked at the air displays.

Few things were left on the secret list, and the visitor to the "open house" at 20 stations from Whitehorse, N.W.T., to Halifax could get a look at anything from search-and-rescue demonstrations to captured Nazi suicide jet missiles.

Halifax planned a convincing rescue job in which an airman would land in the sea, demonstrate the use of dingy equipment, and finally get picked up by a helicopter.

Ottawa's station at Rockcliffe offered the latest British Columbia flood pictures at its photo section, which receives films within 12 hours of the time they are taken over the flood areas. These films help plot the course of the flood.

An air race from Montreal to Rockcliffe in Vampire jet planes also was scheduled. Each station had its own specialty to show off.

RCAF Emerging as Streamlined Service Capable of Serving Canada in Peace and War

Speeding across Canada's skies in a jet-propelled Vampire and fast four engine North Star aircraft, the RCAF of 1948 is emerging from its post-war re-organization as a streamlined service capable of serving Canada in peace and war, more than four times as large as in 1939 and capable of rapid expansion in the event of an emergency.

Today's RCAF has three main components, the RCAF Regular, with an established strength of 16,100 (manned to 75% in 1948); the RCAF Auxiliary, 15 squadrons (4,500 personnel); and the RCAF Reserve, a large and important pool of trained veterans.

Operational elements of the RCAF Regular which have been, are being, or will be formed, in the near future consist of: 1 Coastal Reconnaissance squadron (Lancaster), 2 Transport squadrons (North Star and Dakota), 1 Mobile Tactical Wing (Mitchell, Mustang, Dakota, Auster), 1 Interceptor Fighter Wing (Vampire) and 2 Photo Survey squadrons (Lancaster, Mitchell and Dakota), and a Search and Rescue organization.

Two Commands Cover Canada

Two geographical Commands cover Canada. Central Air Command with headquarters at Trenton, Ont., is responsible for the eastern section, and North West Air Command with headquarters at Edmonton, Alta., covers the western part of the country. Maintenance Command is responsible for functional duties of equipment, supply and construction in the RCAF, and Air Transport Command controls all Air Force transport operations.

Eighty-five per cent of the Regular force is made up of ground crew tradesmen, who receive training at Camp Borden, Aylmer, Clinton, Trenton and Rockcliffe. Training is not confined to recruits but many of the wartime tradesmen who have been re-mustered to other trades and are given refresher courses. In addition more than 2,500 airmen are at present taking correspondence courses to raise their academic standing, and "In Service" academic training at Aylmer, Ont. is bringing trainees up to matriculation standards in mathematics and science.

Training in Full Swing

Aircrew training is now in full swing and flying schools are holding their first post-war wings parades this summer. Aircrew training is now confined to two groups—pilots and radio-navigators. Under a new plan, qualified high school graduates and airmen, selected from the ranks, train as aircrew, are commissioned upon graduation and then complete a six-year short service period as aircrew. Some are then selected for permanent commissions and the remainder are appointed to the Auxiliary or Reserve, with substantial gratuities. This scheme is aimed at keeping average age of aircrew at a low figure and furnishing a constant flow of trained personnel to the Auxiliary or Reserve forces.

C.C.F. Nominates Candidate For Every Sask. Seat

Regina, June 11 — (CP) — Premier Douglas' C.C.F. party, in power in Saskatchewan for the last four years, nominated candidates for every seat Thursday when nominations closed for 50 seats to be decided in the Saskatchewan elections June 24. Another two seats will elect members July 22.

The Liberals entered 40 candidates, Social Credit 36 and Progressive Conservatives nine. The Progressive Conservatives have not had a representative in the legislature since 1934. One Labor-Progressive candidate is entered, the over-all total being 143 candidates.

Premier Douglas is opposed by two candidates in Weyburn, F. C. Eaglesham on a joint Liberal-Progressive Conservative ticket, and Mrs. Isobel Paxman as Social Credit.

Liberal Leader Walter Tucker in Rosthern, faces opposition from George Bellhart, a Social Credit nominee, and Wilbert S. Henschell of the C.C.F.

Social Credit Chief J. J. Haldeman also is involved in a three-way fight. His opponents in Yorkton are A. P. Swallow of the C.C.F. and Andrew M. Kindred, Liberal.

The new legislature will present a different appearance from the last in that the three armed services representatives no longer will be holding seats.

Calvin's Doctrine Of Predestination Debated at Length

Toronto, June 11 (CP) — The Calvinist doctrine of predestination, puzzling to many Presbyterians was debated in closing stages of the Presbyterial Church's 74th General Assembly.

The assembly will meet next year in Kitchener.

John Calvin's doctrine, referred to in the Westminster Confession of Faith, says "some men and angels are predestined to everlasting life and others preordained to everlasting death."

Rev. W. Stanford Reid of Montreal opposed the report of a committee set up by the assembly last year to interpret the controversial article of faith. He said the committee went beyond its scope and that its report "differs with the doctrines of the church."

The report differed from the Calvinist doctrine. It reasoned that man was elected to Heaven through Christ, who absolved all men of sin when he was crucified. Only unbelievers might be eternally damned.

Rev. J. Lewis McLean of Vancouver led an attack against Federal income tax regulations. He complained that some ministers paying rent for manses not owned by their churches, have higher taxable incomes than ministers living in church-owned houses.

"If ministers living in rented houses would stop paying the rent and let their church do it for them, they wouldn't be taxed extra," said Rev. Louis H. Fowler of Port Hope.

The assembly authorized appointment of a missionary-at-large to work among Presbyterian French-Canadians in Quebec and New Brunswick.

Rev. A. S. Reid of Montreal had requested a commission to "co-ordinate" work of the Presbyterian French Mission Committee in the presbyteries of Montreal, Quebec and Mirimachi, N.B.

A wage increase for student ministers who spend their summers in mission fields was also approved. Their salaries will be boosted from $16 weekly to $20.

Cincinnati — (AP) — A strip-tease artist swaying through her take-'em-off ruotine isn't obscene —she's one of God's children, says Judge Stanley Struble.

In a long and almost poetic ruling, he declared unconstitutional Thursday an Ohio statute dealing with obscene literature and acquitted Oscar Lerner, news dealer, who was charged with possessing and selling obscene literature.

Of a strip-tease series in a magazine, he commented:

"These front views, as well as the other views, are of God's own children as He made them in His image. There can be no obscenity in God's own handiwork . . .

"Sure, normal sex ideas are all right. All mankind have sex ideas. Nature is aflame with sex ideas — the hoot of the owl, the coo of the dove, the blossoms of the flowers, plants and trees, the spawning of fish.

"Sex is the why and wherefore of life and living."

Los Angeles —(AP) — When an errant motorist bowled over four motorcycle policemen who had stopped to give truck driver Jack Levine a ticket for speeding, Levine knew what to do.

He gave the officers a quick lift and overtook the other driver. Eugene E. Dunlap, 46, was booked on a felony hit-run charge.

The officers, none seriously hurt, picked up their mangled motorcycles and thanked Levine for his assistance.

But they didn't tear up his ticket.

Michigan City, Ind. — (AP) — Dr. J. R. Bennett, 59-year-old dentist, was charged with assault and battery Thursday after Mrs. Margaret Agnew, 33, reported he pulled 12 of her teeth at her home without her permission.

She told police the dentist and her husband both drank from a bottle of whisky. Then the dentist set to work, charged, and took a drink of the whisky after each extraction. She stated the ordeal lasted four hours.

Washington — (AP) — "There I was, flat on my back, at 10,000 feet" — so starts the standard tall tale of the airman.

But Navy Lieutenant Gerald H. Wilson would have to add sheepishly at that point: "And then I fell out."

And a student pilot, learning the hard way, brought the plane out of a difficult inverted spin and landed it safely though he had never before soloed — while Wilson proved that his parachute was in good working order.

The United States Navy told the story of the accident today. Wilson was showing student pilot Aristedes A. Mascarenhas, of the Brazilian Air Force, what to do in case of an upside-down spin.

Installment Buying Is on Increase In Canada and U.S.

Banff, Alta., June 11 — (CP)— Installment buying, the craze of the 1920's, is on the increase in Canada and the United States, Dean Ashby of Omaha, Neb., newly-elected president of the National Retail Credit Association said today.

In a press interview following his election at final sessions of the International Credit Conference Thursday, Mr. Ashby said installment buying, under its new titles of time payments or budget plans, will continue the expansion of credit for several years.

"But," he added, "we are not going wild this time as some of us did before the depression of 1929. There is a keen interest on the part of credit men and bureau managers to control customers' credit requests, so that there will be no over expansion."

More than 1,000 delegates representing Canada, the United States and Alaska attended the conference held at Banff Springs Hotel. They voted to hold the 1949 conference at Boston, Mass.

Thursday night Harold Genser of Winnipeg was elected president of the Credit Granters Association of Canada.

During the five-day conference, delegates heard a prediction that the present high price of automobiles and furniture would come down; heard warnings from leaders of the business that they must use discretion in granting credit or face government restrictions.

The credit granters of Canada also voted to hire a field secretary for their association and to start immediately on publication of a new "Credit in Canada" magazine.

During his press interview Dean Ashby said some of the ideas for credit control used during the Second World War are being used in peacetime in the United States.

"Larger down payments are being asked and the limits on the length of time for payment are being made shorter. An encouraging sign to my mind is that though outstanding accounts receivable are greatly increased, collections are on a high level."

Mickey Metrunitz Found Guilty On Car Theft Charge

Picton—Mickey Metrunitz of Toronto, was found guilty on a charge of theft of a car owned by Leland Blackman when he appeared before Judge Wilfred S. Lane in County Court here yesterday. Sentence was deferred until other charges against accused have been heard. A charge of breaking and entering the brewers' retail store here is proceeding. On the theft charge, several witnesses gave evidence but defence counsel E. J. Murphy, Toronto offered no defence, and Judge Lane stated that there was no alternative but to find accused guilty.

The charges arose out of the break-in of the local brewers' store on April 26. A safe containing around one thousand dollars and valuable papers was carried off and blown open. A Toronto car was found abandoned after Constable E. Marvin fired a shot at it. After police had staged an all-day manhunt, three men were captured in Blackman's car as they sought to flee from the closely - guarded island county.

Peter Carey and Harry Olaski, also of Toronto, will appear on similar charges in connection with the same robbery.

Foxboro Film Council Meets

A large garden party sponsored by the Foxboro and District film council, was planned for July 14 at the June meeting of the council held in Marsh Hill School on Wednesday evening.

Committees were named to arrange for grounds, booths, band music, and film showing; the event to take place in Foxboro. A ball game will be one of the major attractions.

After this business was fully discussed, a film "After six o'clock" was shown. This depicted life in an urban centre in England where neighbors did not know each other and the only recreational activities were to walk the streets or stand along the sidewalks.

There was found to be an urgent need for something different and out of this need and the urge to do something about it, the community centre sprang into being.

Discussion Held

An extensive discussion followed led by Mr. Warren of Frankford Public School. The angles of discussion were: (1) Idea of Community Centre; (2) Is it possible or advisable in a rural area?; (3) Which is the better, one large or several small centres?; (4) How financed; (5) What included in the building?; (6) What kind of activities indulged in etc.

Mr. R. Ward, representative of the National Film Board, of Peterboro, showed three films which were greatly enjoyed, these were "Hot Ice", a hockey game in Maple Leaf Gardens, A sail boat race and Tuna Fishing off the coast of Nova Scotia.

A very pleasant social half-hour was spent during lunch. The attendance was well over sixty and these film council meetings are gaining in interest. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Sept. 8.

Tony Zale K.O's Graziano In Third Round to Regain Middleweight Boxing Title

Newark, N. J., June 11 — (AP) — Tony Zale, the champion who came back, charted a fighting future today over the prostrate form of Rocky Graziano.

Zale, the underdog, regained the world's middleweight boxing title by knocking out Graziano, just as he predicted he would, in the third round of their third encounter.

Although 34, Zale immediately proclaimed he would not retire, offered to fight all comers, and declared:

"I feel like I'm going the other way again — back to youth."

Marcel Cerdan of France was the boxer mentioned as Zale's probable next opponent, providing Cerdan takes back the European title from Cyrille Delannoit of Belgium July 10.

Both of the previous fights between the poised, silent Zale and the rough-and-rugged 26-year-old Graziano went six rounds, but Zale needed only half that last night. He floored Graziano after less than a minute of the first round, then lost the second when Rocky came surging back.

But in the third, Zale was absolute master. He downed Graziano for the count of seven, twice had him hanging on the ropes, and ended matters with a tremendous left to the head after 1:08 minutes. In between all this punishment Graziano kept on swinging.

The crowd numbered 21,497 in Ruppert Stadium, paid a gross of $335,646 which was brought to $405,646 by $45,000 for radio and $25,000 for movie rights. Television was banned.

Graziano Favored

Zale weighed 158 3/4 and Graziano 158½ for the match, set to go 15 rounds.

The betting odds favored Graziano, as champion, 5 to 12. Graziano was assured a purse of $120,000, and Zale $80,000. Graziano, whose real name is Rocco Silvio Barbella, comes from Brooklyn. Zale, born Anthony Florian Zaleski, is from Gary, Ind.

The match was originally set for Wednesday night but was rained out. Thursday night's clear skies made a success of the first promotional venture of the Tournament of Champions, Inc., first to challenge the boxing supremacy of Promoter Mike Jacobs in the New York metropolitan area.

Zale and Graziano could not fight in New York, where Graziano is under suspension for failing to report a bribe offer which, he claimed, was just a joke anyway.

Numbed, Bruised

Graziano was numbed, bruised and baffled after he was revived and taken to his dressing room. He received a concussion and for a time his reflexes were gone.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, physician of the New York State Athletic Commission, went at once to Graziano in an unofficial capacity. He reported that Zale's terrific blows could be serious. Questioned Graziano closely as to the day and his own identity, and then recommended rest and ice packs. Graziano went to his home and visited late with friends.

He was pronounced "absolutely okay" early today by his manager, Irving Cohen. Eight-ounce gloves were used instead of the six-ounce of New York State. Even so, Graziano ended up with a big lump on his right forehead and a cut on the bridge of his nose.

Graziano Ready To Fight Zale At Anytime

By ED CORRIGAN

Newark, N. J., June 11 — (AP) — Tony Zale was as happy as a prelim boy who had just won his first fight after he lifted the middleweight crown from Rocky Graziano's head Thursday night.

Zale, the Gary, Ind., steelworker, just grinned and shook endless hands thrown at him in his dressing room from all directions. When the turmoil quieted down, though, the new middleweight champion — for the second time — answered the barrage of questions thrown at him.

"I knew I had him at the start from the way he reacted to the first punch," he said, smiling. "I could have gone 15 rounds."

Someone asked Tony, who is 34, if he was thinking of retiring.

"Retiring?" he repeated, "No, I'm not retiring, not when I feel so good. Rocky didn't hurt me a bit, not even in the second round when he got in a couple of punches. I finally finished him with a left hook."

Zale's co-manager and trainer, Art Winch, was more voluble.

"We knew just what sort of fight Graziano would fight," he said, "when Graziano threw straight lefts and brought around his rights, Tony weaved in under him, according to our plans."

"Sure, we know Tony's 34," chimed in Ray Arcel, one of his seconds, "but at 34, he's a younger man than Graziano is at 26."

In Graziano's dressing room, the dazed ex-champ was stretched out on a table, with trainer Whitey Bimstein hovering over him. The room was sweltering and the Rock was trying valiantly to answer questions put to him by the sports writers.

"What was the punch that got you, Rock?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he answered in a voice that was barely audible. "It must have been in the first round because I don't remember anything after that."

"How about another fight with him?"

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Saturday night after the beans and bath, the Sunday roast in the ice-box and the family groceries safely tucked away out of junior's reach, if you crave for some outdoor enjoyment, merely hie yourself to the Exhibition Grounds where the brawlingest brawl of the Central Ontario Baseball League is scheduled to take place.

• • •

Yes, kiddies, 'tis the night the proud Petes from Peterborough, the guys who love an Irishman as well as a ball game and who at the present time are perched proudly on top of the loop ladder, looking squarely into the eyes of Bill Easton's Batawans, and over his shoulder at Oshawa, and through a telescope at Kingston struggling to get a foothold on the bottom rung, meet the doughty men from the neighboring Shoetown, who are growling for Peterborough blood and vow they will get it. Figuratively, that is.

• • •

The Murphy-led Petes have yet to taste the bitter aloes of defeat. They have swept all before them in a straight stretch of four victories and this far they appear to be the outstanding team in the league. They're a hustling bustling bevy of ballsters who can run, hit and field with the best of 'em. But Goliath was a tough guy in that Far Eastern League, too, until he met the superior hurler, a diminutive David. And you know what happened to him.

• • •

But Bill Easton's crew are not the least bit bothered about the game winning exploits of the rampaging Liftlock laddies. They too, are feeling their baseball oats, and there's nothing they'd like better than to send the Murphys home cold potatoes. And if they don't it won't be because they weren't out there doing and "dyeing" for dear Old Alma Mammy Batawa.

• • •

Bill Easton laid aside that more or less perpetual scowl yesterday morning, smiled sweetly when the telephone rang (at first he thought it was the Dodgers offering him "The Lip" for two pairs of shoes, Ken Peacock, and two ice cream cones) and growled "hello" in his worst baritone.

• • •

"This is George speaking" came the voice at the other end.

"Sorry" growled Bill, "but election's over—and I don't vote your style anyway. Whaddayawant? Got any ball players in the cabinet?" If yuh have, send 'em down, I'll farm 'em out to Northern Electric or to Jack Carson's Merry Robin Hoods for further seasoning. They won't do the Electrics or the Carsonites any harm either, even if they do think a baseball is a dance at an army camp."

• • •

To get down to earth, Bill informed us that his Batawans are in the pink of condition, raring to go, and are ready to give the princely Petes the battle of their lives come tomorrow night's floodlighting.

• • •

He has Jim Bowman, Gordy Muffitt and George Bedard ready for the hurling chore, and he figures that long Ken Peacock can take a well-deserved rest as well as show his baseball versatility by cavorting around, through, and about the centre field alfalfa, as well as poking the odd triple out where the darkness begins.

• • •

The rest of the crew are ready and fit, and are looking forward to the hardest test of their seasonal career when they tangle up with the lads from Peterborough. Batawa has met the Petes but once and that at the start of the season, when they gave Eddie Murphy the scare of his life for a half-dozen innings. Then the Bats wobbled. The Petes bludgeons swung into action, and the roof fell in. But it was sufficient to give the Shoemen confidence that they perhaps would take them at the next meeting.

• • •

So all-in-all tomorrow night's floodlight tilt, and you had better be there at eighty-thirty for that's when the curtain rises, has all the earmarks of being a neat piece of baseballing taking all into consideration. And also taking into consideration the high jinks and didoes, the boys of the intermediates have been staging the past few nights, a good spot of diamondeering will not come amiss.

• • •

Tonight under the lights, the strengthened Northern Electric squad tangles with the Men of Church from the old home town in Spain. Yep, the Picton gang, under the eye of M'sieu Church and Walt. Fraser prance into town for their first appearance here—and don't think they'll be pushovers. The Colonel has gathered unto his wing a neat bevy of ballchasers including Franky Dyer and Keith MacDonald and the squad is improving with every game.

• • •

Northern Electric will have a much stronger squad than heretofore and the positive and negative lads are out to crash the win column for the first time. "Lefty" Noakes has been working the lads hard in preparation for the tilt and it should be worth seeing.

• • •

Along Softball Boulevard, the men of Sedore trek to Trenton where they engage the RCAF Flyers in mushball action in a scheduled Lakeshore Softball League attraction. The Canada Cementmen have been idle due to rain for the past few nights and they'll be in top form tonight. And lest we forget, the grapevine whispered to us the other day that the Pepsi-Cola squad of the Belleville Commercial League threw a scare in the honorable Frank's manly bosom by batting his Cementmen to a tie, in an exhibition tilt.

• • •

And now, back to the County Council foundry.

Sain and Spahn Regain Form For Boston Braves

Johnny Sain and Warren Spahn once again are being called the Mr. Right and Mr. Left of the Boston Braves' pitching staff. They each won 21 games for the Braves in 1947 and the National League pennant hopes of the Braves hinge on their duplicating that fear this year.

Sain, the righthander, pitched the Braves into second place Thursday night by beating St. Louis Cardinals in a night game at St. Louis for his third consecutive win.

It was the Braves' fifth straight victory and second in a row over the Cardinals. Spahn, the lefthander, stopped the Red Birds 11-5 Wednesday night for his fifth victory.

Bob Elliott led the Braves' 17-hit attack against five Card pitchers with a homer, double and two singles.

The Giants were beaten by the last-place Cubs in a day game at Chicago while the Pittsburgh Pirates turned back Brooklyn Dodgers 4-1 in a night contest at Pittsburgh.

Russ Meyer went the route against the Giants, allowing only six hits.

Bonham Brilliant

Brilliant two-hit pitching by Ernie Bonham featured the Pirates' victory over Brooklyn. The Pirates scored their first run in the second inning when Umpire Al Barlick ruled that pitcher Harry Taylor balked with the bases loaded. Dodger Manager Leo Durocher protested the ruling so vigorously he was banished.

The American League's leading Cleveland Indians took a 15-7 pounding from the Red Sox in a day game at Boston. The loss ended a five-game Cleveland winning streak and cut their margin to three games over New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics.

Bobby Feller started for Cleveland but was routed in the third inning when the Red Sox jammed eight runs home.

The Athletics also enjoyed a big inning in trouncing Detroit Tigers 10-4, but the generosity of Tiger pitchers contributed to the scoring.

Philadelphia pushed seven runners home in the fourth inning with the aid of only two hits and seven walks.

Philadelphia now trails the second-place Yanks by four percentage points. The Yanks' scheduled game with Chicago White Sox in New York was postponed because of rain.

Bases on balls also figured prominently in Washington Senators' 5-4 triumph over St. Louis Browns.

The Senators won the game in the bottom half of the ninth when reliefer Frank Biscan walked Mark Christman with the bases loaded and one out.

Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phillies were idle.

Almost-Perfect Game Written Into the Records

(By The Canadian Press)

An almost-perfect game was written into the Intercounty Baseball League senior records last night as three Senior Ontario baseball games were played out.

Bill Russ was the hurler who missed a no-hit, no-run game by a single hit as he pitched Stratford Nationals to a 9-0 victory over London Majors. League-leading Waterloo Tigers, meanwhile, lengthened their first-place lead by taking a 4-1 decision from Brantford Red Sox.

In the only other senior tilt of the night, Garson defeated Copper Cliff Redmen 9-6 in a floodlight Nickel Belt baseball game.

APPOINTED AIDE DE CAMP

London, June 10 — (Reuters)—The Duke of Edinburgh has been appointed personal aide de camp to his father-in-law, the King. The appointment, made at the King's request, is effective from Wednesday, it was officially announced.

Field Olympic Athletes Will Be Hard to Choose,

Montreal, June 11 — (CP) — Selections of Canada's representatives for the track and field events will likely prove more of a headache in the field division than in the track.

Although athletes will be chosen largely on the basis of showings in the Olympic final trials in Montreal July 9 and 10, it seems assured that on the basis of previously-set standards and actual competition there will be little trouble sorting out the track men. They undoubtedly will grab off a sizeable majority of the 18 places open for the team.

With the field men it's a different story. Canada seems to have a better supply of sprinters and distance fellows than those who do the jumping and tossing.

The hurdlers, too, lack quantity and quality. About the best prospects, on past performances, for the 110-metre high hurdles in Kim Kimbark, a teen-age youngster from Toronto Sports College. But he lacks experience and specialized coaching.

He won the comparable 120-yard event at the interscholastic games in Montreal last Saturday in 16.8 seconds, 2.7 seconds slower than the Olympic record set in 1936.

There has been no between-Olympic-years competition in Canada in the 400-metre hurdles. Bill Larochelle of the University of Western Ontario may take a fling at it.

Likely to Improve

Dave Blair of the University of British Columbia has made six feet, 3¾ inches in the high jump this year, compared with Canada's Olympic standard of six feet, three inches. The Olympic record is six feet, 7 15/16 inches.

Wally Brown of Toronto registered 46 feet, 7 ½ inches for the hop, step and jump in competition last year, a mark lower than the Canadian Olympic standard and well below Olympic records. He will likely improve.

Wally may also appear in the Olympic finals against his twin brother, Harold, and Lionel Fournier of McGill in the broad jump.

Likely candidates for the pole vault are Murray Gayman of St. Catharines, S. Edgerton of West End Y, Toronto, and Ian Hulme of the Montreal police force. None, with marks of around 12 feet, appears likely to be an Olympic threat. Henry Wilwka of Ottawa Glebe, who set a junior Canadian record of 11 feet, 6 5/8 inches last Saturday, might walk off with the Dominion title himself.

The shot-put men appear to be out of Olympic class. There won't be serious Olympic competition in the discus, javelin and hammer events at the zone trials.

The decathlon, a medley of 10 events, will be competed for this year for the first time in Canadian championships.

Johnson Regarded As Best Mound Prospect by Cards

(By The Associated Press)

Manager Cedric Durst's confidence in the pitching ability of young Ken Johnson is beginning to pay off for the hustling Rochester Red Wings.

Johnson is regarded by the parent St. Louis Cardinals as one of their best mound prospects. They shipped the 25-year-old resident of Lawrence, Kansas to Wings on the condition that he be used as a starting pitcher.

The lanky lefthander made his first start on May 24 and lasted less than two innings as he walked eight batters and allowed a hit.

He won a game in a relief role but was belted out in his next two starts but Durst stuck with him and now he's coming thru.

Johnson, who pitched a one hit shutout for the Cards against the Chicago Cubs late last season, has won his last two starts.

He beat Buffalo, 5-4 Sunday and Wednesday night he hurled the Wings to a 4-0 three-hit victory over the Baltimore Orioles in the second half of a double header.

Johnson was a trifle wild, walking eight but he offset this by striking out ten. He didn't allow a hit after the first inning until Warren Robinson, a former Wing singled in the ninth.

The Wings also won the opener, 5-4 when pinch - hitter Russ Derry cracked a two-run homer with two out in the ninth.

The twin triumphs enabled the Wings to pull up within one percentage point of the fourth place Jersey City Giants who dropped a 10-4 decision to the second place Montreal Royals.

By winning, the Royals moved to within six percentage points of the front-running Newark Bears who along with the Toronto Maple Leafs were idle.

The third place Syracuse Chiefs divided a twin-bill with the Buffalo Bisons, winning the second game, 4-1 after losing the opener, 3-2.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 11 — (CP)—The Sunday sport issue took a going-over in a committee room at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., last week.

The dilemma, as recounted by Emil (Sault Star) Rajnovich, arose when two local softball clubs decided to play a Sabbath game. They got permission from President Merrett Miller of the Sault Softball Association, and Bay View Athletics duly trounced the Falcons 20-5.

Then came trouble. The S. S. A. executive overruled Miller, pointed out that Sunday sport was illegal and ordered the game replayed.

Why, Ray asked, since the game was played and nobody complained, should the Association throw out the game.

Opponents of Sunday sport could answer that one. But the executive's next decision left both sides speechless.

They okayed a replay of the Falcons-Athletics game on the following Sunday — across the river in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where Sunday ball is legal.

When a 75-year-old harness-racing driver gets tossed out of his sulky during a race and picks himself up without injury, it's a minor bit of news.

When he climbs back into his seat and finishes fifth in a field of 12, it adds a nice touch.

That was what happened to Alex Williams last Saturday, says Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller, but the story doesn't end there.

The driver from nearby Beamsville went on to drive Mildred Richards to victory in the next two heats of the 2:28 at Picton, and won the event.

Dream Team

The Leafs, a Toronto baseball fan commented, aren't doing too badly in the National League.

"You know," he told Bunny (Toronto Telegram) Morganson, "The team Philadelphia Phillies were going to send to Toronto way back last September, then suddenly the boys grew up."

He checked them off — Ralph Caballero at third, Gran Hamner at short, Richie Ashburn in centre field, Johnny Blatnik in left and Al Lakeman, catching.

RCAF Emerging as Streamlined

In addition to fitting itself to serve as an efficient defence force the RCAF has various peacetime tasks, serving the public interest and which at the same time give personnel operational training. Photographic coverage of Canada is carried out by two squadrons of Air Transport Command. More than two million square miles have been covered since the RCAF began the job in 1921. In 1947 over 400,000 square miles were chalked up and a higher figure is planned for 1948. Photos are used for mapping and aid in development of Canada's natural resources.

R. C. A. F. Responsibility

Search and rescue is a responsibility of the RCAF, which co-ordinates and largely operates the organization. Since taking over Canada's commitments under ICAO, two years ago the RCAF has set up a thrilling record of mercy flights in various parts of the country.

Important work in research and development is being carried out by the Air Force at the Experimental and Proving Establishment, Rockcliffe, Ont., and the Winter Experimental Establishment, Edmonton, Alta.

Ten of the 15 Auxiliary Squadrons will be activated by the end of 1948. These squadrons are located in Montreal, Toronto, London, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver. Squadron members fly and maintain aircraft of operational standards, and emphasis is placed on modern jet fighters. The RCAF wants good men to fill the establishments of the auxiliary squadrons.

More than 40,000 veterans have applied for membership in the RCAF Reserve in the first 5 months of 1948. Reserve training will not commence before 1949 but applications for membership are tabulated and preparations for transfer to the active classes of the Reserve are under way. All Reserve members are available for Air Force duty in the event of an emergency.

Canada's RCAF is much larger than the full time Regular Force, and will be able to fulfill peacetime commitments and ready to meet any crisis with quick action.

Counter-Claim Filed Against Washington Club

(By The Canadian Press)

Leonard Peto, Montreal sports promoter, filed Thursday in Philadelphia a $287,517 counter-claim contending the Washington Lions' hockey management had no grounds for its $53,647 suit because it violated the terms of the contract.

M. J. Uline Company of Washington, owners of the Lions' American Hockey League franchise, sued Peto May 1 in United States district court. The company claimed an alleged deficit in operation of the Washington Club in 1947 as a "farm" club for Philadelphia Maroons which holds an inactive franchise in the National Hockey League.

Peto said operation by the Washington Club as a "farm" for his Maroons was a "flop" because the Lions' management failed properly to publicize its home games. This resulted in a loss of more than $92,000 in paid admissions, Peto said.

One part of Peto's counter-claim is for $50,238 in damages and another is for $132,000 representing the waiver price of $3,000 upon each of the 44 players who comprised the Washington team.

Monte Kennedy, Minneapolis Miller lefthander, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Louisville Colonels of the American Association Thursday night in Minneapolis to win 14-0. Kennedy achieved his feat with a dramatic finish when he struck out the last three men to face him in the ninth inning.

Lloyd Percival, director of Toronto's sports college, said Thursday that prospects of Canada's Olympic track team in London this summer are not good, but the experience should aid the Dominion's young stars in making a better showing in 1952. He said few lads in the Dominion can match times set by Canada's 12th place team in the 1936 Olympics. But Percival warned against too much gloom, pointing to past Olympics when star athletes fared poorly.

The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, released dates for the 1948 season in Montreal Thursday, and announced that the schedule would open with the week-long Vancouver City championships June 12-19. High point of the season will be the Davis Cup tie at Montreal July 8-10 when the Canadian team meets Mexico. Dates of Ontario's schedule is as follows: June 14-10: Ottawa District championships, Ottawa. July 17-24: Province of Ontario (open) championships, Ottawa. July 24-31: Canadian (open), championship, Toronto.

Fight Manager Dave Yack expressed approval in Toronto Thursday on a suggested fight for the British Empire lightweight title in London, with his charge, Canada's lightweight champion, Li'l Arthur King as one of the contenders. Yack, along with promoter Frank Tunney, has been trying to arrange the fight with British champion Billy Thompson for Toronto but after talking with British promoter Jack Solomons Yack said he would take the best offer.

Opening lead from west was diamond jack. East realized quickly that south may need several club tricks to make the contract. If so, he saw a plan that may frustrate such a result.

With a club stopper, hope of defeat may depend on getting west in for future diamond tricks. So, east covered his partner's jack with diamond queen. It was to force out the south king at once.

Had east played diamond ace on trick one the course of south would have been apparent. Hold-up diamond king until round three of that suit. Lose a club finesse and stop any east return.

With the queen play by east, however, south is in doubt. Seeing what you see, the king should refuse this trick. But south could not see what you see. He did not know who had diamond ace.

West may have diamond ace. If so, a diamond return from east will ruin the king and the contract right there. West could have made such a lead from A J 10 with others. Looks bad.

At many tables the south player ran with diamond king on trick one. East soon got in with club king and cashed diamond ace. Return of a diamond was then enough to enter east for defeating diamonds.

A couple of south players refused the bait. They did not hop in with a diamond king for the first trick. These were taking chances, of course. But it blocked west out of defeating diamond tricks.

These souths made their contract. Some called it courage. Some called them stubborn. Some said they were just plain lucky.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 11 (AP)—Are actors egotists; British-born Charles Laughton rises Captain-Bligh-like and utters a hearty "no!"

Here's what the man says:

"Film actors are the most humble people on earth.

"A bank clerk can afford to think that he looks like Clark Gable and be wrong, but a movie star must be objective. He has to know his face and personality so he can capitalize on them.

"The bubble of an actor's ego is punctured the day he sees his image on the screen. His most horrible moments are while watching himself give a bad performance."

Publicity Misleading

Laughton feels that false publicity has led the people to believe that actors are conceited. People confuse a star's screen personality with his actual self, declared Charles.

"I've seen scientists, doctors, politicians—many types act like pompous fools in public and they never guessed what asses they were.

"Stage actors have the same disadvantage. A film player knows he has good and bad characteristics because he has studied them on the screen. That doesn't permit much conceit."

Our discourse closed with what should be one of the more arresting statements of the year. Said Laughton, and I quote:

"I've never known an actor who was a heel."

Unquote.

Hogan, Worsham Equal Pace-Setters In U.S. Open

Los Angeles, June 11 — (AP) — Tournament favorite Ben Hogan and defending title-holder Lew Worsham were equal pace-setters today as the field teed off in the second round of the United States Open golf championship.

Their opening-day 67s chopped four shots off par for the long and exacting Riviera course but the sterling links performances told only half the story. The other half was the exclusive property of Worsham, the Oakmont, Pa., pro who crossed up the experts for the time being.

Worsham won the crown a year ago at St. Louis and won it the hard way. He beat out Sam Snead in the playoff after the two had tied with a near-record 72-hole total of 282. In spite of that fine showing, Worsham's stock had fallen when the first-round firing began here Wednesday.

Hogan, practically the unanimous choice, came through with a fine 31-36 for his 67. Worsham, picked to finish anywhere from 10th to 20th in the famed links derby, posted a 33-34.

AT THE McCARTHY — Filmed in Shanghai, Cairo, Havana and the far corners of the world, Columbia's "To the Ends of the Earth," was two years in the making. The scene above is an artist's impression of the epic drama, now playing at the McCarthy Theatre, with Dick Powell and Signe Hasso starred.

72 Beaver Pelts Seized by Officials

North Bay, June 10 (CP)—Seventy-two beaver pelts, part of a shipment of furs valued at close to $70,000, have been seized by Fish and Wildlife officials in North Bay. The beaver, apparently trapped illegally and without the official government seal, were confiscated by H. C. Haskins, acting Fish and Wildlife specialist, and Overseer Leonard Cote, when they checked the huge fur shipment as it passed through North Bay.

Authorities said today that the shipment was made by S. O. Ticknor, Cochrane fur dealers, who was sending them to the Canadian Fur Auction sales. He faces a minimum fine of $3,600 for handling the 72 illegal beaver pelts.

The fur seizure was the largest made in the North Bay district this year.

Congressmen Fear Economic Breakdown at Home More Than Spread of Communism Abroad

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 11 — (CP) — A terrific, non-partisan blast of criticism hit the House of Representatives when that body adopted its appropriations committee recommendation to cut the foreign aid plan designed to save Europe from communism.

Senators with broad vision and international minds, such as Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, cried out in hurt resentment at this evidence of national disunity.

One obvious reason for this action is that many Congressmen fear economic breakdown at home more than they fear the spread of communism abroad.

Another factor was the parade of conflicting reports laid before the committee on need and sources of supply, and on reports of waste and futility in previous expenditures on foreign aid.

Representative H. Carl Andresen (Rep.-Min.) successfully moved to have the item for farm machinery cut from $81,500,000 to $50,000,000. He said he had just obtained a farm tractor after five years trying. There are 6,000,000 farms in the United States and tractors available for only one in 10.

Representative George C. Sadowski (Dem. — Mich.) said last winter Michigan industries last $150,000,000 because of shutdowns caused by fuel oil and gas shortages. This winter they face a coal shortage. The European aid plan called for shipping U. S. coal to Europe at a cost of $21 a ton while it could be mined in Europe for $10 a ton.

Then there was bitter resentment against the United Kingdom — one of the most important beneficiaries of the plan — because of her Palestine policy.

Representative Emmanuel Celler (Dem. — N. Y.) moved unsuccessfully to have the United Kingdom allotment wiped out because of alleged British aid to the Arabs in their fight against the Jews.

Defence of Britain came from an unexpected source — Representative John Rankin (Dem. — Miss.) who, naming Celler and several others who spoke as he did of British Palestine policy, said: "Great Britain was the only country in which your people (Jewish) could lay their heads in peace for hundreds of years."

South African Reef Is Treasure Trove

Saldanha Bay, South Africa — (CP) — The wreck of the Meresteyn, a treasure-filled Dutch East-Indiaman which foundered and sank in 60 feet of water off Saldanha Bay in the early 17th century, was recalled by Cape seamen when a number of Spanish coins were washed up on a deserted island in the bay.

Old coins have not been found on the shore for some years, but experienced men who know this treasure coast well think that this winter will be profitable in treasure trove.

The latest find was made by an officer who visited the deserted island in his ship's launch. Ten minutes of digging in debris around the jagged reefs yielded him four Spanish silver coins struck in 1632, during the reign of Philip IV, the size of British five-shilling pieces.

Deckhands and beachcombers come across these ancient coins fairly often, but leave them severely alone. "We cannot buy wine with them," they say. "Besides, we are frightened to touch them because of the ghosts to whom the money really belongs."

Rancher Sought May Have Ended Own Life in Lake

Penticton, B. C., June 11 (CP) — Robert D. Mutch, 52-year-old fruit rancher, sought in the slaying of his wife and two sons, may have ended his life in Skaha Lake, police reported Thursday.

Searchers found his automobile on the lake shore, three miles from the Kaleden Corner ranch home where Mrs. Mutch and her sons were killed Wednesday.

A warrant charging Mutch with murder was issued by B. C. provincial police today as officers started search of the lake district.

The mother and her sons were bludgeoned and burned from fires started in the mattresses of their beds. Police believed blows from an iron bar killed them.

A daughter, Yvonne, 20, is in hospital here, still in a critical condition. She had head wounds and burns.

RADIO LISTENERS HAVE FINAL SAY ON TYPE OF SHOW

By PHILIP CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Gone are the days when the bulk of fan-letters received by radio stations contained scathing denunciations by anonymous writers. The modern listening public form, on the average, a well-informed, highly critical cross-section of public opinion.

"The onus for raising the standard of radio programs is as much on the public as it is on those responsible for the broadcasts," says John Kannawin, supervisor of presentation for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. "The ideas for radio programs may originate in the minds of the staff but their ultimate success or failure depends on the response we get from the public."

Radio's contact with the listening public is one way. Unlike the stage there is no visual contact between the performer and his audience. In order to sample audience reaction radio therefore relies on a number of sources.

Most important of these is undoubtedly the correspondence that each station receives from its listeners. In addition radio relies on the advice of a number of highly organized groups. Resolutions passed by educational, business, political, and religious organizations have a great deal to do with the type of program to be presented.

Radio forums are another source of opinion highly regarded by the program supervisor. Farm Forum, Citizens' Forum, and Radio Sports College are integral contacts with the public which provide a source of information for what people of all ages and in all walks of life are thinking.

Producers have no monopoly gestions may come from almost anyone from executives to office boys or, most important, from the public themselves. In such cases, the assignment is delegated to a producer. Occasionally, the producer may consult the program supervisor on technical details concerning the production but this is rare. Most producers are individualists and like to do their shows on their own. They are extroverts.

Once an idea for a program has been conceived it is the responsibility of the producer to oversee every facet of production. He must organize the technical staff. He has to commission scriptwriters and a musical director. He must see that studios and hours for rehearsing and broadcasting are reserved. He is the source of all information concerning the program and supervises whatever publicity is issued.

The question of "spotting" the program then enters the picture. Here suitability of the season of the year for the type of program planned must be considered. The day of the week and the time of day when the broadcast will be available to the greatest number of interested listeners are important factors.

Once the program goes on the air, it is the responsibility of the producer to ensure that the interest of his audience is maintained. If audience-interest is known to be decreasing, the supervisor may step in and recommend to the manager concerned that certain essential changes be made in staffing or that the program be removed from the air.

Bracken Feels Cost of Living Can be Reduced

Winnipeg, June 11 — (CP) — National Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken feels that the cost of living can be brought down by lower taxes and increased production.

The party leader offered the two points Thursday night in a dinner address to the biennial provincial party convention as the solution to the cost-of-living problem. He held that prices are rising "about one point a month."

Mr. Bracken said that the Liberal government had not played fair with Western farmers. They had been left "holding the bag" as a result of restricted marketing. Wheat farmers alone had lost at least $300,000,000 on the British contract.

The Progressive Conservative leader charged that the government had turned the wheat board "against the wheat grower's interest." He said that when prices were low the government had allowed farmers an alternative market. Now that prices had improved substantially, "they took your market away."

Earlier, John Diefenbaker told delegates attending the two-day convention which concludes today that the party must advance its policy and make it known to Canadians in a way hitherto unknown.

Referring to three recent Federal by-elections in which the C.C.F. had won, the member for Saskatchewan Lake Centre said that such results "require constructive thought and inspiration of purpose instead of resignation to the counsel of despair."

Australia Recalls Pyjama Girl Murder

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — A government announcement that Antonio Agostini, 45-year-old Italian, is to be deported recalls one of the most headlined crimes in Australian history.

On Sept. 1, 1934, the partly burned body of a woman dressed in pyjamas was found under a culvert on the Albury-Howlong Road in Victoria. There were no clues to her identity and she became known as "The Pyjama Girl."

For years all missing persons in Australia were checked. Police throughout the world were asked to co-operate. Forensic medical experts built up a plastic face for the girl and circulated photographs of it in all the world's capitals without results.

In February 1944, police arrested Antonio Agostini and charged him with the murder of the girl, who, they claimed, was Linda Agostini, his wife.

At the 23-day inquest that followed a woman came forward and claimed the dead woman was her daughter, Philomena Morgan. The woman employed a well-known doctor who tried to prove by means of tracing the features of the dead girl with those of photograph of Philomena Morgan that she could not be Linda Agostini.

Coroner Tingate sitting at Melbourne ruled that the body was that of Linda Agostini, formerly Platt, of Littlehampton, Sussex, England, and committed Agostini for trial for the murder of his wife.

Agostini was acquitted on the murder charge but found guilty of manslaughter after a 10-day trial. He was sentenced to six years imprisonment but through good behavior and a year's remission given by federal government to all prisoners when the war ended, Agostini served only three years and nine months.

He has at all times protested his innocence and has appealed against the order to deport him. He has never been naturalized.

Russia Complains Of Propaganda Drive in U.S.

London, June 11. (AP)—Russia has complained to the American government and the United Nations that "unbridled propaganda for a new war is being carried on in the United States", Moscow radio said Thursday.

An official note protesting that the United States is violating a U.N. resolution condemning war-mongering was handed to officials in Washington, Wednesday, the broadcast said.

A similar complaint was voiced about The Netherlands.

There was no immediate official comment in Washington.

The U.N. Assembly adopted last Fall a toned-down version of a Soviet proposal to prosecute war-mongers. The resolution called on members to encourage dissemination of information designed to "give expression to the undoubted desire of all peoples for peace." It also condemned all forms of propaganda designed or likely to provoke or encourage a breach of peace or aggression.

The specific Russian complaint was against an article in the magazine Newsweek, "which contains slanderous inventions directed against the Soviet Union and depicting the Soviet Union as an aggressor allegedly preparing to attack the United States."

The complaints accused Newsweek and the Dutch Labor Party organ, Het Vrije Volk, of "slanderous inventions, alleging Soviet plans against the security of other countries and discussing military actions against the Russians."

Newsweek said then the article "simply reported the military thinking at the time in both Washington and Moscow."

"The whole article," the magazine added, "was written around the fact that, in any nation, the military must always be prepared for any contingency."

DOLLAR-SAVING

J. L. Gibson (Ind-Comox-Alberni) urged that the government consider paying a subsidy to "bush" air lines which serve remote areas. Mr. Chevrier said the day may come when such a subsidy will have to be paid.

Rodney Adamson (PC-York West) was told that the government does not contemplate any expenditures for the expansion of air ports in the Banff and Jasper National Parks. Mr. Chevrier said National Parks officials are opposed to such expansion.

On the secretary of state department estimates F. S. Zaplitny urged that family allowances be paid to immigrant families from time of their arrival. Under present legislation the families had to be in Canada three years before qualifying for the allowances.

Several Judges Added

State Secretary Gibson told Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) that several more judges have been added to the royal commission which is dealing with claims arising from the confiscation of Japanese property during the war.

Turning to trade with Britain, Mr. Howe said imports from the country are rising while exports to the U. K. are increasing only slightly.

The minister made the statement as the Commons returned to study of his departmental estimates of expenditures.

Before study of the estimates was resumed, members passed a bill increasing from $75,000 to $100,000 the government's annual grant toward the upkeep of the Plains of Abraham in Quebec. Also adopted was a bill boosting the percentages which racing associations may retain from pari-mutuel betting pools.

At the House opening, Mr. Chevrier disclosed that an investigation is being made into reports that some vessels are operating on the Great Lakes with insufficient crews and inadequate life-saving equipment.

FRASER R. ADDS

Meanwhile from other parts of the province came reports of climbing flood waters. At Prince George, in north-central B.C. the Fraser River rose six inches in 24 hours. Its tributary, the Nechako, also was in the rise.

Mountain freshets, their volume aggravated by the recent heat wave, had reached headwaters of the Fraser, Columbia and Kootenay and were causing B. C.'s three chief rivers to surge back to a new crest from an earlier decline.

Rains Add to Disaster

Torrential rains added to the critical situation in Trail where the Columbia River roared past the West Kootenay smelter city nearly a foot higher in the last 24 hours.

Plans were completed for the evacuation of 26 patients from the Trail-Tadanac hospital where the basement was five feet under water. A single wood and sand dike stood between the frothing river and the business section of the city.

Evacuees from the Sumas prairie district, 60 miles from here, leave one of the most fertile farming and dairy areas in Canada.

The fruits of a $3,000,000 reclamation project, the low-lying prairie has been called "the market-garden of Vancouver." Its acres lie brimful of tobacco, seed, hop and fruit tree crops.

Thinks Lewis Getting Ready For Coal Strike

Washington, June 10 (AP)—Representative Fred Hartley (Rep. N.J.) said today it is "obvious that John L. Lewis is getting ready for another soft coal strike in the United States next month. He appealed to the Republican dealership to keep Congress in session to deal with any such emergency.

That Lewis not bargaining in good faith is equally obvious,' said Hartley, chairman of the House of Representatives Labor Committee and co-author of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

He referred to the negotiations between Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers (Ind.), and the soft coal operators which began Monday. Lewis Wednesday offered to keep the miners at work after their contract expires July 1, if the employers would agree to put his pension plan into effect "forthwith."

The operators, in turn, made a full-fledged contract offer to the miners which Lewis took "under advisement." The mine owners proposed no wage increase but agreed to continue the present 10-cent-a-ton royalty to finance pensions and other health and welfare benefits.

The mine union leader said the owners recessed their contract talks until this afternoon and may give their answers to the widely-separated proposals at that time.

The operators met last night and again this morning to frame their reply.

Hartley plainly indicated he expected a rejection from each side.

"It would be a grievous error for the 80th Cnogress to adjourn and leave the country at the mercy of the United Mine Workers," he told reporters. "For in Lewis there is no compassion."

Political Gloves Are Taken Off In United States

Washington, June 10 — (AP)—The political gloves have come off in the wake of President Truman's 'worst Congress' speech and a Republican leader's "poorest president" retort.

The name-calling started Wednesday at Spokane where Truman, openly bidding for votes on his western tour, lashed out anew at the Republican-controlled Congress. He told a civic celebration that the American people deserve more of the present Congress if they fail to vote in November.

Then, in an exchange with a Spokane reporter from the rear platform of his special train, the president caustically referred to the Chicago Tribune and the Spokane Spokesman - Review as "the worst in the United States."

Those newspapers "got just what you ought to have—you've got the worst Congress in the United States you've ever had."

There was no immediate comment from publishers of either paper, but Republican Congress members struck back swiftly and pointedly.

"There are a lot of people," commented the House of Representatives Republican leader, Charles Halleck of Indiana, "who thinks Mr. Truman is the poorest president we have had since George Washington was elected."

Republican senators were somewhat more restrained in their public comment.

But Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, acting majority leader, accused the president of playing "ward politics."

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate's Republican policy committee and a candidate for his party's presidential nomination, will have a made-to-order forum for a rebuttal tomorrow night.

Taft, who has tangled with Truman before on Congress' record, is booked for an appearance on the National Broadcasting Company's "pro and con" program at 10:45 p.m. EDT.

Taft said his appearance "is not intended as a reply to Mr. Truman's statement . . . but I shall probably make some reference to it."

Red Cross Girls Seek Benefits

Ottawa, June 11 — (CP)—Red Cross girls who served overseas for $5 a week and saw danger in every Canadian theatre of war asked the government today to give them rehabilitation benefits equivalent to those granted members of the women's forces.

Appearing before the Veterans Committee of the Commons, Miss Marguerite Roberts of Toronto, president of the Overseas Club of the Canadian Red Cross Corps, said their 641 overseas veterans had served as nurses, cooks and ambulance drivers, welfare workers, and in other fields.

Four of them were on a torpedoed ship in the Mediterranean, others came under "all degrees of danger" in England and on the continent, others had toiled at frontline casualty clearing stations.

TELEVISION AT BOSTON

Boston, June 11 — (AP) — Thousands of residents within 40 miles of Boston got their first glimpse of television Wednesday night as Boston's first video station, WBZ-TV, went on the air waves with its first telecast. An estimated 20,000 persons sat in on the local debut of the voice pictures.

Road Treated for Dust

The Iroquois Trail from Stirling to the Allan School was given a chloride-of-lime treatment on Saturday to combat the dust nuisance. The clouds of dust made motor travel hazardous and also a menace to health. The homes near the road were filled with dust particles despite closed doors and windows.

It is hoped that by another year the oil scarcity will be over, and roads can be kept in proper shape with the dust eliminated.

Woman Arrested After Man Found Slain in Toronto

Police Say Murder Followed Beating and Drinking Bout

Toronto, June 12 (CP) — Yvonne Brouillette, 34 year old divorcee, was arrested today for the murder of bigamist John Frederick Farrell, 32, whose body was found with ax-blows about the head in an east-central boarding house. Although the man was known as Farrell, police say they learned his real name was Fanya.

Police say the axe-slaying followed an evening of drinking and resulted after Farrell allegedly beat the woman several times. She appeared in court today and was remanded.

The proprietor, Nicholas Tennyson, said the couple moved into the house eight days ago. He told police he was asleep on the second floor when the woman wakened him saying: "Come with me and see what I have done." He said he went down to their room and saw the man lying on the bed with blood spattered all over the room.

Makes Statement

After she was taken to the police station, Yvonne Brouillette made a voluntary statement in which she said Farrell had beaten her. As she went down to the basement she claimed Farrell called out: "When you come up you will really get it."

She told of seeing the axe and carrying it upstairs with her. When she entered the bedroom she was tripped and knocked to the floor as Farrell continued to beat her. She said that to defend herself she attacked him with the axe.

After making her statement the woman was treated in hospital for nose injuries.

Detective James Morgan said he learned that Farrell had been bigamously married to a Toronto girl early during the Second World War and was sentenced to nine months in jail for the offence. He had two children by this marriage.

Police gave this version of the killing:

As the couple entered the boarding house, Farrell told his landlord, Nicholas Tennyson, that he was going to beat up Miss Brouillette. He carried out his threat until about 1.30 a.m., when Tennyson called police. When the officers appeared on the scene, however, all had quieted down and Farrell told police they had had an argument but it was all patched up.

After police left Farrell allegedly began to beat the woman again, accusing her of drinking up all his money. The woman left the room for a few minutes and returned carrying a small axe. She told police that Farrell tripped her and began swearing at her as she lay on the floor. Then, detectives said, Miss Brouillette attacked Farrell with the axe, striking him about the head many times.

Police said Farrell was lying on the bed at the time of the of the attack and although he put up his hands to protect himself, he was unable to ward off the numerous blows. He was dead when police arrived.

TRAIL FLOODED AS DYKE-WORKERS CONTINUE FIGHT

Protection Against Rampaging Waters Crumble in New Flood Hysteria

Vancouver, June 12 — (CP) — Appeals for hundreds of men and thousands of sandbags today launched British Columbia into its 21st day of floods.

In the flood-beset Fraser Valley bleary-eyed dike battalions continued to bolster ramparts sagging under relentless river pressure. The situation was somewhat static, but the battle was unceasing.

Trail, the industrial city in the Kootenays, loomed as the focal point of flood ravages. Dispatches said the fury of the flood-mad Columbia River intensified today as dikes crumbled in a new flood hysteria.

Sodden sandbag defences, desperately in need of reinforcement, today form a six-foot wall of flimsy protection for Trail's stores and houses. Seepage has forced evacuation of an entire business block.

The Columbia, climbing hourly, already has heavily damaged 100 cottages downriver. Slowly the nightly waterway ripped into waterfront sections, isolating residential districts and business blocks.

Calgary recorded an emergency call for 30,000 sandbags from Trail and today the bags were to be delivered in a huge airdrop providing weather conditions were suitable. A half-million bags will be flown into Trail during the weekend.

Incessant interior rainfall and cloudstorms today continued, impeding air-aid, but flights were expected to be made by noon to sorely-pressed flood areas.

To Recruit Workers

The B. C. flood control committee announced Friday night 12 Vancouver construction firms will recruit 1,000 dollar-an-hour workers to rebuild and repair undermined dikes.

The valley dike force is estimated at 35,000-strong, including civilians, combined armed services squads and reservists. Hiring of construction men, however, was termed "necessary" by the committee.

The valley itself is a scene of watery ruin. Creston, 350 miles east of here, reports only 2,000 acres of land which normally produces a $1,500,000 grain crop, remains above water.

Most of the valley force today is mustered at the reclaimed area of Sumas Prairie, 60 miles east. There the Vedder Canal dikes, withstanding relentless flood pressure, amazingly are still holding.

One third of the areas 5,500 residents has been evacuated.

Acting Premier Herbert Anscomb has appealed to all Sumas residents to "move immediately."

FRENCH POLAR EXPEDITION

Paris, June 12 (Reuters)— Radio messages from Greenland Friday night reported that French Polar Expedition, headed by Paul Emile Victor, had embarked at the Bay of Disko near the 70th degree latitude north and was heading south, Agence France-Presse said.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, June 12 (CP)—Synopsis: A weak almost stationary disturbance south of the Lower Lakes is causing overcast skies over Southern Ontario. Showers are occurring over Michigan and in the Windsor region. A weak disturbance in Northern Ontario is also causing scattered showers in Southern James Bay region. Skies are expected to clear over Northern Ontario tonight but cloudy skies and showers will likely continue on Sunday in southern sections of the province.

RING LARDNER, JR. AS JUNIOR PRODUCER

Hollywood, June 12 (AP)— Ring Lardner, Jr., under movie studio ban as a result of Congressional Un-American Activities Committee hearings.., said Thursday he is going to be a co-producer on a John Steinbeck picture. Major studios agreed not to employ Lardner or any of nine other film writers and directors cited for contempt of court by the committee until their cases had been decided in Washington courts. The 10 refused to tell the committee whether they were Communist party members.

SAY SONS ARE IN BRITISH ZONE

Warsaw, Poland, June 12 (AP) —Poland accused British authorities in Germany Friday of failing to return thousands of Polish children kidnapped by the Germans during the war. A government spokesman, Brig. Gen. Viktor Grosz, estimated 200,000 children were taken away by the Germans, and said a majority were now in the British zone.

BERNADOTTE HAS PROMISED PROBE OF ACCUSATIONS

Both Sides Charge Truce Violations

Cairo, June 12 (AP)—Count Folke Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator for Palestine, left today enroute to his new headquartres on the Greek island of Rhodes while Jews and Arabs traded charges of truce violations in the Holy Land.

He told reporters Swedish and vestigated a high Jewish officer held out a veiled threat of reprsal bombings against Arab capitals as he accused the Arabs of breaking the truce.

He told reportes Swedish and American military observers had arrived in the Holy Land and gone to the scenes of reported truce infractions.

The truce, to last four weeks, began Friday morning. It was arranged to give Bernadotte a chance to negotiate for permanent peace in the Holy Land.

With Bernadotte on his flight was a group of U.N. men. Among them were Ralph Bunche, personal representative of Secretary-General Trygve Lie, and William Stoneman, on Lie's staff.

The chief operations of the Jewish high command said in Tel Aviv Friday night Arabs nan violated the truce on the northern, central and southern fronts. He warned that the Israel army might strike back to regain any ground the Arabs took.

A similar threat was implied by the unified Arab high command Friday. An order sent out from Amman, Trans-Jordan, to Arab forces told them to cease fire "unless attacked."

He will be accompanied by Harold Evans of Philadelphia, U.N. commissioner for Jerusalem. Evans expressed hope the Arab states would be able to advise him upon his return to Cairo next week "as to the extent to which I may expect Arab co-operation in Jerusalem."

Just Another Day

The Jewish operations chief described the first day of the cease-fire as "just another day" of fighting on most fronts.

He declared the Jews strictly obeyed the truce. But the Arabs, he said, kept attacking in the south until two hours after the cease-fire time and on the central front until stopped by a U. N. representative five hours afterward he reported them still in action in the north after seven hours of the armistice.

Bernadotte's statement said he had these Arab complaints of truce violations by Jews:

1. A charge by Maj. Gen. Glubb Pasha that an Arab Legionnaire was killed in the Sheikh Jarrah section of Jerusalem Friday, that snipers fired at a party attempting to remove the body and that other snipers fired from Hadassan hospital on the Arab civilians.

2. Complaints from the Syrians that they had to drive off a Jewish plane trying to bomb Damascus two hours after the cease-fire and that the Jews continued firing after the truce hour near Derdara on the Syrian border.

Reports from Jerusalem indicated that bitter fighting continued in the city right up until the truce.

Correspondents with Jewish forces in the city said Arab guns kept firing until 15 minutes after the deadline.

The Russian news agency, Tass, reported from Helsinki Friday night that Finland had recognized Israel. Ten other countries also have done so.

Admitted Robber Says Jewelry Dumped in River

Winnipeg, June 12 (CP)—An admitted bank robber said Friday that thousands of dollars worth of jewelry taken from safety deposit boxes in the $279,000 robbery of a Royal Bank branch here last October had been dumped into the Assiniboine River.

James Davison, sentenced to six years in penitentiary for participation in the robbery, said the jewels were dumped into the river from the Main St. bridge the night after the robbery. The jewels have been valued at from $30,000 to $40,000.

Two Vessels Boarded By Strikers at Cornwall, Crews are Taken Off

Cornwall, June 12 — (CP) — Trouble flared anew at this port today when 30 striking members of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) boarded two vessels at Lock 20 three miles east of here and removed the crews.

The raids came early on the strike's eighth day and one crew member of the Sarnia Steamships Ltd. John A. France was forced to leave the vessel in his underwear. The other ship boarded was the Canada Steamship Lines Acadian.

Other companies involved in the strike caused when they refused to deal with the C.S.U. on grounds it was Communist led are Colonial Steamships Ltd., Northwest Steamships and Transit Tankers. Seamen from the two boarded vessels were taken to Cornwall by trucks engaged by the C.S.U.

Both vessels were anchored in the canal area but there were no police in the vicinity when the strikers boarded the John A, France. On hearing of the incident police rushed from Cornwall and while they escorted the ship through the canal, the strikers boarded the Acadia

The incident left three vessels now held up in the canal due to lack of crews, the third being the transit tanker Translake.

There were no arrests as a result of the boarding bet police held Gerald Robidoux, 20, of Montreal, on a charge of drunk driving.

When taken into custody he was carrying a C.S.U. card and driving a truck reported stolen in Montreal.

Live Cattle Price Increases Greater Than Increases In Retail Prices to Consumer

Montreal, June 12 — (CP) — Increases in retail prices of first-grade beef to consumers in the Montreal area have lagged far behind increases in live cattle prices, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

The greatest upswing in both came during the last two weeks because of seasonal shortages of livestock and reports that farmers have been holding back cattle expecting the government will remove the ban on cattle shipments to the United States.

Between May 29 and today cattle prices on the Montreal livestock markets jumped from $18 a hundredweight to $23 for best quality steers, an increase of nearly 44 per cent.

In the comparable period retail prices in butcher and chain stores rose from 53 cents a pound to 66 cents for best, boneless beef

These figures do not take into account the wholesale price of carcass beef which is generally about double that of the live cattle price.

A peculiarity of the comparative prices showed that during May live cattle prices rose 12.5 per cent, while retail best-beef prices decreased more than five per cent.

Livestock sources reported that retailers have met considerable sales resistance to higher prices. The retailers have preferred to hold the price line and take a squeeze until wholesale prices forced them to act.

Retailers said further increases can be expected, particularly if and when the ban on U. S. shipments is lifted.

In the last week of March live cattle, best quality, brought $16 a hundredweight on the Montreal markets. There followed two increases of $1 each until a $5 jump within the last two weeks.

Following table shows comparative prices for live cattle and retail prices, both for best quality with percentages of increases over the starting date bracketed:

Week ending March 27	16	56
Week ending May 1	17 (6.25)	56
Week ending May 29	18 (12.5)	53 (5.18 decrease)
Week ending June 12	26 (43.75)	66 (17.85)

200 in Death List In Sinking Of Danish Liner

Aalborg, Denmark, June 12— (AP)—Some 200 persons are believed to have drowned in the sinking of the passenger steamer Kjobenhavn.

The 1,668-ton vessel hit a war mine and went down in ten minutes early Friday in the Kattegat near the end of a trip from Copenhagen to this port 140 miles to the northwest.

The United Steamship Company (D.F.D.S.) of Copenhagen, which owned her, listed 261 survivors— passengers and crew, many suffering from severe wounds or exposure. Some of those rescued later died.

How many others were aboard was not known. There first were believed to have been 400, but later indications were that about 450 was more likely. The only full passenger list went down with the ship.

Friday night police here officially listed 28 persons as missing, including Frederik Graae, 73, a high government official.

An official investigation opened behind closed doors in Copenhagen. The Kjoebenhavn's Master, C. P. C. Kiil, was quoted by a company spokesman as saying many of those aboard and most of the life rafts were thrown overboard when the mine knocked the ship over on one side.

GRANDMOTHER, DAUGHTER, GRAND-DAUGHTER ARRESTED

Milwaukee, June 12 — (AP)— A 62-year-old grandmother, her daughter and 17-year old granddaughter were arrested Friday on charges resulting from the shoplifting of thousands of dollars worth of merchandise. Police said loot found in the trio's home required two trucks to remove. Arrested were Mrs. Jean Brautigan, 36, her daughter, Diana Mae, and Mrs. Valentina Pisecki, 62, mother of Mrs. Brautigan.

Discrimination In Land Deed Upheld by Judge

Toronto, June 12 (CP)— In a lengthy judgment at Osgoode Hall Friday Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder upheld a "legal and enforceable" discrimination in a land deed which prevents Jews, Negroes or members of colored races generally from buying or occupying property in a restricted Lake Huron summer resort at Grand Bend, Ont.

His Lordship disagreed with a previous judgment of Mr. Justice MacKay who held in a Toronto case that restrictions against Jews were contrary to public policy.

The case arose over sale by Annie Noble of "Noble Cottage" at Beach O'Pines at Grand Bend to Barnard Wolf for $6,800. The property is restricted until Aug. 1, 1956, against sale to or use by Jews, Negroes and others. She applied for a ruling that the restriction against Jews was illegal. Her application was refused and the restriction upheld by Mr. Justice Schroeder.

Mr. Justice Schroeder pointed out that the summer resort site, now held by some 35 persons, was "obviously sold with a view to the property being developed as it has developed, into a restricted summer resort."

Illegality of the restrictive covenant was claimed on three grounds: "That it was contrary to public policy, that there was uncertainty as to the persons barred and that it was an attempt "to restrain alienation of property in fee simple."

On this later claim, His Lordship held that "a condition is valid which restricts the owner from alienating to a specified person or to any one except a particular class of persons, provided, however, that the class is not too restricted."

HEALTH SERVICES UPHELD IN HOUSE BY PAUL MARTIN

Minister Reviews Activities of Dept.

Ottawa, June 12 (CP)— Contributions toward the improvement of health services are contributions towards Canada's national defence, Health Minister Martin said Friday in the Commons.

Head of the department that will spend $87,000,000 more than the Defence Department this year, Mr. Martin said the money will be well-spent and will contribute to the welfare of the country.

He made the statement during study of his estimates. He was replying to a series of opposition observations, including a statement by Dr. William Blair (PC-Lanark) that 42 to 44 per cent of young Canadians were rejected as physically unfit during the Second World War.

The minister reviewed the various activities of his department. He made these points:

1. Health department experts do not know of any known cure for arthritis.

2. Some 27 separate researches into possible cures for cancer were started in Canada last fall.

3. The federal government has offered to pay dollar for dollar with the provinces in the treatment of persons threatened with the loss of eyesight.

4. A conference has been held with the provinces to decide on the division of contributions to the research and treatment of specific illnesses.

Gives No Details

Mr. Martin said he could not give any details of the conference until later when the Commons discusses supplementary estimates that will cover Dominion contributions.

Conservatives Vote to Support Man. Coalition

Winnipeg, June 12 (CP) — The necessity for unity of the Progressive Conservative Party was stressed by Ivan Sabourin, Quebec provincial party leader, during the closing session of the Manitoba Progressive Conservative Association's annual convention Friday.

"The split vote in recent by-elections has indicated a trend not favorable to the Liberal party. The French - speaking people can no longer be considered a solid Liberal vote. The solid 'block' is disintegrating."

The delegates voted, after long debate, to continue their support of the coalition government in Manitoba. The vote was 180 to 31.

John Diefenbaker, member of parliament for Lake Centre, Saskatchewan, urged that regional defence pacts be signed among free nations.

He criticized the Dominion government for having taken no constructive steps toward support of the recent five-power pact among Britain, France and the smaller powers.

He said Canada should lead other comonwealths in telling the Russians "politburo" that free nations in the commonwealth will not stand aside in an indifferent attitude of neutrality should threats against any free nation be made.

Other resolutions passed a Friday's session included a request that freight rates be overhauled with a view to "removal of existing inequalities and discrimination," asked a floor price for agricultural products, removal of the embargo against the export of Canadian livestock and agriculture products.

The closing session unanimously elected R. D. Guy, Jr., of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Association. He succeds C. C. Miller, M.P.

LANDING CRAFT CARRIES VOLUNTEERS SAYS REPORT

Marseille, June 12 (Reuters) — A landing craft left Port Du Bouc near here Friday night with arms and approximately 800 Jewish volunteers bound for Palestine, dock officials said today.

Allied and German Trains From West Germany Affected

Soviet Union Gives No Reason For Unprecedented Action

Berlin, June 12 — (AP) — Russian and British authorities have reached an agreement for the resumption of freight traffic between Western Germany and Berlin, an official British source said today.

Berlin, June 12 — (AP) — The Russians suddenly have stopped all Allied and German freight trains coming to Berlin from western Germany, British and United States authorities said today.

The Russians gave no reason for their unprecedented action, the Allied officials said.

The trains were stopped at the Helmstedt - Marienborn control point on the border of the British and Russian occupation zones.

The Allied authorities said the Russians have refused since 7 p.m. Friday night (1 p.m. EDT) to accept any more Berlin-bound traffic for transit through their zone.

Gen. Lucius Clay, American military governor, said the Russians had announced they were sending a field office to the Helmstedt border point to "clarify the situation."

Clay said the Western Powers had not yet had time to study the regulations or ascertain their significance.

Shuts Off Shipments

This embargo shuts off all food and coal shipments from the western zones for the 2,000,000 inhabitants of Berlin's western occupation sectors. It also cuts off Rhur coal pooled for citywide distribution.

Earlier, United States army officials said they have posted guards on American-operated railroad switch engines in Berlin to keep the Russians from taking them.

This week has witnessed an increasing controversy over travel between the Russian and British-American occupation zones.

The Russians today continued to turn back hundreds of Germans seeking to travel into their zone from Western Germany on the grounds that new interzonal travel documents were required.

United States authorities said the American zone might be "stuck with" thousands of Germans who had come in illegally from the Russian zone.

The Russian - controlled German news agency claimed Friday night the directors of the railroad system complained they needed locomotives and United States control of them was intolerable.

Willard denied the allegation. He said only three switch engines were involved and only about 10 soldiers were used to guard them after they had an "intimation" the locomotives were to be taken.

Vampire Crashes Pilot is Killed

Ottawa, June 12. (CP)—The first Vampire aircraft crash here Friday brought death to a veteran pilot.

He was FO. R. A. Hodgins of Ottawa, a 25-year-old member of the famed 443 Hornet squadron.

A hot man with a gun, the fighter pilot had knocked down three enemy aircraft and put out of action 16 enemy vehicles in the Second World War.

Some of his buddies on the ground watched the $75,000 Vampire tear through the fields and slide into a ditch, a mass of wreckage and flame.

Previous to its crash, the whining flashy craft had circled the field twice. The pilot was putting it through its paces in preparation far Air Force Day today.

In the first crash of its kind in Canada, the Vampire was just shaking its shoulders for a high-speed roll when it slipped into a spin and whined its way to the ground.

WINDS FAN NEW FIRES IN ONT. AND QUEBEC

Firefighters Await Rain to Help Them Tame Runaway Outbreaks

(By The Canadian Press)

Northern Ontario fire crews today prepared to spend another weekend on the fire lines, their third since the sun-dried bush in the Mississagi and Chapleau areas erupted in flames, May twenty-fifth.

In those sections and in parts of Northwestern Ontario and Northern Quebec the firefighters still awaited rain to help them tame the runaway outbreaks. But little more than showers were in sight to check the roaring infernos which already have caused damage estimated at upwards of $34,000,000.

Man-made rain brought on by dousing moisture-laden clouds with dry ice slowed a Gogoma area fire Thursday night. Conditions Friday did not lend themselves to a rain-making experiments.

One fire fighter is dead and another missing in the Sankey area. George O'Connor, 22, was drowned when a punt capsized. Forestry officials still have no word on the whereabouts of Byron Rhude of Sudbury, missing since last Sunday.

Village Threatened

Greatest progress of the fire-fighting front was reported in the Northwestern Quebec Mining District of Rouyn. A big fire that for a time threatened the village of Belleterre was reported out after destroying stands of spruce and birch.

But 50 miles north of Maniwaki and 130 miles north of Ottawa three fires raged unchecked through young timber in a pulpwood district. Fire crews moved in special chemical fire-fighting equipment.

Shifting winds fanned a fire out of control Friday in the Long Lac region of Northwestern Ontario. Another blaze near Hornpayne gained headway. Lands department officials in Toronto described the fire hazard as "extreme" throughout the north.

The main Mississagi, burned through 200,000 acres of mixed timber, mostly pine and spruce.

Ontario Lands Minister Scott said Friday that in some sections the fires had raced through underbrush so fast that heavy timber had escaped damage. Plans were under way for replanting where loss was heavy, he said.

Cautions Children Against Bathing In Bay to Avoid Polio

Mr. G. A. Whitman, the public health officer of this city, believes in preventative measures, particularly in the case of "polio" and cautious parents to keep their children away from government docks and swimming in the bay.

He feels that if every care is taken before an outbreak of this terrible disease, that the chances of a severe epidemic will be greatly reduced.

Flies and mosquitoes were effectively controlled last summer by spraying the city dump with D.D.T. This practice will again go into effect, not once, but periodically throughout the summer.

Appeal to County Council to Aid In Meeting Steadily Mounting Cost of Operation of Hospital

Stating that increased costs of "practically everything" was resulting in a heavy monthly operating deficit, Mayor D. L. Storey, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital, and Magistrate T. Y. Wills, member of the board, appealed to Hastings County Council Friday for future financial assistance to meet the steadily mounting costs of operation.

Mayor Storey said the city which acquired the hospital some time ago officially took over the institution on June 1st. He had rallied around him a strong efficient board of governors, who will be responsible for their various departments, and who, he was sure, would do an efficient job.

"The hospital is going behind every month," he said. "Salaries last year were $105,000 and it is estimated that this year they will reach the figure of $240,000. Operating costs in 1943 amounted to $209,000 and in 1947, $414,000. Last month the hospital was $3,000 in deficit. Bills now amount to between $80,000 and $90,000. Cost per day for indigent patients in 1946 was $5.40 per capita; in 1948 $7.65 and it is expected in 1949 the amount will be increased to $8.20."

Hopes to Break Even Financially

The mayor stated that the cost of indigent patients was very high and he suggested that the county assist in paying the extra cost above grants for county indigents while the city would do likewise. At the end of the year he hoped to have a full statement regarding the division of indigent patients. It is the intention of the board of governors to make the hospital attractive, but to try to break even financially as well.

Magistrate Wills told the council that the Board of Governors had expected a substantial increase in indigent grants. Instead they got merely $2.50 per day. But the Department changed the general grant substantially based on recategorized public ward beds.

The government grant in 1948 was well over $23,000 instead of $6,000 as previous Recategorization of wards jumped from $6,000 to $11,000 but the overall increase is included in the $23,000. For 9,000 indigent patient days the hospital got $2.30 per day plus $2.50 or $4.80 all told. The balance of the deficit of cost of indigents will be absorbed by the city unless others for whom the care is provided come to the hospital aid.

Mayor Storey informed council that the X-ray camera secured through the Hastings Tuberculosis Association was now installed in the hospital and was functioning Every patient who is admitted will get an examination free. He also mentioned the fact that free clinics will be held in the county soon.

County Council Opposes Closing Of CNR Crossing Near Chutes, Asks Estimate on Overhead Crossing

Acceding to the requts of a large delegation of residents of the second concession of Thurlow and Tyendinaga, who waited on the body the day previous, Hastings County Council officially went on record on Friday as being opposed to the recommendation to close the Canadian National Railway crossing one mile east of the city (coal chutes).

The resolution also stated that Council requests that a watchman be placed at the crossing as a temporary measure and that an estimate of cost of an overhead crossing be prepared and submitted to it at the December session. The motion was presented by Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, and Reeve Harold Wells, Stirling.

Aftermath of a discussion the previous day, council, on motion of Deputy Reeve Wilfred Spencer went on record as favoring and urging that work to be done on the county road from Campbellford to Hoard's Station in Northumberland County by the Department of Highways, be extended to include that portion of the same road between Hoard's Station and Stirling in Hastings County. Council believed it not practical to improve approximately two-thirds of the road leaving one-third of the road between Campbellford and Stirling unimproved.

Bancroft Hospital Building

Reeve Peter Kellar, Bancroft, told the council that for the past year the Bancroft branch of the Canadian Legion had been trying futilely to purchase former Red Cross Hospital which is being replaced by a new institution.

"There are men with money there who would purchase the hospital merely for speculation purposes. The Legion wants it as a club room, and we feel that the veterans should have a priority to purchase."

On Reeve Kellar's motion council endorsed a recommendation, suggesting to the Red Cross that the Bancroft branch of the Canadian Legion be given the first consideration to purchase the former hospital and to take over as soon as the Red Cross takes over the new building.

Going into Ways and Means, council ordered a number of bills and grants paid, including a bill for $638.50 the county's share of the cost of publicity folders. Grants paid included $15 each to Women's Institutes of North, East and West Hastings; $100 each to county forests; $150 to county fairs; $300 to Belleville Exhibition; $400 to agricultural representative for junior farmers extension work; $100 to Hastings Crop Improvement Association; $200 to British Empire Cheese Exhibition; $400 to Boys' and Girls' camp at Moira Lake.

Judge Anderson Orders Lashes For Accused

Convicted on a charge of indecent assault, John Bertram Blight, aged 20, of Trenton, was sentenced to a period of not less than 21 months and an indeterminate sentence of three months, less one day, in the Ontario Reformatory, when he appeared in County Court Saturday before Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson. Blight had been convicted previously of a similar offence.

In addition to the reformatory term, Judge Anderson ordered that Blight be whipped with five strokes of the lash at the end of three months and a further five strokes of the lash at the end of six months.

New County Home Will Be Located in Belleville Area Council Decides at Session

The new House of Refuge to be erected by Hastings County Council will be built in the Belleville area, a ballot vote decided at the closing session on Friday.

Council, after lengthy discussion decided to go into caucus and decide the question by an elimination ballot vote.

Areas which submitted potential sites and which contested the ballot were Belleville, Tweed, Marmora, Madoc and Stirling.

The actual site, it is believed, will be selected by a special committee or by an augmented House of Refuge Advisory Board.

Council selected the caucus ballot vote system above suggestions that the selection be left to a special committee or in open council.

Opening the pre-ballot discussion Deputy Reeve Ben Bleecker, Sidney, believed that the site in his township recommended by the Advisory Board was not suitable.

Should be on High Ground

Deputy Reeve Bleecker felt that a site should be on high ground where it could have a good view, and where it would be in open view of the travelling public. This particular site, he said, was low ground and in a residential section. There were much better sites in Sidney to the west.

Reeve Harold Wells, Stirling, pleaded hard for his village area. He pointed out it was only 20 minutes from the city and that his council had taken options on farms. Stirling was an ideal location, situated on high ground and there is no site in the county to equal it.

Soil and water tests, sewerage possibilities should be necessary before any site is selected, Deputy Percy Moore, Tyendinaga said. He would like to see test of land, quality, depth for rock. Clay, which is not suitable for gardening, would not be wanted. He urged council not to act too quickly. "I suggest that this council view all sites, make tests etc., and come back in caucus to voice opinion.

Reeve A. McCarey, Tweed, also pleaded the cause of his village. Sites in that area had everything necessary, water, sewage, etc. Scenery was unsurpassed and transportation to and from Belleville would be even better than that of Stirling.

Deputy Reeve W. Spencer, Rawdon, member of the House Advisory Board, said his committee had spent a lot of time on the matter and had gone the limit to investigate every angle.

He pointed out that the department had suggested the site be as close to the seat of government as possible. Reeve Kellar moved that council go into caucus and select an area by ballot elimination system.

Elmer Sandercock and Wife Resign as Superintendent And Matron of Hastings County Home

Mr. Elmer Sandercock, newly elected member for the riding of Hastings West, has resigned his position as superintendent of the Hastings County House of Refuge.

Accompanying Mr. Sandercock's resignation, was that of Mrs. Sandercock, matron of the institution.

The joint resignations were presented to Hastings County Council at the closing session yesterday afternoon and were "accepted with regret" by the body.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock have been superintendent and matron respectively of the County Home for the past 19 years.

Council authorized its House of Refuge Advisory Board to receive applications from and secure the services of new institution officials.

Establish School Area

Drawn-out discussions extending over three sessions regarding the establishment of a high school district came to an abrupt end in Shire Hall on Friday when Hastings County Council gave a third reading to a by-law to establish a high school district which will be called South Hastings.

The proposed district includes the townships of Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Rawdon, Huntingdon, Marmora and Lake, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, part of Tudor township and the villages of Deloro, Marmora and Madoc.

The by-law to establish the district is subject to the approval of the Minister of Education.

Another by-law also subject to governmental approval calling for the discontinuance of the village of Marmora as a high school district, was passed, as was one to discontinue Madoc village as a high school district.

Arrest Three Men After Robbery At Bloomfield

Value of the police radio system in assisting officers in their work was seen in this district Friday when little more than an hour after a service station till had been robbed at Bloomfield, three young men were picked up and charged with the offence.

Early Friday afternoon three men had stopped at MacDonald's service station in quest of gasoline for their small roadster. While the attendant was serving the car, one of the men entered the service station and is stated to have robbed the till of $36. The loss was discovered by the attendant minutes later and the alarm was spread.

Constable Lovelace of Bloomfield phoned provincial police at Belleville and the police radio was brought into play to rush officers in cars to guard the exits of the county. At three-thirty three men were apprehended near Mountain View. The men gave their names as Leo Bluete, 24, of Napanee; Don Genereux, 20, R.R. 6, Belleville, and Leslie Alton, 19, of Napanee.

The small roadster in which the men were riding is said to have been stolen from Napanee and to be owned by Earl Kimmett of Napanee. The men were taken to Picton.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Challenge of Usefulness

By ROY L. SMITH

Nothing in human experience is so demoralizing as to feel one's self becoming useless; nothing, on the other hand, is more enobling than to feel one's self useful.

There is a story in the Old Testament of a young woman whose life was redeemed by becoming useful to her people in the hour of a great emergency, and in celebration of her courage and heroism the Jews celebrate one of their most impressive feasts to this day.

The Story of Esther

The story was written at a time when the Jews were suffering one of the most tragic persecutions that harried people have ever known. Nowhere on the horizon was there any ray of hope; nowhere in the heart of any man of authority any trace of mercy.

A crafty courtier of the king had managed to ingratiate himslf into royal household. Then, infuriated by the independence of a Jew who refused to pay him obeisance, he contrived to have the king pass an edict which would have liquidated all the Jews of the Empire.

It was at that moment that Esther, a Jewish girl who had won the king's favor, faced her opportuntiy. In her hands hung the destiny of the race. If she could dissuade the king from his ruthlessness her people might get another chance at life. If she were unsuccessful her own life would pay the forfeit, and her people would perish.

The Book of Esther

It was in the midst of the crisis that the noble Jew, her uncle, challenged her with her opportunity, his words having become immortal; "Who knoweth but that thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

The Book of Esther is one of the strangest in all the Old Testament. The name of God appears nowhere in it; the spirit of bitter revenge runs throughout every page; there is scarcely one really admirable character in the cast. Connivery, hate, murder, revenge, sex-appeal, bitterness, blood-letting—these are the themes and the motives for the dreadful drama.

But The Book is Life

In one respect, however, the book runs true to life on one of its higher levels. The beautiful queen is saved from a life of inanity by suddenly discovering she can be useful.

In all the experience of men nothing is more moving than the instinct to achieve, and nothing gives greater satisfaction than to feel that one is doing a necessary piece of work for the world.

Even the doomed feel it. The warden of a great prison found a considerable company of "lifers" on his hands—men who could look forward to not another day of freedom as long as they lived. In an effort to find something for them to do he issued orders that they should carry a carload of stone from one corner of the prison yard to another. When all the stone had been moved, he ordered it carried back. When they were finally ordered to move it the third time they mutinied. "Give us something to do that is worth doing," their leader demanded. "We may be lifers, but we are still men. If we are to work it must be at some useful task."

The Sunday School Lesson for June 13: "Esther's Zeal for Her People," read Esther.

It is the glory of good religion that it has the power of inspiring men to work with a sense of high destiny within them. Let any man pass through a profound or creative religious experience and he immediately begins to feel that he has become a man capable of useful service to the world. He begins to feel necessary.

This is The Text

Any religion which fails to make a man feel necessary, which fails to implant within him a sense of high respect, is poor religion. The idle queen suddenly found life taking on new dimensions as soon as she conceived of herself as being useful. No person ever committed suicide as long as he felt himself necessary to something or to someone.

There are altogether too many underdogs in this world — people have lost confidence in their ability to count.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

Versatile Musician

The Catbird has an inferiority complex—probably due to lack of appreciation! Actually one of our best singers, the "meouws" with which it intersperses its fluent, sprightly song spoil its reputation. A mimic, second only to the Mockingbird of the south, the Catbird uses the songs of Robins, Wrens, Red-eyed Vireos, Whip-poor-wills, Yellow-throats, and any other birds living in the vicinity. Woven together with no rhythm nor rule, the combination is delightful, and comes from a most versatile instrumentalist, that constantly changes from flute to piccolo, clarionet, violin and even the cello. At one time "sotto voce" at another fairly loud, the ceaseless gong is often poured out for an hour by Mr. Catbird, sitting in a conspicuous position near the top of a large bush. Suddenly, with a noise sounding remarkably like spitting, he disappears into the brush.

Here is a bird easy to identify because its slate-grey plumage does not resemble that of any other species of its size (a little smaller than a Robin), and is always the same, be it summer, winter, male, female, or juvenile—though very young birds are somewhat mottled and lack the distinct head piece. The parents' distinguishing marks are a black cap and long tail, rounded at the end, which is flipped up and down frequently, exhibiting a dark red patch underneath. Bills and legs are black.

The inferiority complex shows in nervous jerking of this fine tail, and showing off by puffing out feathers and raising the crest, followed by stealthy movements, slinking through the bush. Though anxious to build near our houses, if its own home is discovered it promptly deserts the premises.

Having arrived in Canada in mid-May, the Catbird is now engrossed in family affairs. Seldom as much as 10 feet from the ground, in tangled growths, berry patches, or ornamental shrubbery, the nest is badly constructed of twigs, grasses, and leaves, lined with rootlets, and generally decorated with bits of paper, string, and all sorts of trash. In this scrap-basket, 4-6 dark blue-green eggs are deposited. The nestlings are fed mostly on insects, while the parents eat frut also. If no wild berries are available, they will rob the farmer of his cultivated varieties; therefore, as Catbirds are particularly fond of the Russian mulberry, he should plant these for protection. Besides ants, crickets, grasshoppers, and cut worms, these birds devour the injurious Japanese beetles.

Police Conduct House-to-House Search for Man

Toronto, June 12. (CP)—Police conducted a house-to-house search Friday for Harold Fleghen, 45, who they say shot his wife through the chest.

Hospital officials described his wife's condition as "good". A cocker spaniel, earlier reported to have been shot by Fleghen as he fled from his North Toronto home Friday, was found by police whimpering in a corner, but unhurt.

Police said Fleghen was recently discharged from a mental hospital. A neighbor, who described him as a quiet man, said Fleghen had been obsessed lately with the idea that "everything was going to the dogs".

Police said they found a .22 calibre rifle in the house.

They said he fired a shot into the chest of his wife as preparations were being made for their daughter's wedding.

Members of the family said he had telephoned home twice since the shooting.

Hospital authorities said the rifle slug was deflected through Mrs. Fleghen's right arm, causing only a flesh wound.

Friends said Mr. Fleghen held a responsible position until three years ago.

Mental Telepathy Assists in Ability To Read Character, Forecast Events

Did you know that your footsteps are a key to your character? As you walk along the street the vibrations made by the contact of your feet with the road or pavement send out little "character" messages and should there be a clairvoyant in the neighborhood the game is up. You may have told everyone you are a good fellow, but your feet may be telling another story.

Did you know that the motion of your pen or pencil over the paper is a dead give away and that the spoken word is positive proof of your trustworthiness.

Noticed at Early Age

According to Professor Zyble of this city these are the things that tell the tale. Professor Zyble stated that he is clairvoyant and first noticed this sense at the early age of seven when something told him a plank was out on a small bridge on his father's farm, where the cattle always crossed. Investigation proved his statement to be correct.

When questioned about this "sense" Professor Zyble said it isn't anything he does, it is merely a mixture of mental telepathy with the ability to be able to see a picture in his mind of future events. He stated he would not foretell any event which would cause worry or confusion to anyone even though these things were plainly seen by him.

Advises on Business Deals

He has, however, advised men and women about their various business deals and has helped solve problems that were bothering them in a "personal" way. He recalled that around 1930 he foretold the exact spot a drowning took place and he stated that when that happened he experienced sensations of drowning. Professor Zyble has French, Scotch and Egyptian blood; the latter may have some influence on his physic powers.

The use of cards he stated is merely a fill-in used by some readers while receiving vibrations from their clients. Tea leaves are the same. The hands are another key to character and the lines change every three months sending out small branches like trees. The shape of the hands and fingers do of course give an insight into character.

"Bracelets of Life"

Contrary to the belief that the life line is that which circles the fleshy portion of the palm at the base of the thumb, the lines circling the wrist known as "bracelets of life" reveal a long or short life. The other so called "life line" is actually a health line and breaks in this line suggest illness. People who suddenly have hot hands or cold feet are moody and sensitive and should try to live in a relaxing atmosphere. The professor also believes in personal magnetism and that certain people are attracted to each other by this.

Govt. Considering Scheme to Finance Tourist Lodges

Ottawa, June 12 —(CP)—Trade Minister Howe, engaging in a Commons' debate on Canada's $230,000,000 tourist trade, said Friday the government is considering a scheme to finance tourist establishments in selected areas.

The minister joined with Progressive Conservative members in agreeing that the Dominion's chief problem in this field is not allure but accommodation.

He did not join, however, with G. R. Webb (PC — Leeds) and J. W. Murphy (PC — Lambton West) in their contention that a commission or a separate minister should be established to handle tourist business, and that D. Leo Dolan, head of the Travel Bureau, should be raised to the status of deputy minister. The minister thought Mr. Dolan's "aggressive department" was doing all right now.

It was Mr. Webb who suggested that the government establish some trust fund or mortgage board to help young men who wish to go into the tourist buisness.

Mr. Howe replied:

A good deal of thought has been given to it. The director of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation developed quite a plan and it is being studied by the Bank of Canada and the government. I do not say it will be put into force next year. It probably requires more working over.

"It is a fairly comprehensive plan of financing tourist establishments in selected areas. It is quite a big plan. It takes a good deal of money. It is not a thing to be jumped into immediately, but it is certainly worthy of the consideration it is receiving."

HEALTH SERVICES

Dr. Blair said that if 42 or 44 per cent of young Canadians were turned down for military service, the health of older age groups was probably worse. He suggested a Commons Committee should be established to investigate the reason.

Mr. Martin said he hoped to take some action soon toward having a Commons Health Committee established. His department had already been instrumental in the establishment of a National Council on Arthritis and Rheumatism and a National Institute on cancer.

While no cure has yet been found for arthritis, he hoped that as a result of the treatment of veterans at the Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto something would be found that could be passed on to civilian sufferers.

On the arthritic question, he was replying directly to A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) a sufferer of arthritis. Mr. Smith said his party is ready to support anything to relieve sufferers of the ailment.

The health department estimates were taken up after members had spent some time studying the estimates of the Transport and Trade Departments.

Justice Minister Ilsley told a Commons questioner that the government will consider a Senate request that the legality of the ban on margarine be submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada for a ruling.

TESTIFIES AT INQUIRY

Halifax, June 11 — (CP)—Mrs. Emma Grant said Thursday that she heard a woman scream 'Don't kill me, don't murder me,' just before flames burst through the roof of a tenement here last Feb. 10. Seven persons were burned to death in the fire.

Mrs. Grant testified in police court at an inquiry into the fire. She said she lived in the house next door, and could not explain the screams.

Magistrate R. J. Flinn closed the hearing and announced he would file a report on his decision.

NO EARLY PEACE IN CHINA

Nanking, June 12 — (AP) — Premier Wong Wen-Yao told the legislative Yuan Friday China could not expect peace in two years. In his first report to the Republic's legislative body, the new premier said top priority would be given efforts to defeat the Chinese communists. The Reds' strength is gaining steadily.

GETS CHRISTMAS WISH

Brantford, June 12 — (CP) — When Mrs. Don Jones, a war bride from Birmingham, England, told a department store Santa Claus last December all she wanted for Christmas was to see her mother in Canada, she wasn't sure she would get her wish. But this week her mother arrived from England— a belated Christmas present.

Careful Driving

Being a good driver on the highways and streets in this age is an attainment to be proud of. Traffic authorities believe that good driving is the reason that so many persons have few or no accidents year after year. It is of course true that a good driver may become involved in an accident, not his fault, but the fault of a poor driver. The reason is not hard to find — the good driver is always regardful of the rules of traffic and the rights of others and is alert for his own sake and for that of others. He will do the best he can to offset any carelessness in the operation of cars by others as far as he is able because he drives to avoid accidents and therefore exercises care as to what the other driver — the one who may have accidents — is likely to do. The careful driver is intent on his job and he knows traffic and the faults of the other type of driver.

Connecticut Highways Department has been delving into the facts lying under the toll of accidents and comes up with a survey of driving which shows that drivers who are known as repeaters or addicts insist that accidents are the result more of bad luck than of bad driving. Drivers who are ever careful do not accept that view though they know that a good driver may get into an accident through no fault of his own.

Ottawa Journal, commenting on this, says that "a driver who tries deliberately and constantly to avoid accidents seldom interrupts a journey with a stay in hospital or a sojourn at a strange hotel while his car is being repaired."

Every now and then public attention is drawn to the proud records of transport and truck drivers, many of whom can point to enviable results of years of driving under all conditions without accidents. The same is true of the car driver. "And that does not come about from good luck. It comes from competent driving and ceaseless vigilance, from the deliberate policy of not taking chances."

It might be very enlightening if it were possible to show from accident records how many innocent drivers and companions in their cars have been victims of accidents through the fault or mistake of others. But the careful driver no doubt is far better off than the less careful man or woman for the former is looking out for every possible emergency situation developing in traffic which is kaleidoscopic in its changes from minute to minute on busy roads and highways. The careful driver is the one who has few if any accidents, he is the one with better chances by far than the less careful driver of driving safely along on the roads and of getting his car and his companions safely to their journey's end than the less stable. He has all the chances in his favor of driving through without a mishap.

By-Products Fight Disease

Atomic by-products in Britain are soon to be ready for medical men to call on in their experiments in the diagnosis of serious diseases. A large atomic pile at the research station at Harwell, in Berkshire, is about ready to operate. It will produce enough atomic by-products for Britain's own immediate needs and there will be a surplus for export to the Continent of Europe. The "atomic doctors" will work in collaboration with specialists in North America who already have the products in use.

It seems but a short time ago when the world had the first news of the successful control of the energy locked up in the atom. Time moves swiftly but science in its application of new discoveries also moves with great speed. The development out of the successful handling of the atom will result in more and more rapid developments in many fields, in fact, in a measurable length of time, there will be a beginning of change of a great deal of the surroundings of the present day.

A small-scale pile at Harswell is already "cooking" 160 samples of radio-active chemicals a month — carbon, sodium, potassium, iodine, gold, silver and so on. Increased quantities from the new pile will meet the demands of research workers and doctors all over Britain.

These radio-active elements are the trail-blazers of great new finds in medical science. When fed into diseased tissues of the human body, they act like radium. They can be traced through the most complicated processes or into the most inaccessible parts of the body.

Virtue, to men thou bringest care and toil, yet are thou life's best, fairest reward. —Aristotle.

Monday's for Fishing

The Anglican Bishop of British Columbia made an appeal in England for 11 young clergymen to take vacancies in his province. British Columbia, he said, was the best country in the world "for a clergyman on Mondays" with "its lakes and rivers full of salmon."

It's a nice thought, that the hard-worked clergyman, after his Sunday duties, should be able to relax on Monday pulling rampaging salmon out of British Columbia's teeming lakes and rivers. Fishing is for the true fishermen a contemplative occupation, and particularly suited to the man whose habit it is to ponder on the affairs of the universe, to think great thoughts. Taken in the proper spirit it affords the fullest possible measure of mental and physical relaxation, and the parson who goes fishing on his Mondays will live longer and get closer to fundamental things.

But it is equally true that a clergyman can go fishing on his Saturdays with complete justification, because of the opportunity to prepare his Sunday sermons in the serene loveliness of the out-of-doors and without disturbance or interruption—except perhaps by an unwary fish.

That leaves him his Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays — what part of them, if any, he devotes to the piscatorial art is a matter between the parson and his conscience. But for Mondays and Saturdays at any rate he would need no defence, Ottawa Journal comments.

At St. Paul's

Canon Gibbs-Smith, the Archdeacon of London, has told of plans for restoring the eastern end of St. Paul's that will give it a high altar in a setting of such magnificance as Wren is said to have envisaged. Nobody apparently knows why Wren's original project was rejected. It has been decided that a restoration of the reredos, which was badly damaged during the war, is not justified. The reredos is to be preserved but removed. The Dean and Chapter have reached this decision unanimously, but expect it to be criticized. The new high altar will be installed east of the present one, and will be surmounted by a baldachino such as Wren had in mind. This baldachino, which is a form of altar covering, supported, in this instance, by columns, will be of oak embellished with gilt, ivory and scarlet, and will have a white marble base. It will stand under a coffered arch and will incorporate the rich decorations, the wreathed columns and the canopy of Wren's ideal.

The Archdeacon cannot say when this work will begin. Like others who wish to rebuild, the cathedral authorities have to wait for licences. The work will take about five years. — Manchester Guardian.

COLLEENS PLUS

Minister of Welfare Norton of Eire suggests government dowries to encourage marriages. Imagine a beautiful, blue-eyed, black-haired Irish colleen with a dowry into the bargain. If this goes on, Eire's problem may become one of immigration of young men, instead of their emigration, remarks Windsor Star.

CAMPERS CARELESS

Prolonged dry weather in Nova Scotia last summer caused a forest fire loss estimated at $300,000. Some 480 outbreaks reported burned over an area of 41,000 acres. Forestry department officials said careless campers were 90 per cent responsible.

HUGE COAL DEPOSIT

JUST FOLKS

NOISE-MAKERS

Noisy? Yes, of course they are.
Little girls and little boys
In and out will race about,
Manufacturers of noise.
But at times when they are ill
And in bed must long remain,
Feverish and, oh, so still!
You will pray for noise again.

Yes, they bring their playmates in;
Beg for cookies, one and all;
Race the stairs and jump on chairs;
Strew their toys about the hall;
But if they from home should stray,
Seemingly afraid of you,
You would want them back to play,
And you'd want their comrades, too.

Troublesome at times are they,
But the happiest homes are those
Filled with noise and strewn with toys,
Where the doorways never close.
Should my children stay away,
Happier elsewhere to be,
I am sure that God will say
I had failed His trust in me.

Young Man Makes Living Despite Handicap

A familiar figure in Belleville is Clayton Brown. Tall, fair haired and blue eyed, this young man has always wanted to be an electrician or run a poultry farm.

Life plays queer tricks on people and this young man was fated to a life of selling tooth brushes, perfumes, combs, pencils and other articles from door to door.

One summer day Clayton went swimming at Twelve O'clock Point. He was hot and dove into the cool water. He plunged headlong onto a rock that had not been seen from the surface. It was nothing more than that and it happened so quickly and the result was tragic. That summer day was the end of Clayton's dreams. He now suffers from paralysis agitans which makes his head and arms shake and has affected his left side and also impaired his sight.

Every day Clayton walks miles and miles around the city selling his wares. His right arm and leg, his hearing and intellect are good.

If Clayton had a stand where his wares could be more effectively displayed or even if he had a more appealing line of merchandise, life would be easier for him.

ABSTAINED 97 YEARS

Newcastle Emlyn, Carmarthen, Wales — (CP) — Evan Jones, 97, has been a teetotaller and non-smoker all his life.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

A friend of mine was fired from the job he has held for twenty years because, despite warnings, he had got a little too much liquor in him to suit his martinet employer.

My friend is a very brilliant man in his line but he seems to have a boiling point at which he must let off steam. Life is a fire under him, and about three or four times a year, the lid blows. His martinet employer is also a very old friend of mine who knows he is a martinet but can't help it. It is not liquor that makes him blow his lid. It is the sins of others.

I telephoned the employer and asked him for the low-down. Was our mutual friend irrevocably fired?

"Yes," sighed the martinet. "I have studied this whole matter on its merits, and there's no use carrying on any longer."

"You mean," I suggested, "you have studied the matter on its demerits."

"Merits," cracked back the employer.

After a few more of the platitudes usual to such a discussion, we hung up, and I picked down the dictionary from the desk top. "Judge . . ." said the $4 dictionary, "on its merits: to judge with only intrinsic excellences in view."

It occurred to me to call the martinet back on the telephone and give him a piece of The Concise Oxford. But I reflected on the curious habit we all have of using words with reverse meaning. When we judge a matter on its merits, it is the demerits we sort out and weigh.

The telephone rang. It was the martinet.

"I've been thinking this over . . ." he opened.

A few minutes later, I joyously called my fired friend.

"He's too late, the old stinker," jubilantly cried the rejected one. "I've just been signed on by his chief competitor, who is delighted to get me, sins and all."

Letter to the Editor

Re Civic Affairs

Belleville,
Ontario

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I understand there is a move on foot to instal more parking meters, and that Pinnacle Street will be so treated right down to Dundas Street. This order should be rescinded. Meters on the busy shopping streets are essential but on other streets they can only be intended as revenue producers, and poor ones at that. There is no occasion to so penalize the public, especially our country patrons. We have far too many "no parking" signs in places where there is no good reason to forbid parking, particularly on the north side of Victoria Avenue and the south side of Campbell Street Campbell is a one-way street and both sides should be used. The bus stops may be necessary but this takes up more valuable parking space. I was glad to see them marked in red, but I notice all the ordinary parking spots are in the same color, and a color that will not last long. Parking space must be provided somewhere and the River Drive proposal seems to have gone by the board like so many other worthwhile ideas, either from stupidity or neglect.

I hope the police will "ticket" every car that blocks the entrances to the central market space, and I also hope they will see to it that, when the light turns green, the pedestrian gets the right of way, which he should have, instead of skipping and jumping for his life from cars making a right hand turn.

There are many other matters that I am going to take up later but in closing this letter I might say that if I were in authority, neither the Post Office nor any other public building would get one nickel's worth of sidewalks or anything else, until they paid for them. That is until they paid municipal taxes for improvements and services rendered by the muncipality, same as the rest of us. When it comes to collecting their pound of flesh the government is no sloth.

Capital Closeups

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 12 — (CP) — Mr. Parliament came to parliament this week.

G. H. Parliament of the department of veterans affairs, showed up to testify in a Commons committee as it considered a bill to amend the Rehabilitation Act.

Nobody made a wisecrack about the name but, Mr. Parliament grinned later, it wouldn't have made much difference anyway; the years have taught him tolerance of the pun.

The name, incidentally, stems from Pennsylvania Dutch.

Another Era

Sir Allen Aylesworth, who as a comparative youngster of 66 nominated William Lyon Mackenzie King for the Liberal leadership at the national convention of 1919, doesn't know whether he'll be around for the choosing of Mr. King's successor in August.

Now 95 and able to attend Senate sittings only occasionally, he says he'll be on hand "if I feel all right."

"They want me to go to bed," says the former Cabinet colleague of Sir Wilfred Laurier, "but I don't want to do that; not until I have to."

Benefits of Age

A faint "hear, hear" breathed through the aged Senate ranks when a budget bill came in this week. It gave an extra $500 income tax exemption for persons more than 65.

Taunted 70-year-old Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader: "There are some 25 in this chamber who don't benefit by this, but there are a good 60 of us that do. The day after it was announced, my law office in Winnipeg was all grins. My head girl looked up at me and said, 'Senator, how do you get away with it'?"

Shuffling

What with resignations and by-elections, there has been some shuffling of Commons members' rooms. The C.C.F., in the wake of its three by-election triumphs, needed more quarters.

So E. L. Bowerman (CCF-Prince Albert) found himself in strange and ironic surroundings when he prepared to mail out copies of a speech in which he had answered arguments by Walter Tucker, Liberal leader in Saskatchewan. He had just taken over the room Mr. Tucker had before he resigned as Liberal member for Rosthern.

TRUMAN LIKES STALIN

Eugene, Ore., June 12 (AP) — President Truman said Friday night he likes "old Joe Stalin," but accused the Soviet leader of making agreements that he cannot keep.

The President said that at Potsdam he "got very well acquainted with Joe Stalin."

"I like old Joe. Joe is a decent fellow, but he is a prisoner of the politburo. He makes certain agreements, but he can't keep them. They won't let him."

These remarks came at a station stop in Eugene, Ore.

COME, COME, GIRLS, THE BOGY IS THE BUNK

I would certainly like to know if there is anything I can do to avoid getting into the low mental state and nervous condition that accompanies change of life. I have always been healthy and reasonably good natured, but older women friends keep telling me . . .

(L. M. E.)

This is typical of many queries from misinformed women — misinformed chiefly by other women who were misinformed by still other old women, who were misinformed by ignorant old women, who believed the lies they read in the almanacs and in the fake testimonials printed by the vendors of "female regulators" and other nostrums for (mentally) "weak women."

There is no denying that a good many credulous creatures will suffer one or another impairment of health, breakdown, insanity, cancer, diabetes, apoplexy or something in the course of your second forty years, not because you are of the credulous sex but just because you are of the human family.

Then, too, for the sake of casual chitchat just among your intimate friends, I suppose you are entitled to have an assortment of complaints which you may dismiss—if you are childish enough about health—as inevitable manifestations of the hypothetical, morbid, wholly imaginary state you have been led to regard as "change of life."

The pamphlet I send on written request, if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address (and no clippings please)—is titled "The menopause." That's all, for that's all there is for any woman to "go through." So, if you prefer a lot of the old hokum to the truth about the menopause, don't waste paper and postage writing to me.

What can a woman do to avoid getting into the state the correspondent conjures up when the specter haunts her daydreams? She can do as any one else regardless of age, sex or previous condition of servitude should do at the age of ten, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty, sixty, seventy—learn and follow the rules of health.

I do feel sorry for the woman of whatever age who is accused by her doctor of having "change of life," for that is a pretty candid confession on the doctor's part that the patient is in for a lot of expensive and pretty ineffective treatment if she remains under his care.

I hope the correspondent has enough brains or good common sense, as well as good health and good nature, to give the old women whatever the polite feminine version of a horse laugh may be when they gang up on her.

A healthy woman at the peak of life should experience just one change—cessation of menstrual function.

If she develops any symptoms or complaints at all and has fair intelligence she will forget sex for a while and seek proper medical advice just as though she were a sensible human being.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Raw Milk

Please tell me whether raw milk is all right to drink. Some say it is not safe. Our three children drink a lot of milk and we are planning to get a cow.

(Mrs. J. E. M.)

Answer—If the cow is a healthy animal the milk is safe and more desirable for the children and other than pasteurized milk, in my opinion.

Bacon

Does the smoking and curing process destroy trichina larvae in bacon, so that one takes no chance of getting trichinosis from eating undercooked or raw bacon?

(F. K.)

Answer—The larvae encysted in the meat are generally destroyed by dry-salt curing or pickling pork, ham or bacon before it is smoked, but even so, it is a good rule to make sure ham, bacon, fresh or salt pork is thoroughly cooked before you eat any. Fresh pork must be cooked till it becomes white and is no longer pink or red even at the centre of the piece.

Why, Naturally

In Louise Dickinson Rich's We Took to the Woods:

"We are never sick . . . If ever medical science wants data on the common cold we're the persons to supply it. We do all the things that are supposed to cause colds, such as walking through snow with our clothes sopping, not changing wet shoes, lying on damp grass or sitting on cold stones, and the only time we have colds is when someone brings them in from the outside."

(O. P.)

Answer—That is true, if interesting.

Headache

I'd like to know more about calcium for headache.

(C. D.)

Answer—Ideally the best way to take calcium is in the form of milk or cheese. Otherwise it matters little which calcium salt you take, so long as you take enough vitamin D along with it to insure good utilization of the calcium. Send ten cents (in negotiable condition, not messed up with glue or plaster, pins, staples and the like) and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet "The Calcium Shortage."

How to Lose Weight

I leave for my vacation at the seashore the first of August and I simply must reduce twelve pounds before that.

(M. M.)

Answer—Perhaps the safest way would be to have a leg amputated just below the knee. However, if you prefer to keep your leg, and your head, you may make fair headway with yor reducing by that time—perhaps four or five pounds—following the regimen given in pamphlet I'm mailing you "How to Lose Weight."

A group of businessmen united in the common cause of distributing the word of the gospel, the organization is inter-denominational and is working on a practically world-wide scale, meeting with much success in their efforts. They place Bibles at the easy access of hotel patrons, inmates of penal institutions, hospital patients, and throughout schools as a part of their effort.

Two classes of Grade Fives were presented with the maroon-covered, small-size books, inscribed with the owner's name. These books become the personal property of the pupils, and it is proposed to make the presentation annually as each junior class attains promotion to fifth grade.

On behalf of the Board of Education, Mr. Seldon accepted 81 Bibles presented to the school for the use of the pupils of Grades Six and Seven. The books were dedicated with words of prayer by Rev. Mr. Sparling.

The assembly was then entertained with a piano solo, followed by a girls' trio of Grade Five pupils.

Social welfare reports were reported received by Mrs. Bleeker, who cited that support of service clubs, societies, and the Salvation Army must be given by the W.I. A Trenton welfare worker stressed in her report the teaching of sex-education in schools. Mr. Ruston had given an address on Child Welfare and Dr. Cornett lectured on sulpha and penicillin drugs.

Mrs. A. Mitchell, W.I., board member, extended the greetings of the board and reviewed the progress of W.I. work in fifty years. She called for the members to widen their horizons and take a broader view of matters beyond their own doorsteps.

Upon retiring, Mrs. Summers was presented with a cameo brooch. "I Serve" had been her motto throughout the year of service she had given the organization.

40 New Institutes

Progress of the W.I. during the past year included the formation of 40 new institutes in thirteen areas, bringing the number to a total of 1,350 institutes, 54 of which are Junior branches. One hundred and three British institutes were adopted for the exchange of letters, programs and ideas. The loan library has been stocked with books on life in the British Isles. The program, "Kindergarten of the Air" is given influence by the W.I.

The W.I. of Ontario have presented $19,000 for scholarships in Jr. W.I. and Jr. Homemaking. Mobile kitchens in Roumania and Poland which were instrumental in saving the lives of many children are in operation through W.I. efforts . The Weed Control Act was considerably strengthened through a W.I. resolution.

Initiative Shewn

Federal fees, to be in by Feb. 1, were called to the attention of the meeting. Mr. Mills asked co-operation between the W.I. and O.E.A. on their 100th anniversary.

The publicity report was given by Mrs. Chard, who reported 100 per cent perfect reports, stating that most branches use printed programs, announce meetings and give reports in the papers. Initiative was shown by W.I., in the food question by the catering to various organizations, sponsoring girls' work, radio announcements, inviting non-members to attend meetings, and the adoption of a British branch, and the introduction of humor into programs.

Mrs. Rodgers reported three girls' clubs, and that a number of girls had completed the course on "Cottons may be Smart", with record books well kept. Stress on the overlapping of reports and the need for harmony between conveners was laid by Mrs. E. Hopkins and the functions of standing committees should come under revision.

Work Commended

Miss Irvine commended the girls of Hastings County on their fine work and record. She mentioned the girls, who went up to the Canadian National Exhibition to participate in the judging for the county.

Dinner was served at the home of Mrs. Lorne Reid.

The afternoon session was resumed with Mrs. Nicholson calling on the Bay of Quinte to stand and receive congratulations on the honor of their 33rd anniversary.

Mr. Dalrymple outlined agricultural education in Ontario under the headings of agricultural education in the county, Kemptville, and the O.A.C. at Guelph.

Speaking on the co-operative medical services which are owned and controlled by the members who reap the benefits, Mr. F. Tummon likened it to the Blue Cross plan, being sponsored by the Federation of Agriculture and owned by those paying in to it and receiving the benefits.

Miss R. Dickie, Reg.N., Picton, spoke on the health unit operated in Prince Edward County, stating that a unit may be of any size and is financed by the province and county council. Difficulties had been encountered due to the inexperience, but with cooperation was now well under way. It served as a preventative measure rather than a cure.

The co-operative program was put in charge of Miss Hopkins and it was decided to have personality and dress, to be given some time in November. The meetings will be as follows:

Bay of Quinte at Bay of Quinte
Wallbridge and Uniondale at Uniondale.
Pine Grove, Chatterton, River Valley, Stirling at Stirling.

A report on the work of the Junior Institute for the year was given by Mrs. R. Hall.

Lack of Supervision and Loneliness Big Factors in Rise of Illegitimacy; 117 Active Cases Under Care of CAS

By R. L.

The Children's Aid Society for Belleville, The County of Hastings and Town of Trenton have a monumental task when one considers that besides their wards scattered over 300 boarding homes in the county, they have had up until April of this year 117 active cases of unmarried mothers.

This problem while a large one is being capably taken care of by this society with the help of the Salvation Army, Kiwanis Club, Kinsmen Club and the Victorian Order of Nurses. These unmarried mothers are looked after until after their babies are born and if later on when they find work, they are able to recompense their benefactors, they do so, but at an extremely low rate.

C. A. Notified

The hospitals and the City Clerk notify the Children's Aid when an illegitimate birth takes place if they haven't already been contacted by the mother herself and everything possible is done for her care and her baby.

Any girl who finds herself in trouble should not hesitate, but phone the Children's Aid Society and talk to Mrs. L. McLaughlin who will discuss her problem with her and advise her about the next step she must take. Mrs. McLaughlin stated that these girls will not be reproached but rather helped to start life again. "Life is like a story," she stated. "Turn the page and start again." There are hostels in Toronto, Ottawa and Kingston as well as church homes where these girls may be looked after.

The problem of the Children's Aid is not the care of these girls, but rather the educating of the community to decrease the likelihood of such tragedies.

Loneliness Hard to Face

Mrs. McLaughlin feels that "rented rooms" are one of the hardest things for girls to face. If the women in this community would realize that the rental of a room to any girl immediately places a responsibility upon the owner of the home, things might be different. No one should rent a room to a girl if they are not willing to make her "one of the family."

Girls are notoriously romantic and life shut up in a room, having no part in family life is not conducive to "good" living. Youth has so much energy and love of adventure that the first so-called good time that comes along will be snatched without a thought. Most of these girls are not bad, had no intention of ever entering into relationship with a strange man, but it sounded like "fun," so off they went. Loneliness is the cause of more trouble than anything else.

Another pit-fall for girls is the plant, office or shop in which they work, Mrs. McLaughlin believes. Totally unprepared for life, armed only with typewriting, shorthand or any other skill in demand for the present day female employee, and completely ignorant of the ways of the world, these girls come into contact with an atmosphere which is alien to them.

New Set of "Standards"

A complete set of new "standards" is set up which are a part of the business world. The competition which she expected to find is there but it is a different kind. Unfortunately her competence may bring her nothing; she may see another girl less competent than herself get ahead, for fairly obvious reasons.

The schools, homes and places of business are at fault. Ignorance leads these girls to their mistakes. No progressive plant should be without its social worker to help solve these problems. The business schools should explain the workings of the plants and offices; point out the things that must be avoided and the attitudes to expect. Mothers and fathers should investigate the positions their daughters are accepting and find out what outlets for relaxation there are for them in the community. If all these things were done, there might be fewer "bad" girls.

Long-Suffering Boston Fans Have Two Leaders to Cheer For, First-Place Braves, Williams

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Long - suffering Boston fans have two winners to cheer today — the first - place braves and the Ted Williams of the Red Sox.

Billy Southworth's Braves, a pre-season pennant pick of many experts, finally edged into the lead in the rough-and-tumble National League scramble by downing St. Louis last night 7-3.

Williams puffed his batting average to .395 by driving in seven runs in the Red Sox' 12-4 romp over Chicago White Sox event at this early date, it is not difficult to picture a .400 season for the slim slugger.

Only one game separates the first four teams in the National League which now appears assured of a wide open battle down to the wire.

Ralph Hamner dropped New York Giants out of the lead when he pitched Chicago Cubs to a 3-1 victory.

Herman Wehmeier, Cincinnati's prize rookie, chalked up his fifth straight success with a five-hit job against Philadelphia, 12-1. Johnny Wyrostek led the 15-hit spree against his old teammates with two homers, a double and single.

Leo Durocher was banished by Umpire Al Barlick before the ball game started in Pittsburgh but Brooklyn Dodgers, nevertheless went 13 innings to trim the Pirates 3-2.

Cleveland drew first blood in its important four - game series with New York Yankees by clubbing the world champions 10-8 before 67,924 Yankee Stadium customers. The game was enlivened by a five-minute barrage of beer cans, rubber balls and paper cartons when Umpire Cal Hubbard banished catcher Yogi Berra in the fourth inning.

Bobby Feller came out of the bullpen to turn back a Yankee threat in the last of the ninth after Joe DiMaggio hit his 11th homer.

Philadelphia playing at home, moved ahead of the Yankees into second place, three games behind Cleveland, by a 6-5 shade over St. Louis Browns.

Art Houtteman finally broke into the victory circle as a relief pitcher after eight straight defeats when Detroit nosed out Washington 7-6, in 10 innings.

FUTURE YANK HERO

Ace pitcher of the Newark Bears in the International League, Bob Porterfield, right hander, has twirled nine straight victories and boosted his club into a top slot in the loop. Porterfield is the property of New York Yankies.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The rampaging Peterborough team is here tonight at the Fair Grounds where they will clash with Bill Easton's crew from Batawa. The game starts at eight thirty and what is expected to be the finest baseball tilt in many a moon will get underway this floodlighting.

• • •

Both teams will be at full strength and it is expected that a full quota of Peterborough fans will be here to root Murphy's squad to victory. Batawa too, will be in full force. It looks like the battle of the year and a goodly crowd is expected to turn out.

• • •

Bill Easton, manager of the Batawa Shoemen told us today that his squad is at full strength for the all-important struggle tonight. He has, as we have said before, Jim Bowman, George Bedard and Gerdie Muffitt ready for the firing duties while the rest of the squad are also ready for diamond jobs.

• • •

The Peterborough crew, fresh from four straight victories come here with the idea to make it five straight, Batawa has other ideas. After all, the Petes lead the loop. Batawa is in second place. Tonight sees the battle of the C.O.B.L. Lets go.

• • •

AND THIS BY BOYD UPPER

After witnessing two baseball debacles in the city league this week it was a pleasant surprise to discover that the teams in this league can play ball when they want to. This was clearly demonstrated last evening at the Fair Grounds as a Northern Electric team, bolstered by four Kiwanis Junior players held the Picton Athletics to a 5-5 draw in eleven innings. It was an excellent example of ball as it should be played with both hurlers going the route and being given adequate support by the rest of the team.

• • •

The game was called at midnight with the fans still in attendance and apparently prepared to sit until dawn to see the end of the contest. Umpire Schreider called the game at the end of eleven complete innings of play because he had no knowledge of arrangements or otherwise with the parks board for the playing of night baseball in overtime.

• • •

Manager Ron Church of the Picton squad was quite perturbed about the whole thing claiming that the game should be completed and that in his opinion the Athletics would have an advantage, not specified, if the tilt continued. The game he felt was being called contrary to the wishes of all concerned and that he would enter a protest with the league president in the morning.

• • •

The alleged advantage probably stems from the suspicion that Bunton's arm was tiring in the final stanzas but the record just doesn't bear it out. In the eleventh frame Bunton struck out the first two men to face him and forced the third to fly out to right field.

Toronto, June 12 — (CP) — Bobby Locke, the wizard of the golf circuits who invaded Canada last year to walk off with the Dominion's premier golfing classic, the Canadian Open, is still, in the eyes of Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan, the man to beat in this year's play.

The South African, says Doug, "is definitely shaping up as the man to beat at Vancouver come September."

During the winter season, Locke collected $9,000 in prize money in the United States, after shooting 43 tournament rounds for an average score of 69.8.

Doug said:—

"On the face of it, that second place business would seem to indicate that Locke has fallen off the terrific pace he set in his first invasion of North America, but experts say that isn't so.

"They point out that the big South African last year did much better during the summer season that the winter." They look to him to improve his 1948 season from now on."

Mike (Kingston Whig Standard) Rodden, who has been lamenting for the McGill University Redmen who face the prospect of building a whole new team for the 1948 intercollegiate football campaign, takes time out for summer sport and he proved it recently.

While listening to Maury Farrel, sports broadcaster in the Polo Grounds, home of the New York Giants he heard the announcer "probably eager to match the daffy goings-on that have made Brooklyn famous," thunder over the air waves that, "the batter has just lifted a pop foul up behind second base."

And the Olympics?

Harry (London Free Press) Eisen, who has "called" several sporting events — several with success — leaned way back in his chair and, through the medium of his own mullet-face Malone, came through with, "The Louis-Walcott fight? Louis by a knockout. The American League winner? Either New York or Cleveland. The National League? Boston Braves will fool 'em all."

CLAPPER TO COACH

Boston, June 12 — (AP)—Dit Clapper will coach Boston Bruins again next season, Weston Adams, president of the National Hockey League entry, announced Friday.

It will be the popular Clapper's 22nd year with the Bruins, 20 of them as a player. Last year he was strictly a bench coach.

Picton Athletics Held to 5-5 Draw By the Electrics

In an eleven-inning thriller at the Fair Grounds last evening the Northern Electric, underdogs in the City League, held the fast travelling Picton Athletics to a 5-5 draw.

The game was called by Umpire Schreider at midnight at the conclusion of eleven complete innings of play on the grounds that he did not know if there was any arrangement with the Parks Board regarding the use of lights fo rovertime ball. Manager Ron Church ,of the Athletics, stated that he would protest the decision.

Both teams were all tied up 4-4 at the end of nine innings and the Athletics continued reluctantly. However in the eleventh, both teams were willing to go on but Umpire Schreider stood by his original decision.

One of the best crowds of the season to date was on hand to see an excellent brand of ball. The contest eventually came down to a pitchers' battle between Bob Bunton, ace hurler of the Kiwanis Juniors, who was on loan to the Electrics, and Picton ace Frank Dyer. Both hurlers went the route with Bunton walking six, striking out twenty, and giving up six hits for five runs. Dyer walked three, struck out sixteen, and gave up ten hits for five runs.

Gather Two in Third.

Picton gathered in two runs in the third frame on McDonald's second triple of the game. McDonald scored as the third baseman bobbled Fraser's grounder. Hayden walked and Fraser went down, short to third, on a bingle by Shannon. Hayden scored on a wild pitch.

The Athletics added another in the fourth as Dunning beat out a dropped third strike, continuing to second as Reeves threw wild to first. He advanced to third on scored on Bunton's second wild pitch.

The Electrics came back in the fifth inning to score three runs on four singles. Picton went one up in the sixth on singles by Dyer and Church. Electrics evened the count in the bottom of the seventh as James got on on an error and came home on the shortstop's miscue and a wild pitch.

The score was all tied up in the ninth and the game went into extra innings. Dyer led off for the Pictons with a single and Bunton weakened to walk two men to load the bases with no one down. Church laid down a perfect sacrifice to squeeze in Dyer. Bunton struck out Dobson, and McDonald filed out to right field.

With one down in the bottom of the tenth "Lefty" Noakes doubled to left field and scored on an error to the shortstop. The two teams played on even terms in the eleventh.

Citation Ready For Preakness And Triple Crown

New York, June 12—(AP) — Citation, Calumet Farm's wonder horse which took the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness with ease, today will go after the $100,000 Belmont Stakes, the final test in racing's triple crown.

A bulging crowd of 60,000 is expected to jam majestic Belmont course.

Eight other horses including Citation's stablemate, Coaltown, have been entered for the 1½-mile test for three-year-olds.

How many will parade postward at 4:45 p. m. EDT, remains to be seen.

Others were Glen Riddle Farms' Faraway, W. L. Brann's Escadru, Belair stud's Golden Light, A. J.Sackett's Gasparilla, C. V. Whitney's Vulcan Forge, William Helis' Salmagundi, and King Ranch's Better Self.

Several factors will enter into the size of the field. Among them are the weather, track conditions and the presence of Coaltown. With nine in the race it would net the winner $78,700.

Few expect Coaltown to start. Skeptics declared Calumet trainers, Ben and JimmyJones,merely wanted to have "insurance."

Most likely explanation is the distance of the Belmont, the toughest nut to crack in the triple crown quest. The Derby is 1 1/4 miles, and the Preakness 1 3/16 miles.

It costs $1,000 to send a horse to the starting gate, and opposition owners probably don't mind taking a chance to see if Citation can travel that extra quarter of a mile.

There's also a little matter of $35,000 to be considered — $20,000 for second, $10,000 for third and $5,000 for fourth place.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who rode Citation to victory in the Derby and Preakness, will be on the job again seeking to become the first rider ever to have two triple crown horses. Arcaro won with Calumet's Whirlaway in '41.

Rookies Wage Tight Battle For Batting Honors

New York, June 12 — (AP)— Rookies Glen Nelson of Rochester Red Wings and Don Mueller of Jersey City Giants are waging a tight battle for International League batting honors.

Nelson is mauling rival pitching at a .373 gait including games of Wednesday.

Mueller is right behind at .371. In addition Mueller paces the circuit in hits 63.

Another recruit, Rochester's Frank Gravino is third with .350. Two other Red Wings players, Chuck Diering and Ed Kazak, are fourth and fifth with .343 and .340 marks, respectively.

Rounding out the top 10 are: Howie Moss, Baltimore .333; Al Gionfriddo, Montreal .323; Johnny Groth, Buffalo, .318; Johnny Welaj, Toronto .312 and Kermit Wahl, Syracuse .311.

Moss, the defending home run king, leads the league in four-baggers with 15. Stan Lopata of Toronto and Bobby Young of Rochester are tied for the lead in triples at six apiece.

Snead Holds One Stroke Lead Over 57 Survivors

Los Angeles June 12 (AP)—Will hard luck continue to dog Sam Snead in the United States Open golf championship?

The final 36 holes of the big fairway derby got under way today and the question was expected to be answered about dusk on the Riviera course. Barring a 72-hole tie, that is.

Slammin' Sam held a one stroke lead over 57 survivors as he teed off for the third round. His 138 for 36 holes was compiled with a pair of 69s. He was three under par 71, for the distance.

Fortune has camped at Snead's doorstep in the past. In the 1937 open at Detroit, his initial try, he finished second to Ralph Guldahl's record setting 281. In 1939 at Philadelphia, he took an 8 on the 72nd hole whereas a normal par 5 would have won him the title.

At St. Louis last year, he missed a 30 1-2 inch putt for the victory, then lost to Lew Worsham in the playoff.

Treading on Snead's heels were Ben Hogan, the tournament favorite and P. G. A. champion, and Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa. Their 139s armed each with a formidable scoring weapon.

RATES HIGHEST ON RECORD

Ottawa, June 12 (CP)— Wage rates for farm workers during May were the highest on its records, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday. The farm wage survey was begun in 1940.

With board provided by employers, the average daily farm wage rate in Canada at May 15 was $3.93, compared with $3.59 at the same date last year. When no board was provided, the daily rate was $4.89 as against $4.55 a year earlier.

Santa Monica, Calif., June 12—(AP)—It wouldn't be damaging to say Jimmy Durante has a nasal deformity, a Superior Court Judge ruled Friday, but Hedy Lamarr's nose is somethin gelse, again.

"Durante capitalizes for his living on the size of his nose," Judge Stanley Mosk commented from the bench.

He refused a defence plea to throw out Miss Lamarr's $200,000 suit against Look Magazine. The actress alleges that a Look article made it appear—untruly, she says—that she had her nose altered by plastic surgery.

Newark Bears One Game Ahead Of the Royals

(By The Associated Press)

Dick Starr, 27-year-old righthander of the International League's first place Newark Bears, is pitching great ball in his bid for another crack at a berth with the parent New York Yankees.

Starr, whose pitching exploits have been overshadowed by Bob Porterfield, sensational rookie Bear righthander, has won five straight games since the middle of May including two one-hit shutouts.

He turned in his second one-hitter last night, hurling the Bears in a 5-0 conquest of the runner-up Montreal Royals in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second game was postponed because of rain.

Al Gionfriddo's double, inches inside the first base line, was the only hit against Starr. Oddly, it was a double in the fourth inning that deprived Starr of a no-hitter against Baltimore on May 23.

In addition to his fine pitching Starr helped his own cause, belting a two-run homer in the fifth inning.

The victory enabled the Bears to pull a game ahead of the Royals. They led the Royals by six percentage points before the start of the contest.

Syracuse's third place Chiefs edged out the Jersey City Giants, 5-4. The Chiefs won the game in the ninth inning when relief pitcher Luther Knerr walked Clyde Vollmer with the bases loaded and one out.

The loss dropped the Giants into fifth place, a game behind the Rochester Red Wings who moved into fourth place as a result of their 5-3 13 inning triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Rookie outfielder Frank Gravino tripled home the Wings' deciding tallies off veteran Luke Hamlin in the fourth extra frame. Max Surkont, who relieved Bill Reeder in the 12th, was credited with the victory.

The Buffalo Bisons trounced the last place Baltimore Orioles, 14-7. The Bisons staged a nine-run rally in the fourth inning during which the first nine men to bat all scored before a man was retired.

Home runs by Saul Rogovin, Johnny Groth and Chet Laabs high-lighted the Bisons' big frame. Rogovin started the game for the Bisons but was chased in the seventh inning when Howie Moss clouted his 17th homer. Ernie Silverman finished up, allowing only one hit.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, June 12 (AP)—Officials of the strictly Professional Basketball Association of America are somewhat perturbed because their athletes want to play for money this summer . . . That's not quite as silly as it sounds . . . Seems the players are being approached to play in the "Borscht Circuit"—the Catskill Mountain summer hotels that feature basketball to entertain their guests..The club owners shudder at the possibility of an $8,000 a season player getting a busted leg or shoulder separation playing on an outdoor court for maybe $100 a week and they're not sure from the wording of their own contracts that they can forbid such activity.

Shorts and Shells

Rocky Graziano spent part of the afternoon before his latest battle with Tony Zale answering the phone in the tournament of champions office...He did it so well the "seven angels" may give him the job permanently.. Don't be surprised if this new promotion group lines up Ray Robinson for its next show — which won't be held in Newark.

Weekend Notes

The professional tennis championships, starting today at Forest Hills, have received considerably more space in the local newspapers before today than the $100,000 Belmont Stakes, starring Citation...In one afternoon, the Belmont will draw more customers than the full week of tennis.. the feeling is mutual ... How come two of this season's sweetest big league players are Cleveland's Lemon and Cincinnati's Sauer?

Solunar Periods and Surface Lures

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

About fifteen years ago, a friend of mine who is an amateur scientist, and a thorough one, became interested in the Solunar Theory. Having a logical mind, he reasoned that the effects of the Solunar Periods should manifest themselves in the behavior of all fish and not be confined merely to game fish. Accordingly, instead of going afield to make his observations, he contented himself with watching some goldfish that were kept in an aquarium in his home.

After several months of observation, he pointed out to me an extremely useful bit of fish lore. Most of the time his little charges were content to rest quietly in the deeper parts of the aquarium but during the Solunar Periods they came to the surface and swam about there quite actively until the periods had passed. Then they would return once more to the bottom of the tank.

Preference Shown

Offhand, this doesn't seem to have any great significance. However, if you will think back a bit and recall your many days on lake or stream, you will remember many instances when the fish showed a decided preference for either surface lures or under-water lures one or the other but never both, to the complete exclusion of other types.

Remembering my friend's goldfish, I kept careful record of the tendency of all fish to surface during the Solunar Periods. At first I contented myself with watching a glassy pool in a trout stream or the surface of a lake on a windless day. Often the phenomenon was surprisingly clean-cut. The mirror-like surface would remain quite placid for an hour or so prior to the advent of a Solunar Period. Then, as the period approached, the surface would be broken by more and more rising fish until, during the height of the Solunar Period, the dimples, swirls and splashes gave evidence of intense surface activity.

Test Knowledge

One day in the upper Delaware a friend and I decided to put this bit of knowledge to the test. At the start of a Solunar Period, he began to fish at the head of a long flat pool, using an underwater lure. I gave him about a forty-yard start and then came along behind him with a cork-bodied bass plug. In half a mile or so of shoreline, he took not a single bass, while I, fishing behind him with a surface lure, took twenty-two.

Both in streams and in lakes, the predatory fish show a marked tendency to cruise about in shallow water during the Solunar Periods. In lakes you will find them in the most surprising places, sometimes in water that is barely deep enough to cover their dorsal fins. In streams, the larger fish drift down out of the deep water of a pool to cruise about over the shallow fans just above the riffles.

Care Must be Used

We find that great care must be used in fishing for them at such times. It is a "fine and far off" job and the slightest error, such as a bad cast, the thump of an oar against the boat, or the scrape of hobnails against a rock, will put them to flight and spoil the fishing. However, a surface lure, properly handled, will reap great returns.

The same thing holds good along the deeper shorelines. During Solunar Periods surface lures are definitely the order of the day. Between Solunar Periods, when the fish are in deeper water, underwater lures usually are more productive but when a Solunar Period comes in, best put the sinkers away and break out the top-water lures. In trout streams the same rule holds. Regardless of whether a hatch is drifting or not, dry flies seem to be by far the more productive lures during the Solunar Periods.

Just to play safe, form the habit of clipping out the week's Solunar Tables and carry these clippings with you in your kit. Then plan your days so that the Solunar Periods will not be wasted. Believe me, it pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Solunar Periods

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

The days given are for June 13th to June 20th inclusive. All times D.S.T.

Press Will Have Headquarters At Wembley

By The Canadian Press

The story of the Olympic games this summer will be told the world on a globe-circling scale unprecedented since the Second World War. Newspapers, radio and movies will record the mammoth, 17-day, 59-country show. An estimated 2,000 newspapermen will cover the 17 sports embracing 136 events. Press headquarters will be at Wembley Stadium, focus of the games and underneath the stands, out of view of the thousands of spectators, teletypes will relay "copy" direct to news agency and newspaper offices around the world. Nearly 600 newspaper men will be perched 100 feet up in a glass-enclosed stadium press-box.

Winnipeg's Abe Yanofsky scored one win and drew twice in his first three games of an international chess tournament at Prague. His two points put him half a point behind the leaders, Hungary's Barcza and Australia's Steiner.

United States tennis girls took a two-one lead at the start of the Wightman Cup matches at Wimbledon, England, Friday, but the play of Mrs. Molly Blair brought cheer to British hearts. She played a terrific doubles game with Mrs. Jean Bostock to trim Doris Hart of Miami and Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., present Wimbledon champs, 6-3, 6-4, It was the first victory for the British girls since 1939.

Holland won the doubles match from Britain at Birmingham, England, Friday, in the European zone third round Davis Cup competition. Dr. Hans Ven Swol and Igor Rinkel defeated Tony Mottram and Geoff Palsh, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Britain leads; two matches to one, with the remaining two singles to be played today.

Czechoslovakia and Belgium broke even Friday at Prague in the two opening singles matches of their quarter-final series in the European zone Davis Cup eliminations. Jaraslav Drobny, Czech ace rated Europe's foremost player, whipped Jacques Peten of Belgium, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2. Then Philippe Washer squared accounts for Belgium by turning back Vladimir Cernik, No. 2 Czech player 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

A great innings of 130 not out by their captain, Don Bradman, at Nottingham Friday enabled Australia to gain a first innings lead of 128 runs with six wickets still to fall at the end of the second day's play in the first test match against England. When stumps were drawn Australia had scored 293 runs for four wickets in reply to England's first innings total of 165.

WIDE VARIETY OF GAMES

(By The Canadian Press)

Senior amateur baseball fans last night witnessed a wide variety of baseball that included a lopsided victory, two tie games and a tight pitchers' duel as five senior Ontario games were played.

Both the one-sided victory and one tie game was in the Niagara District Senior League as North Tonawanda Dodgers trounced Niagara Falls Flores 16-5, and Welland Stokes played to a 6-6 tie with Niagara Falls Houcks.

The pitcher's battle came in the Nickel Belt loop as Sudbury Shamrocks shaded Frood Tigers 7-5 while Garson and Creighton Cubs played to a 5-5 tie. The only other game of the night was in the Timiskaming League where Hollinger Bombers defeated Kirkland Lake Greyhounds 4-2.

Girl Guide is Heroine in Landslide Tragedy
WINS DOW AWARD

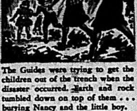
MARY YOUNG OF PICTON, ONTARIO, shows courage and presence of mind as trench cave-in buries two
The men working on the sewer excavation were off for lunch . . . leaving the 9-foot-deep trench a perfect playground for the two small children. However, Girl Guides Mary Young and Nancy Wright, hearing the children down in the trench, decided that it was no place for games. Scrambling down quickly, they were escorting the youngsters out in single file when, suddenly, a large section of earth on one side gave way.
USES BARE HANDS
One child escaped the landslide unharmed . . . but a little boy and Nancy Wright were buried under the heavy earth. Mary Young, somehow extricated herself, pulling one foot completely out of her shoe . . . and then, seeing Nancy's fingers showing, she frantically clawed at the rock and earth until she had cleared a small space around the imprisoned girl's head. This done, she dashed to the nearest house, gave the alarm, and returned to the task of freeing her chum.
Unfortunately, the little boy died. But, due to Mary's quick thinking and courage, a double tragedy was averted. Nancy Wright suffered only minor injuries and shock. We are proud to pay tribute to Girl Guide Mary Young of Picton, Ontario, through the presentation of The Dow Award.



The Guides were trying to get the children out of the trench when the disaster occurred. Earth and rock tumbled down on top of them . . . burying Nancy and the little boy.

Her training standing her in good stead, Mary Young coolly extricated herself . . . and, risking a further cave-in, she clawed desperately at the earth to rescue her friend.

DOW BREWERY • MONTREAL

His open ears, it now appears, improved the game for Cholly. He heard from friends how strip and ends can cure finessers' folly. And now he saves a lot of chips by working endplays after strips.

There was this deal:

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 C	3 C
4 NT	5 H
6 C	Pass

The immediate one-jump assist to three clubs is a promise of six tricks with two sure. Also club support. With his own six, south gets slammoody. His four no-trump is the ace-king asker.

Five hearts in reply thereto tells of one ace and one king in north. His other four tricks must be queens and short cards. They may not fit into a slam. But south goes there.

Opening lead from west is diamond jack. When dummy goes down, south can be sure of only ten tricks. He may lose two hearts and a spade. He may have to try finesses in hopes of saving some.

Where finesses seem necessary, experienced players look for a strip and endplay. If all finesses cannot be avoided, a plan is tried for avoiding one or more of them.

First three tricks go to dummy diamond queen and two south top trumps. A heart lead to dummy is finessed. When it wins, two more diamond tops and heart ace are cashed. Now what?

Spade finesse can be tried later, if necessary. Lead the third heart loser. West wins. If he returns a diamond, dummy ruffs and south sluffs spade queen. A spade return, too, saves a losing finesse.

When following a strip the endplay is a pip.

GIFT OF ENGLISH PAINTINGS

London, Ont., June 12—(CP)—The University of Western Ontario has a new $100,000 collection of English paintings—thanks to a British woman's feeling of gratitude for Canadian aid to Britain during and since the war. The donor was Laura Pesel of Guildford, Surrey, a cousin of Hugh and John Labatt of London, Ont.

BLAME FIRE ON SPARK

Norland, Ont., June 12 (CP) — A spark from a chimney is believed to have been the cause of a fire which swept the planing mill of J. L. Nevison Lumber Co., here to the ground Thursday afternoon. The Lindsay fire truck made the 35 mile run to Norland in 40 minutes but arrived too late. Fortunately the wind was blowing towards the river and away from thousands of feet of lumber and surrounding forest. The main part of the mill alongside was saved.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, June 12 (CP) — The frightening theory that humans are akin to insects when it comes to loving, living and fighting is expounded in "The Insect Comedy," currently revived by the New York City Theatre Company.

Owen Davis adapted this play by Josef and Karel Capek. Intelligently and deftly staged by Jose Ferrer at the City Centre, it seems to have lost little of the impact it had when first produced here in 1922.

In its three acts of Czechoslovakian brothers-authors portray life in the insect world, first among butterflies, then among beetles, and finally among the ants. A vagrant, representing the human race, surveys each episode from the sidelines. With each scene he realizes how closely the behavior of the insect tallies with that of the human race.

Fleeting Love Affairs

The butterflies spend their time in fleeting love affairs and the vagrant is reminded of drawing room society. The beetles, crickets and flies are chiefly engaged in piling up fortunes, finding homes and preying on other creatures for food. Again he finds a vivid parallel with human day-to-day existence. The regimented life of the ants, the pretexts on which they wage war and their conduct in battle are unhappily familiar to all who have lived in this century.

George Coulouris is first-rate as the vagrant who threads the play into coherence. The whole cast is good and so is Herbert Brodkin's forest glade set.

Betty Low, Ottawa-born dancer, shows to advantage in a double role, as one of the butterflies in the first scene and as a moth in the epilogue. Miss Low was seen here last autumn as Octavia in the Katharine Cornell production of "Antony and Cleopatra."

Sleepy Musical

An elaborate production and a large cast are engaged in "Sleepy Hollow," a musical adapted from Washington Irving's "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," but the critical consensus was thumbs down. Only Brooks Atkinson of The Times, warmed towards this tale about a young woman who tried the stunt of a headless horseman to untangle her romantic affairs. Most of the critics found this musical at the St. James Theatre a mediocre production, with the accent on sleepy.

Looking Ahead

Eddie Dowling, actor-producer, hasn't done anything in the musical field since 1934 when he produced and appeared in a revue called "Thumbs Up!" Now he is signed to supervise and stage "Heaven and Earth," a new musical which Monte Proser is producing in association with Ned C. Litwack. It is aimed for fall production. Impresario Arthur Lesser is reported to be working on an ambitious revue entitled "Fifth Avenue," it is scheduled to start rehearsal in August and reach Broadway in October .. Helen Hokinson's Matrons, familiar to readers of The New Yorker, have been woven into a play by Nancy Hamilton, assisted by Miss Hokinson. It is tentatively called "My Best Girls and Poor Mr. Potter," but the odds are that the title will be shortened.

INFANT DEATHS DOWN

Edmonton — (CP) — The infant death rate in Edmonton now stands at 32.5 for 1,000 births, "a better than normal rate and quite encouraging," Dr. G. M. Little, city health officer, has stated.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 12 — (AP) — The screen's fightingest man was at it again this week.

Victor Jory, the mug they love to slug, was being pummeled by Joel McCrea when I visited the "South of St. Louis" set.

Covered with make-up blood and his own sweat, Jory walked out of the scene to complain that he is always fighting in pictures. "I would much rather by playing 'Henry VIII' or 'John Gabriel Borkman' said the actor.

He was overjoyed with his previous film, in which he wore a business suit, had no battles and wooed and won Gloria Grahame.

"I've had every kind of fight imaginable," he sighed. "This year I had a dagger battle with Glenn Ford and a sword and dagger match with Larry Parks. I've fought in water, above water and under water.

Too Brutal

"I had a terrific bull - whip battle in a picture I made in Australia," he recalled. "It was so brutal that the whole scene was cut from the picture."

All these screen scrapes can't be faked, either. In his long and violent career, Jory has broken his collar bone (twice), five ribs, a thumb and a toe, and suffered endless slashes, bumps and bruises. He was also wounded with blank cartridges by Errol Flynn.

Worst Memory

Jory's worst memory was when he had to do an escape scene in a swamp and when he showed up at the location, he found two large crocodiles. Jory demanded that the beasts have their jaws taped. The director agreed.

"When I started swimming," Jory recounted, "I saw the crocodiles coming after me. Then they started yawning those big mouths. I broke Weissmuller's record getting out of the water, and I broke Mel Patton's record chasing after that director."

PAUDASH LODGE RANSACKED

Peterborough, June 12 — (CP) — A tea room on Paudash Lake, Haliburton, owned and operated by Miss Mary Gilley of Toronto, has been found stripped of everything moveable, including linen, cutlery, dishes and blankets.

Provincial Constable Stanley Palmeter, Bancroft detachment, is investigating. The lake is 58 miles north of Peterborough on Highway 28. This is the third wholesale robbery in the Highlands of Haliburton. Earlier this year Hart Lodge at Minden and Royal Lodge, Rosedale, were ransacked.

LANDS PICKEREL AT BACK DOOR

Campbellford, June 12 — (CP) — Practically at the back door of his home here, George Pucy dropped a line in the Trent River to catch a fish for supper. He got a strike at once on the hook baited with a June bug and a worm and within minutes landed a 17½ inch pickerel which weighed five pounds three ounces.

Drew Will Not Make Decision For Three Weeks

Montreal, June 12 (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario Friday attributed C.C.F. gains in the recent Ontario election to Communist support.

Before boarding a British Overseas Airways Corporation plane for England, the Ontario Progressive Conservative leader told reporters "most gains by the C.C.F. were the direct result of Communist support."

"Whether this support was welcomed or not, these Communist votes went to C.C.F. candidates," said Mr. Drew.

"However, I am not suggesting the C.C.F. is supported entirely by Communists."

Premier Drew said the purpose of his trip to England was to interest British industries in opening branches in Ontario.

Asked what his plans were for obtaining a seat in the legislature after his personal defeat at the polls, Mr. Drew said 30 P. C. members had offered their seats.

"I won't make a decision until I return from this trip in three weeks time," he added.

Earlier at Toronto he said that since the British government stopped the export of capital by British industries for construction of new plants in the province just over a year ago, negotiations have been carried on through Ontario House in London.

The negotiations have been to obtain approval of plans which will permit investment in Canada without any impairment of the British dollar position. He hoped to bring these discussions to a "satisfactory conclusion" on his present visit.

The plan, as laid before the United Kingdom government some time ago, would provide for loans in Canada on the basis of credits in Britain.

For example, a company wishing to establish a branch in Canada would borrow its capital from a Canadian insurance or banking firm. It could either pay this loan off from profits made in Canada or could, at such time as Britain's dollar position improved, pay the loan by transferring capital from England.

The Premier has stated previously that more than 100 British companies have applied for permission to establish plants in Ontario. The government has encouraged these moves and recommended decentralization of these new industries through the province.

PREMIER MAKES CHARGE

Rosthern, Sask., June 12 (CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas charged in a political speech Friday night that Provincial Liberal leader Walter Tucker had faced a charge of fraud last year.

Mr. Douglas, campaigning for the Saskatchewan general election June 24, said that the presiding judge "very conveniently adjourned hearing until after the provincial election."

The Premier said the charge had been laid as a result of loss of a farm property to a mortgage company of which Mr. Tucker was an officer.

Business Spotlight

By The Canadian Press

Stock markets this week displayed a stronger trend as a sudden flurry on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday set Canadian markets on a steady upward path.

General opinion of traders was that markets were beginning to move forward from consolidation since the mid-May upward surge. Higher rather than lower prices are expected.

In New York the Associated Press 60-stock average closed out the week unchanged at 71.7—the 21month high established Wednesday. Announcement of new airforce purchases kept aircraft stocks active and the stronger tone spread to the oils. The industrial average advanced .2 Friday to a new high since August, 1946, at 98.6.

Canadian markets were up over the four-day week in Montreal and Toronto. Toronto industrials were up .44 on the exchanges index over the four days. Base metals .15 and western oils 1.28. Gold issues continued their easier trend throughout the week, dropping 4.23, with 2.09 of the fall yesterday after Dome Mines had announced a cut in their quarterly dividend from 25 cents to 17 1-2 cents.

Total Toronto sales were 3,165,000, an average of 791,250 shares for the four days, compared with an average of 847,000 shares for the four-days of a week ago.

Golds dipped 3.06 on the Montreal averages with 2.20 of the drop Friday probably due to the Dome statement. Industrials rose 1.7 to reach a new high at 77.7 Friday.

Eradicates Weeds—Conserves Moisture

If YOU are bothered with weeds, quack grass or similar pests, you'll find cultivation with this rotary power tiller a quick and profitable solution to that problem.

Benefits of cultivating with Rototiller* are threefold: 1—The action of the rotary tines is so thorough that it covers every inch and destroys every weed or clump of grass. 2—The high-speed action breaks weeds and grass into tiny fragments and mixes them with the soil as organic matter. 3—It loosens, aerates the soil, and leaves a fine mulch on the surface that retains more moisture than conventional methods.

Come in today and investigate the many other ways in which you can use this power tiller and attachments. Each has been designed to make your work easier, faster, and more profitable.

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"Good-bye, then, Eileen. And take great care of yourself. I've probably missed the train and everything—but I don't give a hoot. Be sure to write from Marseilles and cable when you get in. And don't forget I'm coming out in March."

The girl clung desperately to her brother, her soft arms locked about him. Matt Kearney could feel that she was trembling, and:

"What's the matter with Kid Sister?" he asked, squeezing her.

"Kid Sister's miserable!"

"Because you don't want to go back?"

"No. But because somehow, Matt dear," she whispered very close to his ear, "I feel frightened about this journey. Don't be mad with me. I know it's silly, and I ought to be used to travelling by now. But I've got a wobbly, funny feeling."

Kearney looked down at the tangled curls nestling upon his shoulder; and in the light shining out from the cosy stateroom they gleamed and shimmered like burnished bronze. He hugged her affectionately and told himself that a chill suddenly experienced and resembling cold water trickling down his spine was due physically to the clammy quality of the night, and mentally to the girl's overwrought condition.

But he was used to Eileen's moods, to the odd streak of superstition—a legacy from their Irish-American father — which sometimes he distrusted but always understood.

"Kid dear," he said, and stroked her hair, "play fair. Seeing little girls off is bad enough anyway, without giving a fellow the breeze up."

"I'm sorry, Matt. It was utterly Big Pig of me."

She glanced up; and her blue-grey eyes were calm, except that he had a fleeting, odd impression that something—a shadow — had been banished at that very moment from them.

"No—only Little Pig," he said playfully. "I only wish I were coming with you."

"It wasn't fair, and I shouldn't have said it. It's just this beastly fog and having to let you go ashore in it. Give me a kiss, Matt, and we'll go and hunt Jack Rattray—although I really don't know how you're going to get home."

Wisps of mist floated under the lights. Not another soul was in sight on that deck, but there was activity on the deck below, and a tremendous clamour — on the dockside. The R.M.S. Wallaroo was going out in the morning —sixteen hours late, thanks to one of those fogs, London Special, which sometimes hold up Thames traffic for whole days. All the other passengers seemed to have retired, with the possible exception of a few stragglers who might have been found in the smoker room.

One last lingering glance Kearney cast into the cosy stateroom which Eileen was to occupy to Colombo. He would cheerfully have resigned six months' pay to be going too. The wardrobe trunk, which he had labelled himself, a green hat on the rack above the bed, a camera hung on the back of a chair, a dressing case open on the table. The box of a hundred cigarettes which Dawson Haig had brought down to the steamer that morning lay on the turned-back coverlet, and a pile of magazines on top of an unopened cabin trunk; three novels which Matt had brought for Eileen in the rack beside the green hat.

"Ah, well!" he sighed, "you'll be a comfortable Little Pig. Winter, the purser, is a star turn. You're at his table, and he'll see that everything's right. Jack Rattray is an old pal, so that you won't lack company."

"I shan't lack company," said Eileen archly.

Her mood changed, and she smiled mischievously. But Kearney welcomed the change, and:

"You little devil!" he said, and squeezed her hard. "Don't forget there's a spy aboard."

"I might buy him over!" said Eileen.

"I'll tell Billy Haig!"

"Oh, don't please do that!" Eileen exclaimed in mock horror. "He might never run out to Colombo to have a cup of tea with me as he promised!"

But really her heart was very sad. Because she didn't expect ever to see Dawson Haig again.

She made a charming figure in the light streaming from the cabin door, simply dressed though she was in a jumper and tweed skirt. And Matt Kearney felt affectionately proud of his dainty sister. However:

"Come on," said he. "Let's go and dig old Rattray out. I must positively beat it. I've got at least a quarter of an hour's walk through dockland, and failing divine luck, a long voyage by motor bus."

Jack Rattray, chief officer of the Wallaroo, was exchanging a few pleasantries with the boss stevedore by the hatch of Number Three hold. But he broke off this not too preliminary debate when the charming passenger, now wrapped in a warm fur coat, appeared beside him with Kearney.

"What about a final?" asked Rattray.

"No final for me," Kearney replied. "Just think, old lad. Fortunately, I know the way, but even so, the prospect isn't cheering." He grasped Rattray's hand. "Good-night, and all the best. I know you'll look after her."

Rattray, tall, leisurely, taciturn, smiled his slow smile. His teeth were very white and his coloring very fresh; and:

"Sure thing, Bo'!" said he.

"You're mocking me!" Eileen cried, and punched the speaker forcibly in the ribs. "I don't have an accent like that. I speak better English than you do, anyway!"

"You speak more English," Rattray drawled provocatively.

"Very Big Pig," said Eileen.

But Kearney left the ship in a happier mood and experienced no return of that unpleasant chill. Eileen was in good company, and the voyage would pass like three days.

"Thank you, sir," said the man on the gangway, as he slipped half-a-crown into his hand. "Good-night."

"Good-night," Kearney called, and picked his way through litter on the dockside. Just under an arc he paused, turned, and looked back. Jack Rattray and Eileen were standing on the deck by the gangway. Already a curtain of mist obscured the ship from his view, making their figures oddly dim. But he knew they could see him, and standing there he waved his hat and shouted:

"Good-bye until March, and good luck!"

"Good-bye, Matt, came the girl's voice; and:

"Cheeri-ho, old boy."

That was Rattray.

The fascinating activity of those docks claimed Kearney. Here East meets West: produce of the Spice Islands, tea of Ceylon, the timbers of Burma, jostle ironmongery from Birmingham, lie cheek by jowl with chemical products of Silvertown. At night, especially, under dockland floodlights, amid river noises and the hoarse voices of workers; the mystery of the Port of London, type of a vast and ever turning wheel of empire, touched the poetry which was part of him. At times he thought of it as a strange, grand song; which he improperly understood, to which he knew that even Kipling had failed to give its true color; which must elude the highest genius, because, although it was the work of man, it transcended man, being a god which man had created but no longer controlled.

He gave up his card to the policeman on duty, and ten paces beyond, looking back, could see merely a dim blur, making the site of the box which that official occupied.

"If this damn fog continues," he reflected, "my prospects are indifferent."

He stood there for a moment looking about him and failing to notice a man who, ten paces away, seemed to be watching the dock gates—a tallish man wearing a white raincoat, collar turned up, and a soft brown hat with the brim pulled down. But the other man had seen Kearney—and the sight of Kearney had set him dreaming....

Misty, wet streets faded from ken with their din of rumbling lorries, and the watcher of the dock gates was transported to Colombo—Colombo a year before. A year! It seemed only like a week! The mist dispersed before the eyes of the dreamer by the gates. He saw Mount Lavinia Hotel, and a petite, slender girl in a blue frock crossing the deserted mahogany dance floor. She had been a sort of revelation, opening his eyes to all that had been lacking. He was among the stars again, could see the winkling lighthouse callously stabbing the tropical night, hear the plaintive tremolo of a Tamil love chant floating up from the village....

From these haunting memories he was abruptly jerked back to reality. He withdrew into shadow.

A man was coming out of the gates—so muffled up in a heavy fur-collared coat that his features were indistinguishable. This man turned sharply left, passed Kearney, and was swallowed up in the fog.

And as he vanished, something—an instinct perhaps; or was it a faint odor suggestive of musk? —suddenly brought Kearney an unaccountable return of that sensation as though cold water trickled down his spine. He stared into the fog. Had someone passed him —or had he imagined it?

He hated this sensation — as of an indefinable dread—which twice now, had oppressed him.

A hand rested on his shoulder.

Kearney twisted about with a cry. The man in the white raincoat stood just behind him. And, stock still, peering into the other's face:

"Good Lord!" Kearney exclaimed joyfully, "it's Dawson Haig!"

* * *

Eileen watched from the rail until fog hanging over the dockside swallowed up Matt's figure. She turned and looked at Jack Rattray. Seeing her expression:

"Whatever's the matter, Eileen?" said he.

"Oh, I don't know, Jack! she replied, and swept her hair back from her forehead irritably. She was angry with herself. "I'm behaving like a perfect little idiot tonight. And if you ask me why, I can't tell you. It's just jim-jams. Except that I think it began with a horrible looking man wearing a fur-collared overcoat!"

"Oh!" said Rattray, conscious that duty called him but held against his will by the girl's unaccountable mood. "When did you see this furry bird? And was it his collar or his overcoat you didn't like?"

"His face! He looked into the open door of my stateroom while Matt was up in your cabin. I didn't actually see him — I was unpacking—but I saw his reflection in my hand mirror. When I turned, he wasn't there."

"Do you mean he was actually in the room—fur collar and all?"

"No—foolish idiot! He was standing just in the doorway and he was smiling. .the most horrible smile imaginable."

"An Englishman?"

"Oh, no, he wasn't! A Chinaman."

"A Chinaman! In a fur coat! No wonder you were shaken up!"

"There was a queer musky smell too—"

"Have you seen him since?"

"Yes. I saw him afterwards on the dockside, looking up at me."

"I think that settles it," said Jack Rattray reassuringly. "There was a bunch of stuff shipped by a Chinese agency down Limehouse way for a firm in Sydney. Some damn silly mistake. They're hauling it out now—a hell of a job—from Number Three hold. This Oriental bird was probably the half-wit responsible. It's given me more trouble than the specie."

"The specie?"

With Women Usurping Men's Wear It's About Time They Did Something About It, Here's Some Suggestions

By B. U.

It is time that men became style conscious. Rather conscious of style beyond paying for it that is. The horrible truth is that men soon will not have a distinctive dress at all. Nowadays it is hard to tell a woman from a man on the street at thirty paces.

Women have adopted slacks, a poor imitation of that noble covering, the man's lower half of a man's suit. The suit coat is gone. Women now wear men's shirts for dress up or casual wear depending on whether they intend to attract a man or just get him to notice them. The "T" shirt, that last badge of athletic masculinity, has fallen before the female hordes. This summer you need be careful whom you slap on the back.

Do Something About It

A counter attack to reclaim these lost items seem in order. The first step, of course, is to decide on which of two approaches shall be used. The first is to design a complete new wardrobe for the men and the second is to dress up what we have and copyright the results.

The first alternative is the more difficult one but it might be interesting. The only substitute for the trousers is the dress or skirt. If you don't think so figure it out for yourself. Since the dress has been abandoned by many women with the exception of grandmothers, and girls going to formal dances, the men would immediately attract considerable attention. Details as to patterns, length, width and height could easily be arranged.

The shirt that buttons up the front could be replaced by one that buttons up the back. This might seem like a lot of trouble but a separate identity is worth the price. Shoes are too conservative. Women are elevated by their footwear, men now walk on the flat, but it is respectfully suggested that the shoes of the future give men the appearance of being two inches shorter. This could be done by raising the toe and lowering the heel. In addition to creating a new industry this would give the men the appearance of leaning against an imaginary wall. It would be great for those who walk down hills frequently.

Shorten Up

The second approach — to dress up what we have—could be accomplished easily by covering everything from socks to hankies with feathers. Or ribbons! If this is not feasible we might shorten everything in the closet, including the stretch for shoes. Shirts would be shorter, trousers shorter, coats shorter, shoes narrower and shorter, in short, everything shorter.

And now the hats. Men's hats haven't changed in forty years. A fellow buys a new hat and who notices except the fellow that sells it to him. It is the same shade of brown as the last half dozen hats that he has had. He turns it up and creases it in the same old way. He wears it at the same angle. Who could possibly notice? Besides, such an attitude eventually blunts a creative and artistic soul. Men, you owe it to yourselves and to your tailor, to be different. Together we stand....

Put down that flashy tie, We'd rather be caught dead in a pair of tennis shorts than wear that thing. What is the matter with the old blue one

Report Burma Wants to Follow Russia Credited to Premier; Official Confirmation Lacking

London, June 14 — (AP) —The British Foreign Office said today it lacks official confirmation of a Reuters report from Rangoon saying that Premier Thakin Nu has announced his intention to lead Burma into communist domination and close relationship with Russia.

The foreign office said the report is under close consideration.

(Reuters said that Thakin Nu had announced that his country wanted to "follow Russia" and "abolish capitalism.")

Privately, responsible Whitehall officials expressed "grave concern, over the reported development. Burma cut her ties with the British Commonwealth a little more than five months ago.

"It's difficult to believe that the Burmese people would really approve an action of this kind if they understood what communism stands for," one informant said.

Thakin Nu, leader of the anti-fascist people's league for freedom, has presided over a moderate socialist government since last July.

Britain still has a big economic stake in Burma, rich in oil, silver and lead mines.

Rangoon (Reuters)—Burma's left-wing Socialist Premier Thakin Nu who yesterday announced that his country wanted to "follow Russia" and "abolish capitalism" has stated that foreign property will not be confiscated without compensation.

To give no compensation as demanded by the Burma Communists might lead to economic or political sanctions, or even to war, he said.

He claimed that it had been Russia's policy to pay equitable compensation for property taken over.

NORMAN YERROW, C.N.R. BRAKEMAN OF CITY, KILLED

John Foster, Engineer, Also of Belleville, Hurt; Several Cattle Destroyed

Toronto, June 14 — (CP) — A railway brakeman was killed, three other crew members hurt and a shambles was made of four carloads of livestock in East Toronto Sunday.

An 82-car freight train drawn by a two-unit diesel locomotive collided with a 24-car steam freight at slow speed.

Norman Yerrow, 27, of Belleville, Ont., lost his life leaping from the train. The brakeman was just rising to his feet when he was pinned beneath a surging mass of bawling cattle, sheep and pigs and died of suffocation.

More than 20 animals were killed outright and others, badly hurt, had to be killed later. Eleven cars were derailed on the Canadian National Railways tracks, only 50 feet from an overhead bridge on a busy city street.

A. J. Lomas, Toronto manager of the C. N. R., said the cause of the collision is being investigated.

Hurt in the crash were Engineers John Foster, 61, of Belleville and James Potts of Toronto. Also injured slightly was Walter Motychico of Toronto, believed to have been a crew member of the Potts train.

Scene of the crash was one of noisy confusion as the animals screamed in pain. One bull, apparently unhurt, was at large for an hour before police killed him with seven slugs from a rifle and two blasts of a shotgun. Before this, he alarmed the neighborhood and almost caused the death of a woman camera enthusiast. She barely got back into her house before the frenzied animal sank a horn in the door frame.

Weather Synopsis

Cool air pushing slowly southward across Northern Ontario on Sunday caused cloudy weather with below normal temperature. Light showers fell in many districts. Over Southern Ontario the weather was mostly clear with temperatures near their seasonable normals. Little change in these conditions are anticipated for today and Tuesday.

COMMUNIST TAKES OFFICE AS PRES. CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Gottwald Elected By Public Show of Hands

Prague, June 14 — (AP) — Czechoslovakia's first Communist president was elected and took office today.

Premier Klement Gottwald was elected by a show of 296 hands in a public parliamentary election held in 16th century Vladislavisky Hall, and was hailed by Speaker Oldrich John as "a Socialist president in a Socialist country."

Apart from Gottwald and a woman deputy who resigned three days ago, only two voters were not accounted for among the 300 members of parliament, who include 214 Communist Party members.

The new president swore allegiance to the Peoples Democracy Constitution, went into the Hradcany courtyard to review troops and police, and then crossed back into the courtyard where Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran greeted him and Mrs. Gottwald at the door of St. Vitus Cathedral.

The archbishop, clad in brilliant scarlet robes, shook hands heartily with the presidential couple and then escorted them into the church for a Te Deum (thanksgiving) mass.

Military and naval attaches of embassies also attended in uniform. Eduard Benes, who resigned as president a week ago, was not present at the election of his successor.

The cathedral ceremony was the first Roman Catholic rite for the election of a Czechoslovak president, the official newspaper of the Catholic People's Party said.

Church, State Clashes

The archbishop and the government have clashed. The archbishop and bishops of the country are on record against priests taking part in the present government, which seized power in a coup led by Gottwald last February.

There has been no announced retreat from a statement by Catholic bishops at Olomouc May 3 that "priests who were deputies in parliament had voted for bills with which no Christian, let alone priests, could agree."

Gottwald, who has been Czechoslovakia's premier since July, 1946, was the only candidate and thus became this country's third president. Sixteen years ago he stood for the presidency against Thomas G. Masaryk, the country's first executive, but received only a handful of votes.

Anton Zapotocky, a trades union leader who has been the deputy premier, succeeds Gottwald as the cabinet head.

Gottwald is 51 years old, a native of Moravia and a former carpenter. He engineered the February coup which gave the Communists full control of Czechoslovakia. He has been a Communist for decades and spent the war years in Moscow.

His election as president was accompanied by elaborate ceremony, a 21-gun salute, tolling church bells, a Te Deum mass of thanksgiving sung by Archbishop Josef Beran and troop reviews."

Hector Nadeau, a brother employed at Dorval airport, Montreal, has been notified and will arrive here later today. It is understood the drowned man was working here at the time of his death.

N.B. System of Balloting Unique, Voters Not Troubled With 'X' Marks

Fredericton, June 14 (CP) — New Brunswick, preparing for a general election June 28, may have an unique system of balloting but it is not complicated by the use of "X" markings, an official said here today.

Previously The Canadian Press had erroneously reported the use of "Z" in marking the voters choice on ballots supplied by parties.

There is no official ballot as such. Instead each party prints ballots containing only the names of its own candidates; or a voter can use a blank piece of paper supplied by the polling clerk and write his own ballot.

The voter may:

1. Cast the ballot of one party or the other.
2. Strike out one or more names on the ballot and substitute other names for what is known as a "split ballot."
3 Discard the party-printed ballots and write the names of his choice on a blank ballot.

But he does not use an "X" on any ballot. This would nullify the vote.

The official also emphasized that while many voters used the ballots of one party or another, this procedure did not officially constitute a "party" vote as such but was deemed merely to be a vote for each name on the party ballot.

Three Forest Fires Continue to Rage In Northern Quebec Area

Maniwaki, Que., June 14 (CP) —Three forest fires north of this important pulp and paper town are continuing to rage today and paper mill officials said at least three days of rain would be required to halt the devastation.

One fire was reported partially checked at Forbes depot, 45 miles northwest of Maniwaki. However, the others at Clova, 115 miles northeast of here, and at Suzie, a few miles south of Clova, still were out of control.

A slight respite of a 10-minute downpour yesterday failed to relieve 1,000 log drivers and bush workers battling the fires for 20 rainless days.

An official of the Canjuuk International Paper Company at Maniwaki said additional forest engineers and portable fire pumps were speeded to the fires in answer to appeals for help.

The fighters at Clova could only be reached by radio yesterday.

At Clova and Suzie the fires have swept over nearly 80,000 acres of timberland. At Clova the fire now covers an area 15 miles wide and six miles deep; at Suzie the frontage is eight miles by four miles.

No attempts have yet been made to produce rain by sowing dry ice in the clouds but an official said progress being made in northern Ontario was being watched closely.

He said the fires already have destroyed more than 75 square miles of timber and was having an adverse effect on paper production at the Maniwaki plants.

At Forbes depot the fire earlier had cut the Maniwaki-Val d'Or highway in several places.

Rain Falls Over Areas

Rain fell generally over most of the fire areas of Northwestern Quebec and occasional light showers were reported in Northern Ontario.

A steady drizzle fell over the Rouyn area of Quebec. An official of the Canadian International Paper Company said the situation looked "pretty good."

In Northern Ontario, weathermen said the rain won't amount to much. Light rain was reported at mid-morning at Porquis Junction and Earlton in the Temiskaming area. There were occasional showers at North Bay.

Weekend showers checked flames slightly in the big areas of Mississagi and Chapleau but shifting winds added to the troubles of fire crews.

A ten minute shower at Maniwaki, North of Ottawa, brought firefighters their first respite in 20 days. Fires continued to rage at Clova, 50 miles north of Maniwaki, and at Forbes Depot, 45 miles northwest.

Camp 36 of McFadden Lumber Company, comprising 11 buildings in the Chapleau area was destroyed by fire during the weekend. Lumber men were fighting fires which today surrounded a second camp. Company officials said there was a slim chance of saving it.

Vast Area Closed

Forestry officials said more than 1,000,000 square miles of Northen Ontario bush in 12 separate areas has been closed. Main highways are open, however, and travellers are allowed to visit organized tourist establishments and summer cottages as long as they stay close to the lakes and keep out of the bush.

Lands and Forest Department officials said the scars of 1948's devastating fires may remain until the year 2028.

Experts say it takes 80 years to reforest a burned out area. Some sections of the north country in which giants outbreaks have eaten steadily through timberland contain little but the charred hulks of once-valuable pine and spruce — and fires still are advancing.

Ready for evacuation if necessary, the 3,000 residents of the Northern Ontario railway town of Chapleau kept anxious eyes on a fire in Panet township which swept to within 1 3-4 miles of he community's northern limits. Roman Catholics in the area held special masses to pray for rain.

Flames Sunday came within 3 1-2 miles of the Trans-Canada Construction Company camp at Squaq Chute, on the southern fringes of the 200,000 acre Missisagi blaze. All persons at the camp were moved to safety.

The Chapleau blaze had spread over 250,000 acres of mixed timber by Sunday night. The wind was shifting and outbreaks in new quarters were feared.

Postpone Talks On West German Federal Govt.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

Frankfurt, Germany, June 14—(AP)—By request of France, United States and British military governors have postponed talks with German leaders here on a West-German Federal Government.

They did so because the French National Assembly has not yet approved a six-country agreement to set up such a government. The assembly ends debate on the matter tomorrow. Parish observers predict approval by a slim margin.

The Allied-German talks had been set for tomorrow. Gen. Louius D. Clay, United States military governor, and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor, meet with other British and United States officials in Frankfurt today.

The German Economic Council of the U. S. and British occupation zones — which may become the nucleus of a Frankfort government taking in the French zone as well — also meets today.

The council is expected to protest international control of the Ruhr — another recommendation made in the Allied agreement.

The agreement was worked out in a London conference of Britain, the U. S., France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. It was announced a week ago.

While the Western Powers have been making their plans for a German government, German Communists have been gathering signatures on petitions for a unified Germany.

They wound up their three-week "peoples plebiscite for German unity" Sunday in Berlin and the Russian occupation zone.

They slipped into the U. S. and French sectors of Berlin to collect names. The plebiscite was banned as a "Communist Front" manoeuvre there and in the western occupation zones.

U. S. military government observers reported German reaction to the movement "generally apathetic."

Soviet-controlled Berlin newspapers said up to 94 per cent of the people of the Russian zone signed and 750,000, in North Rhine-Westphalia in the Ruhr. Socialist papers charged padding.

Asks When Govt. Will Lift Embargo On Cattle Export

Ottawa, June 14 — (CP) — Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) tried unsuccessfully in the Commons today to learn when the government plans to remove the long-standing embargo on the export of beef cattle to the United States.

Finance Minister Abbott, to whom he directed his question, said it did not come under the finance department.

Agriculture Department officials here have said the export ban will not be lifted for some considerable time, while other sources have suggested it may be removed when the movement of beef cattle to market starts. This will be around July 15 in Ontario and Sept. 1 in Western Canada.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who will make the recommendation to the cabinet, now is in Western Canada.

Harold Fieghen Remanded Week

Toronto, June 14. (CP)—Harold Fieghen, 45, was remanded today until June 22 on a charge of attempting to murder his wife.

Fieghen was arrested Saturday less than an hour before his daughter was to be married. Mrs. Fieghen was discharged from hospital in time to attend her daughter's wedding.

Police said Fieghen fired one shot at his wife with a .22 calibre rifle. The bullet was deflected by Mrs. Fieghen's elbow and caused only a flesh wound in the chest.

Fieghen who was recently released from a mental institution told police: "If I hadn't been getting weaker and weaker each day I would not have done what I did yesterday."

WILL BE TORN DOWN

Brantford, June 14 (CP)—Demolition of one of this district's oldest churches will start this week. The Farringdon Independent Church, built nearly 100 years ago, will be torn down to make way for a modern structure.

MOVE UNDERWAY TO SWITCH U.N. HEADQUARTERS

Probable New Site Would be Geneva

Lake Success, N.Y., June 14—(AP)—A move is quietly in the making here to switch United Nations headquarters out of the United States, it was learned today.

Countries supporting the idea are taking no open steps and are laying the groundwork carefully. The drive may emerge as early as this fall at the Paris assembly. The substitute site probably would be Geneva.

United States congressional approved of a $65,000,000 loan to the U.N. for building Manhattan skyscraper headquarters would be a blow to those hopes for a switch. But delegates familiar with the situation say that even granting of the loan will not assure permanent headquarters for New York city.

Among others, the Arab states are understood to want headquarters in Europe. Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Lebanon, along with Australia and El Salvador, voted against New York when the assembly made the selection Dec. 14, 1946. At that time, the Arabs said their ballots were a protest against New York and not other United States cities.

However, they are said to be convinced now that no location in the United States is suitable. Bitterness over Zionist influence is the primary factor.

The two biggest question marks in the manoeuvring are Britain and Russia.

Might Switch Support

Britain, who originally wanted Europe, under certain conditions might switch back to support of Geneva.

If Congress fails to approve the loan, Russia is expected to seize the opportunity to assail American failure to keep promises and charge that Washington is letting down the U.N. Future political developments are expected to decide whether Moscow then will go a step further and join in the move to pull the U.N. out of the United States.

Reports from Washington say House leaders have no present plans to put through the loan before the expected adjournment next Saturday. However, should Congress go back into session after the political conventions, the loan still could be approved before the U.N. Assembly opening Sept. 21. The Security Council is in recess today. It will convene tomorrow to study the Palestine situation.

NEW CROP GROWN

Thedford, June 14 (CP)—A new crop will soon be grown in this Lambton County district — peppermint. W. A. Schramek of Gilbury has purchased 480 acres of marshland, will begin growing peppermint as soon as the land is dredged and drained.

Mediation Efforts Get Under Way As Fighting Ends

Headquarters Set up On Rhodes Island Off Turkey

Cairo, June 14 — (CP)—The Arab-Jewish truce was reported to have brought quiet to Palestine at last today. The United Nations mediator was on Rhodes, Greek Mediterranean island off Turkey, setting up headquarters for negotiations toward lasting peace.

Both Jews and Syrians charged new violations Sunday in Northern Palestine of the four - week armistice that began Friday morning under U. N. sponsorship. The Jews said they had been forced to fight back. The Syrians threatened to do so.

But two truce observers, United States naval officers, got back to Tel Aviv from the northern front Sunday night and reported all quiet there. A Jewish communique said the fighting stopped Sunday morning.

The Jews welcomed 420 immigrants to Tel Aviv Sunday night. They got their first food convoy in more than seven weeks through from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem Sunday.

The U. N. mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, flew into Rhodes and said he had word the Holy Land had "calmed down." He arrived from Cairo by way of Trans-Jordan, Palestine and Syria.

He would say nothing about future negotiations. He planned to go back to Cairo tomorrow to see the Arab League political committee and then to Tel Aviv Thursday to meet Israeli leaders.

King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan told an interviewer in Amman that Arab acceptance of the truce "does not mean in any way that our determination to fight Zionism has weakened."

Israel has insisted upon statehood in a partitioned Palestine. Abdullah called for "a unitary Arab state in which the Jews would have full citizenship and local independence."

No Time for Politics

"But this is not yet the time for discussing these political matters," he said, "and we are now concerned with the greatest task — fighting Zionism and unifying Palestine."

He denied reports he favored a union of Palestine and Trans-Jordan. He said he would follow the decisions of all Arab countries on Palestine's political future.

The Israeli government wrote John Reedman of the U. N. staff in Tel Aviv that the Syrian army had broken the truce with attacks on three Jewish settlements in Galilee and said Israel's army had had 'to renew its activities in self-defence."

In Damascus, Syrian Premier Jamil Mardam Bey told a newspaper man the Jews attacked Sunday morning in the Baniyas area and inflicted some casualties at Tel Khenzir.

The Jewish truck convoy from Tel Aviv took food into Jerusalem for 90,000 Jews there.

Commanders of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion in the Holy City said the Israelis had broken the truce by bringing the convoy in unchecked.

Truce terms made public by Bernadotte Tuesday do not mention convoys to Jerusalem but forbid movement of war materials and put relief to Jerusalem people in the hands of the International Red Cross.

The 420 Jewish immigrants arrived aboard the liner Kedmah from Marseille.

A senior truce observer said all men of military age aboard would be sent to a refugee camp.

The truce agreement calls for interment of men between 18 and 45 who reach Israel during the armistice.

London, June 14 (CP) — Air Training Corps Cadets will visit Canada in August as part of an exchange of visits between the A.T.C. and Canadian Air Cadets, the Air Ministry announced today.

Highlights of the trip will be a five-day cruise on the Great Lakes in a 600-ton luxury yacht.

They will leave Aug. 10 for a cruise up Lake Erie along the Detroit River and around Manitoulin Island.

The Cadets then return to Aylmer leaving two days later for an Ottawa reception.

They will spend the last five days of the visit as guests at private homes near Montreal, returning to Britain Aug. 23.

Howe Hopes Soon To Announce Grain Payments

Ottawa, June 14 — (CP) — Trade Minister Howe, told the Commons today he hopes to make an announcement shortly on payments to be made to farmers who lost money on coarse grain sales when the price ceilings were lifted last fall.

Replying to John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre), he said the matter was still under consideration and he hoped to make the announcement before the end of the session.

PACIFIC DEFENCE TALKS

Canberra, June 14 — (Reuters) —The first of a series of talks on Pacific defence between Australia, New Zealand and Britain opened today at Suva, Fiji Islands.

They will discuss increasing the strength of the islands as a Pacific base.

The Fiji Islands are a group of 322 islands — 216 of them uninhabited — in the South Pacific, about 1,100 miles north of New Zealand. Their 1946 population was 259,638, including 120,414 Indians.

Old Age Only Enemy of King Gustav Of Sweden on Eve of 90th Birthday

Stockholm, June 14 (AP)—Still active in his job, King Gustav V of Sweden turns 90 Wednesday, loved like a father by his people.

The King's 90 years is a record among 20th century rulers. His reign is the longest in Sweden in modern times. He became King in 1907.

An active tennis player until two years ago, still a hunter and a chain smoker, the King now is growing a bit frail. There is no special concern for his health, but age is exacting its tribute.

Last winter when the King was forced to use a walking stick, he was annoyed. "I'm getting old," he said. He no longer is permitted to walk upstairs in the royal castle.

However, he shows few outward signs of old age. On June 6, Sweden's Flag Day, the King stood at attention for a half hour saluting parading military and civilian groups.

Swedes love to tell stories demonstrating the old King's physical and mental fitness. At the royal summer castle of Drottningholm, just outside Stockholm, the King would walk through the halls and when passing a high-back chair would throw one long leg over it.

"There is still pep in the old man," he would say.

On his 80th birthday the King wanted to ride a horse through the streets of Stockholm, but his physician and Crown Prince Gustav Adolf intervened. The King, however, was allowed to ride on the parade grounds on the outskirts of Stockholm on condition that he keep his horse at a walk. Thousands of Swedes felt their hearts quicken when they saw the tall, thin, white-haired King spur his horse into a lively canter.

Known all over the world as "Mr. G.", as the tennis playing King preferred to be called on the courts, he swung his racket with skill and dexterity up until two years ago.

Asked why he didn't take up golf, the King replied: "Why that's an old man's game."

A good democrat, he carried himself with a natural dignity and inspires respect without effort. He spurns elaborate pomp and back in 1907, when he ascended the throne, he created a sensation by declining the customary corona-

Sailing Craft Capsizes in Bay, Two Are Rescued

Local Amateurs Contact E. Arctic During Field Day

Belleville "Amateurs" contacted a weather station in the East Arctic at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 12th. They are very proud of this achievement because it further proves to all those who may still be skeptical that the "Hams" should be encouraged so that there may be a portable and mobile equipment independent of power lines in times of emergency.

The "Amateurs" held their field day, sponsored by the Amateur Radio Relay League of Hartford, Connecticut from 5 o'clock EDST Saturday P. M. to 5 P. M. Sunday. Their site was outside Brighton on a bluff overlooking Lake Ontario.

The Belleville Amateur Club want to thank the RCAF at Trenton for their splendid co-operation in supplying vehicles, operators and equipment.

Stewart-Warner Corporation co-operated by supplying portable power supplies, trucks and other equipment.

About twenty operators participated from Trenton and Belleville; all amateur bands from 3.5 to 50 mcs were in constant use. 200 contacts were made with other amateur stations all over the United States and Canada on both voice and c.w. (code). The power was supplied by batteries and gasoline driven generators.

The weather was perfect both days and many visitors came to the site on Sunday and were welcomed and shown around. Other clubs participating in Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor, London, Guelph, Kingston and Niagara Falls were contacted.

The "Hams" set up their equipment in a very short time, further demonstrating their value in times of stress. Their furthest contact made that day was approximately 2000 miles.

PHONE EQUIPMENT SHORT

Canberra — (CP) — America, home of the telephone, is trying to buy telephone equipment from Australia. Telephone installation in the United States has been held up because of lack of materials. Australia has a better supply of winding wire than most countries but it will be several years before supplies are adequate.

BOON FOR DEAF

London — (CP) — The National Health Act which comes into effect in July will "make the deaf to hear." As a result of three years' experiment the medical research council has arranged to distribute cheap and efficient hearing aids which will satisfy the needs of about 90 per cent of the deaf people in Britain.

$3,000 Fire Loss At Cement Block Bldg., Starling St.

Damage estimated at approximately $3,000 resulted to the Belleville Cement Block Company building on Starling Street late Saturday afternoon when fire of an undetermined origin almost completely destroyed one wing of the frame building before it was brought under control by local firemen.

The blaze had received a considerable start before it was discovered shortly after five o'clock and firemen in answering the alarm could see flames rising above the building as they rushed up Station Street. The block making plant is situated just east of the Swift Canadian plant.

Fire Chief William Lynch stated that approximately two-thirds of the building was gutted by the flames which made rapid progress in the frame building which was covered by a tar paper roof. Hydrant pressure was sufficient to bring the blaze under control.

Although the building proper was badly gutted by the blaze, contents of the structure were for the greater part undamaged. A large quantity of bagged cement stored in the building was saved from damage by water when firemen covered it with tarpaulins to keep it dry.

Owners of the building were at a loss to determine the origin of the blaze. No one was at the plant at the time the fire was discovered, employees having left an hour-and-a-half previously.

Police Blotter

Theft of a $500 tar pot from Boyce's Service Station on Front Street, was reported to police over the weekend. The tar pot, owned by the Mid-West Roofing Company, had been left on the service station property while the firm was engaged on another constructing job.

Local police are continuing their drive against auto speeders and against motorists found violating city traffic by-laws. Over the weekend several motorists were checked for speeding on Dundas Street and all paid fines at the police station.

Three Montreal men were picked up in the Meyers Street vicinity following complaints from a resident that the men were loitering. The men, giving their names as T. McCambridge, Vernon Poirier and M. Askinson, were charged with vagrancy.

Medical, Dental Check-up Urged During Vacation

The importance of every child having a general checkup by the family doctor and also a dental check before entering school in September is stressed in the monthly health report submitted to the Belleville Board of Education. This check-up is asked by the provincial department of health which also urges that every child be vaccinated against smallpox before entering school.

In local schools rapid classroom inspections were done in the four junior grades following the Easter vacation, according to School Health Nurse Mrs. Watt. These inspections have been continued in the health room on all grade four pupils with vision tests also being done.

The pre-school inspection is being carried on in the four schools with 124 mothers and 128 children being interviewed.

The Rotary Club of Belleville has come to the aid of one local school girl by supplying her with a hearing aid. This young girl had never been able to hear. Four children were fitted with glasses during the past month by the Kinsmen Club.

Honesty Still Is Best Policy Delegates Told

Hamilton, June 14 (CP)—Representatives of Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade in six provinces met here today for a six-day course at McMaster University.

The course, open to secretaries of Businessmen's Associations, is designed to bring the delegates up-to-date on techniques of operating Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade.

Lectures on practically all aspects of Boards of Trade and Chamber of Commerce operations are being given by top executive personalities from both Canadian and United States Chambers of Commerce and industry.

In public relations, "as elsewhere, honesty is the best policy," Carl Reinke, Director of the Public Relations Bureau, Canadian Industries Limited, told the Board and Chamber secretaries.

"If the basic principles on which a company operated were unfair and not in the general interest, it did not matter how good the public relations man's efforts were. The facts were against him" Mr. Reinke said.

He believed that while it could be agreed that the business philosophy was progressing, it was obvious that the public's understanding, of what was being done lagged far behind.

"Here is the public relations job, and each of you has his part," he told the institute.

Northern Reeves Urge Action On Completion of Highway Linking North to South

Reeves of the northern section of Hastings County combined at the closing session of County Council Friday night, to hurl sharp criticism at what they termed the lackadaisical attitude of the council, and Belleville organizations regarding the condition of the roads leading to the north.

Reeve Clarke Rollins, of Wollaston township spearheaded the verbal attack, and Reeves Peter Kellar, Bancroft and W. J. Davis, Bangor, Wicklow and McClure and others supported the Coe Hill speaker.

The Wollaston reeve deplored the fact that a departmental highway was not available through the centre of the county to the rich vacation lands of the north. Roads in the county, he charged were far behind those of neighboring countries and nothing much was being done about it.

Must Rely on Roads

"The Bancroft-Detlor road is in an extremely dangerous condition' he said. "You want to bring tourists to this county. We have no airports in the north and thus are forced to rely on roads. We do not appear to have the support of this council in putting the matter before the Department of Highways. If roads had the same support this body gives agriculture, reforestation etc, we would get somewhere."

Reeve Rollins pointed out that it had taken "10 years to build the road from Maynooth to Combermere. Other parts of the north like that to Barry's Bay are all right, but south through Hastings the roads are a disgrace."

He urged the establishment of a strong committee of county council, city council, Belleville Chamber of Commerce and other organizations to put the matter before the Department of Highways. "And don't leave the matter at one visit. Keep hammering away and we shall get somewhere. That has been proven by other projects in the county."

Says it is Time for Action

Deputy Reeve Wilfred Spencer of Rawdon supported the Wollaston reeve. "A road through the centre of the county has not only been neglected in the north but the south as well," he said. This project has been neglected too long and it's about time some action was taken.

"We want the people of the north to come down here the same as we of the south want to visit our friends and relatives up there."

Reeve Peter Kellar, Bancroft, stated that over 60 per cent of the business of the north was being diverted from Belleville because of the condition of the roads. "We have splendid highways on the west to Peterborough, on the north to Haliburton and on the east to Renfrew and Ottawa, but what have we got to the south?" he said.

"I am not blaming the county council so much but pressure, and heavy pressure should be brought to bear on the Department of Highways to give the people of the north a decent road to Belleville. If these people had started to build at Millbridge and worked south to Madoc, instead of north from Madoc, they would have been doing something."

"Let's get after them and get some action. They have done a lot of talking and little work on what is nothing but an Indian trail. It wouldn't have taken the late Dr. Faulkner that long to build a small stretch of road.

Good Roads Needed for Prosperity.

"We need good roads in the county if the people of the north are to prosper," Reeve Harold Wells, Stirling, said "and you can rest assured of the fullest support of the south in the matter."

Warden George West was of the opinion that a resolution would not be strong enough. "Send a delegation up there and put the matter before the proper authorities. Then in two or three months send another. I am sure the city council and the Chamber of Commerce will join this body in the matter. I have been told that 75 per cent of the business of the north is going to Peterborough because of rough rocky roads. We must take action and impress the Department of Highways that we mean business."

Would Use Pressure On Department

Reeve W. J. Davis, Bangor et al, agreed that maintenance of pressure on the department was the only effective manner of getting some action. The people of the north, he said, are as much Hastings county minded as those of the south — and they want to be. They would rather come to Belleville than go to Peterborough — but they have not got a decent road to travel on.

Reeve Charles Rush, Hungerford, was of the opinion that the first part of the year when roads estimates are being struck would be the best time to approach the department. Organizations of the city will be approached in connection with the formation of a county delegation.

Three City Manufacturing Firms Had Varied Displays At International Trade Fair

Belleville manufacturing concerns and others within the Belleville area outdid themselves at the Canadian International Trade Fair. Northern Electric, Stewart-Warner and Bata Engineering Co., although varied in their exhibits had eye appeal and quality products which stood out from the other exhibits contained within the three buildings allocated to the fair. Stewart-Warner and Northern Electric booths were in the Electrical Building and Bata Engineering Co., had an exhibit of its shoe products in the Coliseum and another exhibit of its shoe machinery in the Automotive Building.

Stewart-Warner made a fine showing with their variety of radios. There were portables, large consoles AC/DC and FM sets. Small table radios and particularly attractive small "sewing cabinet" models with delicately carved legs and intriguing swing back doors concealing the radio behind them and looking all the world like fragile tables suitable for milady's sitting room.

Most Versatile Display

Northern Electric were most versatile in their display and brought up from their Belleville Plant, Reproducer sets and one particular model of interest, their R4391C known as Program Sound Pick up Bay, which has many uses but has particular facilities in connection with schools in that it can be used as an educational medium. The workings are concealed in a tall thin metal cabinet with a slide out drawer which holds an automatic record player. When this drawer is closed one's eyes fall upon many knobs and buttons which make up the control panel and which allow outside programs to be received and also transmitted throughout the school. The records of course are played directly on the record player and transmitted in the same way.

360 Samples of Shoes

Bata Shoe had an exhibit of some 360 sample shoes of all types and in the Automotive building displayed their shoe machinery and other machinery of European import. They had a very large display of Sigmund Pumps and irrigation equipment. They were visited by various notables throughout the exhibition and particularly mentioned Mr. Rai Singh from Bombay, India, who was interested in complete shoe machinery for the production of rubber footwear. Other interested customers were from Brazil, Norway and Siam.

The three companies mentioned above were well represented on Saturday, the last day of the exhibit:

Stewart-Warner—Mr. Colin Scott, Sales Manager, Radio Division; Mr. P. M. Brand, Chief Engineer.

Northern Electric—Mr. Jim Mastine, Export Sales Engineer; Mr. F. F. Fulton, Chief Engineer.

Bata Shoe, Mr. R. B. Plante, Sales Manager of Engineering Division; Mr. James Taylor, Advertising Manager.

SPELLMAN RETURNS HOME

New York June 14 (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman, returning here by plane Sunday night, said that in China he saw "a great many refugees from Communist persecution." He said he saw many priests expelled from their missions, "which had been burned." War tension in the Far East "is the same as it is all over the world," he said. "Japan is peaceful and orderly, and the men in charge are pleased by the low crime rate."

FAMILIES FLEE TO STREET

Windsor, June 14 —(CP) — Eight families fled to the street today from their second-floor apartments in the Peters' Block at Ottawa Street and Parent Avenue in East Windsor when fire was discovered in a drug store on the ground floor of the building.

Firemen battled three and one half hours before the blaze was controlled.

Insurance adjustors have not completed an estimate of the damage, but it is thought to exceed $25,000.

C.S.U. OFFICIAL CLAIMS SHOTS ARE FIRED AT PICKETS

Milton Nuttall, Business Agent for Upion, Arrested by Police

Toronto, June 14 (CP) — The arrest of a union official in Cornwall and the alleged firing of a warning shot at union pickets at Sarnia enlivened weekend developments in the strike the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) called June 3 against five Great Lakes shipping companies.

The firms, which refused to deal with the C.S.U. on grounds it is Communist-led, were Canada Steamship Lines, Sarnia Steamships, Colonial Steamships, Northwest Steamships and Transit Tankers. Practically all their ships, manned by the Canadian Lake Seamship Union (Ind.), have continued to sail.

The C.S.U. man arrested was Milton Nuttall, business agent at Cornwall. He was charged with "forcibly seizing and retaining" a crew member of a lake steamship.

Nuttall was scheduled to appear in court at Cornwall today.

Two other men, identified as C.S.U. members, were arrested on a charge of illegally boarding the Sarnia Steamships vessel John O. McKellar near lock eight of the Cornwall canal early Sunday. Their names were not made public.

Mike Hornak, C.S.U. official, said at Sarnia that shots were fired in the direction of C.S.U. pickets as they crept toward the tanker John Irwin at Sarnia. The raiders fled.

Constable Boards Vessel

Police said later a special constable had been placed aboard the Irwin as a watchman. They would say nothing regarding the alleged firing of warning shots but said the C.S.U. men apparently cut a wire fence to enter Imperial Oil Company property.

Meanwhile, Harry Davis, C.S.U. president, charged in Montreal that the C.C.L.-affiliated Seafarers International Union was hiring men for the C.L.S.U.

Men from the rival seamen's unions clashed Saturday afternoon at a cabin camp just outside Cornwall. One C.L.S.U. member was sent to hospital and at least 15 other men altogether suffered cuts and bruises. Police, who reached the scene after the fracas, said the C.S.U. men apparently set upon the C.L.S.U. group in an attempt to drive them out of town.

Early Sunday strikers boarded Sarnia Steamships' John A. France and the C.S.L. freighter Acadia at Cornwall and removed 26 crew members altogether.

Resisted Seamen

Union officials said Nuttall telephoned the R.C.M.P. to inquire about the arrested men, was asked to call at police headquarters and was taken into custody on arrival.

Police said the ship's master, John Sharp, resisted the seamen when they climbed aboard. Officials said none of the McKellar's crew—members of the latter union—was persuaded to leave the ship. The McKellar was unloading salt.

About 100 lake seamen were involved in the battle Saturday on the western outskirts of Cornwall.

One man, found lying unconscious in a ditch was removed to hospital.

The fight began when some 50 members of the rival Canadian Lake Seamen's Union (Ind.) travelling in automobiles, passed a C.S.U. picket encampment. The shouting seamen, wielding pop bottles, swarmed over lawns and backyards, tearing clothes from each other's backs. The seamen had dispersed when township police arrived.

Induces Crews to Leave

During the night C.S.U. men had induced crews to leave the Sarnia Steamships vessel John A. France and the Arcadia. A mem-Canada Steamship Lines.. A member of John A. France came ashore in his underwear.

Nuttall said 11 of the men who left the John A. France carried cards issued by the National Employment Service, directing them to the C.S.L. office in Montreal. Five crew members said they had been carried to Cornwall as "super-cargo."

Nuttall said he had "sworn statements that the government employment agency has been recruiting men to fill the places of other men involved in a legal strike."

HAIRCUTS GO UP

Toronto, June 14 (CP)— Larry Drane, business agent for the Ontario Barbers' Association, today announced a general increase in haircut prices of five to 10 cents effective later this week.

The price of a shave is unaffected. Children's haircuts will not be increased since individual barbers set their own.

The Association authorized the increase "as the only alternative for barbers to meet the present cost of living," he said.

LUCKY ADMIRAL

Glasgow, Scotland — (CP) — A bottle of Scotch whisky, first prize in a bazaar raffle, was won by Rear-Admiral Cunninghame Graham, who opened the bazaar.

Marmora

Hockey Team Guests of Chamber At Banquet

Marmora (Special)—Marmora Chamber of Commerce held a dinner meeting in the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening, having Marmora Hockey team of the past season as its guests, the full attendance being about fifty five. Following "The King" President Alex Fraser made some general remarks. He alluded to the impending departure of an active worker in the person of Rev. E. M. Cadigan. He wished him well in his new sphere in Ottawa on behalf of the Chamber. He also welcomed guests, one of whom was recently out from Denmark. The guest speaker of the evening, Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, was introduced in a neat speech by Lt. Col. A. V. Yates. Dr. Howard extended congratulations to the rink committee on their fine accomplishment and followed with a talk on "This Priceless Way of Life". He was extended a vote of thankes by Bernard Hughes, on behalf of the gathering.

The toast "Our Guests" was ably proposed by William Shannon with W. M. Regan, President of Marmora Athletic Association responding. Routine business was brief. The remainder of the meeting was spent with the Chamber intertaining the hockeyists at cards.

Steak Prices Up At Hamilton

Hamilton, June 14 — (CP) — Increase of from four to five cents per pound in steak today sent local meat prices soaring to a new high.

Butchers quoted round steak at prices ranging from 72 to 77 cents. Porterhouse, wing and T-bone steak was selling at about 85 cents. Hamburg did not increase today, was already 38, 40 and 42 cents.

Asked if chicken would not be the cheapest substitute for beef, the manager of a downtown shop agreed but predicted prices of fowl would increase soon. Meat-hungry consumers would turn to chicken, create a shortage and advance prices.

Calling for immediate re-imposing of ceiling prices, strict adherence to consumer resistance wherever possible, and exhaustive investigations, women in civic, club, organization and business life today expressed their disapproval of soaring meat prices.

Mrs. A. G. McGhie, president of the Hamilton Conference Women's Association of the United Church said that women of all denominations, clubs and organizations should back the Canadian Association of Consumers.

Advocating consumer resistance wherever possible was Mrs. Norman Stewart, past district Deputy Grand Matron of the Eastern Star.

"To every serious - thinking woman, the high price of meat seems to be out of all proportion," she asserted.

Mrs. J. M. Hughton, president, local Council of Women, saw danger to the country's production. If working men who needed meat could not afford to buy it, production might suffer.

Churchill Doesn't Draw Paye

London, June 14 (AP)—Winston Churchill said today he is not drawing the £2,000 ($8,000) a year to which he is entitled as Conservative Party leader in the House of Commons and a former Prime Minister.

He issued a formal statement after Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, had said in a speech that Churchill "is more often absent than present in the House but continues to draw his £2,000 during his absence."

The statement added that Churchill does not draw the £2,000 pension open to him as former Prime Minister as an alternative to his salary.

Dutch Underground Leaders to Visit New Settlers in Belleville Area, Call Newcomers 'Cream of Holland'

Two former leaders of the Dutch Underground are planning to visit Belleville to contact all the Dutch immigrants who are living in this area. From Holland to Belleville is a long journey and one which involves many changes in customs and language. In the last few months Dutch immigrants from The Netherlands have been making their way to Canada and settling on farms throughout the continent. These people might have been fogotten, however, and the novelty of their arrival pushed aside if it weren't for the efforts of two of their own countrymen who have travelled from Rotterdam to stay in Canada until October. They plan to journey across Canada to give instructions to these Dutch people and to help them understand our language a little more quickly. There's is a thrilling story.

At the risk of their own lives Dr. J.J. Stam, Doctor of Theology and Minister of Reform of The Netherlands Church of Rotterdam and Reverend L.P. Bruijn rescued the paratroopers as they were shot down near Arnhem. Dr. Stam's daughter also assisted in this dangerous work. She is a Doctor of Neurology and Pyschiatry at the age of 30. For his part in the work of the "underground" Rev. Mr. Bruijn received a citation from General Eisenhower.

Dr. Stam stated that the Church of The Netherlands is very similar to our United Church and that his work is to integrate his people into the United Church of Canada. The Church of Netherlands he stated is orthodox protestant of a Calvinistic nature.

Rev. Mr. Bruijn a well-built blue-eyed young man of 29 who fought among the airborne troops stated that he feels "right at home" in Canada but can't get over the abundance of food and clothing with of course no need of ration coupons.

Six hundred Dutch Immigrants will arrive in Montreal today on the Dutch ship Kota Inten. Mr. Bruijn will be on hand to meet them.

"I want the Canadian people to understand," stated Dr. Stam "that the "cream of Holland" is being sent over. All the Dutch people are specialists in Agricultural, dairy and mixed farming. Green house specialists are also included and in two or three years "tulip" farms will also be started.

TO MAKE TWO SPEECHES

Rio De Janeiro, June 14 (CP) —Canada's Governor General, Viscount Alexander, is expected to emphasize the growing importance of trade relations between Canada and Brazil in separate speeches today to the Senate and Chamber of Deputies.

He is also expected to hail the work of the Brazilian troops which were under his command in Italy during the Second World War.

Early today he is to greet Brazilian war veterans who served under him. The day's program also includes a visit to the supreme court and a speech tonight at a foreign office banquet.

ADMISSION—A MINCE PIE

Wisbech, Cambridgeshire, England — (CP) — Admission to a Christmas party here was by mince pie, except where "hardship" could be proved in obtaining ingredients for the pies. Then a small cake was accepted instead.

Air Force Day

Air Force Day with the opening of National Flying Clubs Week on Saturday was an event whose importance cannot be overestimated. All across Canada the occasion drew many thousands of visitors, the proof that the public of the Dominion realizes the paramount greatness of aviation in the development of a nation and of its defence. Canada is one of the countries which has a great stake in aviation, being the northern part of an entire continent stretching between the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Forty-Ninth parallel to another ocean, the Arctic. How great a place in world development of aviation, Canada will fill, the most casual observer will realise. It is already recognized across the world that Canada does occupy a prominent place in military and in civil aviation. The Second World War won for Canada a name in flying which proved the heroism of her sons in the Royal Air Force and Royal Canadian Air Force and it has brought attention to the place which this Dominion must and will give to aviation as she is on the air highway of the world.

The success of Air Force Day at the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton was phenomenal, many thousands availing themselves of the opportunity of visiting the station to see what an air force base is like and what life is like in the camp. It provided an opportunity to everyone to inspect the station and furnished an impressive picture of the working of the R.C.A.F. The show of the new jet Vampires and the other types of airplanes gave some suggestion of the vast development which continues to take place in aviation and will continue.

The public can gather some idea of the great opportunities for young Canadians in the Air Force since aviation is young and yet has made immense strides which are transforming the world. This new arm of the forces proved itself in the late war as of the greatest importance.

In Canada aviation should occupy a supreme place because of the vast extent of territory. The airplane can link the nation together and form the links with the rest of the world on the great trade routes.

During this week the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association aims to see Canada occupying a leading place in this age of speed in the air. They are bringing flying information and training to a great number of young Canadians.

New Settlers

Farming in Canada has attracted the family of the only surviving sister of the late Czar of Russia, who are going to establish a dairy farm in Ontario. Since the upheaval in Russia through the Bolshevik revolution they have been in Denmark, one of the most progressive agricultural lands in Europe and the world. Now they are going to set up farming in this Province and there is no doubt while agriculture here differs from agriculture in Denmark, their conclusion has been that this province is their best choice.

Ontario has made a name in agriculture which has been spread abroad and at this time is serving this Province well in drawing attention to the manner of farming and the possibilities of this branch of farming in this dairy country.

In an age when there are migrations of a large number of people from Europe this part of the New World is receiving due attention from an increasing flow of settlers. This is an age of migration, forced upon the peoples of Europe as the result of the Second World War. Many millions were torn from their native soil by that conflict and great numbers have expressed a desire to make a fresh start in lands afar. Canada and its provinces have been brought before the eyes and minds of these people and there has been an influx of many. Preference is shown for immigrants from west and northern Europe. One of the heaviest migrations in the postwar period has been the movement towards Palestine, whose heavy growth in population has been due to the desire of Jews abroad to return to the Holy Land.

Migrations today differ greatly from the migrations in Europe in the early centuries of the Christian era where sheer pressure of the weight of people in Eastern Europe and the need of space brought great numbers of races and tribes even to the western coast of Europe. Those early migrations actually changed the complexion of Europe and through Europe of the world. The treks of entire races were controlled only by these peoples themselves as far as they were able to exert their pressure and force their way forward into Central, Southern and Western Europe. Today's migrations however are now controlled by those on the receiving end, who have the privilege of selecting those who shall enter the country for their own betterment and for the sake of the country.

Value of Woodlands

Destruction by fire of so much forest land in Ontario and Quebec brings forcibly to the attention of the public the loss running into many millions. Forestry is one of Canada's greatest assets of the kind that grows into millions through the kindly forces of nature and under the protection of those who guard these great reserves to protect them from fire. But fires happen and sometimes as this year they are in one section of the Dominion and the magnitude of the destruction is before the minds of all.

Once again it is being stressed on every hand that the greatest care must be taken in the woods which are often like so much tinder should a spark find lodging in a place where it can grow into a conflagration that will sweep many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of timber into nothing but ashes and at the same time destroy much of the soil, making new growth difficult and very unlikely. The necessity of care should be impressed upon everyone who has occasion to enter the woodlands.

Lightning also is a fertile source of fire but over this man has no control except after the fire starts. But in the handling of fire in the woods there is reason to expect that there be no carelessness by anyone.

Lumbering is a great industry, an industry that grows year by year in importance with every annual harvest and therefore must be the one on which much of the future of the nation depends not only economically from the loss or gain of the forest crop but also from what the wood itself means in wealth and industry and also the immense ramifications of the industry, supporting other industries and keeping a regular army of men on the payroll.

In Britain, United States and Canada and in other nations which have large forest areas, progress owes no small share to the timber crop harvested.

Supersonic

Even if not needed for war, the potentialities are startling to the imagination. It is easy to say that few want to travel at 760 miles an hour, the speed of sound at sea level, let alone "much faster many times." But, a century ago, the average person would have laughed at suggestions that motorists would speed along highways at 60 miles an hour; or travel through the air at 200 miles an hour or more.

Distances diminish in direct proportion to the speed of travel. If the world is now small compared with the days of the sailing ship and the stage-coach, think of how small it will be if supersonic airplanes become a common mode of transportation.—Windsor Star.

Pilots Fight on Their Stomachs

The United States Air Force is planning a swift war plane to be piloted by a man lying on his stomach. In this position he won't tire as quickly as if he were sitting. Nor will he be as likely to lose consciousness when executing sudden manoeuvers. Moreover, the fighter aircraft can be designed to eliminate the present "bubble" canopy over the pilot, and thus preserve the streamlining necessary in a plane built to surpass the speed of sound.

The pilot lying prone would have a system of mirrors and periscopes to enable him to see above and to the rear. — New York Herald Tribune.

THE FLAG

Into every stripe and star,
Right and freedom woven are.
Land and sea our banner holds
All men hope for in its folds.
At the dawn of day unfurled,
Symbol of a kinder world.

Hats off as it passes by!
And if aliens question why,
Saying it is just a rag,
Silk or cloth that's called a flag,
Answer, on its wind blown field
Is a kinder world revealed.

High the purpose we salute.
Not the way of beast and brute.
Not the tyrant's rule of might,
But the gentler code of right.
Hats off! The oppressed know why.
Freedom's flag is passing by!

Back of every stripe and star,
Freedom's countless heroes are,
All who liberty have prized,
In its folds are symbolized.
There, the one great hope men see
For the kinder world to be.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By the Ottawa staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, June 14 (CP)—Howard B. Chase, rail union executive and a governor of the CBC, is regarded as the best bet to fill an early vacancy on the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The $10,000-a-year job will become available with the July 1 retirement of Commissioner G. A. Stone, formerly of Amherst, N.S., labor representative on the Board.

Several candidates are in the running for the job, but informants say Mr. Chase has the inside track. He is assistant grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Normally, the successor to Commissioner Stone would be a labor man from the Maritimes, as the Commissioner is regarded also as representing that area. However, the regional angle has been taken care of through the appointment as chief commissioner of Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald of Halifax.

Still Hopes

Failure of Prime Minister Mackenzie King to give a Manitoba member a cabinet post in his latest shuffle is considered an indication that there still are hopes within the government of luring Premier Garson to Ottawa.

It is no secret that the Manitoba Premier has been offered a federal cabinet post in the past, but so far he has given no indication that he intends to bite.

Mr. King named Leslie Mutch (L-Winnipeg South) parliamentary assistant to Veterans Minister Gregg, but that was the one gesture to a Manitoban, whose James Glen, Mines Minister, stepped down because of ill health.

More Vacancies

Frederic Dorion, Independent member of the Commons for the Quebec constituency of Charlevoix-Saguenay, is seriously considering retirement from the federal field of politics.

Mr. Dorian is asking his organizers for permission to give up his federal seat in favor of a possible seat in the Quebec legislature. If his request is granted he would stand as a Union Nationale candidate in the provincial constituency of Saguenay in the Quebec general election of July 28.

Lusty Fight Over E.R.P. Shaping Up in Senate

Washington, June 14 (AP) — Another lusty fight over the European recovery program is shaping up in the United States Senate.

Senators favoring the full $5,300,000 plan aimed at jacking up Europe's economy—and halting communism—are not fully satisfied with the appropriations committee action.

The committee voted Saturday night to put the program on a 12-month basis instead of hte 15 months voted by the House of Representatives. It also restored most of the House cuts, too. But the funds it approved still fall $245,000,000 short of what Congress authorized.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.), State Secretary Marshall of the United States and Paul G. Hoffman, E.C.A. administrator, told the committee last week they would not be satisfied with anything less than the full program.

They argued that a cut would weaken the entire program and lessen its chances for success. The program was designed to put western Europe on its feet economically by 1952.

The Senate Appropriations Committee gathered, meanwhile, to finish up other items on the bill. These include funds for China, Japan, Korea, Greece and Turkey.

The committee was unanimous in voting to put the E.C.A. program on a 12-month basis. But there were angry differences over the amount of the appropriation.

Yesterday, the E.C.A. handed out its biggest recovery package so far—$95,610,605 for 11 countries—of which Canada will furnish more than $14,000,000 worth of aluminum, copper, lead and Linseed oil.

These countries share in the new approvals: Britain $36,300,000; The Netherlands $4,183,905; France $21,746,879; French zone of Germany $941,320; Austria $2,488,210; Denmark $810,400; Italy $5,967,000; Norway $1,427,000; Greece $8,164,000.

Car Production Impeded by Layoff And Strike Effects

Detroit, June 14 (AP) — Automobile production followed its long-familiar zig-zag course today, impeded by layoffs and strike effects.

One bright spot however, was the anticipated early return to work of 16,500 men at Chrysler in view of a truce in a supplier strike.

Another 200,000 in General Motors began a week's idleness. G. M. laid them off, blaming a steel shortage which it said was caused by the last coal strike.

Wage disputes figured prominently in the general picture along with another price increase —on General Motors trucks.

In the midst of this, the automobile industry looked expectantly to the United Auto Workerrs' (C.I.O.) pay talks starting tomorrow with the Ford Motor Company.

Ford, which once proposed a wage cut for its 108,000 production workers, is the last of the "big three" to negotiate over the U.A.W.-C.I.O.'s demanded "third round" increase.

The U.A.W. has formally demanded a 30-cents-an-hour boost from Ford, which compares with the 13-cent pattern set by Chrysler and since followed by several Manufacturing Company, builder of car bodies, extended the 13 cents to its 23,500 workers.

Chrysler planned an early recall of its laid-off workers as a result of a union-ordered termination of a three-day strike of 3,000 men at the Budd Company which makes doors and panels for Chrysler.

Meanhile, 30,000 Ford workers returned after a one-day layoff which the company blamed on a shortage of parts.

SYDNEY'S OWN B. O. PLENTY

HE'S A BATH-DAILY BOY

Jack Mortimer, 32, Potts Point, near Sydney, Australia, who previously called himself the "Foolish Fiddler," has formed a band called "B. O. Plenty's Hillbillies" which has made its first appearance in the Australian capital. Jack considers himself the world's most exclusive "B. O. Plenty." "I must be—I live at Potts Point and I never take anything but Turkish baths," he said. "I always knew I must be the double of some famous character, but I didn't know who, until a couple of months ago. I was reading B. O.'s adventures in the paper when it suddenly came to me. I rushed to the mirror, and sure enough, there was a real flesh-and-blood Plenty staring me in the face." But Jack doesn't believe in carrying the B. O. Plenty resemblance too far. Sometimes he has doubts if he really qualifies for the part because: He takes a Turkish bath at every opportunity. He is a change-socks-daily man, and—under the false whiskers he is clean-shaven.

OLD STAND-BY COMES BACK

Since the Japs captured the Dutch East Indies early in the war and left us with only limited stocks of quinine, plus what we could get from South America, there has been only an occasional allusion to quinine in this column. Then as malaria caused more casualties among our forces in the South Pacific the government belatedly banned the popular sale of quinine and restricted the supply here at home to the comparatively few cases where it was prescribed in good faith by a physician.

Although the cinchona tree, from the bark of which we get quinine, was found indigenous by the Spanish conquerors of Peru, and the Incas knew of its value as a remedy for the ague, an English alpaca trader in Bolivia sent back home several pounds of seed from cinchona trees, which his brother in London could not sell in England but did sell to the Netherlands government for their Java plantations. Thus the cinchona headquarters of the world was transferred from the western to the eastern hemisphere less than a century ago.

Now that quinine is again freely available, without any restrictions, we can talk about it here without feeling that perhaps we are encouraging non-essential use of it and so depriving some malaria victim of the remedy he or she needs so desperately.

Shortly before the U.S. government began to ration quinine I received this report from a reader:

I am a watchmaker and jeweler. Twenty-four years ago I quit that business on account of nervousness and stomach trouble. Six years ago I was compelled to enter the watch repair business again in order to make a living.

I feared my old troubles and, as formerly, cut my consumption of coffee to one weak cupful a day at breakfast. As I had been a constant reader of your column for many years, on again entering the watch repair work I followed your suggestion, taking two grains of quinine (a capsule) every day for more than two years.

It worked perfectly. It steadied my hands so that I had practically no nervousness, and I have been able to do any kind of watch repair work, from the man's size to the smallest baquette as easily as I could when I was thirty years younger. Another thing, I find I can now enjoy three cups of coffee a day, something I had been unable to do for twenty years. A brother watch maker advertised in a trade journal for help for his trembling hands—I wrote him about your quinine advice. Has he asked for your pamphlet?

From the context rather than what the reader says, I infer that his "nervousness" was tremor, trembling, jerkiness in movement and therefore inability to do his work. It is sometimes exasperating how carelessly people use that word "nervousness" — but then, we quacks use it constantly to cover our ignorance of what ails the gullible customers who are willing to pay us fancy fees for a trick diagnosis of "nerves" or "nervousness" when we haven't the faintest idea of what is really the matter.

Quinine is particularly helpful for the tremor of the jerkiness of movement which accompanies tenion, tightness or rigidity of muscles, whether from anxiety or other emotional factor or from such conditions as paralysis agitans (shaking palsy) of myotonia. This is merely my opinion, based on what readers tell me about their experience with quinine, what I read in the medical journals and what few personal observations I have made.

Some readers take one grain of quinine sulfate in pill, tablet or capsule, three times a day, some take a two-grain pill, tablet or capsule twice a day and some take two grains just once a day. Any one who may decide to try quinine should take two grains twice a day, I believe, and for a period of not less than six weeks.

Murray McFarlane Named Director Moira Lake Camp

Announcement is made by John W. Deacon, president of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. of the appointment of P. Murray McFarlane as director of the Moira Lake Girls and Boys Camp for the coming season. Dates for the Boys Camp will be July 10th to July 31st and for girls July 31st to August 21st.

Mrs. P. M. McFarlane, a trained nurse and experienced children's recreation leader, will be in camp for the entire period.

Mr. McFarlane secured his early training in Y.M.C.A. work in the Ottawa Association, as assistant at camp, and in the physical and boys department. Following his graduation in physical education with the degree of Batchelor of Physical Education from the Y.M.C.A. College at Springfield, he became physical director of the Y.M.C.A. at Westmount, Quebec. He later was appointed to the physical education staff of Montreal Protestant School Board.

Has Good Knowledge

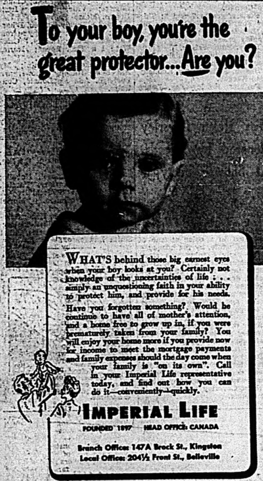
Mr. McFarlane possesses a thorough knowledge of camp life through years as a camper. During the past twelve years he has held important positions as counsellor, sectional director and more recently as director in several leading camps in Ontario and Quebec. In addition he has been an officer of the Camping Association where he has given outstanding leadership in the counsellor training program.

To insure a high standard and efficient operation, counsellors, instructors and other staff persons are being carefully selected not only with an emphasis on their skill and ability to perform specific duties, for which they are qualified, but also because of their sympathetic understanding of the needs of youth and their grasp of sound educational procedure. Each is attested to a sound Christian character and his or her ability to aid in the personality development of the campers.

Will be Limit

The policy adopted for the camp this year is to encourage an attendance for the full period to give encouragement to a complete adjustment and greater allround development for each camper. While this will limit the number who may be accommodated it is expected that individual benefits justify this change. Parents are encouraged to make application at the Y.M.C.A. to insure a place for their children. Any boy or girl ten years of age and over is eligible for attendance.

Every effort is being made to insure the highest degree of health and safety measures being operative at all times. A staff is already at work renovating and renewing equipment.



To your boy, you're the great protector...Are you?

WHAT'S behind those big earnest eyes when your boy looks at you? Certainly not knowledge of the uncertainties of life . . . simply an unquestioning faith in your ability to protect him, and provide for his needs.

Have you forgotten something? Would he continue to have all of mother's attention, and a home free to grow up in, if you were prematurely taken from your family? You will enjoy your home more if you provide now for income to meet the mortgage payments and family expenses should the day come when your family is "on its own". W.M.S. Presbyterial Cobourg East Meets at Stockdale

Frankford — The Eastern Section of Cobourg Presbyterial, of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church in Canada, held its annual meeting at Stockdale United Church, Wednesday June 9th., with Mrs. Ireland, Sectional Vice-President in charge, and conducting opening exercises. A scripture lession from the Book of Psalms was read by Mrs. E. C. Coltman, of Carman, and Mrs. Chas. Hanna, extended a gracious welcome to the guests.

Mission Band Hour

A business session included the appointment of committees. The Mission Band Hour was very interesting when Mrs. C. Taylor told a story to the "banders" and each band gave a report of the year's work, and contributed one number to the varied program.

In the absence of Mrs. E. C. Roberts, through illness, Mrs. Burgess of Campbellford, gave an interesting review of the Blue Book, and the morning session concluded with a "Quiet Half Hour" during which Mrs. Tomkins of Brighton, spoke on the 23rd Psalm.

Stockdale ladies served a delicious noon hour dinner.

The Smithfield Auxiliary conducted the opening Worship Service for the afternoon session, when Mrs. Morgan sang, by request, the beautiful solo, "The Savior Can Solve Every Problem."

Returned Missionary Speaks

An address by Miss Elizabeth McLeod, a returned missionary from Central India, was the highlight of the afternoon. She extended to the United Church in Canada the gratitude of the Indian people for sending Christian missionaries who teach them the way of Christian living, and spoke of political affairs in present day India.

Miss McLeod said her work was done in Central India which is composed of many small states. In the village where she was, there is a congregation of approximately 300 with an Indian pastor. There is also a hospital where two Canadian doctors are usually in attendance, and they try to have at least two Canadian nurses, and employ at 30 Indian nurses, some 'in training' and some 'graduates.'

Education Stressed

In the same town there are training schools for both girls and boys, and a Vocational School for the boys. More boys than girls attend school since Indian people think there is no use in sending girls to school, because 'they can't learn.'

Miss McLeod displayed a model of an Indian School boy with his brirghtly colored clothes. "Boys," she said "always wear their shirts outside of the their trousers, and their jackets are usually of two colors, the back of one color, and the front of another. Their shoes, (when they wear any) are of richly embroidered velvet, which are always removed before entering any building, school or home. One never hears any shuffling of feet in an Indian school, the noise which is heard is from the rattle of bracelets, for the girls wear five or six bracelets on each arm.

The speaker exhibited a very lovely necklace, which she said was not for a lady, but for a 'sacred cow.'

Ladies from the Brighton Auxiliary, contributed a fine quartet. An offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. S. L. Terrill, of Wooler. Mrs. P. F. Gardiner, of Canton, brought a message from the Presbyterial of which she is the president, and gave a resume of the work done there in the past and what is to be done in the future.

Playlet Presented

A playlet "The Hem of His Garment," was presented by members of Frankford Evening Auxiliary, during which Mrs. Walter Morrow sanw two solos "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" and "She Only Touched The Hem of His Garment," most acceptably.

Reports of Committees were received, and Mrs. Gardiner dismissed the meeting.

Women's Activities

RIVER VALLEY WOMEN'S W.I.

Rawdon (Special)—More than thirty members attended the River Valley W.I., convening at the home of Mrs. Clarence Chard, June 3rd., with Mrs. Percy Utman, presiding. Mrs. J. Donohoe was secretary pro tem and reported eighteen fees paid in May. The roll call elicted several good ideas for "Making the Meetings more Interesting." Plans were made for a quilting in the near future. Mrs. E. Kent and Mrs. J. Kane were elected to arrange for the Blue Cross Hospitalization plan.

"Why We Are so Busy" and "A Tired Old Woman" were two interesting numbers read by Mrs. S. Irvine. Two letters from Mrs. Mallard, of Bristol, England, were read by Mrs. Percy MacMullen, describing the country in Spring, and giving a picture of the Institute there, with more than 60 members. Later, the River Valley W.I. plans to pack a box of food to send to the Bristol W.I. For several months Mrs. E. Heaseman has been forwarding boxes to this W.I. through the Robert Simpson Co., Toronto.

Mrs. Roy Bush gave a fine demonstration of a First Aid Kit in the Home, with an interesting description of articles needed for an emergency in any home, and they should be kept in a place easily accessible to all members of the family.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge and a vote of thanks tendered for hospitality, and an interesting program.

A snap-shot of Mr. and Mrs. Mallard and a copy of an English magazine "West Countryman" were on display. Excerpts from the letters received from Mrs. Mallard are as follows: "My husband and I were bombed out on that terrible Good Friday raid on Bristol, and we now live four miles from Clifton. The first bomb damaged the back of our house and another hit the front. Our windows were smashed and boarded up for more than a year, so that we constantly used electric light. The raid lasted from 10 o'clock p.m. until 3 o'clock a.m., and a friend sitting by my side was instantly killed. There were no shelters in those days, and the house was completely flattened. Our countryside in March is beautiful with crocuses, primroses, scillas and daffodils. You would love England in the Spring—it then makes up for a lot of things.

"I read parts of your letter at our W.I. meeting and our members want me to express thanks on their behalf. We know Canada must be a wonderful place if all Canadians are like the members of the River Valley W.I. Some time soon Princess Elizabeth's wedding dress will be on display in Bristol, and the crowds will be terrific, but it is very beautiful and is worth waiting to see.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.

The June meeting of the West Huntingdon W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Gay. A delicious pot luck dinner was served at noon, and the meeting followed. The president opened with the Call to Worship and Mrs. Grant led in prayer. A Scripture lesson from the Psalms was read by Mrs. W. Fox, and two members conducted the Watch Tower.

The Mission Band reported a quilt ready for completion, the top having been donated by Mrs. Emerson. Mrs. Fitchett invited the auxiliary to her home for the July meeting, with Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Sarles to prepare the program, and furnish refreshments. Collection for the day was $6.05.

A letter from Mrs. Ralph Sills was read, relative to an invitation for the Sectional Rally to be held in October, but this was turned down owing to lack of accommodations. Mrs. Grant gave a reading on India Relief, and Mrs. Moorcroft one on the work of Student Missionaries in the West.

A benediction closed the meeting.

PAST GRANDS' CLUB

Stirling. (Special.)—The Past Noble Grands' Club held its regular monthly meeting last Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. Guy Bradshaw with the President, Mrs. Percy Utman, presiding.

Plans were discussed for a district meeting to be held in June. Mrs. E. G. Bailey presented an interesting program which consisted of a piano solo by Mrs. B. Williams; readings by Mrs. S. J. Elliott and Mrs. E. G. Bailey; Tongue Twisters by Misses Evelyn Bailey and Florence Maynes. An impromptu quartet by Mesdames Elliott, Utman ,Warren and Morrow was greatly enjoyed. Community singing and the National Anthem closed the meeting after which the hostess served delectable refreshments.

Mrs. R. B. Duffin expressed the appreciation of the club members to Mrs. Bradshaw for her hospitality.

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

Stirling—The June meeting of the W.A. of St. Paul's United Church was held in the home of Mrs. J. L. Good, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Gordon Bailey presided for the opening exercises and business, due to the unavoidable absence of the president, Mrs. W. R. Elliott.

The secretary read communications received during the past month and reported thirteen cards and one letter yritten. The visiting committee, Mrs. W. Preston and Mrs. A. Bradburn, reported forty-three calls made. Mrs. A. E. Good and Mrs. Pitman form the visiting committee for June. Mrs. Pitman reported for the Friendly Workers group, which donated another $10. Mrs. Cecil Macklin presented the Blue Cross Hospitalization plan, but it was decided to leave this matter in abeyance till the July meeting. An invitation from Bethel W.A. to attend a meeting and Silver Tea on June 17th., was accepted, and St. Paul's ladies will furnish one musical number for the program. An excellent report of the recent W.A. convention held in Picton, Ont., was given by Mrs. R. A. Patterson. Mrs. C. I. Hatton reported for the parsonage committee.

Mrs. C. Lansing directed the program based on the theme, "Good Neighbors". The Scripture lesson from the 10th chapter of St. Luke's gospel was read by Mrs. J. B. Thompson, with comments read by Mrs. R. Holland.

Mrs. G. Heasman spoke on the topic. She said "Every once-in-a-while, somebody comes along with a solution for the world's needs. Neighborliness may be a large factor in the promotion of world peace, for if we find it difficult to get along with our neighbors, how can we hope for friendship among nations? There is a difference between wanting a friend, and wanting to be a good neighbor. Jesus' first desire was to be a friend, and to be helpful to His friends. Following His example our philosophy will be—'not what can I get out of life, but how much can I put into it?'

"It is with a great deal of pleasure I have noted the kindly reception accorded to families arriving from abroad. Although we may be hampered by language difficulties, there are neighborly gestures which may be understood by these new Canadians."

The speaker read timely poems by Edna Jacques, during her address.

Dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge, and Mrs. G. Bailey voiced the appreciation of those present to the hostess, and to those presenting a very enjoyable program.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The June meeting of the Melrose W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Milligan, with an attendance of twenty-two. Mrs. Wm. McMechan, president, conducted the worship service, the theme being "Student Mission Fields and Vacation Schools."

During the business period it was decided to hold a lawn social June 30th.

Mrs. Arnold Reilly, group leader, assisted by Mrs. Wm. McMechan, Miss Beatrice Macfarlane, Mrs. J. C. Milligan, Mrs. Clare Weese, Mrs. Sherry Demille and Mrs. John English dealt with the Student Mission Fields. Mrs. Roy Badgley gave an instructional talk on "Canadian Consumers Association." The chapter on Africa from the Study Book was presented by Miss Bailey.

An offering of $4.25 was received. A benediction closed the meeting and the hostess served dainty refreshments.

GILEAD W.M.S.

Gilead—The May meeting of the Gilead W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Hubel with an attendance of fourteen.

Mrs. Treverton opened the Worship service and Miss Livingston read the Scripture lesson.

Several members led in short prayers.

Mrs. Bertrand took charge of the program when Mrs. John Laurenson gave a reading entitled "Sunrise".

Mrs. Fred Rorke sang "Something For Thee" and readings were given by Miss Livingston and Mrs. Belcanquel. Guitar music was contributed by Mrs. Earl Treverton.

Mrs. Bertrand closed the meeting with the Watchword, after which Mrs. Hubel served refreshments.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Tweed — The W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. S. A. McCarey. In the absence of the president Mrs. R. Hall presided. WEDDINGS

MOLSON—LYALL

Tall standards of white calla lilies, gladioli and bridal wreath added to the beautiful interior of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, for a marriage at two-thirty o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, June 12, when Mary Elizabeth Lyall, daughter of Mrs. Lyall, 187 Charles Street, and the late Mr. Charles Frederick Lyall, exchanged vows with William Markham Molson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Molson, 634 Clark Ave., Westmount, Que. The ceremony was solemnized by the Venerable Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas' and wedding music was played by Professor Ernest Wheatley. The soloist was Mr. John Deacon, who sang "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles Edward Lyall, the bride was charmingly gowned in white sheer embroidered organdy, fashioned with a full skirt featuring a bustle bow above the train of tiered frills, and long gloves. Her fingertip veil fell gracefully from a matching organdy headdress in leaf design, and she carried a Colonial bouquet, centred with yellow Pinnochio rosebuds, featuring Shasta daisies, bouvardia and baby breath, with a shower of similar blossoms and white satin ribbons.

The maid of honor, Miss Doris Wills, a cousin of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Bews, Miss Nancy Hunter, (both of Belleville), Mrs. James Iversen of Montreal, a sister of the groom, wore identically fashioned gowns of nile green taffeta, featuring fitted bodices with drop shoulder lines and full skirts. Wills, at Northport, Mrs. Lyall received, wearing a two-piece dress of lilac satin, with a dusky pink wide sailor hat and a corresponding corsage of sweet peas and rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. J. H. Molson, was in navy blue sheer with lace insets, an off-the-face hat, and wore a corsage of white sweetpeas and white roses.

For travelling to New York City before sailing for Bermuda, the bride chose a ballerina suit of beige cashmere, with flower hat, navy accessories and matching gloves.

Out-of-town guests were from Montreal, Que., Toronto and Oshawa, Ontario.

McFARLANE—BELL

Empey Hill United church decorated with white lilacs and ferns was the scene, recently of the marriage of Florence Rossamond, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bell, and Ronald Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McFarlane, of Roblin, with Rev. W. R. Merrick as the officiating clergyman.

Entering the church to the strains of the Bridal Chorus, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She was charmingly gowned in ivory satin and lace, the fitted bodice having a long torso back closing, and full length sleeves, pointed at the wrists. Her full length embroidered veil fell from a matching halo of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of white roses, lilies-of-the-valley, and fern. Her ornaments were a single strand of pearls, with matching earrings.

Mrs. Douglas Ptolemy, of Belleville, was her sister's matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of blue taffeta, with off-the-shoulder neckline, and brief, frilled sleeves, the full skirt having a bustle bow back above rows of deep frills. She wore a headdress of matching flowers and carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby breath, tied with pink ribbons.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Isobel Vivian, of Albert College, Belleville, and Miss Lillian Walmsley, of Napanee, wore identical gowns of pink taffeta, fashioned similarly to that of the matron of honor, with matching floral headdresses. They carried bouquets of white carnations and baby breath, tied with blue ribbons. All attendants wore mittens to match their gowns, and single strands of pearls.

Mr. Glenn Kimmett, of Roblin, was the groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Wray Cooke, of Forest Mills, and Sidney Pringle of Selby.

Wedding music was provided by Miss Marion Henderson, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Roy Sills, of Halloway, another cousin sang "I'll Walk Beside You", before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, Mr. and Mrs. Sills sang "I Love You Truly".

Following the ceremony a reception for approximately seventy-five guests was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. McFarlane, mother of the groom, assisted Mrs. Bell in receiving. Mrs. Bell wore a dress of navy crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations, while Mrs. McFarlane chose light blue figured crepe, with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

In the dining room tulips, lilacs and streamers in pink and white added to the attractive appearance of the room, where the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature "bride and groom" under a "wedding bell". Tall pink tapers in silver holders were placed on either side of the cake.

Guests were served by Miss Vivian Henderson, of Selby, Miss Sylvia Hickerson, of Lonsdale, cousins of the bride; with Misses Barbara Davis and Barbara Pollard, of Napanee, assisting.

Rev. W. R. Merrick was toast master, proposing a toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver; to his attendants and to Mrs. Sills, gold initialled bar-pins. The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold compacts, to Mrs. Sills, earrings with a matching pin, and to the ladies who served, scarf rings.

Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane motored to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, U.S., the bride travelling in a grey gabardine suit, with black and white accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Following their return, Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane will reside in Napanee.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Belleville, Tamworth, Latta, Thurlow, Hay Bay, Roblin, Selby and Napanee.

Women's Institutes Hold 40th Annual Of North Hastings

The forthieth District Annual Meeting of North Hastings Women's Institutes was held on Tuesday, June 8th., 1948, in the Eldorado United Church, with the District President, Mrs. E. Moore, of Madoc, presiding. In spite of the heavy downpour of rain all day there was a very large attendance, some of the northern branches members having to leave very early in the morning to arrive in time for the first session. The church was beautifully decorated with early Summer flowers and members of the Eldorado Branch warmly welcomed the visitors.

With Mrs. (Dr.) Beatty, of Madoc, leading for community singing and Mrs. Hulin at the organ the Convention got away to a good start about 9.45. Mrs. Jas. Bailey, of Eldorado, graciously welcomed the visiting members. She introduced the five new branches that had been organized during the past year, and expressed the sincere wish that everyone would have a happy day. The new branches are Paudash, McArthur's Mills, Carlow, Queensboro and Madoc Juniors. Rawdon Juniors were also organized this past year but were not represented. Mrs. Slater, of McArthur's Mills responded very suitably.

Minutes of the last District Annual were read by the Sec.-Treas. ,Mrs. W. J. Barlow, of Bonarlaw, also the report of the Executive meeting. The President urged that a larger representation of branches at this meeting attend, as planning the program for the convention and other matters entailed much work which should be shared by all branches.

The District financial statement was presented and after paying expenses there was only a very small amount left in the treasury, due to the fact that in organizing the new branches the travelling expenses were higher than in other years. The financial reports from the branches were also given and showed a substantial bank balance. The auditors' report was accepted.

A letter was read stating that an English lady, (Mrs. Brain), intended visiting Canada this Summer and would particularly like to meet as many Women's Institute Branches as possible to exchange help and ideas between the two countries. Mrs. Mitchell stated that she had already written Mrs. Brain inviting her to visit at her branch. After discussion it was decided to have a rally in Ivanhoe the week of September 5th. A pot luck dinner would be served; each branch to put on one number toward a short program and a collection be taken towards helping defray Mrs. Brain's expenses.

In her president's address, Mrs. Moore said "She wasn't much of a public speaker—she just talked". She spoke of the new branches organized to visit each one. She also thought there was a possibility of at least two new branches, Maple Leaf and Greenview. At present there are 16 branches and 150 additional membership. Mrs. Moore was grateful for the kindness and cooperation given her and wished the in-coming president every success.

The reports on standing Committees was then given and many new and useful suggestions were forthcoming which should be of value in planning programs and meetings. Miss Hopkins discussed the reports helpfully.

The report of Girls' Work deserves special mention. One Institute sent a group of girls to Guelph to take part in the Pageant at the 50th Anniversary last June. Three girls won honors at the C.N.E. at an Inter-County Judging Competition. One girl won a trip to Chicago, stimulating interest in others to win similar honors.

Miss Hopkins spoke of her pleasure to visit North Hastings. She had coached for 27 years and felt that her work showed some results.

Mrs. Clifford Clancy had a number of books and pamphlets available for Institutes and which will be helpful to newcomers to our country, mothers of young children and others.

Mrs. Wallace, a member of Rylstone branch contributed a very lovely solo.

Mrs. Mitchell, provincial director, spoke very informatively of the work of the Board. There are 1,350 Women's Institutes, 52 Junior Institutes, and a membership of 38,000 which they will try to increase to 50,000 this year. One hundred and fifty-three British Institutes have been adopted by Canadian Branches. She spoke of the radio programs, scholarships and other matters of interest. At the close of her address dinner was served in the church hall to over 100 visitors, the ladies of the Eldorado branch making ideal hostesses.

The afternoon session commenced with Miss Hopkins showing slides of different phases of Institute work. She also discussed the co-operative program but no decision was reached. The president urged the branches to consider taking the short course.

Mrs. Wallace again favored with a solo "The Stars Will Remember" and Mrs. Beatty led in the singing of "O Canada".

Miss Elsie Irvine gave an interesting account of Girls' Work. This year's project is "The Club Girl Entertains", and will prove even more popular than last year's "Cottons May Be Smart". There are also twelve Garden Clubs with 72 girls carrying out the project.

The Question Box had an unusual number of questions which Miss Hopkins answered — two ideas were "Put your money in your own district; we've been sending it outside long enough", and "To shorten the Annual Meeting have a slate of officers".

Mrs. Holbert, of Huntingdon Branch, sang "In the Garden of Tomorrow" very beautifully. The highlights of Madoc and Rawdon Junior Institutes were given. These two young branches are very enthusiastic and very interesting meetings were outlined.

Mrs. Chester Sills, Federated Agriculture representative, was unable to be present but sent a very fine report dealing with Health Survey, Oleo Situation; County Federation; Radio Forums and other interesting subjects.

One of the highlights of the convention was the address of Mrs. J. Horsepool, of Faraday Township, who is serving on her second year as councillor. She spoke on "Women's Place in Civic Affairs" telling of the ways women could help on Councils and School Boards. Just recently she has been appointed to look after relief.

She gave some excellent rules to follow in one's effort to serve her municipality. Mrs. Rundle of Marmora, sang "Now is the Hour", playing her own accompaniment.

A resolution "that an assistant be appointed to help the President rather than to divide the district", was introduced by Madoc Branch. It was felt the district to be covered was too large for the president to travel over and it was left for the Provincial Board to deal with.

The discussion on raising the membership fee to 50 cents resulted in 24 votes for raising it and 25 against the raise.

Mrs. Mitchell conducted the election of officers and the following will hold office:

President, — Mrs. Clifford Clancy, Wellman's.

2nd Vice President — Mrs. Beatty, Madoc.

The new officers were introduced by Mrs. Moore and Madoc invited the 41st District Annual to meet with their Institute. Mrs. Rollins, of Cooper, graciously thanked all who had helped in any way to make the day a success and Mrs. Clancy extended the District's thanks to Mrs. Moore for her untiring efforts which were heartily approved by all present.

The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King".

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"Yes. We're a Spanish galleon this trip, Eileen!" Rattray smiled his slow smile. "Minted gold from the Bank of England, consigned to the Commonwealth Bank of Australia. Look! It's just coming aboard. Two millions!"

Open lorries were driven onto the dock. Eileen, looking down, could see, as tarpaulin covers were hauled off, that they were laden with small square boxes.

"How feeble!" she exclaimed. "Where's the regiment of guards with fixed bayonets?"

"Not here, my child. Out of date. There's a police car full of 'tecs outside, though! Well, I must slip off now. They've rushed this little lot aboard us at the last moment, and I've got to find a safe home for it. Take my tip. Turn in with a book and, if you like, I'll have a nightcap sent along in about half an hour. Leave it to me."

"You're a Kind Pig," said Eileen, and squeezed his arm affectionately.

She had known Jack Rattray for three years. He had introduced her to Dawson Haig in Colombo—only a year ago....

As he went off with his slow, long strides, she turned and entered her cabin, looking at the books on the rack and pulling a wry face when she contemplated unpacking yet to be done. She had been on board since noon, and knew she was desperately lazy. But, then, Dawson Haig had stayed to lunch when it was announced that the ship couldn't sail — and Matt, the good angel, had hung on to the last possible minute.

"Oh, bother!" she said.

She was tired but excited. Her mental condition puzzled her. This was not the first time she had travelled alone. She was used to the sea and had taken her maiden voyage at the age of twelve. But the memory of that strange lemon-yellow face, glimpsed between upraised flaps of an astrakhan collar and the pulled down brim of a soft black hat, haunted her ridiculously. Of course, the man was some Chinese shipping agent. The apparent evil of his smile might have been no more than a distorted reflection in the mirror.

She wondered if Dawson Haig would write....

Queer, that odor, like musk. It seemed to hang about....

Yes, she would turn in and read.

* * *

"You see, Kearney," said Detective Inspector Dawson Haig, staring up at an old print representing the classic fight between Sayers and Heenan which with many others decorated the bar, "officially, my hands are tied. It's because I've always made a point of finding the loopholes in official regulations that I've got as far as I have."

The poisonous character of the night may have been responsible, but the bar was sparsely populated. Two firemen, amiably drunk and probably late for their ship, lolled in a corner, remote from that occupied by Kearney and Haig. They were inclined to song. A solitary, seedy-looking drinker sat against the wall beneath the sporting picture gallery, smoking his pipe and taking sips from a tankard. A shirt-sleeved barman made up the company.

Kearney smiled at the speaker. He regarded William Dawson Haig as one of the most remarkable characters in London—a man destined to win an international reputation. Haig had been at Stonyhurst with Kearney—Michael Kearney, now United States Consul at Colombo, at that time having been stationed in Liverpool. Catastrophe came just as Haig went up to Oxford. Endowed by his father with a load of debts and posthumous V.C., he (it was characteristic of the man) had enlisted in the Metropolitan Police Force.

"It seems to me," Kearney remembered his saying, "that a man must be judged by what he can do—not by the decorations his ancestors won. I couldn't live in an office, and I can't afford the army. But I'll make a first-rate copper!"

He was today the youngest detective-inspector in the Criminal Investigation Department, with a great future assured.

Haig had laid his hat upon the counter, revealing a head of dark brown hair, cut close at the back and sides, like that of a prize fighter, but leaving a curly tuft on top. His clean-shaven pale face and dancing blue eyes also might have belonged to a potential lightweight champion. He had pleasantly irregular features, and his smile was a grin which wrinkled up the corners of his eyes irresistibly. When Haig grinned, every body grinned.

"Regulations weren't made for you," said Kearney, laughing. "But I'm still in the dark. You leave the Wallaroo after lunch, with dramatic farewells, and then bang me on the back at the dock gates at ten o'clock at night!"

Haig raised his tankard, contemplating it with interest, and:

"I gave you a lift as far as Limehouse," he reminded Kearney. "You ought to be thankful for that. And the beer is good.."

Kearney banged the counter. The barman replenished the tankards. And, when he had retired:

"What's afoot?" Kearney asked in a low voice.

"I don't know!" was Haig's surprising answer. "I can only think there's been a bad leakage of news."

He glanced suspiciously at the two firemen—they were endeavoring to harmonize "John Brown's Body." The solitary drinker drank unmoved. Then:

"a consignment of pottery was

"Some time ago," Haig went on, sent from China to a firm in Birmingham. This consignment, unopened, was reconsigned to a Chinese firm in Sydney, per Messrs. King, shipping agents, of Limehouse. It was put on the Wallaroo. I checked it myself, this morning."

"Was that how you managed to get down to see Eileen off?"

"It was," Haig acknowledged, "and I blessed the chance! Now, here's what I meant when I said my hands were tied: neither K Division nor Scotland Yard have had power to open those cases of pottery. Oh, it's too damn silly to talk about—because I know for a fact that they are stuffed with 'gum'!"

"Opium! But why send drugs from China to Australia via Birmingham!"

Dawson Haig grinned and:

"I'm glad you asked that," said he. "It shows you're interested! The reason is this: the China ships touching at Australian ports get a hell of an overhauling. Stuff coming from England goes through without difficulty. Those cases are specified to contain Staffordshire pottery, now!"

"Great Scott!" said Kearney. "That's pretty clever."

"Saddled by our grandmotherly legislation, I did the next best thing. I advised a pal of mine — Freeman, of the Customs at Sydney—to do what we couldn't do. What happened?" He glanced about the bar again suspiciously. "The stuff was taken off at the last moment! I got news at the Yard two hours ago."

"But surely you can do something now?"

"I can!" Haig returned.

He grinned again and emptied his tankard.

"Open the cases?"

"Oh, no! 'Mrs. Moggridge,' who makes our snappy laws, would never allow such a thing!"

"Then what?"

"This: if I can get evidence tonight—evidence I know to be there—I'll search the premises to which the 'pottery' has been moved. Then, I can open the cases!"

"Didn't you say the name was King?"

Haig nodded.

"Messrs. King's warehouse adjoins the establishment of Jo Lung, otherwise 'Shanghai Jo.' Jo Lung is the lad I'm after."

"Who is Jo Lung?"

"I thought," said Haig, sorrowfully regarding the speaker, "you were supposed to be an authority on Chinatown?"

Kearney smiled.

"I've written it up for my paper," he confessed. (He was London correspondent of the New York Universe.) "But I seem to have overlooked Jo Lung!"

"Don't wonder!" Haig admitted. "He's not an easy man to know. Apart from which, he isn't the prime mover. The Big Chief is the man who supervised the removal of those cases from the Wallaroo tonight...."

"And who is 'the Big Chief?"

Dawson Haig seemed to hesitate; then:

"As I'm not sure, I won't answer," he replied. Let's stick to facts...."

The two firemen, supporting each other lovingly, at this moment reeled out of the bar. As they disappeared, the door reopened to admit a customer who, judging from externals, appeared to belong to the same trade as the vocalists. A seafaring man evidently, but, in this case, sober. He walked up to the bar and called for a glass of bitter beer. Directly the barman having served him had retired:

"O.K., Norwich?" said Haig, addressing the new arrival.

Kearney started and stared from face to face; then:

"The lorry's back in King's yard inspector," the man reported — "and being unloaded."

Dawson Haig nodded, and turning to the melancholy citizen, who smoked his pipe silently beneath the picture gallery of famous fighters:

"Join up, Wickham," he directed sharply. "All clear."

The man sprang up promptly; and Haig grinned into the bewildered face of Kearney.

"My own methods," he said. "The only way to deal with an Oriental criminal." Then, to Wickham: "Got the card from Bernardson?"

"Got it at nine o'clock, inspector, and came straight here. But I'm afraid I shall have to take your place on the Jo Lung job—"

"What d'you mean?" Haig asked sharply.

"The Chief sent for me just as I was leaving. They've got the missing witness in the Bond street case. You're to report back at one."

"Damn!" said Dawson Haig. "Also blast! The Bond street case is a fleabite to what I know to underlie this! Ah, well!"

He emptied his tankard; then:

"Can you talk like a Chicago gunman, Wickham?" he asked.

"Afraid not, sir! Lancashire sees me out."

"What about you, Norwich?"

"I was counting on you, inspector!"

"Hell!" said Dawson Haig; when:

"By heaven!" said he, "my bumping into you tonight has been a double blessing! Wickham—" he glanced at the latter—"you'll come back in the car with me. Norwich, carry on—but with Mr. Kearney, here, in my place. And now, Kearney, listen: here's priceless 'copy' for you—though I don't know how you're going to get back!—"

"It doesn't matter, I'll find a way."

"You'll have to gamble on a stray taxi. But this is what I want you to do...."

A heavy wooden gate, set in a high, old brick wall, did not look very promising. Partially defaced by time and weather, the name "J. Lung" might still with difficulty be read thereupon. Just beside the inscription was an electric bell push, and to this Detective Sergeant Norwich applied his finger.

"Don't forget the American accent, sir," he whispered.

"I can't!" Kearney replied. "So they tell me here."

This cul-de-sac was curiously quiet, although its blind end terminated very near to the river bank. Here, the fog was thick again. Kearney conjured up a picture of the Wallaroo, lying far downstream, and of a cosy stateroom. Eileen would be in bed now, propped up, reading. He hoped she was happy. He was very fond of Eileen.

Suddenly a small door, set in one wing of the greater one, opened quite silently inwards. The light of an electric lamp of that pattern carried by the police shone into their faces. Behind the lamp, indistinguishable in the darkness, appeared a stooping figure, shadowily.

"What you want, please?" asked a soft, monotonous voice.

Peering hard, Matt Kearney made out that the speaker wore a dark blue turban. The doorkeeper was not, as one might have anticipated, a Chinaman, but an Arab bowwab.

"Mr. Jo Lung," Norwich replied distinctly. "I have brought him a customer from the United States."

The bowwab turned light upon the speaker's face, and:

"I don't see you here before," he commented.

CHAMPION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

"Individual freedom of thought and conscience, to hold and change beliefs, is an absolute and sacred right."

"Throughout the world there are many people who do not enjoy the basic rights which have come to be accepted in many other parts as inherent rights of all individuals, without which no one can live in dignity and freedom."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman and "spiritus movens" of the United Nations Human Rights commission, is shown in two different poses when the committee met at Lake Success, New York, to ponder on the problem of how to safeguard essential human freedoms.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Take This Boy So Seriously

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About six months ago my boy friend broke up with me. It was quite sudden and he gave no reason. I was quite serious about him and felt very bad.

After a while I started going with other fellows and was beginning to forget him. But last week he called me on the phone and asked me to go to our Senior Prom at school with him. I told him to call again in a week or two and then I would give him an answer.

I don't see why he should call now after all this time. Should I accept?

"Patsy"

Dear "Patsy":

The reason this boy has called you again "after all this time" is no doubt because he likes you and wants to be your friend. Why not just take him on that basis and avoid getting so serious about your relationship that you think you must either be his one and only girl, or else not go out with him at all. You boys and girls cheat yourselves out of a lot of fun when you put your friendships with each other on an "all or nothing" basis. By all means go to the Prom and have a good time, but don't think the invitation necessarily means that this boy wants you for his steady girl.

This is Meant for Joke, I Think!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I love the man. I'm going to marry him. But he wants me to get up at 5.30 after we are married and massage his back with a hand vibrator until he gets up at 6.

We've agreed to abide by your decision.

"R. B."

Dear "R. B.":

Well, anything for a laugh! I've been asked a good many fantastic questions, but this one probably takes the prize in that class. Why don't you tell your boy friend that you will agree to massage his back from 5.30 to 6 if he will get up at 5 and brush your hair until 5.30? Turn about is only fair play.

Of course you don't mean me to take this seriously anyhow. Or do you? Won't you be a sport and write and tell me if you aren't just trying to have a little fun with me? I'm curious to know if any young man would really make such an astonishing request of his bride.

You've Just Got a "Crush", Babs

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I realize mine is an unusual case and you will probably think I am silly, but to me it is a real problem.

Since I broke up with a fellow I was going with, I have become a man-hater, and have formed a strong attachment for one of my teachers. I cannot get her out of my head or heart I will be graduating from high school soon and will be quite a distance from her, so I would like to correspond with her and wonder how I should go about it. Should I just tell her so and ask if it would be all right with her? Or do you have any other suggestions?

"Babs"

Dear "Babs":

Your case is not by any means as "unusual" as you think. On the contrary, it very frequently happens that girls in school develop a great affection for one of their teachers which is commonly know as a "crush". I'm sure you've heard the word, but probably don't like to think that is what you have.

The suggestion I have is that you try not to take it so seriously, because it is certain to pass off after you have graduated. If you want to correspond with this teacher, by all means tell her so. But my prediction is that you will lose all interest in her in a very short time.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Tinting the Fingernails,

Nail polish and lipstick are getting fainter

One pleasant surprise of the gentle springtime is round in lighter shades of nail polish. About time, too, that the deep wine tones gave way; they had just about become standardized. Every pair of lily-white hands looked like the next pair, with nails of deep red or blue-red.

Cosmetic chemists are offering delicate, luscious colors that impart charm and loveliness to the nails and are not in too great contrast to the skin. They make the nails sparkle. Men have always protested against the blood-red tones that make a woman's nails look murderous.

Heather is a lovely, smoky rose. A faint hint of blue and a trace of brown are skillfully used to tone down the red. Divine with that new navy suit. Nice with wedgewood green or what is known as burnt wine.

Laurel is a soft beige-pink to be worn with brown or black frocks. Just the ticket for pastel shades that you will be wearing for parties further along in the season. There are opalescent polishes that make the nails look like sparkling shells.

Don't be afraid of making this change. Nail polish and lipstick both are getting fainter.

A beautician tells your reporter that it is her belief that fingernails are as healthy and beautiful as the manicure they get. A careless, hurried manicuer with two much snipping will put the nails so completely out of form that they will not recover for some time. A skillful treatment will add vitality because oils or creams are well frictioned into the shining fabric and the cuticle surrounding the nails is made soft and pliable.

Soothing treatment at the delicate nail base is the first principle of expert manicuring. The slightest pressure there will cause trouble, as the matrix, in which new cells are forming, is easily injured. Keep that in mind when you are using the orangewood stick to lift the flesh around your pretty nails. The operator who digs and snips and sets the customer's nerves on edge must be avoided.

Injuries too small to see may be responsible for cracking or peeling of the nails. Cutting the cuticle means that nature will rebuild it as a means of protection and the flesh will became thick and heavy.

Fingernails, like the skin, thrive on lubricants. Even though you have professional attentions frequently, a cream or oil should be applied every night. The friction necessary to spread a lubricant stimulates the underlying blood streams that give the nails vitality and coloring.

CHILDREN CRAWL INTO REFRIGERATOR, SUFFOCATE

Philadelphia, June 12 (AP)—A discarded refrigerator, into which two four-year-old children had crawled, became a death trap when the door closed behind them, causing them to suffocate. The bodies of Nancy Murta and Samuel Mitchell were discovered Thursday.

ONCE SISTER TO RUSSIAN CZAR; NOW A CANADIAN IMMIGRANT

The Grand Duchess Olga Alexandrovna Kulikovsky, sister of the late Russian Czar, and her family arrived in Canada to start life anew on a Canadian farm. Fearful of the spread of Communism in Europe, the grand duchess said that she and her family came to Canada first, for safety and second to allow her two sons and her grandchildren "more opportunity in a new world." Shown aboard the S.S. Empress of Canada on their arriva in Quebec are, left to right, Ruth, and her husband, Gurij N. Kulkovsky (son of the grand duchess); another son, Tihon; the Grand Duchess Olga; Tihen's wife, Agnete, and the grand duchess' hus band, Col. Nikolaia Kulikovsky. In front are th grand duchess' grandchildren, Ksenia, seven a Leonid, five.

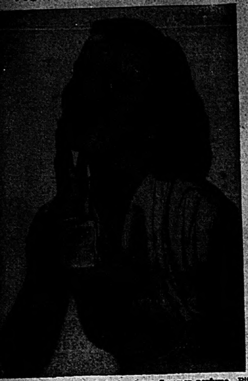
How to Select Perfume



Lily-of-the-Valley is a good choice for a Summer perfume. Pit it on wrists, neck.

By HELEN FOLLETT

PERFUME is the queen of cosmetics. It is the aristocrat of them all. It does not put pristine loveliness on the complexion, doesn't keep your hair in curl; it doesn't serve in the way of rejuvenation when youthful appearance is waning. But it does impart a grand and glorious feeling of elegance that makes it worth its costly price per ounce.

The perfume trade is booming. Look around you at any perfume counter! Lovely wrappings, pretty ribbons, cute little crystal bottles. No wonder a woman digs into her purse, brings up the last dime to lug home a vial of floretted happiness.

Selecting Scents

Many laws have been laid down concerning the selection of scents. A few of them seem reasonable enough. For instance, the blonde lovely should use a delicate fragrance that suits her golden tresses and fair complexion. Brunettes are entitled to heavier blends if they like them. Outdoor girls will naturally select crisp, woodsy odors. Romantic young things will prefer subtle blends that they fancy will appeal to the beau who is rushing them.

The most popular offerings are bouquets. Also, new perfumes, while not strong, have longer lasting qualities than in the old days. Some of the names they carry mean simply nothing as to their relationship to flower gardens, but who cares, as long as they have allure?

One warning: It is a mistake to switch perfumes. To put a scent on a frock that already carries a delicate aroma is to kill both of them.

Use an Atomizer

Find a favorite, and don't change. Keep it in an atomizer; that is an excellent means of conservation. After bathing, spray your throat and chest. The warm flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate, only the flowery element will be left.

Keep the atomizer in a dark place perfume is affected by light. See that it is tightly stoppered.

While you are on a perfume binge, get sachets of the same scent.

Bibles Presented By Gideons At Q.V. School

Opening exercises at Queen Victoria School on Friday morning were of unusual interest as they were in charge of the Gideons, The Christian Commercial Men's Association of Canada.

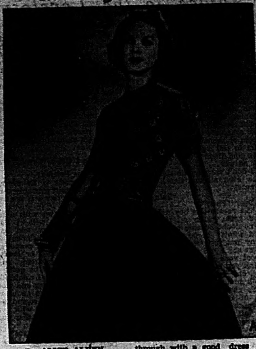
Shortly after nine o'clock, the pupils marched to the auditorium to the music of the school band. The members of the Gideons present with their assistants were introduced to the pupils and teachers by the principal of the school and the purpose of their visit was explained after which the program was turned over to the Gideons under the leadership of Mr. Don. Williams, President of the Belleville Camp of the Gideons. After the singing of a hymn, Mr. Williams called upon Mr. Robert Turner, Secretary of the Belleville Camp, to read the Scripture lesson. The Rev. Mr. Grey, member of the Belleville Ministerial Association, led in prayer. In his address to the assembly, Mr. Williams explained who the Gideons are, their purpose and accomplishments, chief of which is the placing of the Holy Bible in places where it will be accessible to travellers and people away from home and now the added responsibility of placing them in the schools.

Mr. Williams called the pupils of the two grades five to the stage and presented each pupil with a beautiful small copy of the New Testament. The smiles with which the pupils received their gifts showed their appreciation. He next presented one hundred and seventy-five beautifully bound volumes of the Holy Bible to the school or use in grades five, six, seven and eight. They were accepted on behalf of the Board of Education by Chairman Harold Seldon in a neatly worded speech.

The Bibles were solemnly dedicated by the Rev. H. R. Harback, of the Tabernacle Church, representing the Ministerial Association and who has been the minister in charge of religious instruction in Queen Victoria School. Principal Wilkin expressed the appreciation of the staff and pupils for the gifts and for the interest shown in their religious training and assured the Gideons that the Bibles would be a great asset to the school and through these coming young citizens to the community and religious life of Belleville and that the good use and fine care the books will receive will express better than any words the appreciation the children have for this wonderful gift.

The ceremony was closed by the playing of the National Anthem by the school band while the assembly stood at attention with all eyes turned toward the Union Jack, held aloft from the stage by a small grade one girl.

Charming and Useful



By ALICE ALDEN

IT TAKES A good piece of sartorial know-how to create a dress, that while it has a casual air about it, can appear with aplomb at any after-dark occasion, save that of a very dressy or formal type. Mary Black comes through with a good dress of this genre, young and pretty. The torso-hugging bodice is of red and green pure silk foulard. Waist-whittling and tight-fitting over the hips, it wafts into a wide skirt of emerald green pure silk, tissue-thin taffeta.

Fashion Flashes

THE WHISPER of crisp silk is heard everywhere, either in suits or dresses or combined with sheer woollen. The latter combination is used for a charming costume. Navy blue woollen is used for a short ,fitted jacket, outlined — cardigan-fashion — with ruchings of navy taffeta. Taffeta ribbon loops outline the neckline. This tops a full skirt of woollen trimmed with wide shirred bands of the taffeta, and a plain, round-necked taffeta top.

JUST DREAMY is a full-skirted, slim-bodiced evening frock of white silk chiffon, with enormous red chiffon poppies attached here and there to the skirt by green velvet stems, so that the flowers hang loose.

RIGHT STRAIGHT atop the head sits the plateau hat. A nice design is in white straw, the front slightly rippled. It is trimmed with upshooting wings of white, and a white sling veil.

A FULL WARDROBE of blouses, instead of the erstwhile two or three, is indicated these days as the separate skirt and blouse plus the suit now take first honors. White Swiss organdie is used for a beautiful blouse with finely tucked panels either side of the pearl buttoned closing which is edged with tiny self frills. V neckline is also frill-edged and has pointed revers of eyelet embroidery.

THERE'S GRACE and charm in the big hat with the brim that curves up softly in front and dips in back. This is the line taken by an open crown model of coffee-colored Milan straw, the curving brim edged with ruchings of wheat-colored nylon net, and trimmed under the brim with sprays of wheat held by a coffee-brown velvet bow.

BEST BET for the rather heavy of figure, is one color from head to feet. All beige and all gray, especially a deepr tone are two colors that do well. A famous movie star, blonde and beautiful, but inclined to a little heft, goes in for this and has top-to-toe outfits in gray, and in beige, which were included in her recent fabulous trousseau, as well as outfits in all pink, navy and bottle green.

A New Line

Swing-back jacket and slim skirt

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BEIGE WOOLLEN is used for a nice suit distinguished by a jacket that really is a swing-back shortie coat, nice for wear with other skirts or dresses. The jacket has a high collar and slit cuffs and bell sleeves. Three self buttons close the top as it swings away toward the back. As is proper with a flared coat of this type, the skirt is pencil-slim.

HOSPITAL RATES UP

Vancouver — (CP) — Rates at Vancouver General Hospital were increased $1.50 a day on Jan. 1. Cost per patient a day has climbed from $8.30 in 1946 to $9.76 in November, 1947, and is expected to reach $10.70 this year, the board of directors announced.

AUSTRALIAN WINE POPULAR

Canberra — (CP) — There is such a demand from Canada and the United Kingdom for wines that even if all trade barriers were removed Australia would have a hard time to make it. The demand arose when Britain decided to trade more extensively within the Empire, and Canada found continental wines in short supply.

V.O.N. NEWS

The V.O.N. lifted the baby from his bath and prepared him for his crib.

"You've brought home a fine son," she remarked to the new mother, who was watching her every movement.

"He is adorable, isn't he?—but oh do you think I'll ever be able to bathe and care for him properly as you do. It must be wonderful to know how to do for the baby without the worry that it may be wrong."

"Don't fret your pretty head about it," said the V.O.N. kindly. "Youll be an expert in no time." She laid the baby in his crib and went on to say, "This demonstration visit is always made on a mother's first day of her return from the hospital, to show her, as we did you, how to bathe and tend the baby, and it depends upon the mother if she feels she needs more visits to assist her. For these visits we charge a nominal fee."

"You charge so little. I hope you will come again tomorrow."

"Yes, of course, I'll be here, then. Besides I'll come to see you each week for six weeks to weigh the baby and we'll check and talk over and and all problems regarding his training and routine and this is all done freely. If any problem arises because of his formula we suggest that you get in touch with your doctor to correct it."

"The new mother lay back against her pillow contentedly. "You know," she said with a smile, "you do help make having a baby a pleasure."

The V.O.N. does much to mitigate all nursing and baby-care problems. Note change of telephone to 3400 when you have need to call her week days and 1125 on Saturday afternoons and Sundays or holidays.

All-Day Attraction

Print frock of pure silk

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE SOFT easy-to-wear day-time dress that relies on color and fabric, rather than on trimming for its appeal is always a good wardrobe companion and is nice to wear all day except for formal occasions. Good for now with a fur jacket or under a coat, and ready for the warm weather later on, is this nice little frock of pure silk in gray blue with a neat geometric print in wine red. It features a low round neckline, short sleeves, and a set-in belt that ties in front above a full skirt. The only trimming on the dress is a stitched band running from neck to hem.

GIVES RESPONSIBILITY

Twickenham, England — (CP) — Schoolchildren, aged about 11, write their own report cards because teacher B. Munn thinks "self-criticism seems to act as a spur to make the child work harder."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Essential Unkindness of Asking the Reason for a Broken Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I need your help very much on a problem that is very perplexing, really heart-breaking, to me. I've just broken my engagement I'm super-sensitive about the reason why the engagement was broken, and I just don't want to talk about it or to have to explain it to any of my friends, even my closest friends. I am returning the engagement and shower presents that have been given to me, with a brief, but friendly note explaining that the engagement was "broken by mutual consent" and giving no further explanation, since I don't think an explanation is called for. However, I am dreading the possibility of having any of my relatives or friends ask me about it, particularly those who I know have an enlarged bump of curiosity. Please tell me, Mrs. Beeckman, what I could say if anyone tries to "pump" me about the reason for my broken engagement??

Ann

I'm hoping with you, dear girl, that none of your friends will be so rude, so cruelly unkind, as to ask the reason why your engagement was broken . . . this is really a low in ruthless inconsideration for your feelings. However, it certainly is wise for you to be prepared for the morbidly curious ones, and to their possible questioning I advise a forthright reply, "I'm sure you will understand, Betty, when I tell you that I prefer not to talk about our broken engagement. The reasons are our own, and they really concern only Tom and me." Since any words you say in this circumstance would inevitably carry a bit of reproof, you must make a special effort to say your words with the maximum of graciousness and friendliness.

Business Woman, to be Married Retains Maiden Name for Business Use

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been a business woman for over twelve years and have become quite well-known as (let's say) Mary Smith. Now I am going to be married to a professional man, but I am going to continue in business. What form of name would you suggest after my marriage? Should I for example, use my married surname, with "Mrs. Mary" or "Mrs. Mary Smith," or what form?

Business Woman

The most practical thing for you to do is to continue to use in your business life, the name that has a business value for you . . . Mary Smith. Then for all occasions of your social life, use your married name. . .Mrs. John Robinson. These forms of name correctly indicate and differentiate between your business and social life, and many, many women today find this name usage most sensible. Please don't consider using the form "Mrs. Mary Smith" . . . it isn't necessary for you to use this form of name, and it isn't correct.

When to Eat a Salad?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In a restaurant, when the salad is put down at one's place at the beginning of the meal (or sometimes before anything else is served) is it proper to eat it whenever one wishes to, or should it be eaten with the main course?

Shiela

Eat the salad whenever you wish to. Some people prefer to eat a salad, particularly a fruit salad or a simple green salad, as a first course; others prefer it with the main course, a lettuce-and-tomato salad, for example, with beef or chicken; and still others like to eat it after the main course, perhaps with cheese and bread and crackers.

A Post-Graduation Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman::

In our High School, with a large graduating class and a not-very-large auditorium, only relatives and a few intimate friends can be invited to the graduation exercises. Should we send invitations to the rest of our relatives and friends to an informal reception at our house? If so, when should it be?

S.T.

It's an excellent idea for a graduate to have a party for her relatives and friends . . . either directly after the exercises (a buffet luncheon, for example, after morning exercises), or at any more convenient time. It's fun, and it dramatizes the important occasion of her graduation.

Peterborough Keeps Win Record Intact Defeating Batawa 14-1 in Slow Game

Peterborough's unbeaten COBL baseball squad kept their record intact here Saturday night defeating the Batawa Shoemen 14-1 in a lop-sided game.

The Petes pounded three Batawa hurlers for fourteen hits while Edgar held the Shoemen in the palm of his hand, letting them down with five scattered safeties, although three of them were three-base clouts.

Peterborough put the game in the bag in the second when they drove George Bedard, Batawa starting hurler to the showers with a six-run barrage from three hits and three errors. Ken Peacock, Batawa ace, was nicked for five for four and Jim Bowman finished the game allowing four hits for five runs.

Garvey, Starr and Stewart were the hitsmiths for the Petes each getting a triple and a double. Bridgeman and Solmes each hit a three-bagger for the losers.

Edgar had little difficulty in restraining the vaunted Batawa bats and with his mates playing errorless ball behind him breezed through to an easy win. He struck out thirteen batters and did not issue a free ticket to first base.

The Petes put the game in the bag in the second innings when he Petes coupled a trio of husky louts with three Batawa bobbles send six runs across the plate. hat was all as far as the game as concerned and with Edgar oing right nobly out there on e mound, the issue was settled.

The Petes had no respect for e Batawa flinging and three them, Bedard, Peacock and wman tried futilely to stem the ir bludgeons of the Men o' urphy. They hit the ball safely eight of the nine innings scor- g two runs in each of the urth, fifth and sixth innings d one each in the seventh and ghth.

Batawa got their lone run in e seventh heat when they got ree of the five hits collected f the Peterborough hurler. lmes started the rally when he ove a blistering triple to the r pastures and scored on Kendy's long fly to right. Menzies wever doubled the runner at st and two were down. Aquino uck out to end the brief lurge.

Gerard Cote Earns Berth On Olympic Team

Hamilton, June 14 — (CP) — Canada's track stock in the 1948 Olympic Games rose a little here Saturday when 34-year-old Gerard Cote virtually made sure of a berth on the Dominion's Olympic team.

The little policeman from St. Hyacinthe, Que., outsped a field of 26 competitors to take his popular victory over the 26-mile, 385-yard Marathon route for the official trial title. His time was 2:46.06.

Cote, four-time winner of the famous Boston Marathon, took the race handily after the 20-mile mark. Until that point it was a three-way race, as the veteran marathoner pulled away from Walter Fedorick, Hamilton Olympic Club star, and Lloyd Evans, veteran Montreal runner.

Fedorick, who placed second, set the pace for more than half of the official Olympic distance, crossing the Civic Stadium finish line only 23 second behind Cote. In third spot was Evans, more than a minute slower than Fedorick.

Although weather conditions were ideal for the run, the French-Canadian's time was 15 minutes slower than his last Boston race, and three minutes slower than his victory in the Los Angeles marathon May 21. Cote had expressed fears of burning himself out against the competition of distance runner Ab Morton of Galt, Ont. Morton, however, suffered a cramp early in the race and was forced to fall back.

Sunday Football Here to Stay Moguls Decide

Ottawa, June 14 — (CP)—Big Four moguls huddled in the countryside near Ottawa over the weekend and decided Sunday football was here to stay.

They also decided more American players was in order and increased import quotas from five to six for Hamilton Wildcats, Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders.

Montreal Alouettes' quota remains at seven in accordance with a previous meeting which restricted the other teams to five each.

The new import deal was believed an appeaser to squelch whimpers by Hamilton Wildcats against weekend doubleheaders. Rugged Toronto Argos are the only club not doing doubles. They said two years ago they wouldn't play Sunday ball . . . and are sticking by their guns.

Meeting in the secluded cottage owned by league president E. K. (Eddie) Emerson, the Interprovincial Rugby Football Executives' semi-annual get-together thrashed out kinks to make certain the Big Four opens in Montreal under the lights Tuesday, Aug. 31.

Another innovation was a decision to number officials in the same way that players are numbered. Officials approved the recommendation by referee-in-chief Bill Foulds, who also suggested a pre-season training course for officials to obtain a common interpretation of playing rules.

Limit for C. R. U. playoffs still is five imports and any Big Four club winning the title and playing for the Canadian championship will have to adhere to the rule.

Toronto Leafs Win Three Games Over Weekend

(By The Associated Press)

One of the prime candidates for the International League rookie-of-the-year honors is Johnny Groth, hard-hitting outfielder of Buffalo Bisons.

Groth, operating in the No. 2 slot in the Bisons' batting order, is batting .316.

He is in his second season of organized ball. Last year he played for Williamsport of the Eastern League and batted .319 in 121 games.

The lanky ballhawk hit his 9th and 10th homers of the season yesterday as the Bisons divided a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles.

He clouted his ninth in the first game which the Bisons lost 8-7. In the second tilt, he whacked his 10th with a man on to highlight an eight-run first inning. The Bisons went on to win 17-3.

Rochester Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs also divided a double-header. The Wings won the opener 6-4 and the Leafs the aftermath, 11-9.

Max Surkont, with the aid of Ed Blake in the eighth, gained credit for his fifth win in the first game.

The Leafs pulled the second game out by scoring five runs after two were out in the seventh and final inning.

Jersey City's Little Giants moved into a tie with the Wings for fourth place by trouncing Syracuse Chiefs 9-2 in a single game.

New Middleweight Champion Tony Zale looks calm and composed as Trainer Ray Arcel, right, raises Zale's hand after Zale landed a terrific left to Graziano's chin, to regain the middleweight crown. Twenty-five thousand fight fans went wild when after one minute and eight seconds of the third round Zale let loose his terrific left to end the fight.

Ben Hogan Wins U.S. Golf Open With Record Score

Los Angeles, June 14 (AP)—Ben Hogan new United States Open golf champion, was taking it easy today, wondering where his next links title would come from.

Hogan had a gold medal, $2,000 in cash and a year's possession of the silver cup.

The future also held promise of a far greater silver lining. Hogan figures to capitalize on this title to the extent of upwards of $50,000.

Hogan breezed home late Saturday afternoon with a 72-hole total of 276, a record for the U.S. Open. Ralph Guldahl's 281 in 1937 was the previous mark.

Besides Hogan, two others bettered the old record. They were Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., and Ojai, Calif., and Jimmy Turnesa of Elmsford, N.Y. Demaret carded a 278 and Turnesa a 280.

Demaret took second place and $1,500, followed by Turnesa with $1,000, Bobby Locke, $800 and Sam Snead in fifth for $600. Defending champion Lew Worsham wound up in sixth.

Mickey Metrunitz Given Four Years In Penitentiary

Picton — Mickey Metrunitz of Toronto, was sentenced to four years in Kingston penitentiary when convicted of breaking and entering the brewers' retail store here on April 26. He was also sentenced to one year on a charge of theft of a car owned by Leland Blackman. Sentences run concurrently.

The charges were heard in County Court before Judge W. S. Lane.

Peter Carey, Toronto, was sentenced to one year definite and six months indefinite on a car theft charge. The breaking and entering charge against him was dropped.

Harry Olaski, Toronto, is charged with car theft and breaking and entering. His trial is proceeding.

The charges arose out of a robbery here April 26 when the brewers' retail store was entered and a safe, containing nearly $1,000, carried off and blown. A shot fired by County Constable Earl Marvin forced three men to flee from their car near Wellington. A day-long man-hunt culminated with the arrest of the trio in a car owned by Blackman as it sought to leave the island county of Prince Edward by Carrying Place bridge.

Metrunitz, in defence, claimed he had been in Quebec at the time of the robbery, and was only a hitchhiker in the car at the time of arrest.

E. J. Murphy, K.C., Toronto, appeared for Metrunitz and R. E. Nourse, Picton for Carey and Olaski.

"Air Force Day" at Trenton Air Station Attracts 10,000 Belleville, District Residents

Upwards of 10,000 city and district residents marked the second annual post-war observance of Air Force Day last Saturday afternoon with a visit to the RCAF station at Trenton. Personnel and equipment of the main station and No. 6 R.D. were pooled for the day.

"Air Force Day" was conceived some time ago to give the public an idea of how the officers and NCO's live, where they live, and what they do; what the RCAF is, what it is for, and where the taxes go," stated Group Captain D. A. R. Bradshaw, commanding officer of RCAF station, Trenton, in a short interview. "Everything on the station is open for the public's inspection barracks, workshops, hangars and recreational facilities. All types of aircraft are represented here today, and I might say that there is a representative of almost everything in the air force on display", he concluded.

A ceremonial drill by the Trenton High School air cadet squadron opened the program with His Worship Mayor Ken Couch of Trenton taking the salute.

Visitors Welcomed

Then, speaking for himself and Group Captain G. G. Truscott, commanding officer of No. 6 R.D. Group Captain Bradshaw officially welcomed the visitors. He stated that the exhibits on display would give a good indication of the day to day activities of the air force.

Following the address of welcome the Trenton High School girl cadette squadron paraded behind the air cadet band and a pert high-stepping drum majorette. The over-all excellence and smartness of the girls on parade repeatedly drew the applause of a large gallery of spectators. His Worship Mayor Couch accompanied by Group Captain Truscott and Group Captain Bradshaw, inspected the cadettes and took the salute.

Vampires Thrill Public

Biggest thrill of the afternoon for the public was the flying show and the speed of the new jet Vampires. The "Vamps" which race through the air at better than 500 miles per hour on the 10,000 pound thrust of their Goblin engines, dazzled civilians who until the demonstration Saturday were aware of their speed only as a long whining sound that trailed them across the sky.

The planes swept low over the field several times to be pulled vertically upwards to 10,000 feet with no apparent effort whatever. One jet throttled down to about 120 m.p.h. looked like a turtle as the other blazed past. The jets flew vertically and upside down as well as horizontally, doing graceful slow rolls. The high point of their manoeuvre was a vertical figure eight.

All afternoon planes of different types roared off the runways from the tiny Auster to the medium type Mitchell bomber. Harvards and Expeditors flew in formation across the field several times and the single engined Mustang fighter plane put on an acrobatic display.

Carry-Out Operation

Members of the para-rescue detachment carried out an "operation" in the centre of the drome with two men jumping to the "rescue". Three supply drops were made and radio contact was maintained between the plane and the men on the ground by a walkie talkie.

Lined up before the hangars were several different types of aircraft from the Auster, a small reconnaisance plane to the giant four-motored Lancaster. A ramp beside one of the Vampires gave the public a bird's eye view of the mighty speedster that stands only seven feet high from the runway to the top of the pilot's cockpit, and has less "road" clearance than a model T Ford.

Several types of anti-aircraft guns were on display beside the planes, and, manned by small boys, they "shot down" everything that flew within miles of the drome. The youngsters were operating the heavy 3.7 inch gun and 20 m.m. pom-poms with the same competence that dad uses holding the hose.

Mechanical Exhibit

In the mechanical exhibit of No. 6 R.D. was a functioning radar set and a stripped down jet engine. Also present were two or three captured German engines as well as the famed Pratt-Whitney and Packard-Merlin engines. Parachutes and life rafts were on display as well.

In the spinning of webs the spider has nothing on the men from No. 6 R.D. who were spinning webs all afternoon. The aircraft maintenance and repair men were preserving engines and sundry other pieces of equipment beneath a cob-webby material that came out of a spray gun wet and dried in the air to form a network of fibres like a spider web. Six coats of this material called "Cocoon" are guaranteed to keep air force perishables indefinitely.

A model aircraft competition in one of the hangars attracted a large crowd. The gas powered models were flown in the hangar and controlled by means of cords.

Link Trainers in Use

Free link trainer rides were available to the young and not-so-young who had a yen to "fly." Competent and friendly instructors were provided to explain the operation of these trainers and they were busy all afternoon.

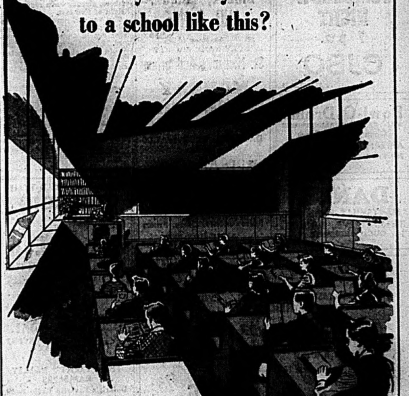
Down in the armament section were the gun turrets and machine guns used so extensively during the last war. Instructors explained the operation of the turrets and "gunners" were busy all afternoon mastering the technique of air gunnery. So complete is the equipment of these turrets that there is a dial which the gunner may set for shooting at different types of aircraft. Another dial is set for various weather conditions and so on.

The marine section offered the nautically inclined a ride on a "crash boat."

Sports enthusiasts were treated to a ball game and even the visiting firemen were provided with a fire, which was promptly and efficiently put out by station fire fighters.

NEW N. S. INDUSTRY

Shelburne, N. S. — (CP) — Two veterans have adapted a process used in manufacture of mosquito bombers to furniture and brought a new industry to Nova Scotia. Native birch veneer is shaped under heat and 70 pounds pressure in a hydraulic press to form laminated, resin-bonded furniture.



Don't you wish you'd been to a school like this?

HERE IS an ultra-modern school building — an exciting adventure in new educational aids.

It has windows of special glass which allows free passage of sunshine's precious vitamin D. Also radiant heating, fluorescent lighting, glare-free blackboards and posture-correcting seats.

Thus education marches on! And in many Canadian communities these modern school buildings will be built in the future with the aid of life insurance dollars invested in municipal bonds.

This is but one example of the many public and private enterprises in which the life insurance companies annually invest over 300 million dollars on behalf of policyholders.

So each dollar you invest in life insurance serves two purposes. It provides security for your family's future. And it helps to promote the welfare of the nation.

Mine was the south hand. The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 H	3 C
3 H	4 NT
6 D	6 H

Four no-trump in Kibitzer convention says to partner: "I have discovered at least 12 tricks in our pair; I know what will be our trump suit; my hand contains two aces and a king or better; tell me how many aces and kings you have."

My opening of one showed at least five tricks. My three hearts over three clubs was not an increase in number. It did not reveal any sixth trick. It happens that partner did not need to know.

North has a count of seven. He knew at once of 12 between us. With support for my hearts he knew what could be decided as trumps. With better than two aces and a king, he had the stuff for a four no-trump slam prober.

In answer to four no-trump, six diamonds shows two aces and one king. North knew from this that we were missing one king and no aces.

Reaching a small slam was thus natural with such reckoning. With a king known to be missing should a grand slam be tried? Not unless something unusual is evident in one or both hands.

Opening lead from west was diamond queen. Slam was easy with a simple play. Pull trumps. Cash club ace. Lead small south club to dummy queen. But I figured out a way to defeat myself.

Clever capers can, by heck, turn and bite you in the neck.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 14 — (AP) — The currently tight market for film actresses is forcing Robert Montgomery to hunt for an unknown as his next co-star.

"I've canvassed Hollywood," he said on the "June Bride" set, "and the handful of girls who could play the role are either too expensive or tied up with contracts." He's seeking a special type to appear in his next comedy, "Come Be My Love."

The Movie Beat

Toronto-born Mary Pickford is off to meet Buddy Rogers in New York. They'll take a three-month vacation in Europe. Mary is taking a secretary along and she plans to dictate her memoirs en route.

The Eddy-MacDonald reunion may yet take place. Joe Pasternak is reported preparing a remake of his old Deanna Durbin film, "It's a Date." It is being tailored for Jeanette, Nelson and Jane Powell.

Columnist Drew Pearson is the latest celebrity to be spot lighted by Hollywood. The newspaper man's life will be the subject of a semi-documentary "The Washington Story," to be filmed by Columbia in the fall.

Star Notes

Twentieth Fox is plotting a musical to combine the talents of Dan Dailey and June Haver . . . Josh White, the ballad singer, makes his film debut in "The Walking Hills." He sings six songs . . .

Review: It's doubtful if Broadway will have much regard for "Give My Regards to Broadway." Dan Daley deserves better . . .

Alexis Smith, native of Penticton, B.C., who is overjoyed with her role as dance hall queen in "South of St. Louis," provides the most arresting quote of the week: "For seven years I've played society dame parts and begged for a role with guts. Now I've got my wish and I'll probably spend the next seven wishing to get back into clothes."

NEW TYPE FALL WHEAT

Whitby, June 14 (CP)— What is believed the first trial of "Cornell 595", a new type of fall wheat, in this area has aroused the interest of neighboring farmers. A stand of five acres on Jim McMorrow's farm, three miles west of here, already have reached a height of five feet.

The variety, developed at Cornell University, never has been tried out in Ontario County before. Mr. McMorrow said the field should yield at least 62 bushels to the acre early in August. Normal wheat yield in Ontario is 40 to 43 bushels an acre.

"REMEMBER WHEN . . ."

Forrest, Man. — CP) — Early homesteading days in Manitoba came vividly to life when 18 district pioneers, all over 70, gathered here. Driving by team 50 miles for firewood was one of the chores described as the pioneers exchanged reminiscences.

Salt Lake City — Highway patrols from Utah to Florida have been asked to intercept Salt Lake county auditor A. L. Ascandon.

There has been a $600,000 oversight but the county doesn't want Escandon arrested. It just wants him to sign a voucher.

Escandon left Sunday for Jacksonville, Fla., to attend a convention. He forgot to sign a certification which will enable the county to borrow $600,000 in tax anticipation funds.

Treasurer Sid Lambourne says the county needs the money and needs it right away. The county is $425,000 in the red.

Fort Worth, Tex. — (AP) — "Unfortunate," a big white tom cat, is riding a homemade wheelchair along the road to recovery.

Eighteen months ago he was hit by a car. It left him toothless, paralyzed and deaf.

Mrs. A. H. Cooper, who found him at the scene of the accident, picked him up and carried him home.

She said the diet she fed him is responsible for a new set of teeth the cat is cutting.

Massage and coaching enabled him to use his front legs to propel the four-wheeled wheelchair plumber Eugene Wirtz made for him.

Now, says Mrs. Cooper, she's looking for a cat-size hearing aid for "Unfortunate."

Tokyo — (AP) — Japanese government railways are going to try chewing gum as an accident preventative.

A survey attributed 70 per cent of recent rail accidents to sleepy engineers.

As a keep-awake experiment, officials plan to pass out gum to engineers on three runs with written orders, "Chew this one to two hours, even after all flavor is gone."

Atlanta — (AP) — Cheerfully, the undertaker wrote, "may I have a last word with you."

If you don't come to this convention, said Mose Bernstein of Athens, Ga., to his colleagues, "you'll miss the time of your life."

Why, he pointed out, it was rumored that the fashion show would feature live models.

And if you find the man with the casket necktie, you'll get a free drink. Everybody, of course, treasures a solid copper casket.

Don't wait to make a reservation, Bernstein warned, tomorrow might be too late.

Albuquerque, N.M. — (AP) — When 10-year-old Howard Hooten got out a pair of last summer pants, he found several forgotten treasures — mostly the sort of collection generally in small boys' pockets.

There was even a ring he came across somewhere last August. Howard didn't think much of it but he was able to swap it to a pal for a water pistol.

The playmate's mother returned it to Mrs. Lillian Hooten, Howard's mother. She suggested it looked rather valuable.

Mrs. Hooten agreed and turned it over to police who found the ring was the $200 diamond lost by Dale Tetterington 10 months ago.

Danville, Va. — (AP) — There was a slight mixup at the Democratic mass meeting here Friday night to choose delegates to the party's state convention.

Among the 21 delegates elected was Austin Jones, a member of the Danville Republican steering committee.

"It was all a mistake," a member of the Democratic delegation said. "We didn't know Jones was a Republican."

Jones thanked the Democrats for their confidence, but declined the nomination.

St. Louis — (AP) — Romance wasn't dead despite a separation and divorce 32 years ago for Mr. and Mrs. Claude Patrick. They have remarried, he at 60, she at 50.

A married daughter who saw her father for the first time last April disclosed Friday that she was a bridesmaid at the second wedding last Sunday.

And Patrick said "we're both as happy as can be that things have turned out this way. We never should have broken up in the first place. It was all my fault."

Patrick said he wandered over the country as a cook and in April found his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Franke, in Batchtown, Ill.

"I called her mother and it turned out she had been a widow for about 18 months and that over the years we both thought of each other pretty often," Patrick said.

Michigan City, Ind. — (AP) — Louis Milch was afraid he recognized the noise which disturbed him Friday night — and he didn't know how right he was.

Just a year ago a truck owned by the Saginaw Transfer Company of Saginay, Mich., smashed into his house. Friday night's sound brought unpleasant memories.

When Milch rushed outside he saw that another truck had demolished his porch.

It, too, was owned by the Saginaw trucking company.

AT THE CAPITOL — Dorothy Lamour stirs up trouble between Alan Ladd and Robert Preston in Paramount's exciting "Wild Harvest," now entertaining audiences at the Capitol Theatre. Lloyd Nolan is co-starred with them in the thriller about life and love in the wheat country. Film, directed by Tay Garnett, features Dick Erdman. On the same program "Crossfire," starring Robert Young, Robert Mitchum and Robert Ryan.

Pressure Mounts On Both Sides Of Contract Talks

Washington, June 14 (AP)— Pressures mounted on both sides of the soft coal contract talks today with barely three weeks left to avert another country-wide strike.

The present wage pact expires June 30, but an industry-wide vacation to July 5 makes that the actual deadline against which John L. Lewis and the operators are working.

The bargainers are scheduled to resume their efforts today.

Saturday, Lewis began talking contract terms for the first time in a week of conferences. Up to then be had insisted on winning a commitment from the operators to assume nearly $20,000,000 worth of distress payments to miners which he lined up under the nearly-spend welfare fund of 1946.

The 1946 fund was established during government operation of the mines. The operators themselves did not take part directly in setting it up or in spending it. Lewis and other members of the fund's board of trustees agreed to a series of payments which would carry over for as long as another year from now.

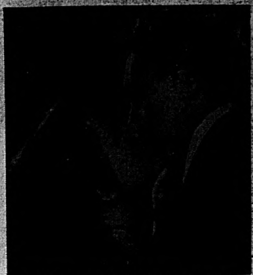
But the operators refused to accept those obligations. The fund which they agreed to establish last July, known as the welfare and retirement fund of 1947, has been "frozen" because Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, the operators' trustee, could not agree on a miners' pension system.

That issue will be decided next Saturday by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough. Van Horn has asked the judge to stop Lewis and Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.-N. H.), the neutral trustee for the '47 fund, from spending any of its $40,000,000 without Van Horn's signature. Van Horn contends the Bridges-Lewis pension plan would violate the Taft-Hartley labor act.

Bridges voted with Lewis last Friday to free the '47 fund and take on the liabilities of the '46 fund—subject to changes after a newly authorized study of costs is completed about Aug. 1. Van Horn again voted 'no."

OLD COINS FOUND

Montreal — (CP) — Human bones and old coins were found by workmen excavating a downtown building site which long before was a cemetery attached to a convent. The coins were dated 1731, 1815 and 1848.



AT THE BELLE — Katharine Hepburn and Paul Henried in MGM's "Song of Love," the stirring love story of Clara and Robert Schumann, now on the Belle Theatre screen. Also starred in the brilliant new Clarence Brown production is Robert Walker, playing the famed composer Johannes Brahms.

Floods on Wane In B.C., Waters Begin to Recede

Vancouver, June 14 (CP)— It's taken three weeks, but it looks as though the worst is over in British Columbia. Floods are on the wane.

Flood-fighters, haggard and drawn after weeks of punishing labor, looked with renewed hope today at the recently-crazed Fraser and Columbia Rivers, whose levels began to fall yesterday.

Slowing dyke seepage along the Fraser coupled with receding water levels and an increasing of the river current out to sea indicate the flood is going down.

The Columbia too is falling slowly after gaining eight inches daily for a week at Trail.

All fronts were described as stronger than ever. Over the weekend an additional 14,000 sandbags—flown in by the R. C. A. F.—were used to plug the crumbling dykes. A second sandbag line of defence was thrown up along riverside streets.

However, officials emphasize that the danger is not yet over. Spongy ramparts are steadily deteriorating under damaging pressure at many points.

The call is still out for volunteer workers at Burnaby and Lulu Island danger points near New Westminster.

Evacuations are continuing. In the Sumas Prairie district response to the evacuation call is now about 90 per cent. The Red Cross emergency hospital at nearby Abbotsford is sheltering and feeding 800 evacuees from Sumas and Matsqui areas.

ISOLATES T. B. BACILLI

A member of the Stamford Calif. Medical School faculty, Dr. Sidney Raffel is shown in the laboratory where he has isolated wax-like substances from the tuberculosis bacillus. These "lipids", as they are called, are responsible for the cell destruction and other characteristics of the disease.

SHEARING BEGINS

Kamloops, B. C. — (CP) — Spring shearing began in the Cariboo sheep country near here recently. When the clipping has been complete, the sheep will be driven 150 miles westward where they will graze at an altitude of about 5,000 feet.

Traffic Deaths And Drownings Boost Fatalities

(By The Canadian Press)

A freight train collision and what police described as an axe-slaying accounted for two of the 18 weekend fatalities reported in Eastern Canada.

A Canadian Press survey also showed six drownings, five deaths in automobile accidents, a race track fatality, the body of an unidentified man recovered from Lake Ontario at Kingston, and an industrial accident.

Brakeman Norman Yeflow, 27, of Belleville, Ont., was suffocated under a carload of cattle which swarmed on him after he leaped from one of the trains wrecked at Toronto.

Yvonne Brouillette, 34, of Toronto, was charged with murder after Jack Farrell, also known as Fanya, 32, was found dead with head wounds in a Toronto boarding house early Saturday. Police said they believed the man had been hacked with an axe.

Edmond Hardy of Val d'Or, Que., was killed Saturday night at Amos, Que, when his automobile collided with a truck. Roger Pilon, 43, of Montreal, died Sunday when his car crashed into a steel post in Montreal. A few hours after he had been struck by a bus, 87-year-old Onesime Rheault died Sunday in hospital at Three Rivers, Que.

Glennwyn D. (Pat) Hartley, 42, of Hamilton, was killed in a rear-end, two-automobile crash four miles from Guelph.

Thomas Burr of Forest, Ont., died in hospital at Sarnia, Ont., of injuries suffered when his car careened into a ditch and overturned near Sarnia.

Drowned Attempting Rescue

Roger Sarazi, 18, of Ottawa, was drowned when he tried to rescue his girl friend in the Ottawa River. The girl was rescued by an unidentified man.

Freddie Allen, 15, was drowned while swimming in the St. Maurice River at Three Rivers, Que. Another swimmer, Everett Bartlett, 17, was drowned in an unused reservoir of Tillsonburg, Ont.

Edward Armstrong, 28, of Ottawa, was drowned in Lake Manitowic, 185 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when a small boat carrying survey party members capsized. Swept from a raft and carried over a waterfall, John Slipo, 48, of Port Arthur, drowned in the Savanne River, 55 miles west of Port Arthur.

Andre Parent, 17, was drowned while trying to swim across the L'Assomption River near Joliet, Que.

A few hours after he was injured at work in a Montreal electrical company (Northern Electric) plant, Arthur McCleave, 36, of Verdun, died in hospital.

Xavier Blais, 63, veteran harness racing trainer from Daveluyville, Que., suffered a fatal seizure and fell under the legs of a horse he was driving in a trial run at a Three Rivers, Que., racetrack.

At Kingston, Ont, the body of an unidentified man about 25 years of age was found floating in the harbor

Dionne Quints Visit Ottawa In Special Train

Ottawa, June 14 (CP)—Achieving the popularity of Hollywood stars, the world-famed Dionne quintuplets attracted a capacity 2,500 persons to a downtown theatre concert here Sunday night. The manager said that more than 200 had to be turned away.

The five girls appeared along with 15 of their school chums in a series of French-Canadian songs in aid of the needy children of Europe. The concert was sponsored by the Richelieu Clubs of Ottawa and Hull.

The Quints and their school mates arrived here Saturday in a special train from Corbeil, Ont. Accompanying the Quints were Oliva Dionne, father, and Rose, 20, a sister.

Later they visited the French Embassy and were received by the French Ambassador, Francisque Gay. Today they will visit the Apostolic delegate, Most Rev. Ildebrando Antoniutte, and the parliament buildings, returning to their home at Corbeil tonight.

Railway wrecking crews go to work with an audience of several thousand citizens to clear CNR tracks at Queen and De Grassi Sts., after two freight trains—one pulled by a two-unit Diesel (arrow) and one by a steam locomotive—collided yesterday. In wreck, brakeman was killed and a score of cows and pigs destroyed.

Shattered by an explosion and swept by flames this was all that was left of a $25,000 power cruiser on which 13 passengers were injured late Saturday night, at the Sea Cadets barracks dock at the foot of Dowling Ave.

Prime Minister King Officially Opens Hospital

Toronto, June 14 — (CP) — Sunnybrook. Canada's largest veterans' hospital was officially opened Saturday by Prime Minister Mackenzie King who unveiled a plaque to the men who served in the First and Second World Wars.

A crowd of 2,000 gathered around the main entrance during the outdoor ceremony to hear the prime minister say the opening should express the resolve of all Canadians to share in the building of a better world in which the need for veterans' hospitals would no longer arise.

Capacity of the completed hospital will be 1,450 beds and at present houses some 700 ex-service men and women. Its 500-acre site on the northern outskirts of the city was a gift from Toronto. A fifth main building is planned.

Business Spotlight

By The Canadian Press

Small businesses which employ less than 100 workers each, account in the aggregate for 30 per cent of total business employment in Canada.

They number 27,080 out of a total of 29,050 business employers.

These figures were cited today by Trevor Moore of Toronto to the annual meeting of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada in discussing the problem of providing capital for small businesses including venture capital for new enterprises.

He found it difficult, however, for investment dealers to go much further into the field than they now are going, and remarked "hundreds and hundreds of new businesses are incorporated each year. Most of them fail....

"The businessman with a good idea in the form of a new product, a new service, must back up his idea with his own capital, with sufficient enthusiasm to persuade his own friends to back him, with months, probably years of personal effort to prove that his idea is practical.

"At that stage, when some indication can be given of its probable success, even if an underwriting cannot be marketed, the investment dealers will put the owner of that business in touch with friends, wealthy clients who may be interested.

"With respect to initial capital there is no magic formula."

During 1946 and 1947 at least 60 issues of securities were underwritten by investment dealers, which involved amounts of $400,000 or less. The total of this smaller financing in those two years was over $17,000,000.

"Some risk financing was included. This small financing will continue—indeed the volume may well grow—but the financing should be extended to sound enterprises."

NAPANEE TO HAVE 25

Napanee, Ont., June 14 (CP) — Napanee town council and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will enter into negotiations for building of 25 rental houses, it was announced Sunday. The houses, if built, will be rented from $33.50 a month for two-bedroom homes and $37.50 for three-bedroom dwellings.

Two Children Hurt in Fall From Bicycle

Harold — Joyce and Eddy Colden, age 8 and 14 respectively, received serious injuries as a result of a fall from their bicycle while riding to school Friday morning.

The children, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Colden, Harold, were riding double downhill while en route to school when some mechanical difficulty arose, causing them to be thrown to the roadside ditch.

Shortly after, a neighbor found them and rushed them to their parents' home and a local doctor was summoned. Both children were brought to Belleville General Hospital for x-rays. The examination disclosed that the girl suffered a fractured skull and the boy, both arms broken in two places. Both children are confined to hospital.

Melodic Whispering Of Taffeta Alluring

Hollywood, June 12 (AP)—Wear a dress that's wired for sound, gals, then wait for the wolf calls.

That's the advice of Ilyana, the designer. She says it's not tiny waistlines, or exaggerated hips that make male eyes pop, but the seductive sounds of swish, rustle or crackle in the material.

"The melodic whisperings of yards of taffeta over the female form are more effective than gallons of subtle perfume," is the way she put it.

MARKETING BODY FORMED

Brockville, Ont. — (CP) — Grenville county potato growers formed a potato growers marketing association at a meeting here. The new body is negotiating to market its product through an already established farmers' marketing group, the Oxford-On-Rideau Co-operative services.

INVITATION TO THUGS

Toronto — (CP) — When 66 card players appeared in one day at Toronto City Hall's special "gambling court," the magistrate saw fit to warn the gamblers that their activities were an open enticement to hold-up men.

Rain During Week Of Great Benefit To District Crops

Rain received during the past week will be of immeasurable benefit to crops in the Bay of Quinte district, according to farmers attending the local produce market Saturday. Fields had been badly in need of rain.

Indications are for a bumper crop of hay this year with an earlier start than in the average season expected.

Conditions have been ideal for the growth of tomatoes, corn and potatoes and all fruit crops show promise with an especially good set of fruit on strawberries and apples.

Jimmy Frise, Noted Cartoonist, Dies Suddenly

Toronto, June 14 — (CP) — Jimmy Frise, cartoonist who created "Juniper Junction," died at his home here Sunday.

The 57-year-old artist died of a heart attack after complaining of feeling ill the night before.

Soon after his return from overseas in the First World War, Frise started the down-to-earth comic strip, first called "Life's Little Comedies," then "Birds-Eye Centre," and finally "Juniper Junction." His starring characters, Pigskin Peters, Ruby and Eli Doolittle, Old Archie and his moose, were known to two generations of readers of the Toronto Star Weekly and later the Montreal Standard.

A short time before his death, his drawings were bought for syndication in the United States and were appearing in color in several weekend newspapers.

Native of Port Perry, Ont., Frise began his career in 1912 with a Toronto printing company and soon after won his first newspaper job on the Toronto Star by letter. The letter showed a sketch of the editor milking a cow — on the wrong side.

He collaborated for many years with Greg Clarke, Toronto writer, in the widely-read "Greg-and-Jimmy" features, printed for years in the Toronto Star Weekly and for the last 18 months in the Montreal Standard.

Taxation Affects Supply of Funds For Investment

Manoir Richelieu, Que., June 14 (CP)—Taxation is affecting the supply of funds for investment, Trevor Moore of Toronto said in an address prepared for delivery to the annual meeting of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, which opened its sessions here today.

"It is extremely important" said Mr. Moore, "that Canadians take note of the fact that approximately 21 per cent of the national income, that is, of the income of labor, income from investments, income from corporations goes to the Federal government.

"Add to this the cost of operating provincial and municipal governments and we find a staggering portion of our national income now is required to carry the expenses of government.

"Risk capital, venture capital, will be forthcoming, when one of these two—the tax on corporate profits or the tax on dividends received by the individual — is removed..."

Mr. Moore said that double taxation, the taxing of profits and taxing of dividends in the hands of the investor, should be abandoned in favor of one tax, the individual income tax.

Number is Higher

"A study of 709 business establishments by the Bank of Canada reveals that in 1946 taxes paid by these firms amounted to 45 per cent of their net profits contrasted with 18 per cent in 1936...

"All of this surely means that few indeed will put money into new enterprises unless they are reasonably assured of profits at least 50 per cent greater than would be required if there were no corporation tax."

J. A. Gardner of Toronto in his presidential address blamed the restoration of Canada's dollar to parity in 1946 for cutting off the flow of investment money from the United States. He said that Canada, a young and virile country with tremendous natural resources awaiting development, needs a supply of venture capital above what her citizens can supply, and she also needs additional population to increase her production and internal consumption.

I.O.O.F. GRAND MASTER

William J. McCarthy, St. Catharines, Ont., as grand master for Ontario of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will preside over the provincial convention of I.O.O.F. at St. Catharines, June 14 to 18. Nine hundred delegates will attend.

MAY BE ORIGIN OF FALSE REPORT

Berlin, June 12 — (AP) — American officials believe they have solved the riddle behind reports in the Communist press that the United States is feeding Germans horse meat. A shipment of 990 tons of Mexican canned beef bought by the United States government for Germany arrived here Friday. Each can bears the picture of a horse and rider. The officials said this may be the origin of the horse meat rumors, which they declared false.

Liberal Leader To Sue Douglas For Defamation

Regina, June 14 (CP)—With the province's two major political figures involved as principals, a $100,000 slander suit today loomed across the Saskatchewan election campaign picture.

Walter Tucker, Provincial Liberal leader, said Saturday he will sue Premier Douglas for defamation. His Saskatoon lawyers immediately began legal action against the Premier, asking $100,000 for alleged damages to "Mr. Tucker's reputation and credit."

The lawsuit—launched less than two weeks before the June Provincial election—followed a campaign speech Friday by Mr. Douglas at Rosthern.

The Premier said Mr. Tucker was being sued for allegedly fraudulently depriving some people of their farm lands.

From Meadow Lake Mr. Tucker issued a statement saying the lawsuit against him was the result of a "conspiracy" by the Premier and Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher, government legal advisor, "to get an action started so that it could be used by them in the election in an attempt to defame my character."

Mr. Tucker said the action referred to had never been before the courts except on a motion by the defendants to strike out portions of the plaintiff's statement of claim on the grounds that it disclosed no cause for action.

FIVE PERSONS INJURED

Wasaga Beach, June 14 — (CP) — Five persons were injured Saturday, during and after motorcycle races at this Simcoe county summer resort. Charles Peck, 27, of Toronto, had his leg amputated after it was mangled by his motorcycle. Kenneth Reinhart of Guelph broke his shoulder during the races and an unidentified cyclist fractured an arm. Gordon Paylor and Mary Waterhouse, 19, both of Guelph, were hurt after the races when their motorcycle crashed into an automobile five miles north of Barrie.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was walking around the living room pushing crooked things strate and strate things crooked, saying to pop, I certainly feel sorry for that poor Mrs. Armbruster. Sutch a nice, sweet person, I just cant get her out of my mind, she said.

Who is she, what happened to her? pop said, and ma said, She's from Georgia, and she was cheeted out of her inheritance by a low underhanded trick.

She can go to law about it, cant she? pop said, and ma said, Oh, can she Then I just hope some kind sole will write to her and advize her to do it.

Who left her the inheritance pop said, and ma said, Uncle Dudley.

Who? pop said, and ma said, you know, Uncle Dudley on the Upsadaisy Soap radio show. Len Rootwell is the emcee, and he calls people up and asks them 3 questions. If they answer the ferst 2 correctly, Len Rootwell tells them that Uncle Dudley has left them an inheritance of 200 dollers in his will, but if they answer the 3rd question wrong, the will is broken in favor of the person that sent in the questions, and that's who gets the 200 dollers. Well, the 3rd and deciding question was, "If you had a bivalve would you use it to tern on the cold water or the hot water?" and Mrs. Armbruster answered cold water, but neither answer would of been correct because it seems a bivalve is an oyster, so the poor thing was cheeted out of her inheritance by an underhanded trick question, ma said.

Do you mean to say this Mrs. Armbruster was just a stranger on a quiz show? pop said, and ma said, She didn't seem like a stranger, she had sutch a nice southern drawl and she seemed so sweet and confiding. I can't get her out of my thawts. Do you really think she can go to law about it, William? ma said.

Help aid sucker, I retire, pop said.

Which he did in back of the sporting page.

J. E. Perrault, Former Quebec Minister, Dies

Montreal, June 14 — (CP) — Hon. Joseph Edouard Perrault, former Quebec Attorney-General and Liberal member of the Provincial Legislature for 22 consecutive years, died last night. He was 74.

Appointed Minister of Mines, Colonization and Fisheries in 1919, Mr. Perrault was a member of successive Liberal cabinets until 1936. After a reshuffling of portfolios in 1929, he became Minister of Roads and Mines.

In March 1936, he was named Attorney - General, he resigned three months later along with his chief, L. A. Taschereau, and several other ministers.

They were just in time to watch 39 years of Liberal dominance tumble in ruins as Hon. Maurice Duplessis and his Union Nationale swept the province in the July elections.

Mr. Perrault entered politics in 1896 when, despite the support of the late Sid Wilfrid Laurier, he was defeated by the Nationalist candidate in Drummond-Arthabaska. A second attempt in 1916 was successful.

He was re-elected in 1923 for Arthabaska and continued to represent that constituency until 1939.

In 1940, he was appointed to the International Joint Commission for the settlement of disputes between Canada and the United States. He became president of the body in October, 1947.

As a politician, Mr. Perrault was well-known for his good roads policy. Under his regime as roads minister, hundreds of miles of new highways were built, especially in country districts.

He headed a law office at Arthabaska, and in 1921 was chosen Batonnier-General of the Quebec Bar.

Active in business as well, he was president of the Flax Industries Ltd., Montreal; governor of the Trust General of Canada, Ltd. Waterloo, Ont.; Noranda Mines, Ltd.; Hallnor Mines Ltd.; Waite Amulet Mines Ltd., Toronto, and of the Montreal Branch of Quebec Airways Ltd.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Lucien Dubuc, Edmonton, wife of the Chief Justice.

Young Executives Urgently Needed Says President

Banff, Alta., June 14 — (CP)— Young executives still are urgently needed in Canadian industry as a whole and in the transit industry in particular, E. D. Gray-Donald, said today in his presidential report at the opening sessions of the Canadian Transit Association convention.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the convention, C. T. A. President Gray - Donald, chief engineer of the Quebec Railway Light and Power Company, also said "most utilities are operating at too low a rate, and fare increases are justified and long overdue."

Mr. Gray-Donald said a number of Canadian transit companies are "working very seriously" on selection of young men of executive ability, but he warned that many companies are failing to meet the problem.

"Executives are not developed overnight. It takes a lot of time."

He said ability "to handle people" now is the prime executive requisite. 'Our problem now is the handling of labor, and very close to that is the ability to develop good public relations."

Speaking of the need for increased rates, Mr. Gray-Donald warned that such increases do not in themselves constitute a cure-all.

"Efficiency and economy of operation also are necessary, but you cannot get efficiency and economy of operation unless the prime element, labor, is properly managed."

LANDLORD RESPONSIBLE

Vancouver — (CP) — Rooming-house operators have a duty to see there is no "wrong-doing" on the premises, Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson ruled in a case here. "They cannot close their eyes, go to sleep, and say they don't know anything is taking place," he said.

Wellington Unit Of Teachers Holds Meeting

The Wellington unit of the Women Teachers' Association of Prince Edward County held their June meeting at West Lake School, the guests of Miss Roberta Williams, with an attendance of 21.

The meeting opened with prayer after which the minutes and treasurers' reports were read and approved.

Miss Ival Stark presented a questionnaire on social studies, health and physical training. Mrs. Jas. Gough, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers for 1948-49, and moved the adoption of the report.

Miss Vera Pyne, president, then gave the highlights of the regional meeting held in Ottawa.

Miss Roberta Williams took charge of the following program:

Miss Mary Huff introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Violet Anglin, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society. She is also probation officer for the Picton public and high schools. She dealt with the organization and work of the society and told how certain problems were coped with. Miss Mary Walters moved a vote of thanks to Miss V. Anglin for her interesting address.

Mrs. Jas. Gough then favored with a solo, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Harold Cleave.

Mrs. Ronald Giles then gave a brief resume of the excursion to Toronto in which the grades 7 and 8 of the following five schools participated, Massassaga, Victoria, Centre, Mountain View and Shannons. The party of 45 visited the Royal York Hotel, Eaton's, Simpson's, went on the bus tour of the city, visited the Parliament Buildings and the Museum.

Miss Irene Walters favored with a solo, "This is My Task," with Miss Mary Walters as accompanist.

Miss Margaret Donaldson, on behalf of the teachers of the Wellington unit, moved a vote of thanks to Miss Vera Pyne, the retiring president, expressing sincere appreciation for the effort she has put forth to make the organization a success.

The hostess and committee then served refreshments and a social half hour was spent. Miss Barbara Mikel moved a vote of thanks to Miss Williams for her hospitality.

The collection amounted to $2.55.

The next meeting will be held at Cold Creek School, the guests of Mrs. Edgar Matthews, on Tuesday evening, Sept. 14th., at 8 p.m.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Re-examination of Barriers To Trade Between Canada, US Suggested by Donald Gordon

Baltimore, June 15 (CP)—A re-examination of trade barriers between Canada and the United States was suggested today by Donald Gordon, Deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada.

In an address prepared for delivery before the National Industrial Advertisers' Association, the No. 2 man of Canada's government banking structure said these barriers "now may be out of step with the times."

"The real point that needs consideration in the eyes of Canadians," Mr. Gordon said, "is the extent to which trade barriers between our countries now may be out of step with the times."

Last year Canada, with about one-twelfth the population of the United States, bought twice as much from that country as the U.S. did from Canada.

Mr. Gordon urged that U.S. investments to develop Canadian natural resources be increased. He recounted the Dominion's potentialities and observed that Canada always had meticulously honored its commitments to foreign investors.

Even under the current program of conserving U.S. dollars, the Dominion was paying interest and dividends to U.S. investors at the rate of $275,000,000 annually.

He foresaw that one field of future development would be the region around the St. Lawrence seaway, the joint power and waterway project that has been rejected by successive U. S. Congresses.

"I firmly believe," he said, "that the industrial and strategic needs of our continent will in due course overcome existing obstacles to the seaway. When this happens, I believe this Great Lakes basin, on the Canadian as well as the American side, will become an industrial area the like of which the world has never seen."

Strikes Break Out In 'Workers' Paradise'

Sydney, Australia, June 15.—(CP)—Strikes have broken out in Australia's only "workers' paradise".

Miners at Broken Hill lead mines in western New South Wales went on strike today for the first time in 28 years. The reason for the past tranquillity at Broken Hill while the rest of Australia suffered acute industrial unrest is a bonus paid by mine owners to all workers above and below the ground.

The present bonus amounts to $112 a month.

The strike was caused by the management's refusal to pay instructors for the rehabilitation of trainees an extra 64 cents a week.

Declares U.S. Poorly Prepared In Arctic

Washington, June 13 (AP) — The United States is poorly prepared in the Arctic if that is its first line of defence, a foreign policy association writer said Sunday.

His report cited: (1) Diplomatic rebuffs in seeking stronger military footholds, (2) Cold weather discouragements in military exercises, (3) Lack of population there to support defences, and (4) weak garrisons. The association is a private research organization with headquarters in New York.

The writer, Blair Bolles, said the country ought to find out whether the Arctic is of as strategic importance as military men believe it to be in case of war with Russia.

If it is, he said, the United States ought to develop her defences there adequately.

His report mentioned lack of proper co-operation by other countries but excepted Canada.

"Canada not only permits the United States to station troops in the Dominion but ... authorizes American military authorities to try American soldiers accused of committing crimes or breaching the peace in Canada," the report commented.

UNITED NATIONS PLANES PATROL PALESTINE COAST

Jerusalem and Rest Of Holy Land Quiet

By MAX BOYD

Cairo, June 15 (AP)— Count Folke Bernadotte said today United Nations planes, supplied by the United States, are patrolling the Palestine coast to check ships arriving with immigrants and supplies.

Bernadotte, who arranged the current four-week armistice as U.N. mediator, arrived today while Arab politicians and army chiefs of staffs discussed the Palestine question. He came from Rhodes, where peace talks are to be held.

Jerusalem and the rest of the Holy Land remained quiet.

Bernadotte said all supplies sent into Jerusalem are under inspection and control, regardless of the route used. The consular truce commission in Jerusalem set up a check post at Bab El Wad, but the Jews sent no convoys past it, a dispatch from that city said. The commission also was planning a check post at the Allenby bridge across the Jordan to guard against Arab movements of arms and munitions.

A spokesman said in London today Britain has agreed "in principle" to provide ships and planes for U.N. observers. British military authorities in the area, he said, are to decide on the number of planes and ships and the authority under which they will operate.

Men of Military Age

Bernadotte would not say how many men of military age he would permit to enter Palestine and go into internment camps during the truce. He did say that the number admitted since the truce has not altered the military situation.

The Count said he would talk informally with Arab leaders here and with the Jews in Tel Aviv.

He and his aides will return late Friday to Rhodes and "put on our thinking caps and see what we are going to do."

Restaurant Assoc. Protests Beef Prices

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — Sharp increases in the price of beef were protested Monday in a telegram sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King by the Canadian Restaurant Association. The telegram said if operators were to keep beef on their menus and recover costs, the increased prices would force "menu price adjustments."

Totally Paralyzed, Except His Lips And Blind, Walter Gallow Carries On

Halifax, June 15 — (CP)—Any way you try to spell the name of Walter Callow, it comes out courage.

Totally paralyzed except for his lips and totally blind, Walter Callow has spent his bed-ridden years doing things for others. He's still at it — harder than ever.

"When my lower jaw became paralyzed," he said the other day. "I had to learn to talk all over again with just my lips. For a while it was hard to tell what kind of a foreigner I was."

Mr. Callow keeps two secretaries busy from his bed in Camp Hill Veterans' Hospital here. As he says, he "went to bed" 18 years ago. Since he cannot check files he draws upon an amazing memory to keep his correspondence in order. He gets about 20 letters a day from all over the world.

Walter Callow — known to his hospital friends as the "human log" — injured his spine in a plane crash in 1917 when he was a member of the Royal Flying Corps.

For 13 years he lived an almost-normal life, physically speaking. In 1930 he went to bed and within a year both his mother and wife died. By dealing in real estate, selling Christmas cards and so on he brought up his daughter, then 10, and put her through college. She now is married to a doctor.

Eight years ago, Mr. Callow became totally blind. He is in pain almost constantly.

During the war he established a cigaret "bank" for Canadian servicemen overseas. By war's end 3,000,000 smokes had been handed out.

He admits that he gets donations for his various funds to help others almost any way he can. "If I could use my hands, I'd hold a pistol to their heads," he says.

He designed and had built last year a wheel-chair coach. It has already travelled thousands of miles around Nova Scotia taking paralyzed veterans, old people and crippled children to baseball games, movies, county fairs, hockey matches, festivals and on just plain scenic drives.

He is now embarked on a scheme to place 50 such buses across Canada and another 2,000 in the United States. To do this he is soliciting the help of private industry. He has written to 13,000 firms in Canada.

"It's time that people found out that private industry can do something except fight unions," he said.

Just to reverse the usual procedure, Mr. Callow received a present recently. It was one of the few — or perhaps only—present he could use: a new bed. It came from the Lions Club in Dallas, Tex., and is a special affair that rocks and enables him to get exercise — which he cannot feel.

His usual reply when visitors ask him how he is feeling is: — "Oh, I haven't got anything a few pills couldn't fix up."

Shipping Companies, C.S.U. Carry Battle to Court

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—A court battle between the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) and five Great Lakes shipping companies was scheduled to take place with the C.S.U. charging violation of labor laws.

The union seeks to prosecute the firms—Canada Steamship Lines, Sarnia Steamships, Colonial Steamships, Northwest Steamships and Transit Tankers. The companies refused to deal with the C.S.U., charging it is led by Communists.

The union, which on June 5 called a strike against the companies, Monday night collided with another company — Canadian National Steamships—at Port Dalhousie. Today the C.N.S.L. passenger ship Dalhousie City was tied up at the Lake Ontario port after 27 C.S.U. crew members walked off in protest over the alleged suspension of William Beverley of Toronto, a wheelsman. Fifty passengers who had gathered to make the trip to Toronto were taken by bus.

The crew of the C.N.S.L. Northumberland was reported to have walked off in sympathy with the Dalhousie City crew. Four hundred picnickers were said stranded and will have to go home by bus.

At Goderich the crew of the freighter Howard Hindman, owned by the Diamond Steamship Co. Ltd., of Owen Sound, was reported to have walked off.

The C.S.U. said Beverly was suspended Monday for giving sandwiches and milk to C.S.U. pickets at Toronto while the boat was tied up overnight. They said his suspension was lifted Monday night for a moonlight cruise trip and was placed back in effect as soon as the trip was over.

At Cornwall a five-hour emergency session of city council ended early today as members decided to appeal to the federal government to help avoid further violence between the C.S.U. and the Canadian Lake Seamen's Union. The council expressed regret that Cornwall should be the scene of acts of violence.

These developments highlighted the strike scene as the union took its case to the courts.

Subpoenaed as witnesses were Arthur MacNamara, Federal Deputy Minister of Labor, and Scott Misener, President of Sarnia and Colonial Steamships.

Scheduled start of court action came a few hours after it was reported that a C.S.U. executive meeting had been called to consider a general strike.

Big Social Event Of the Summer Opens at Ascot

Ascot, Berkshire, England, June 15 —(Reuters)— The four-day Royal Ascot Race Meet, big social event of the summer, opened today with new look dresses, morning clothes and grey toppers, champagne and sunshine.

Early indications gave promise of the most fashionable Ascot since pre-war days.

The new look spread even to the weather precautions.

Many women carried umbrellas in gay colors with the new long handles, reviving a fashion of Edwardian days.

The railings around the exclusive enclosure were gleaming white and the glass-fronted royal box filled with soft blue and ping hydrangeas and other flowers.

British sunshades were over the little tables outside the champagne tent in the royal enclosure.

This year, for the first time, the King has ordered that the royal procession shall drive to the course on each of the four days.

Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, who are staying at Windsor Castle, will be in the royal party each day.

But the Duke of Edinburgh, pursuing his duties at the Royal Naval Staff College, is not attending the races.

Artificial Valves Successfully Used In Hearts of Dogs

Chicago, June 15. (AP)— Successful use of artificial valves in the hearts of dogs was describtured. ed by two Argentine physicians today to an international assembly of heart specialists.

The report was made to the third Interamerican Cardiological Congress by Drs. Julie A. Berreta and Isidro Perianes of Buenos Aires.

In the experiments, a surgical leak was made in a main heart (aortic) valve. Artificial valves made of vitalium metal then were inserted in the heart artery and fixed into place.

These artificial valves, the physicians said, were able to overcome the effects of the leak and permitted the dogs to survive for "different periods of time".

If such experiments prove to be of practical use in human beings, said a medical spokesman commenting on the report, "they might open a channel of surgical therapy for this serious valve deformity."

$200 Damage To Tombstones By Nine Cattle

Lindsay, June 15 (CP)—Nine cattle worth $1,000 caused $200 worth of damage to tombstones they knocked over when they briefly had the run of downtown Lindsay Monday. Escapees from an overturned truck, the cattle were finally herded to the town's weighing scales and cap-

Four Drowned In L. Ontario When Boat Sinks

Henderson Harbor, N.Y., June 15—(AP)—An overheated motor was blamed by authorities for a fire which sank a cabin cruiser in Lake Ontario near here and resulted in the death of four of its passengers.

Sheriff Brayton Peck said a preliminary investigation had determined that a "hot motor" caused the fire early Monday aboard the 30-foot boat, Shan Gri La, during an early morning pleasure cruise near Association Island, 35 miles southwest of Kingston, Ont.

Life preservers were credited with saving four others. The victims, also equipped with preservers, died of exposure and exhaustion during the four and one-half hour ordeal in the cold water. Dr. Harlow Ralph, a coroner's physician said.

The dead were identified as William Richmond, 40, custodian and bus driver of the Henderson Centre School; George Herse, 22, a restaurant proprietor here; Miss Beverly Lyman, 20, waitress, and William Meehan, 24, a fishing guide of Henderson Point.

Bodies Found

Their bodies were found floating near Association Island by island employees who had heard cries of the survivors.

The boat was owned by Robert Pratt, 47, owner of Bob's Camp here, and a well-known fishing guide. Pratt, his wife, Rose, Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Meehan survived, although he and Mrs. Richmond were unconscious when taken from the water.

Peck said an inquest would be held "shortly".

The sheriff said the party left Henderson Point on a pleasure cruise about 1 a.m. Pratt told him the passengers noticed smoke and smelled "rubber burning" about five minutes later.

Peck said Pratt told him the party donned life preservers when fire threatened the boat. They tried to stay together in the cold, choppy water, but were unable to do so, he said.

Ask for Terms Of Marshall Plan

London, June 15 (AP) — A foreign office official sidestepped parliamentary demands today to disclose "the iniquitous terms which the Yankees are demanding" in Britain's bilateral agreement on Marshall aid.

Christopher Mayhew, undersecretary of foreign affairs, urged the Commons "not to press for comment while negotiations are going on." He said this after John Platts-Mills (Independent) demanded "assurance that in negotiating the bilateral agreement ...he would not surrender to the European Recovery Program administrator the power to decide the rate of exchange of British currency or the right to veto or in any way to interfere with the British tariff policy and structure."

Platts-Mills asked: "Is it not high time the British people were told these iniquitous terms which the Yankees are demanding so that we can back up our negotiator in rejecting them?"

The Financial Times today warns the United States against attaching strings to Marshall aid.

CRIME, VIOLENT LURID AND PETTY, OCCUPIES HOUSE

Forty Criminal Code Amendments Adopted

Ottawa, June 15 — (CP) — Crime — violent, lurid and petty — occupied the Commons Monday.

It came before the Chamber in the form of more than 40 amendments to the Criminal Code, some of which will make important changes in the administration of justice in this country. They were adopted after lengthy consideration and study and now go to the Senate.

Here are some of the major changes:

1. Criminal sexual psychopaths — commonly known as sex maniacs — now may be sent to penitentiary for an indefinite period—for life if necessary — after conviction of a sex crime.

2. Infanticide — the killing of a child after birth, especially by a mentally-deranged mother — now will be punishable by up to three years imprisonment. At present, the parent can be charged only with murder or manslaughter.

3. It now will be an offence to intimidate any person by threats of injury or violence to any of his relatives either in Canada or abroad. This would cover cases where communists were reported to have made such threats against those who declined to contribute to communist funds.

Ony in Province

4. A person charged with conspiracy to publish a defamatory libel will be subject to trial only in the province in which he lives or in which the libel is published This would prevent a repetition of the recent Ne wLiberty Magazine case in Alberta.

5. Jury trials now may continue, contingent on the consent of both the crown and the accused, even if one or two jurors become ill. This is similar to a change made in the United Kingdom.

At the same time, Juctice Minister Ilsley told the chamber he has decided nothing can be done at this session to ban lurid crime comics from Canada.

Program to Save Dollars Shows Splendid Progress

Ottawa, June 15 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today Canada's seven-months-old program to save dollars by restricting or banning imports shows "a satisfactory record of progress." He quoted figures to back his words.

Mr. Abbott released tables comparing the rate of impo..rts in the first three months of 1947 and of 1948. They showed that imports from the United States and other "scheduled" countries were down $59,100,000, or $19,700,000 a month.

Imports from non-scheduled countries, primarily Britain, were up 25 per cent. "British trade has been affected scarcely at all by the prohibitions and has begun to benefit considerably from the operation of quotas," he said.

Brazil Honors Lord Alexander With Greatest Military Display

Rio de Janeiro, June 15.—(CP)—Brazil today put on its greatest military display in recent years as 35,000 fully-equipped soldiers and the newest weapons, including heavy tanks, rolled on past their reviewing stand and the honored guest, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Tunis, Governor-General of Canada.

The parade marked Brazil's celebration of "Military Day". Later Lord Alexander, addressing a huge gathering in Vila Militar saluted the Brazilian Army for its help in defeating Germany.

Lord Alexander, who as Gen. Sir Harold Alexander was overall commander of the Allied Mediterranean forces, said that the arrival of Brazils expeditionary force in Italy in 1944 "put fresh heart into all of us."

He recalled that the Italian campaign was always difficult since the terrain favored defence and the Germans had more divisions than the Allies.

"And yet, in spite of these difficulties," he added, "we smashed through the strongly prepared positions of the Gothic line and that great final battle of Northern Italy compelled the enemy to lay down his arms in unconditional surrender—what a victory."

Later Lord Alexander placed a wreath on the monument of the Duke of Caxias, who is the patron of the Brazilian army remembered for unifying the dissident provinces into the present-day Brazil.

The military observances today were one of the highlights of Lord Alexander's six-day state visit which ends Thursday evening when the Governor-General leaves by air for Canada.

Monday Lord Alexander addressed the Brazilian Congress. He said that Brazil and Canada have many tthings in common have many things in common mon aversion to tyranny.

"We both love peace but we love freedom best and are prepared to fight for it," he added.

Russia Accepts Proposal to Hold 10-Country Parley

U.S. Wishes to Arrange Free Navigation on Danube

Washington, June 15 — (AP)—Soviet Russia has accepted a United States proposal to hold a 10-country conference July 30 to arrange for free international navigation on the Danube River.

In a reply announced by the State Department, Russia also withdrew previous opposition to Australia's taking part in the conference. Moscow said it is willing to invite Austria to send representatives in a non-voting capacity.

The Soviet note, dated June 12, said Yugoslavia advised it would be difficult to provide facilities for holding the conference at Belgrade.

Russia proposed instead that it be held in the capital of one of the other Soviet bloc Danube states.

Deplores View Today Action for Divorce Very Ordinary One

Toronto, June 15. (CP)—Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, in a divorce judgment handed down in Osgoode Hall today, said it was deplorable that "in too many quarters an action for divorce is considered as a very ordinary one. . . . and that any evidence, of so-called evidence, is sufficient to justify a decree."

He dismissed the divorce action of Capt. Sherman Found, pilot, against his wife, Louise Found, who defended the action from her bed in a Montreal sanatarium. Mr. Justice Chevrier found the evidence did not meet the requirements.

He said the proof required for divorce action should be as strict as in a criminarl action, "not by a preponderance of evidence but beyond a reasonable doubt."

Quints Back Home From Three-Day Visit in Ottawa

Corbeil, June 15 (CP)— Back to preparations for their high school entrance exams came the Dionne quintuplets today — a little tired but still excitedly recalling a three-day visit to Ottawa.

The quints and 15 of their school chums sang at a concert in aid of needy children of Europe, visited the French Embassy and the parliament buildings and were received by the Apostolic delegate, Most Rev. Ildebrando Antoniutti.

The quints, along with their father, Oliva, and their sister Rose, left their special train car here this morning.

"Everybody was very kind to us in Ottawa," said Mr. Dionne. "The girls were well pleased with the entire visit."

The 14-year-old quints, who are taking two grades in one this year, will write their entrance examinations later in the month.

EVACUEES READY TO RETURN HOME AS FLOODS EASE

$25,000,000 Loss in Crops Livestock, Homes and Implements Estimate

Vancouver, June 15 — (CP)—Rehabilitation was the keynote in flood-swept British Columbia today as the province surveyed the toll and licked its wounds.

Rampaging waters were receding and evacuees were preparing to return to their silt-encrusted homes, weakened and otherwise damaged by weeks of unprecedented floods.

The Federal government was being asked what it planned doing to help put farmers in the stricken Fraser Valley back on their feet. James Sinclair, member for Vancouver North, said in the Commons Monday night that an "immediate" announcement of the government's plans would do much for the morale of the victims, who have lost an estimated $25,000,000 in crops, livestock, farm homes, barns and implements.

Surveys also showed a death list of possibly 10, with many more injured and thousands homeless.

"Operation Sandbag" — the task of the R.C.A.F. — was suspended Monday. Navy and army personnel recruited for flood duties were reduced.

Mr. Sinclair, querying the government concerning its pledge to join the province in financing British Columbia's recovery, said this country has done so much for the hungry people of Europe that the people expect the government to do as much, if not more, for the people of British Columbia."

He wanted to see a long-range program of flood control and diking to prevent future flood damage in the fertile Fraser Valley.

Meantime flood relief plans were discussed in Victoria at a cabinet meeting called by Premier Johnson. A two-man Fraser Valley rehabilitation commission continued its surveys, expected to be ready by the weekend.

Air Noah's Ark Flies to Milan With Animals

New York, June 15. (AP)—Loaded like Noah's Ark, an airliner set out Monday from La Guardia Field for Milan, Itlaly.

Aboard were seven bulls, two heifers, 50 young pigs, 16 white Leghorns, two cocker spaniels, two Scottish terriers, and an English setter.

It took more than four hours to persuade some of the animals that they wanted to go to Italy to join cattle breeders near Milan.

STRAWBERRIES SELL FAIRLY WELL AT 40c

Strawberries at 40 cents per box were offered on the local produce market today, a 20-cent drop from the initial offering last week. The berries were of good quality and found fairly good demand.

Vendors reported strawberry vines were heavily loaded but stated additional rain was needed if the berry season was to last any length of time. Absence of rain would mean a short berry season, it was stated.

WINDOW DISPLAY AMUSES PASSERS-BY

A twist in advertising seldom seen in the city is drawing crowds of amused spectators to the centre window of the Canadian Department Store on Front Street today. The attention of passers-by is caught and held, and few fail to go away without a chuckle.

Extolling the virtues of a well-known make of mattress, the display is intended to show the comparative comfort of this particular type against the older-styled products. On an old-fashioned bed are two mechanical dummies, representing father and son. These dummies toss and turn in realistic simulation of restless sleepers, while the mother and daughter rest comfortably on the new mattresses.

House Prowler Escapes With Tenants' Purses

Wakened from her sleep in an upstairs room at 178 Bridge Street, East, early this morning Miss Georgina Goodfellow, was startled to see a man leave her room by the window and disappear down the fire escape. Miss Goodfellow immediately notified Mr. Leo Roluf, owner of the house, who reported the incident to police.

A check of her belongings by Miss Goodfellow revealed her shoulder purse to be missing, together with $11 in cash, glasses and pen and pencil set. Another occupant of the house, Mary Sargriff, lost her wallet and $4 in cash.

Police stated the intruder had made entrance to the house by a third-storey window after climbing the fire escape.

Police Blotter

Reports of wanton destruction of property in two localities in the city have been received by local police.

The manager of the Fruit Machinery Company on Front Street reported that over the weekend unknown parties had broken approximately 24 panes of glass in their foundry building, while Public School Inspector L. A. Kells reported that young boys were damaging equipment at Queen Mary School after the caretaker leaves in the evening.

Mrs. D. J. McCoy of the city complained of her pocket being picked while transacting business at the local post office. Mrs. McCoy had been purchasing a money order and had placed her purse in her skirt pocket. When she looked for her purse it had disappeared.

Two minor motor accidents were reported. One accident involved two cars owned by the Ontario Motor Sales of Montreal. One of their drivers, Dan Wiseberg, of Montreal, was driving on Bridge Street towing another car when in making a turn onto Isabel he turned too short causing the cars to buckle resulting in considerable damage to both vehicles.

Council Requests P.U.C. To Build Water Mains Out of Utility Profits

The local Public Utilities Commission will be requested to construct water mains in the new Docter sub-division and pay for them out of water profits.

This was decided at city council Monday evening following discussion on whether the P.U.C. would be asked to construct the mains and pay for them out of profits or whether the mains should be built under the local improvement act. In case of the latter the residents of the new sub-division would be asked to pay a share of the cost on the basis of foot frontage while the city would pay its share for the main crossing city property.

Speaking in support of the recommendation for the water mains to be constructed and paid for out of profits, Alderman Armstrong stated to build them under the local improvement act would be discrimination against residents of the new area.

Would Pay Twice

"If the mains are built under local improvements residents of that division would have to pay for the mains and also pay the regular water rate," he said. Up until now every water main in the city has been paid for out of water profits and to do otherwise would be to establish a precedent."

In reply Mayor Storey stated that the Public Utilities Commission simply could not handle this new development in the old way. "The Utilities claim they cannot support out of profits the amount of work they are being called upon to do today."

Alderman Vanner, and also Alderman Duffy wanted to know if the city favored the mains to be built out of profits or could the P.U.C. refuse to do it this way.

Utilities Would be Bound

To this City Solicitor R. A. Pringle replied that in his opinion the Utilities would be bound to carry out the city's recommendation if the Municipal Board approved.

Continuing his argument in favor of the watermains being constructed out of profits, Alderman Armstrong noted that under the present system the P.U.C. had built the filtration plant and last year had shown a profit of $26,000. In his opinion the rates would not have to be increased too much to take care of the additional expenditure of building the mains in the Docter sub-division. Belleville water rates now were among the lowest in the province, he said.

"Council is on the spot," stated Mayor Storey. "Either we charge the people in their taxes or on the water rates. It makes little difference."

"It makes a difference to the residents of the new sub-division," replied Alderman Armstrong.

Alderman Clarke here indicated the P.U.C. feeling that the mains would either have to be constructed under local improvements or there would be no water.

"I would say that building the mains under local improvements would saddle these residents with too much," noted Alderman Allin. "If the P.U.C. cannot handle this according to the system in past years then let them turn the utility back to the city. The P.U.C. is too dictatorial in their policy."

New Departure

Here Alderman Tice noted the P.U.C. had stated if current water rates were raised it would be possible for them to only construct the water main from the Moira River to MacDonald Ave. From now on the P.U.C. would seek to construct new mains under the local improvement policy, he said.

"How much would rates have to be raised to take care of this out of profits?" asked Alderman Vanner.

"The P.U.C. will not say," replied Alderman Tice.

Alderman Armstrong noted that if the mains were constructed under local improvements it would cost residents in that area an additional $10.50 per year for 20 years. This charge would be on a frontage of 50 feet.

On the recorded vote on the recommendation Mayor Storey and Aldermen Allin, Armstrong, Brown, Clarke, Duffy, Lloyd, Lummiss, Tice, Vanner and Wilbur approved of paying for the mains out of water profits, while Aldermen Hyde and Lazenby voted against the recommendation.

Rev. A. Anderson Becomes Rector At Stirling

Announcement is made by the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, bishop of the diocese of Ontario, of the appointment, effective September 1, of the Rev. Allan J. Anderson, B.A., as rector of the parish of Stirling and Frankford, on his resignation as chaplain of Kingston penitentiary, Portsmouth, a post which he has held for some years. Mr. Anderson will succeed the Rev. C. C. Brazill, who goes to St. Edmund's church, Toronto.

Mr. Anderson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, Brockville, and was brought up in Trinity parish, Brockville, attending the local schools before he went to the University of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Que., to complete courses in arts and divinity. After ordination he was stationed at Milford, whence he was stationed at Milford, whence he was appointed chaplain at the penitentiary. Recently he has acted as domestic chaplain to his father-in-law, Bishop Lyons.

Doucett's Department Asked To Take Foxboro-Madoc Rd. As Provincial Highway

Belleville city council will request the Ontario government to take over as a provincial highway the Foxboro-Madoc county road, and also to complete the grading of the Bannockburn-Millbridge link of Highway No. 62, it was voted at their regular meeting Monday evening.

The recommendation for the Bannockburn-Millbridge "missing link" to be completed this year and to take over the Foxboro to Madoc Road, will be forwarded to the Drew Government.

Speaking to the recommendation which was placed by Alderman Lummiss, Alderman C. Tice stated the resolution came as result of a Tourist and Publicity meeting discussion, it being held that Belleville merchants were losing trade because residents in the north end of the county were travelling to Peterborough to do their purchasing. Residents in the north simply refused to travel the rough road to Belleville, it was stated.

Alderman Lummiss pointed out that the L'Amable-Bancroft section of Highway 62 was also included in the recommendation. "This stretch of road is not fit for a jack rabbit to run over," he said.

The recommendation to request speedy action in constructing the two stretches of highway passed unanimously in council.

Drainage By-Law Is Unfair, Says Ex-Mayor Mikel

A claim that the city by-law passed by last year's council asking city residents to disconnect all roof drainage from the sanitary sewers, was unfair to the taxpayer was made before council Monday evening by Ex-Mayor W. C. Mikel.

Addressing council on the matter, Mr. Mikel claimed that residents had paid for the sanitary sewers thirty to fifty years ago with the understanding that they were to be permitted to drain roof water into the sewers. Now, by the terms of the city by-law, they are asked to disconnect roof drains and turn them into the storm sewers.

The by-law is unreasonable and would be difficult to enforce" stated Mr. Mikel as he urged the by-law be repealed and the taxpapers called to a general meeting to discuss the matter.

Mayor D. L. Storey noted that the city sanitary sewers were being over-taxed because of the rain water which was being drained into them. "It was either disconnecting the roof drains or building new sewers," he said.

Alderman Hyde stated the possibility of a sewage disposal system being constructed in the city also made it imperative that roof drains be disconnected from the sanitary sewers. It would be impossible to treat sewage if the roof water remained in the sewers.

No action was taken by council on the matter.

Mr. Mikel's Letter

Following is a copy of a letter previously written by Mr. Mikel and sent to the Mayor and Council on this matter.

"It may be conceded that the members of the City Council, in passing By-Law No. 5487, dated February 23rd, 1948, excluding from the sewers water resulting from the rain and snow from buildings, were actuated by good intentions. Good intentions, however, have been the cause of much suffering, wrong, injury and injustice.

"1. The sewers on William, Charles and Albert Streets, and on many other streets in the city, were constructed as a result of contracts between the Corporation of the City of Belleville and the property owners fronting on the streets. These contracts did not exclude water, resulting from rain or melted snow, from the sewers.

"2. No new term can be added to a contract, or alteration or change in the contract can be made simply at the instance of only one party to the contract.

"3. This interpretation of the contracts has been assented to and followed by the City and the property owners for a great many years.

"4. The sewers were paid for by the property owners.

"5. The City itself has adopted this interpretation of these contracts by using the sewers at street intersections and also fronting on its own buildings to carry off rain and melted snow.

"6. This By-Law, No. 5487, constitutes an offence and imposes penalties for the violation of the contract. No Municipal Council has any power to make or constitute an offence unless where expressly given that power by the Municipal Act, and the Municipal Act does not permit the Council to make it an offence to drain water from rain or melted snow into the sewers. If it did, the City itself would be liable.

"7. According to the law in this Province, a "lot" of land includes not only the surface but every building above or below the surface. Consequently, deeds of land do not require to mention buildings on the land.

"8. As the building forms part of the lot on the street, drainage from the building is included in drainage of the lot.

"9. If a property owner is induced on a false representation, and consents to the construction of and pays for a sewer, that would in law amount to a fraud and be subject to an action for damages, and the City might be subject to a great number of such actions.

"10 A stubborn attitude is the cause of much litigation.

"11. A bad settlement is sometimes better than a lawsuit.

"12. Surely the Council can evolve a more friendly and effective method of dealing with this matter."

New School Must be Built To Accommodate Growth Of City Rotarians Informed

"The Board of Education expects that the new public school to be erected in the city will be a one-storey structure and we hope to incorporate the very best ideas available regarding design, lighting, heating, etc.," stated Mr. Harold Seldon chairman of the Belleville Board of Education in an address at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club held Monday afternoon in the Hotel Quinte.

"With the rapid growth of the city to the east and west, additional educational facilities will be required, and since it is the duty of your Board of Education to provide suitable accommodation, we must now face the task of estimating the growth of the school population during the next few years," said the speaker.

"One might be tempted to say let us build two schools but this plan would cost at least a half million dollars. Construction of a single large school to accommodate all pupils on the west hill from kindergarten to Grade 6, and by using Queen Mary school as a senior public school to take all the Grade 8 and eventually all the Grade 7 pupils in the city, we will at once vacate from one to three classrooms in each of the other public school buildings. The present buildings are close to newly developed areas and they could accommodate the younger pupils from these new localities," Mr. Seldon continued.

"Thus the Queen Mary School would continue to operate at capacity, the areas of new construction will be accounted for and the single new building will provide for an improved organization at a minimum cost."

240 New Pupils Each Year

The speaker went on, "if no new families come to Belleville the schools now are taking in 240 new pupils each year and fewer than 200 are leaving from Grade 8. At the end of five years this increase promises to be well over 300 pupils. The Board of Education must take immediate action.

"The new school will have approximately 13 classrooms at a cost of $20,000 per room. It will be a one storey structure with an exit to the outside from each room, and a recreation room will be included. Since we can expect the Department of Education to bear about 25 per cent of the cost the city tax rate will include an extra 1 to 1½ mills per year for 20 years.

"We definitely do not intend to open a Junior High School" Mr. Seldon stated. "We are remaining in the public school field as have such cities as Guelph, St. Catharines, Windsor, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Hope to Save Money

"We would be wrong in saying that we do not hope to save money but the saving of money is not the prime consideration," the speaker continued. "The Board has considered the inconvenience involved for children who have to walk to a central school but they do not consider it a problem. Pupils attending St. Michael's and the Collegiate and Vocational School have to walk long distances. We believe that the improved type of organization much more than offsets any objection regarding travelling an extra three or four blocks to school," Mr. Seldon remarked.

Mr. Seldon was introduced by Enos David and the thanks of the club were expressed by Morley Duff. Jack Deacon led the singing accompanied by Phil Huddlestone. In the absence of the president, Rotarian O. A. Pinkston presided at the dinner meeting. Dr. Jack Marshall was Sergeant-at-Arms.

Life Membership In Veterans' Assoc. To Jamie Clarke

Pipe Major "Jamie" Clark, well-known war veteran and former member of the famous Belleville Kilties Band when it toured the world around the turn of the century, was honored by his comrades of the Belleville Branch No. 201 Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada the other night when he was presented with a life membership in the organization.

The membership, handsomely engraved in gold embossed type on a white card was presented to "Jamie" by Secretary Dick Hewson of the club. The membership is signed by the secretary and President William Ford.

"Jamie" has been a familiar figure in war veteran associations for decades. His amiable jovial personality has made for him a host of friends in other circles of the city as well as military. His willingness to give his services, as a piper, free gratis, has long been a feature of this friendly little Scotsman.

His numerous Scottish uniforms, which he delights to wear when playing his beloved pipes, makes him one of the most colorful figures at military functions. Believe it or not, "Jamie" years ago, was a member of an Arctic exploring expedition, and is one, if not the only resident of the city who can speak "a little Eskimo." Of course Eskimo "as she is spoken," garnished with a strong Highland accent is not the most understandable language in the world.

"Jamie" received a fine reception from his comrades of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans unit following the presentation.

Kiwanians Will Canvass Entire City for Funds

Members of the Kiwanis Club left their weekly luncheon meeting at the Kiwanis Centre this Tuesday afternoon to meet again this evening at five o'clock at the Centre to start their canvass of the entire city with the hope that sufficient money will be raised to complete the projects that have been proposed for the year's work.

The motto of the canvass will be "Build a Better Community" and every house in the city will be visited by Kiwanians, who are taking time out of a busy life to give the other fellow a better chance, especially the child, that is underprivileged. The money that will be collected this evening will be used principally at Roblin Lake Summer Camp where no religion, creed or color is barred. Every child, not able to be sent by their parents will be looked after in the best possible manner and will be given a holiday that will be the best that can be provided.

The members of the Kiwanis Club feel that children to be better citizens of tomorrow must have a broader outlook, must have a certain amount of pleasure and must be taught to apply themselves and all this will be furnished at the camp. There are many who can send their children to a supervised camp with no expense to others but there are other parents that cannot afford this pleasure to their children and to the citizens the Kiwanis club is appealing to allow these children to have a holiday.

When the canvasser calls, welcome him with a smile, give as much or as little as you can afford and the money will be usefully employed by the directorate of the Kiwanis Club.

Baptists Adopt Missionary Budget Of $225,000

Windsor, June 15 — (CP) — A missionary budget of $225,000 for the church year which began last May 1 was adopted today by the 60th annual session of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.

It represents an increase of $45,000 over last year's missionary budget, which was exceeded by $818. Approval followed debate during which Frank Inrig, Toronto layman, said that "giving money is as spiritual a thing as anything else we do."

The $225,000 budget does not represent all the giving of Baptists. Last year total receipts were $514,231.91, an all-time record.

Dr. H. H. Bingham, general secretary of the convention, presented the executive committee's report. That of the stewardship committee, in which was included the missionary budget, was presented by Thomas Camelford, Dunville, Ont., layman.

Rev. C. C. Anderson of Niagara Falls said he feared there was too much talk about money. He said that 40 years ago the Ontario-Quebec Baptists had nearly 20,000 more children on the rolls in Sunday schools and had 100 more ministers.

"It is no disgrace to ask aid," said Prof. N. H. Parker of McMaster University.

Higher Salaries Needed

Rev. John Ward, Ingersoll, said when the $1,600 minimum was approved, the cost of living was lower. To give the same purchasing power, the minimum should now be $1,854.

The executive committee laid before the Assembly plans for a Diamond Jubilee forward movement program. It calls for a three-year drive in evangelism, Stewardship and ministerial and lay leadership.

The executive praised the work of a committee on minimum salaries for ministers and said the committee was largely responsible for establishing a $1,600 minimum salary, with parsonage, in 59 churches.

The financial statement showed that the convention raised $21,155.04 in the last year and spent $21,038.69, leaving a balance of $105.35.

Rev. S. D. France of Niagara Falls, Ont., reported on development of relations between the associations of the church, — organized on a regional basis. Association moderators and clerks had attended a special conference in Toronto.

The stewardship committee report showed that receipts for missions and other church activities totalled $180,818 in the last year, compared with $166,832 in the previous year.

FIVE FINED $425

Toronto, June 15 — (CP) — One woman and four men were fined a total of $425 today on charges arising from picket line disturbances at the Rogers Majestic plant in suburban Leaside recently.

Those fined were:

Ivy Riley, $25 for obstructing police; Art Airey, 24, Thomas Lang, 21, and Al Woods, 32, $100 each for obstructing police; Lee Hastings, 21, $100 for assaulting a police officer.

John Worth was acquitted of watching and besetting the plant. Similar charges against the other five were dismissed.

Postmortem Shows Fracture of Skull, Victim Lived Month

London, Ont., June 15. (CP)—Coroner A. R. Routledge said today that a postmortem examination showed that 78-year-old John McKinnon of London who died in Victoria Hospital here Sunday suffered a fractured skull and a lacerated brain in a traffic accident.

However, hospital charts showed that the man received only leg injuries and was suffering from shock, according to the coroner. He was not thought injured seriously.

Dr. Routledge said he was "surprised" that the postmortem revealed the head injuries. He called it unusual that John McKinnon had survived for a month.

Decision on an inquest is delayed until the coroner completes his investigation.

France to Vote On Six-Power London Accord

Paris, June 15 (AP) — The French Assembly is expected to reach a vote late tonight or tomorrow on the si-power London accord to create a separate state of western Germany.

France is the only one of the countries whose negotiators evolved the plan which has not approved it. Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg endorsed it Monday and Britain and the United States did so previously.

(The London papers caution the French that their stubbornness on the agreement may cool American ardor to work closely with Western Europe. The Liberal News Chronicle says that rejection of the accord by the French would "certainly not improve prospects of a military guarantee for Western Europe."

(The Conservative Telegraph says that American collaboration is essential in Western Europe and adds "it would be a pity if France cooled off this collaboration by being the only one" of the six powers to reject the German proposals).

The French delay also had stalled Allied talks with German leaders on getting plans started for the election of a constituent assembly to work out the government of the proposed west German State.

Junior Pupils Present Recital At Albert College

It was an important occasion for the Junior pupils of Miss Bessie Handley and Mr. Wm. Connor when they presented their annual piano recital before an audience composed principally of proud parents and friends at Albert College Memorial Hall on Monday evening. The tiny tots who appeared for the opening numbers played solos and duets with great assurance, and the latter part of the program was for the more advanced grades and the performers were boys and girls in their early teens. The program was arranged with varied interests and earned well-merited applause from the audience.

In introducing the young musicians Mr. Taylor Franklin explained that these efforts were not necessarily to make concert pianists of the children but to instil an appreciation of fine music and an understanding of the expression of it. He assured the performers that they had a sympathetic audience. At the conclusion of the program Mr. Franklin complimented the young pianists and expressed appreciation to Miss Handley and Mr. Connor.

The performers appeared in the following numbers:

Appearing in local police court today for sentence after pleading guilty one week ago to robbing Gerald Quinn of Ottawa, in the lobby of the Crystal Hotel ten days ago, Bernard McNeil, Cape Breton, N.S., was sentenced to two years and six months in the penitentiary.

McNeil was knocked unconscious with a blow from the fist of Smith and was later apprehended by police along with Gray and charged with the offences.

Rolls Back Space

Observation of the heavens has been one of the oldest occupations and pastimes of man since the earliest days of the human race's life on this planet. Ages have not changed the sense of wonder and almost worship of the celestial canopy. The spirit of the scientists exploring the recesses of the universe may have changed somewhat but there is still the deep sense of awe and wonder among those who can fully appreciate what the long range telescopes of this time can reveal. The other night there was dedicated a 200-inch telescope, the world's largest, at Mount Palomar, which pierces the starry realm and rolls back the limits of space eight times its present volume.

When star-gazers began to advance beyond their fellows, in knowledge of the heavens, man started on a course which will not end, at least until the longest telescope has been built and even that handicap will not appear as some means will be found of piercing on and on to the depths unthought of in the heavenly space.

The shepherds were among the early astronomers and it was a long way to Galileo and the world has moved a long way forward in knowledge since that great scientist lived. Today as men and women think of the new telescope they instinctively recall the words of Holy Writ, "When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou has ordained;

What is man that Thou art mindful of him? and the son of man that Thou visitest him?

For Thou has made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor."

Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, speaking at the dedication, said the cyclotron was built at a time when no one was thinking of the atomic bomb to whose development it was destined to contribute. That was an "adventure in pure research, an emblem of the unconquerable exploring urge within the mind of man. Since Galileo the earth has shrunk in man's sight until "astronomically speaking man is completely negligible" but the psychologist has said "astronomically man is the astronomer."

The new telescope, said Dr. Fosdick, is "the lengthened shadow of man at his best. It is man on tiptoe, reaching for relevancy and meaning, tracing with eager finger the outlines of order and law by which his little life is everywhere surrounded."

Man's science has taught him that the farthest reaches of the stars are infinitely far away but man knows they are there.

What the scientists with this new telescope will discover that is new from the "closeups" of the moon remains to be seen by the ever inquisitive eye and spirit of man.

Holiday Traffic Near

Figures point out that 56 deaths in May on highways and streets traffic was an upswing as expected, though the loss of life and the total of injured were down for the first three months of this year.

It is expected that in spite of the fact of construction of more and safer highways and continuous safety education work the accident toll will rise and for April and May the toll was up from the same two months of 1947.

At this season there is traffic which is mounting to records as it does during the vacation season, which is now close at hand. The recent May 24th holiday weekend was one of the busiest in some years but was one of the safest as drivers were prepared for heavy traffic by warnings in the press and on the radio. The next weekend saw a lapse in that good trend with quite a number of casualties.

Drivers in the May figures suffered more than any other group with 20 killed, passengers were second with 16 deaths, pedestrians, who are usually the class most heavily hit, counted up to fiteen while five of the deaths were those of cyclists.

The very heaviest part of the season is about at hand and it behooves every driver to exercise the utmost caution to safeguard life and limb.

Britain's Century of Progress

Britain was the first country in the world to make the health of the people a national responsibility. This was mentioned recently by Princess Elizabeth in a speech to a distinguished gathering of local authorities, health experts, medical officers and representatives of the nursing profession. The occasion was the opening by Her Royal Highness of an exhibition in London, to mark the centenary of Britain's first Public Health Act passed in 1848. It also records the progress made since then in improving the health of the nation which has led up to the inauguration of the National Health Service on July 5th of this year.

Princess Elizabeth briefly reviewed what she termed a century of wise progress in Britain's health services. In replying, the Minister of Health, Mr. Aneurin Bevan, made an important announcement about infant mortality in Britain. He said that the official returns he had just received disclosed that the rate was the lowest ever known. It is now only 41 in every 1,000 compared with 52 a year ago. In the year before the war it was 66 in every 1,000.

The exhibition opened with the presentation of conditions as they were before public health legislation in Britain began. It shows that Britain, which was the first country in the world to industrialize, was also the first to realize the need for sanity reform and the first to undertake it. The Public Health Act of 1848 gave all the local authorities power to appoint a Medical Officer of Health.

The first problem to be tackled was the provision of a pure water supply and a water-borne sewerage system which became the basis of a comprehensive code of sanitation. Medical services had, meanwhile, also been advancing rapidly. With the turn of the century, the demand for personal health services gained ground rapidly. Legislation was introduced to protect the health of school choldren, working people, mothers and babies.

Finally, the Second World War, which placed the whole population of Britain in the front line, gave tremendous impetus to the idea that all health services should be a matter of national concern. This great principle of social welfare finally comes to its ultimate fruition in Britain with the start of National Health Service this year.

World's Biggest Business

With so many organizations entering into varied schemes intended to better the conditions of the people, and co-operating with what has heretofore been classified as "big business," results worth while ought to be seen in society at large.

Social clubs are growing in numbers. Some have already attained world-wide fame and are accomplishing a great good. They make an appeal to the better natures of men to serve, declaring that in service alone may be found the greatest good.

The helping of the poor and afflicted is a large part of the work of these organizations. They aim to make men forget their own personal and sometimes petty troubles by doing something bigger and better for those not so well situated as themselves and the effort is succeeding beyond expectations. — Galt Reporter.

Tourists Coming Early

The News-Chronicle, driving the 140 mile road between Port Arthur and Terrace Bay earlier in the week, noted an unexpectedly large number of American cars with their tourist occupants along the route. A large proportion were hauling trailers or carrying boats or canoes on top. At the Jackfish River, beyond Nipigon, there was a whole camp with several cars. Fishing, apparently, was the main attraction.

The frequency and number of these cars indicated an early opening of the tourist season and the prospect that the number of visitors during the year would be the largest yet known. — Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

The more extensive a man's knowledge of what has been done, the greater will be his power of knowing what to do. — Disraeli.

GRADUATION TIME

This the day your father's looked for;
Day your mother's sewed and cooked for.
This their dream and this their mission;
Since your birth their one ambition.
This the day for which they've waited:
Day when you have graduated.

In that cap and gown you're wearing,
At you now with pride they're staring.
Theirs the joy while they are living
You alone have power of giving.
Day of days! On you depending,
Your commencement; theirs the ending.

As you stand there, and are hearing
Friends and loved ones glady cheering,
From the way you've toiled and striven
Came to them the pride you've given.
Should you fail them some tomorrow,
Just as deep would be their sorrow.

Even in your cradle sleeping,
You had this day in your keeping.
Now from school as you're departing
And the tasks of life are starting,
Give them joy and fail them never.
Keep their pride in you forever.

THE CHURCH AND WAR

As a result of the revival of war talk during the last year, church leaders have been doing some hard thinking to determine their attitude towards a possible future struggle which promises to be the most terrible holocaust the world has ever known. On the whole, their thinking has been rather unproductive. Most declare cautiously that although war is wrong, there are some circumstances under which it is justified — with no specific statement as to the nature of these "circumstances."

There is no doubt that war is the greatest moral problem of all time and that the church must take its share of the blame for failing to solve it. Yet there are valid reasons, if not excuses, for this failure. The Scriptures give us two somewhat contradictory examples of the duty of a Christian confronted with evil. On the one hand is the calm resignation and patient suffering of the beatitudes; on the other is the picture of the militant Christ whipping the money-changers from the temple. "Turning the other cheek" contrasts markedly — in spite of figurative interpretation —with the Christ who declared, "I came not to bring peace but a sword."

If war comes and our opponents are "wrong," should we suffer the wrong for a spiritual advantage to ourselves, or should we oppose it with arms to prevent it from harming others? This is a hard question, particularly since we can never be sure that our opponents are entirely "wrong." Only a full soul-searching should satisfy the Christian.

Fire Situation Most Encouraging Since May 25th

(By The Canadian Press)

With more rain-making experiments scheduled, the forest fire situation in Northern Ontario was described early today as "the most encouraging since May 25."

That was the date the bushland, toasted by a week of hot weather, erupted into flame and smoke.

Late reports also indicated that rainshowers were helping in the fight against Quebec outbreaks. Fire crews brought blazes in the Rouyn area under control and checked fire north of Maniwaki.

Ontario hotspots still were the giant fires in the Mississagi and Chapleau timber limits. The approach of the Mississagi blaze to $13,800,000 power development on the Mississagi River north of Thessalon led the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to put a commission amphibian at the disposal of the lands department.

Based at Sault Ste. Marie the plane Monday enabled rainmakers to douse more than 600 pounds of dry ice on clouds over the Mississagi fire area. More dry ice was scheduled to be used today in attempts to start rainstorms in the fire regions.

Checking Spread

Word of improvement in the Ontario situation came from the province's deputy lands minister, Frank MacDougall. A similar view was expressed by T. E. Mackey, chief of Ontario's forest protection service.

There were indications the fire crews were checking the spread of the 330-square mile Mississagi blaze and of the 450-square mile Chapleau fire. The Mississagi outbreak burned through stands of white and red pine while the Chapleau blaze involved mixed timber, mostly pine and spruce.

Mr. Mackay sad firefighters on the Ontario fire lines were being paid 50 cents an hour plus board. He said his department tried to pay enough to obtain men to fight fires but not such high rates that people would be encouraged to set fires.

He commented on a statement attributed to Mayor Charles Cox of Port Arthur that as long as persons fighting forest fires were paid "high" wages, "the fires will exist."

A heavy downpour of rain Monday night raised the hopes of 1,000 log drivers and bush workers fighting three great fires north of the pulp and paper centre of Maniwaki, Que.

EVERYBODY NEEDS VITAMIN D

I have had drummed into me the belief that "there are no such things as growing pains," so I have been considerably worried in the last few years when our seven-year-old daughter has complained of "strained knees" in the night.

The first few times it occurred I frantically called our pediatrician, who, after careful examinations, assured me the child was in better than average condition. Still the night-pains occurred at intervals over a three-year period. Each time my mind would run the gamut of tuberculosis, poliomyelitis, rheumatic fever, worms and whatnot. (Mrs. G. J. F.)

Sight unseen I'd say you may exclude from consideration not only the notion of "growing pains" (it never hurts to grow and this notion doesn't explain anything anyway) but also the notion of "worms"—indeed it is a notion more becoming to a Saireygamp than to a registered nurse. Children have worms, to be sure, but as a rule the worms cause no serious trouble, and in any case treatment for worms is justifiable only if the worms of their eggs are found present.

It is by belief that in most instances these leg aches or pains of children are a manifestation of calcium deficiency. That may mean either insufficient calcium in the diet, or failure to assimilate and retain calcium.

The diet may be too low in calcium if it does not include three pints of milk a day, and plenty of greens or fresh leafy vegetables, nuts, peanuts, cheese, egg yolk.

Assimilation and retention of calcium may be poor if the child does not enjoy plenty of exposure to sunshine or skyshine — or, if or when exposure is impossible, then a good daily ration of vitamin D in agreeable form. This is essential for assimilation and utilization and retention of calcium.

On request, if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address, I'll send you a pamphlet "Adult Tetany and Growing Pains". It deals with leg pains in children, and painful cramps in the legs which people of mature age have in the night, due, I believe, to the same cause — calcium deficiency.

Many readers have asked for my comment on a statement that has appeared in numerous popular magazines to the effect that vitamin D may have detrimental effects or produce serious calcification of deposits of calcium in vital organs.

That may be true if enormous doses of vitamin D are administered to infant, child or adult over a long period, but to the best of my knowledge no instance of untoward effect from vitamin D has been reported where the infant, child or adult received less than 25,000 international units of vitamin D daily over a long period. In the cases reported by Drs. S. G. Ross and W. E. Williams (American Jour. Diseases of Children '39, 58, 1142) four infants were each given from 20,000 to 40,000 international units of vitamin D three times a day over a considerable period, by misunderstanding. One of the infants died, and the post-mortem examination showed calcification of arteries, heart, kidneys, bronchial tubes, lungs and stomach. Many physicians have found massive doses of vitamin D (100,000 international units or more), better protection against rickets than 400 or 500 or 800 units daily as recommended by medical authorities generally. Anyway preparations containing more vitamin D than the authorities consider safe are sold only on prescription, so, as long as the baby's or your own daily intake of vitamin D is not over 4000 or 5000 International Units, let the magazines bandy the "detrimental effects" of vitamin D about until the item becomes too shopworn for further use.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Mothers Looks So Well

We went back east last month, for the first time in eight years, and found mother looking like a million, seemingly younger and in happier spirits than she had been for years. How come? Why, we ought to know, she said. Well, this is how—mother has been a great follower of yours ever since the war—the big war—and she has your pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks. (A. M. S.)

Answer—Where to draw the line between youth and age you may determine for yourself. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (a clipping does not rate an answer) for the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks.

CRIME, VIOLENT

Besides the criminal code bill, the Commons considered a half-dozen other pieces of legislation as the drive for prorogation by June 30 gained momentum.

In the opening stages, Revenue Minister McCann disclosed that the CBC is negotiating to buy the Ford Hotel in Montreal for $2,050,000 and will use it as headquarters for its International service.

Finance Minister Abbott reiterated that the government does not intend to return to a system of over-all price and wage controls to meet the high cost of living.

Trade Minister Howe said he hoped to make an announcement shortly on payments to farmers who lost money on coarse grain sales when the price ceilings were lifted last fall.

A side debate on the British Columbia floods developed when the government moved to go into supply in the late evening.

Study Estimates

James Sinclair (L-Vancouver North) touched it off with a plea to the government to announce "immediately" its plans to rehabilitate the coast province's flood-ridden Fraser Valley. Farmers wanted to know what to except by way of financial aid.

The House later resumed study of Health Department estimates and heard Health Minister Martin say he was considering what could be done to prevent those suffering from incurable diseases from being thrown on public charity.

Piloting the Criminal Code Amendments, Mr. Ilsley said the government was watching the trend towards modification of capital punishment in Britain but did not plan any change in the death penalty as applied to murder in this country.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) Western criminal lawyer suggested the justice department seek to determine the value of capital punishment as a deterrent, but Mr. Ilsley said he did not think it possible to come to any definite conclusion.

Petty crime came before the Chamber when it studied an amendment which would authorize judges, in cases involving breaches of the peace to bind the complainant as well as the defendent to keep the peace.

Will Drop Provision

Opposition members objected that this was too extensive a departure and Mr. Ilsley agreed to drop the provision. He said he, too, had questioned its value but had been told it was necessary sometimes in dealing with disputing neighbors.

T. L. Church (PC — Toronto Broadview) urged unsuccessfully that drivers who fail to stop after an accident be subject to a murder charge if the injured person dies later in hospital.

He also suggested the code be amended to make clear how far a policeman can go in firing at an alleged criminal. They now could fire two shots in the air before firing directly at the suspect. Persons sought for minor offences sometimes were killed.

Mr. Ilsley reported a minimum prison sentence of one year was being provided for thefts from mail.

First Major Move

The strengthening of the law against sexual psychopaths is Canada's first major move against these offenders.

Once the person has been convicted, the court now may call on two psychiatrists to examine him and testify on his sexual behavior. If the court is satisfied he is a criminal sex pervert, it may sentence him to a minimum of two years imprisonment and to an "indeterminate period" thereafter.

Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind. L — Temiscouata) said no compassion should be shown to "monsters" who killed young children in sex crimes.

Mr. Ilsley said there was "no sentimentality" in the provision.

Mother Nature Ganging Up On Western Farmer

Winnipeg, June 15 (CP)—Mother Nature and the elements, ganging up on the Prairie farmer this spring, may have thrown him for a fair financial loss.

First it was floods. Now grasshoppers are becoming a serious menace in parts of the west, with Saskatchewan reportedly worst hit.

In Manitoba the 'hopper threat is not considered grave this summer, but farmers fear that the insects may migrate east from Saskatchewan, laying eggs which will constitute an invasion for next year.

In the meantime, main concern of Manitoba farmers is production of crops in areas which were flooded during the spring. Crop conditions now are said by Agriculture Department officials to be better than expected a month ago, although they report a 10-per-cent reduction in acreage sown to wheat.

In Saskatchewan recent crop reports show loss of acreage and generally retarded operations due to water remaining on cultivated land. In some areas around Regina and Weyburn no seeding is expected to take place at all.

But while signs of flood conditions generally are disappearing Saskatchewan farmers have taken up a new battle — against the grasshoppers. Tons of chemical poison have been flown into the province from both eastern Canada and Vancouver to help stem the menace.

The 'hoppers have attacked recently seeded fields, with farmers saying the season now is too far advanced to permit reseeding. Had the crops been further advanced damage probably would have been smaller.

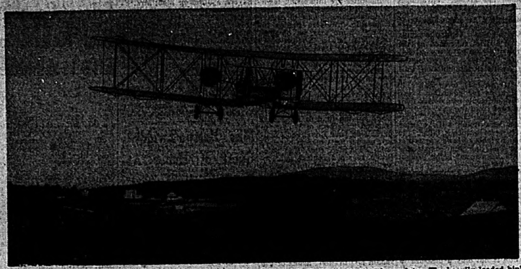
No general outbreak of grasshoppers is expected in Alberta.

What Alberta needs principally is rain. While subsoil conditions are believed good, surface ground is dry. However, with a normal or late fall officials say chances are good that all sown crops will be harvested.

SENT TO TRIAL

Guelph, June 15 — (CP) — George Tebow, 20, was committed for trial Monday on a charge of burglary. He is accused in connection with a daylight robbery at the Cray Coal Company on May 11 when $1,000 was stolen from the office safe during the noon hour.

Crown witnesses testified that Tebow had been on a spending spree in nearby Acton shortly after the robbery, during which he had tendered $50 and $20.00 bills in payment for goods.



Takeoff of first direct trans-Atlantic flight on June 15, 1919, blazed trail for a major world airway which still passes over approximately the same spot, a few miles from St. John's, Newfoundland. The late Capt. John Alcock and Lt. Arthur Whitten Brown ended their epic flight in a bog in Ireland 16 hours later. The heavily loaded biplane was a Vickers "Vimy," powered with Rolls Royce engines. The historic photo was loaned by R. Barclay Shaw.

125 Candidates In N.B. Election

Fredericton June 15 (CP) —A total of 125 candidates filed nomination papers for the June 28 New Brunswick election Monday as five Liberals gained seats by acclamation. One C.C.F. candidate failed to file papers in Westmoreland County.

In Gloucester County five Liberals headed by Hon. J. A. Doucet Minister of Industry and Reconstruction, were opposed. The others gaining seats by acclamation were J. E. Connolly, Michael Fournier, Ernest Richard and Fred Young. All but Mr. Richard were members of the House which dissolved May 18.

Two more Social Credit candidates, making the party's first bid in New Brunswick, filed papers to bring that party's total to five.

Liberals nominated for all of the 25 seats; the Progressive Conservatives named 44 and the C.C.F. 20. The five Social Credit standard-bearers and four independents, one in Saint John County and the others in Madawaska County, brought the total to 125.

In Saint John, Joseph C. Arrowsmith C.C.F. candidate, was named as party leader for the campaign.

Would Withhold Degrees 25 Yrs.

Hamilton, N.Y., June 15 — (AP)— Dr. George H. Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, proposed today that academic degrees be withheld from graduates until they have been out of college 25 years.

Gallup said in an address prepared for the 127th annual commencement at Colgate University that degrees should be awarded only conditionally at the end of the four-year course He added:

"If after 25 years, the candidate could give satisfactory proof that he had continued seriously and systematically to pursue his interest in learning and to develop mentally and spiritually, he would then, and then only be awarded an academic degree."

FIRE SPREADS AT LINEUS LAKE

Sault Ste. Marie, June 15 — (CP) — A sudden spreading of the forest fire east of Little Agawa Lake near the Montreal River sent flames surging over a 15,000 acre area to Lineus Lake during the weekend, district forester A. W. Leman reported Monday.

Spreading rapidly in bud worm-killed spruce, with numerous jump fires, the blaze is being fought by about 100 men, with more men and equipment being rushed to the scene.

Strong winds over Sunday did little to aid the weary crews battling fires on a number of sectors.

PRAIRIES MAY SOON HAVE IRRIGATION PROJECTS

E. L. Gray, director of water conservation for the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation administration, told a group of agriculturists in Saskatoon, Sask., that sprinkler irrigation systems might soon displace present ditching methods common on irrigation projects in the west. The man with the shovel and the rubber boots, such as the one shown in the photo, who, at the best, can irrigate only five acres a day, would be replaced by an unskilled worker who would simply move the aluminum sprinkler pipes every few hours, and irrigate up to ten acres a day. Mr. Gray added that the cost of a sprinkler system would in most cases not exceed the cost of levelling and ditching a farm for conventional irrigation practice.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had frankferters and sowerkraut for supper, being pritty near my favorite food including dizzert, and ma said, Now Benny, be careful.

Sure, ma, I'll be careful not to eat more than 4 helpings, I said, and ma said, I'm speeking of the sliced beets, You know how easy it is to make a stane with sliceu beets, and this is a bran new cleen tablecloth, she said.

Aw heck, ma, why do you always have to have sliced beets and a cleen tablecloth at the same meal? I said, and ma said, Be careful, that's the main thing.

And I ate my ferst helping of fankferters and sowerkraut till there wasn't anything left but juice, and I used that up by dipping bread in it, and I was sitting there wondering, and ma said, Pass your plate, Benny.

Do you mean for more frankferters and sowerkraut? I said, and ma said, What did you think I meant for land sakes

That's what I thawt, only maybe you better pass it over here and let me help myself, because you're libel to give me too little and then you'll have to go to all the trubble of giving me somé more, I said, and ma said, I'll give you plenty, rest assured.

Well then you're libel to give me more than I can eat, and I'll finish it anyways just so as not to hert your feelings, and it'll probably give me a polite stummick ake, I said, and pop said, This diplomatic protocol is getting paneful. For Peet sake, do you want more or dont you he said.

Proving she did, and I said, G, ma, you awt to be a detecktive.

And I passed my plate feeling partly lucky.

Detroit, Mich, June 14. (CP)—Stanley Wozniak, a 48-year-old paroled convict whom Elmer B. Jones once befriended, was under arrest today in connection with the torture slaying of Jones, 72, wealthy retired contractor.

Wozniak, who was arrested in a bar, was being questioned while detectives scoured east side hang-outs for Jones' killer. Homicide detectives believe Jones must have known the slayer.

The "Home Economics" convener, Mrs. Ralph Sills reported that several branches failed to send in their year's activities along this line and commended Quinte Branch for being prompt and to the point.

She urged more emphasis on the study of family relationships—discuss the rising divorce rate, juvenile delinquency and illegitimacy. Discuss, too, the popular readings material books and magazines.

A Home Beautification project was suggested for each community. The exchange of roots, bulbs and slips was mentioned. Beautification is not only a pleasure to ourselves, it attracts tourists. It will pay off in dividends, too, by making country life more appealing to our young people.

Assist Newcomers

The Citizenship Convener, Mrs. Clare Weese, reported from five branches. Canadianization was the subject stressed. It is one's duty to make good loyal citizens out of the newcomers who are entering our country.

This report was followed by one on Social Welfare given by Mrs. Frank Hutchinson. W. I. members are health conscious and have given considerable time on their programs to study of this subject. Institute groups are interesting themselves in hospitalization. Mrs. G. Bradshaw reported on the progress of the village histories, there being six in the district. These will contain an authentic record of the growth of this part of Hastings County and are a commendable feature of institute work.

Mrs. Fred Hall reported on Civilian Relief which has been really worthwhile help to those in need both here and abroad. One branch alone reported donations of $100.00. to various appeals as well as 280 pounds of food to a sister institute in England. This report next year will be included in that of the "Social Welfare" convener.

Prompt Reports Important

In the absence of Mrs. J. Palmer, Mrs. W. J. Tufts reported for "Publicity". A brief report, as only two branches had written her. However, all members know all branches in their districts report their meetings to the press each month. Branches should publicize their local meetings and seek to interest all ladies in the community for both young and old can benefit in some way from meeting their neighbors at a friendly institute meeting when a planned program is carried out.

Mrs. Clayton Hall reported on the activities of the Plainfield Girls' Club and Miss Isobel Elliott spoke of their last year's projects, using a chart to show how "Cottons May be Smart". Three dresses made by members of the class were displayed.

Miss Elsie Irvine, Girls' coach, spoke of her work in Hastings County and encouraged W. I. members to support both the Jr. Institute and the Jr. Farmers. Mention was made of the talented young Jr. Farmer, Gerrard Brennan, who had the honor of representing this district in the public speaking contest in Toronto last winter by Mrs. Roscoe Robson, who had represented the Institutes at the meeting of the Federation of Agriculture.

Urges More Delegates

Mrs. Robson stated she was the only lady from Hastings County in attendance and urged groups to have more farm women sent as delegates. The sum of $20.00 would cover a delegate's expenses. She was impressed by the capable way the young people took their parts, they are a credit to any profession and have received their training through the Junior work carried out through the various districts.

Mrs. Arnold Reilly delighted the audience with a solo with Mrs. Lorne Weese as accompanist.

The Provincial Board director, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell brought greetings to the gathering from the Provincial Board. Two meetings of the Board, Nov. 27, 28, 29, and April 5, 6, 7 were held last year. Mrs. Mitchell attended the spring meeting but her alternate, Mrs. Robt. Bunnett, took her place at the fall meeting. Mrs. Mitchell, at her own expense, attended the luncheon given Miss Kane of New Zealand on Jan. 21st.

Report of Convention

Mrs. Summers' term of office as provincial president had expired and she was presented with a beautiful cameo brooch. She is succeeded by an equally capable woman, Mrs. J. R. Futcher of St. Thomas.

Mrs. Mitchell stated the Juniors' report was the highlight of the convention. Fifty - four Jr. Institutes and 650 Homemaking Clubs in Ontario reported. Youth hold a spirit of adventure and are a challenge to the Seniors. Trophies are being awarded to winners in Jr. work.

Progress is shown as the W. I. enters the work of the year. Forty new Institutes have been organized and three more re-organized. 1350 Institutes are reported in Ontario with 38,000 memberships and 92 districts requested "Short Courses". Institutes are interesting themselves in branches abroad thereby establishing bonds of lasting friendship. "Adopt a British Institute", name may be obtained from Miss Lewis. English books are available from the loan library. Make requests for pen pals to Miss Lewis.

Scholarships are available to our girls through the Adelaide Hoodless fund which has been handed over to the O. A. C. and invested at 3 per cent. A four-year course commences this fall. Build up the fund as preference is given daughters of W.I. members. Read your Home and Country, money for which is obtained from Federated Fees. The resolution re weed control put forward by the W. Institute considerably strengthened the Weed Control Act.

Anniversary Film

The 50th anniversary film to be released in May is to be available for showing at meetings, information may be obtained from Miss A. Lewis.

Branches will note their fees should be in the hands of the District Secretary early in February together with a statement of membership and the District Secretary sends them on to the Provincial Secretary with information as to the number of branches, membership of each, and fees from each.

The 50th anniversary booklets are now ready to be printed and will soon be available.

Health literature is being discontinued but may still be obtained on request to Health Study Bureau, Toronto. The W. I.'s are asked to co-operate with the O.E.A. for their 100th anniversary. A competition will be held in each convention area — increase in membership and highest attendance being points considered.

A rally for area and district officers is tentative.

The deadline for reports to area is Oct. 1.

Mrs. Mitchell's concluding remarks: "Peace is not built up around the conference table but in our homes. Let us endeavor to build up friendly relations. As the life of a nation depends on its rural people let us strive to make rural life happy and contented."

Resident of Folkestone, Eng., Had Grandstand Seat During Battle of Britain, Here for Visit

Holder of a grandstand seat during the war years and the "Battle of Britain", Mrs. E. Greenstreet, Folkestone, England, is enjoying a visit to Canada, and is at present the guest of her nephew and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Godden, Hillside Street.

During the war, Mrs. Greenstreet's home was in a position where it was easily possible to see the enemy gun positions at Calais on the French coast, 20 miles away. The people of Folkestone knew when to seek shelter from enemy shells as each gun flash was plainly visible to them. Transportation and scenic beauty were marred by barbed-wire entanglements and concrete roadblocks liberally spread around the town against the invasion that never came. The town and its people were subject to heavy bombing throughout the war.

Reconstruction in Britain today is very slow, due to the inadequacy of materials. Many an historic landmark or familiar building was transformed into a heap of rubble during the bombing and the country is pocked with huge bomb craters.

A system of business which is very strong in Britain today, and one which is gaining popularity in Canada the Co-op system, was explained by Mrs. Greenstreet, a present Board member and formerly a holder of positions in societies affiliated with the Co-op system.

Started 100 Years Ago

Started one hundred years ago by five men in the hopes of improving the poor living conditions of the working people, the system was intended to make it possible for the worker to make a saving on his expenditures for staple commodities. Pooling their financial resources, the five originators of the system purchased a quantity of basic commodities and set up a little shop. On opening day they were afraid to open for fear the profiteering businesses in the district would smash the windows. While they were hesitating over the matter, a little old woman came forth from the crowd and threw back the shutters, officially opening the first Co-op store in existence.

At one time during the progress of the business the public demanded their profits, in cash, and were promptly paid off by the system. The money was just as promptly returned when the public realized that the system was dealing fairly. The returned money was used for enlarging the system.

Today, a person becomes a member of the Co-ops by purchasing a share at £1 ($5) which makes them a numbered shareholder and entitled to a share of the profits, depending on the rate of interest being paid at the time. The system works through the recording of the amount of purchases each customer makes. These amounts are tallied at a set time and a dividend declared at the current rate of interest.

Can Accumulate Savings

The customer is entitled to allow this saving to accumulate or may take it in cash settlement at the time. The returned savings are allowed to accumulate to the extent of £200. One person may hold as many shares as he or she wishes, but they must use different numbers for their purchases excessive of £200.

The system has expanded to the extent of having its own manufacturing facilities, produce markets, tea plantations, affiliated societies, etc., for the convenience of shareholders. Because of the strength of the organization in Britain, political representation is becoming a definite necessity. To date, the Co-ops have 10 members in the House of Commons.

This system has been beneficient to British shareholders in a multitude of ways and is becoming increasingly popular in Canada, mainly in the larger centres such as Toronto. It is similar to holding stock in a corporation as the shareholder is entitled to a share of the profits.

Miss Betty Twiddy Guest of Honor At Pre-Nuptial Showers

Miss Betty Twiddy, a bride of this month, was honored prenuptially at different homes. Miss Eileen Reid and Mrs. Graham, of Albert St., entertained the girls of Bank of Commerce staff at a miscellaneous shower, when gifts were presented in a basket decorated in pink and white. After opening the gifts, Miss Twiddy graciously thanked her friends, and delicious refreshments were served, including a beautifully iced cake, topped with the word "Betty".

Miss M. Allen and Miss Margaret Francis were co-hostesses at the latter's home, Holloway St., when girls of the Bridge St., Y. P. U. presented Miss Twiddy with another miscellaneous shower. Entertainment was provided by the composition of a letter, supposedly 'the last word' of the bridegroom-to-be, which furnished much amusement when read aloud by the guest of honor. The opening of the many prettily wrapped packages disclosed a great variety of useful and beautiful gifts, for which Miss Twiddy expressed sincere appreciation; and the hostesses served delectable refreshments.

On the evening of Wednesday, June 9th., Mrs. Ray Lockyer was 'at home' for a linen shower in honor of her niece, when girl friends from Cannifton were the guests, and Mrs. Earl Yateman was the hostess. Games of bingo supplied entertainment for the early evening, after which the attractively wrapped parcels were presented to Miss Twiddy in a cedar chest. With the removal of the colorful wrappings, beautiful and practical gifts of linen were disclosed and Miss Twiddy graciously voiced her thanks and appreciation for same. Roasted wieners, with coffee and cake were served by the hostesses.

Members of the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce presented Miss Betty Twiddy with a sandwich grill, on the eve of her marriage, which took place recently.

Prices Committee Had Restraining Effect Admitted

Ottawa, June 15 — (CP) — President Shirley Dixon of Courtaulds (Canada) Ltd., today agreed with chairman Paul Martin that the prices committee has had a restraining effect on prices.

He made his statement when members of the committee questioned him about his statement last week that another increase in the price of his firm's rayon would be necessary but that he would prefer to put into effect after the committee rises.

"I am not ashamed, let that be clear," Mr. Dixon said of his intention to raise prices. "I apologize to no one.

"I think it's completely justified while the committee is sitting. I am not sure that it's good business to do it then."

Mr. Martin said Mr. Dixon's statement showed that "there is value to this kind of parliamentary body. "It has a restraining effect."

"Yes, sir," Mr. Dixon said. "It has a restraining effect."

The firm was faced with known increase in costs this year which totalled $1,437,000, he explained. In addition it also faced a union demand for a 20-cent an hour wage increase which would cost $793,000 if it was granted.

Purchase Details of Hastings County Home to be Worked Out at Special Meeting

Final details in the purchase of the Hastings County old people's home by the city to be used as a convalescent hospital will be arranged at a special meeting between county and city officials at a later date this month, it was decided at council Monday evening. Mayor Storey will appoint a special committee to act for the city in the matter.

Alderman Brown disapproved of of the purchase of the county home for use as a convalescent hospital and told council that in his opinion the building was not suitable.

"There is good intention behind the purchase of the Old People's Home, but it would be unwise to spend the required amount of money which it will take to renovate the property."

"What we need," he continued is an addition to the present hospital. To operate the old people's home as a convalescent hospital would mean a double staff. In their sale of the county home and farm at the price of $300,000 the county officials were termed by Mr. Brown as "good business men."

Gives Verbal Report

City Comptroller H. D. Bateman gave a verbal report to council on the recent 7th annual convention of the Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario. Mr. Bateman told council of suggested changes in the assessment act which were discussed at the convention. During the election of officers Mr. Bateman was named as 1st vice president of the Association.

Ex-Alderman Lorne McDougall appeared before council asking members to reconsider their recent action in not granting the request of Peerless Homes for an estimate of service costs for property immediately west of the city. The firm propose constructing rental homes on the property and need an estimate of service costs before they can set rentals.

No Subsidization

"Peerless Homes are not asking for subsidization," stated Mr. McDougall, "and the project would mean a considerable number of rental homes for Belleville. It is not necessary that Gore and Storrie mae the survey. An estimate of the cost could be provided by your city engineer."

"We were given to understand that the survey would cost from $800 to $1,000" stated Mayor Storey as he recommended the city engineer provide the estimate. Later in council Thursday evening's recommendation regarding the matter was withdrawn and the city engineer authorized to prepare estimates of the approximate cost of sanitary sewers for the area was carried.

The Rooms Rental office which during the war years was conducted at the Y.M.C.A. will be moved to the city hall for operation through the welfare department, according to a recommendation place by Alderman Brown. Mrs. Kerr who has acted as rooms rental officer will discontinue her duties with the city as of June 30th.

Permitted to Use

The local Hospital Women's Auxiliary was granted permission to use a portion of the city market building for the operation of a booth to raise money for hospital purposes. A corner of the market room will be fitted out as a booth for this purpose.

Two new water coolers, one for upstairs and the other for downstairs offices were approved for city hall. Previously it had been decided to purchase only one cooler. The two new coolers will cost $517.

A committee of Aldermen Armstrong, Brown and Vanner was appointed to confer with Stewart Warner-Alemite officials regarding the possibility of exchanging the Pine Street recreation field for a portion of the city industrial area.

Plans to Erect Plant

Several years ago the Pine Street recreational field was granted to Stewart-Warner by the city for playground purposes only. However, last year the restriction on property was removed by the city due to sewer construction and the local industrial firm now plans to construct a plant addition on the site.

The local parks board wish to retain the site as a recreational field and have suggested that it be exchanged for a portion of the city industrial area. The city paid nothing toward fitting the present site as a recreational field, this cost being borne by Stewart-Warner.

The special committee of Aldermen Vanner, Tice and Lummiss, reported on conditions of roads and sidewalks as they were found in Foster Ward. The report also contained a number of recommendations for the carrying out of work to improve conditions.

Boom Breaks Away

In speaking to the recommendation Alderman Vanner noted that over the weekend the boom at the garbage dump had broken away allowing garbage to float down the bay. He asked that serious consideration should be given to the recommendation contained in the report.

Alderman Allin noted that it should be distinctly understood that if new sidewalks were to be constructed in Foster Ward they would have to be petitioned for and residents concerned would be obliged to pay the cost.

Alderman Tice referred to conditions on the city dump, stating that the city scavenger was dumping the bodies of dead cats and dogs on the dump without burying them. Mayor Storey noted that this was against orders and suggested the use of the bulldozer in digging a trench for burying of the dead animals.

Paid by Government

As chairman of the Department of Public Works, Alderman Hyde noted that street repairs were being carried out in Foster Ward. He claimed, however, that sidewalks in many other sections of the city were in equally as bad shape as were those in Foster Ward. "Everything possible would be done to remedy conditions in the ward," he said.

Alderman Lummiss enquired regarding replacement of sidewalks in front of the post office building and asked whether the city was paying for the work. Mr. Hyde replied the original walks were paid for by the Federal Department of Public Works and the replacements were also being paid for by the same department.

Alderman Brown held that recommendations carried in the committee report should be carried out as quickly as possible and stated conditions on the city dump were serious. If these conditions were not remedied he considered it possible that the Health Department may order use of the dump being discontinued.

The committee report was referred to the Department of Public Works for consideration as to what work recommended could be carried out this year.

Question of Repair

Question of the repair of the Campbell Street wall again came up in council. Previously the city solicitor had been asked to check as to the responsibility for the cost of repairing the wall and replied that in the absence of any written agreement at the time the wall was constructed, in his opinion there was no liability on the part of the city to repair the wall.

Under enquiries Alderman Brown asked regarding the intention of the city with regard to provision of accommodation for old folks in the city. The Women's Christian Association were in a quandry, he said, and were undecided as to their action in providing a new Old Folks Home. The association was waiting on the city.

"I've done all I can personally," replied the mayor. "The county will rent us space in their new Old Folks Home, if, as and when they are ready."

"But we cannot wait a year and a half," replied Alderman Brown. The alderman was authorized to bring in a recommendation at the next meeting.

Street Oiling Discussed

Under general business the matter of street oiling was brought up by Alderman Tice who asked if any oiling was to be carried out this year.

In reply Alderman Hyde stated that the appropriation for oiling had been used up in the completion of street repairs and there was no money for this purpose unless carried out under a foot frontage basis.

It was brought out, however, that there was already a motion on the books that street oiling be done out of the general rate.

Britain Depicted As Very Poor By Russian Wife

Moscow, June 15 (AP)—Pravda, Communist organ, today printed a letter signed by the Russian wife of an Englishman in which Britain was depicted as a poverty stricken land, devoid of human rights. The woman recently left her husband and returned to Russia, Pravda said.

The newspaper identified her as the wife of Lance Corporal John Brand, former clerk in the British Military Mission to Moscow. It sympathized with other Russian girls who wed Britons and declared that five others are planning to come back in the near future.

"In London," the letter said, "I witnessed how the English press is conducting a dirty anti-Soviet campaign in connection with the fact that a few Soviet women who have been married to Englishmen have not been given permission to leave.'

"For 2 1-2 years," the letter continued, "I experienced only deprivation and poverty and lack of human rights."

TURNS AUTHOR

Brantford, June 15 (CP)—After working among the books that others have written, Miss Mary I. Mustard, librarian of the A. M. Overholt Memorial Library, Brantford Collegiate Intsitute and Vocational School, has turned author and written a book which is now coming off the presses.

Here Comes Welcome Wagon to Belleville

THE MERCHANTS BELOW WELCOME NEW BELLEVILLE RESIDENTS

Firm believers in the old saying that "strangers in a strange land need a friendly hand," a group of local merchants have in Belleville inaugurated a Welcome Wagon service designed to carry good cheer into the home of the newcomer to this fair city.

So, if you are a newcomer to Belleville and an attractive young lady appears at your door carrying a large basket on her arm . . . welcome her, for she is the Welcome Wagon hostess for the city. She not only represents the civic and cultural organizations, but in addition has a lot of valuable information that will be of real aid in establishing your new household.

The Welcome Wagon service was visualized some 20 years ago by a Memphis, Tennessee man who, in his study of early American history was impressed with the spirit and hospitality expressed by the pioneers when they sent out welcome wagons carrying food and supplies to greet newcomers to frontier settlements.

With that same "golden rule" idea as a foundation this Tennessee man organized the Welcome Wagon service which is now active in more than 600 cities in the United States and in Canada. Welcome Wagon hostesses for Belleville are Mrs. R. W. Thompson, Wellington Crescent, and Mrs. Allan McDougall, George Street.

The purpose of the Welcome Wagon is two-fold — to build good will and to bring to the attention of the newcomers the various sponsors, as well as to tell them of the many interesting and worthy activities in their new home town.

But welcoming the newcomer is not the only service provided in this unusual and cheery show of hospitality. It also includes a housewarming service, this call being to people who move from one residence to another within the city.

Also those who are planning to establish a brand new home are not neglected. The newly-engaged girl who plans, following her marriage to remain in the city, receives a call from Welcome Wagon hostesses. She not only receives a beautiful shower from civic-minded residents but is also extended felicitations from public officials and organizations in the community. Mayor D. L. Storey and the Junior Chamber of Commerce will lend their support to the goodwill gesture.

And because it is never well to under-estimate the power of a baby, the Welcome Wagon hostess also remembers the blessed events in the city.

Equipped with a lovely basket in the form of a doll cradle, the hostess calls on mothers of new babies. Letters of congratulations to the parents, as well as many suitable gifts for the new baby and mother are presented.

In the main Welcome Wagon hostesses are the good will ambassadors for the merchants of the city who are sponsoring the service. They are ambassadors also for the community itself, in the eyes of newcomers to the city.

Although, under ordinary circumstances, one Welcome Wagon hostess is chosen for each of the four phases of the services, Mrs. Thompson, the wife of an RCAF instructor, and Mrs. McDougall have volunteered to make all calls on newcomers; to visit the brides-to-be, and the parents of "His or Her Royal Highness" soon after the announcement of the new arrival is made.

With the appearance of this advertisement and announcement of the Welcome Wagon service, the above two women will have commenced making their calls. Names of the merchants sponsoring the service appear in the advertisement, while the two hostesses will be easily identified by their Welcome Wagon baskets.

Women's Activities

MARMORA W.I.

Marmora.— The June meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held Wednesday evening at the home of the President, Mrs. E. C. Prentice, with a good attendance. BULL ESCAPES FROM TRAIN W RECK AND ATTACKS WOMAN

A head-on collision between two freight trains in east Toronto killed C.N.R. Brakeman Norman Yerrow, 27, injured three other members of the train crews, and made a shambles of four carloads of livestock, killing 20 animals. A bull escaping from one of the shattered cars attacked Mrs. Edward Powell, Carlaw Ave., sending her to hospital, butted two boys down a railway embankment, and tore up lawns before police shot it between the eyes with a blast from a shotgun. This photo shows the escaped bull standing defiant on a Carlaw Ave. lawn eyeing the woman running for safety of veranda. The bull charged a split second later and grazed her leg with its horn as she reached the porch.

Business Spotlight

By The Canadian Press

Wartime bond sales made Canadians investment-conscious, and brought about a common interest between the man who has $50 to put away, and the people who deal in millions.

Most of the people who deal in millions don't own millions—they are just average individuals who themselves have, in many cases, only $30 or so to put away.

They are represented to a large degree in the present annual meeting of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

They are meeting at Manoir Richelieu, Que., discussing how to make a living out of getting a lot of very tiny bits of dollars. Just now they are discussing their common problems. Tomorrow; well, as some one put it: "You wouldn't think all these fellows are trying to cut one another's throats."

Actually they aren't, except in the sense that like everyone else they are in the business of earning tomorrow's bacon and eggs.

They think the public should know more about how they make their bacon and eggs, and how important it is that they do a good job of it.

And so, instead of their past practice of keeping it all to themselves, they are embarked on an educational program of telling what investment dealing is —that it is just that $50 you have to put away, or $500 or $5,000,000.

On the Toronto and Montreal markets, gold reached a new low for the year while stocks were mixed. At New York, steels and oils were in demand while cotton closed 20 cents to 45 cents a bale lower. On the Chicago grain market, a late rally in corn and oats left those grains with gains but wheat tended to lag and closed with small fractional changes. Coarse grain futures continued to display strength on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

May be Near Armed Conflict Says Tom Bata

Peterborough, Ont., June 15.—(CP)— Thomas Bata, former Czechoslovak manufacturer, today told a Rotary International meeting that "this is a critical year and we may be nearer to armed conflict than we seem."

"We must not fool ourselves that today there is one world," said the man who brought his shoe business to Trenton, Ont., in 1939 when Hitler took over Czechoslovakia. There were two, one in which people governed themselves and Rotary flourished—and the dictatorship where Rotary is banned.

Speaking to the annual assembl yof the 168th district of Rotary International, Mr. Bata said the reconstruction of Europe was proceeding at such a rate that the Russians may soon have no opportunity to succeed in undermining the western democracies through dissension.

"To save our own skins we cannot afford to allow the Russians to gobble up one democratic country after another", he said. "She would soon eliminate all our potential allies and after organizing their industrial resources, would be strong enough to force the surrender of the rest of the world."

Cleveland and Boston Braves Owe Their Lofty Standing To Knack of Winning Under Lights

By JOE REICHLER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Cleveland Indians and Boston Braves owe their lofty standing in the major leagues to their exemplary behavior after dark.

The Indians, leading the American League by three games with a .689 percentage, also own the best night game record of any club. Led by their ace, Bob Lemon, the Tribe has won eight and lost two arc light games for an .800 percentage. The Tigers also show an .800 percentage, but have played only five night games.

The Braves, tied with the New York Giants for first place in the tight National League pennant race, have won nine and lost four at night, a .692 gait. That is exactly 178 percentage points better than their daylight won and lost record. Only the Philadelphia Phillies, winners of eight of 11, boast a better record in the senior circuit.

The best night pitcher in the majors has been Harry Brecheen. The Cardinal southpaw has won five and lost only one. His lifetime record under the lights is a sensational 34-10.

Lemon, the majors' biggest winner ,has been the most effective pitcher in the American League at night. He has won four while losing one.

Bobby Feller of the Indians, who owns 21 victories and 13 defeats in after-dark contests, has made only one start under the lights this season. Although he pitched 11 scoreless innings against Washington, he was not around at the finish. The Indians finally won that game 5-0 in 15 innings. Feller last year won nine and lost three at night.

All three of today's games in the American League will be played under the lights. The Tigers will play their first home night game in history ,engaging the Athletics.

LEADS BOTH LEAGUES

That's Ted Williams, who is batting .387 to lead both leagues and who could be hitting around .500 if walks counted as hits. What's more, he is out in front of everybody in the league in runs batted in with 48, in hits with 65, in runs with 45, and he is second in the American in homers with 12.

With what is hoped one of their bad games off their manly bosoms, the Batawa Shoemen clash baseball horns with Oley Olsen's Kingston Locos in a Central Ontario baseball League game at the Exhibition Grounds tonight. M'sieu William Easton, who master-minds the Shoemen, tells us that he may have a pitching surprise tonight in the person of one Patrick Sheehan, a broth of a bhoy, who formerly threw curves with a semi-pro outfit in Brooklyn, but more recently with the Royal Canadian Air Force, and "recenter" yet with the Oshawa Merchants.

• • •

The amiable Pat, 'tis reported, has shaken the dust of the Motor City from his spikes and from now on, everybody concerned being willing, will sport a Batawa suit. However it is more than likely that Gordie Muffitt will get the managerial nod for mound duty by the time the shadows deepen over the cowsheds tonight. The rest of the squad is said to be in good shape, and ready and rarin' to wipe out the blemish of that 14-1 shellacking dished out by the doughty Men o' Murphy from Peterborough on Saturday night.

• • •

Trenton's entry in the Lakeshore Softball League are guests of Point Anne tonight unless the grapevine rumor is correct to the effect that the towners will not play on the Point diamond until it is converted into a playable condition. Complaints have been received from Wooler and Cobourg regarding the condition of the Point diamond and the nature of the protests are serious. However, it is hoped the Point Anne interests will see to it that the diamond is put into shape, and for tonight's tilt.

Jack Carson's Belleville Merchants found their batting eyes at the expense of two Picton hurlers at the Fair Grounds last night and combined some neat clouting in the clutches with Picton bobbles to ride almost roughshod over the Church led lads from the Garden County town. Fitzpatrick who hit a triple and a brace of singles, Art Genereux who drove a thundering home run clear to the race track in right centre field, Wright who poled a four-bager inside the first base foul line and Vern Goyer with a trio of solid smashes paced the Carson attack.

• • •

The vaunted Frankie Dyer held no terrors for the Belleville bludgeons. The young righthander was pounded for nine hits, two of them homers and committed three errors in a row in the eighth innings to let in four Belleville runs. As a matter of fact, Dobson, the Picton starting hurler who was yanked in the fourth after he had yielded seven runs off eight hits, might have finished better than Dyer, had he been allowed to stay in there. Picton seemed woefully weak with the bat, and the veteran of many a diamond battle both softball and baseball, Phil Loft, Point Anne, had no trouble in subduing the visitors. But the Merchants bats racked up a merry tune with everyone but Elliott and Rowbotham connecting safely.

• • •

The Picton team will be the guests of the Trenton Flyers at the Exhibition Grounds on Friday night in another night tussle. Manager Ron Church and his aide-de-camp Walt Fraser claim their charges can and will play better baseball and when they regain their batting eyes, somebody's hurler will find the going tough.

Shades of Robin Hood. Ye olde bowman who pulled a doughty longbow way back when Little John and Friar Tuck roamed the Sherwood Forest while the valiant Robin kept the wolves away from pretty Maid Mairian would shudder, egad, at the rites of the modern archer. Not that the modern version of the longbowmen has anything to be ashamed of—for ye ancient sport is coming back in this district with more than passing interest.

• • •

Next Sunday, egad, the boys and gals who pull a bow gather in tournament at the Fleet Sporting Goods ranges south of Highway 14 south of Rossmore. 'Tis said some thirty or forty bowmen and bow-women will take part in a tourney that is as interesting as it is novel. Neat prizes too, for the ones who dent the target the most times.

• • •

'Tis also reported that some of the arrow-hurling fraternity can split an ace of spades at fifty yards; dent the bustle of a New Look at seventy-five meters and do all kinds of fancy high jinks with the overgrown darts. So if you care to look over the modern version of the Norman kings snipers who pinked Harold in the optic at the famous battle of Hastings (England, that is) take a meander out yonder to the Fleet ranges, and enjoy a novel sport.

• • •

If you drive a ball through a slot you get a home run, but if you just smash it to a point in a fence where it sticks, the drive is good for only three bases. Two players learned all this during Rochester's recent appearance in Montreal.

• • •

In the first game, Vern Benson, Rochester outfielder, slammed a drive through a two-foot slit of daylight between the right field scoreboard and an advertising sign for a home run in the opening frame.

• • •

In the fifth inning of the nightcap, Jimmy Bloodworth, of the Royals blasted a drive to the left field fence with the sacks loaded. In some mysterious manner, the ball stuck on the fence, and Centre Fielder Chuck Diering had to climb the boards, like a lineman going up a telephone pole, to retrieve the horsehide. Meantime all three Montreal runners had crossed the plate and Bloodworth wound up at third base.

West Not Happy About Change In Football Rules

Winnipeg, June 15 (CP)—The 1940 East-West football rules war is being recalled as a result of this week's announcement from Toronto by the Inter-Provincial Rugby Football Union that its teams can use six American imports this season.

Western football fans, long-used to being pushed around by the east in rules controversies, are angered at the manner in which the Big Four stole their thunder. They say the east made the move purely from selfish motives.

The East-West blowoff came in 1940 when the Canadian Rugby Union ruled Winnipeg Blue Bombers, defending Grey Cup winners, ineligible for the Grey Cup final. The western team was barred because it had failed to observe C.R.U. rules throughout the season.

Most outspoken critc of the Big Four announcement was Tom Brook, President of Calgary Stampeders.

Brook said: "It's high time something was done about the football setup in Canada. What burns me up is that the east changes things to suit themselves and does just about as they please with the rules and at the same time does everything possible to restrict the west.

Art Chipman, President of Blue Bombers, and Clair Warner, President of the Western Inter-Provincial Football Union, were less heated in their remarks. Warner merely said it was "interesting" but would not affect the western loop. He pointed out that so long as the Grey Cup is played under C.R.U. rules only five imports may be used in that game at least.

Chipman said Bombers will certainly protest the Big Four decision to the C.R.U. However, he wouldn't say that Bombers won't challenge the east this fall —they can't afford to lose the loose change a Grey Cup final means.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

Through their Eyes

. . . CANADA is the most desired of countries. It represents hope and opportunity. It is where they want to be.

The dream of millions overseas is a reality for us.

"To see ourselves as others see us" strengthens our realization of our country's new importance in the modern world. The Canada that emerged from the war is a far greater country than we ever thought possible — a country of vastly increased and varied productivity — with a million more employed than before the war — with a new wealth of interesting careers awaiting those alive to the opportunities around them.

125,000 APPLICATIONS were on file in Ontario House, London, when Ontario began its immigration plan. It has been estimated that at least 80% of the displaced persons in Germany want to emigrate to Canada.

SIGNIFICANT, too, is the number of new plants established here by foreign firms. Specially interesting are those built up by wartime refugees, of whom about 3,500 entered Canada. They established at least 56 new industries employing over 6,000.

CANADA is increasingly attractive for visitors too! More tourists than ever came to us in 1947 — making an ever-growing contribution to continued Canadian progress and prosperity.

LOUIS FISCHL, escaping from Czechoslovakia, came to Canada in 1938 — began manufacturing kid gloves in an old renovated Ontario factory. Canadians joined his original handful of skilled Czech workers to learn the new art. Today thousands of pairs of finest Canadian high-fashion gloves, in leather and in fabrics, are being produced both in Prescott, Ont. and St. Tite, Que., their new branch.

LOUIS FISCHL says: "When I knew I was finished with Europe and had to begin a new life at 50, Canada was the country to which I was most anxious to come. Here there is a future. Here is everything needed for industry; vast resources for development; great opportunities for new careers".

Merchants Score Easy Win Over Picton Team 16-4

Backing up the neat seven-hit hurling of veteran flinger Phil Loft, the bats of the Belleville Merchants laid down a heavy barrage at the expense of two Picton pitchers at the Fair Grounds last night, coasting to an easy 16-4 victory over the team from "across the bay."

With his mates batting eyes working well, Loft had a fairly easy time scattering the seven safeties over the nine innings route and never being in serious trouble. He struck out five and issued two walks. His mates committed two bobbles behind him and neither proved costly.

Picton started a righthander named Dobson on the mound, but like his successor, the highly rated Frankie Dyer was just another hurler. He was nicked for six runs and seven hits before Dyer was rushed to the rescue in the fourth with none out.

Dyer, as a matter of fact was little improvement over Dobson as the Belleville bats got to him for nine runs and eight hits before the game ended. He did not help his own cause with three errors in a row in the eighth when the homesters sent four runs across the plate to sew up a game won in the early innings.

Had Field Day

Fitzpatrick and Vern Goyer had a field day with the bludgeons, the former smashing out a triple and two singles and the big first baseman connecting solidly for three singles. Art Genereaux hit one of the longest balls ever poled out in the Fair Grounds sending the Picton rightfielder across the tracks behind the centrefield light standard to retrieve the ball. Wright, a newcomer also lashed out a smashing line drive that went just inside the first base foul line for a round-tripper in the eighth after Dyer had kicked the ball around and let in three runs.

Lefty Whitman also hit twice safely and Phil Loft aided his own cause with a pair of singles.

The Merchants scored in every innings but the second and seventh, driving home two in the first, three each in the third and sixth, two each in the fourth and fifth and four in the eighth.

Hayden, Picton centrefielder was the only hitter to have any luck with the Loft shoots. He had a perfect day at bat hitting three singles for three, but he offset his batting prowess with an easy error afield that accounted for a couple of Belleville runs. Dunning rapped out a pair for the losers and Keith MacDonald and Dyer connected for the remaining two hits.

SNAP LOSING STREAK

(By The Canadian Press)

Guelph's Intercounty League Maple Leafs finally snapped their eight-game losing streak last night as three more senior Ontario baseball games were played.

The Leafs came up with a 5-3 triumph over Kitchener Legionnaires at Kitchener, while London Majors managed to squeeze back into a second-place tie with Stratford with a 6-5 decision over the Nationals, in the only other intercounty tilt.

In the Nickel Belt loop, Garson Mine came from behind a 5-0 deficit to nose out an 9-8 victory over Sudbury Shamrocks. The other Nickel Belt game between Frood Tigers and Coniston Buzzers was rained out.

Alouettes Start Football Season On August 19th

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football League will inaugurate the season in Montreal on Aug. 19 when they take on Brooklyn Dodgers of the All-American Conference Professional League in an exhibition game under the lights.

The Alouettes will meet Hamilton Tigers in another night game at Montreal on Aug. 28 in the second annual Kiwanis bowl game. The regular Big Four schedule starts Aug. 31, earliest opening date in the league's history.

Montreal's National Hockey League Canadiens are planning to send an eastern coach to handle the junior Winnipeg Canadiens of the Manitoba League because of dissatisfaction with western coaches. Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, is reported to have said that the inside track for the coaching post is held by Ernie Mundry, one-time prominent Quebec amateur who coached St. Hyacinthe of the Provincial League last season.

Detroit Parm Motors moved into a tie for first place in the Michigan-Ontario Lacrosse Association in Detroit last night by trouncing Sarnia Imperials 17-4. The victory left the motor city club deadlocked with Windsor Sterlings for top spot.

Arturo Godoy, South American heavyweight champion from Santiago, Chile, scored a fourth-round technical knockout over Irish Pat Richard in Columbus, Ohio, Monday night. Richard was on the floor for three nine counts and again for seven before referee Gus Lesnevich, lightheavyweight champion of the world, stopped the fight in 2.07 of the fourth round of the scheduled 10-round fight.

Halifax, June 15 — (CP) —The Maritime sports scribes' feud with the Canadian Boxing Federation concerning the vagaries in the middleweight division is on again.

Alex (Halifax Herald) Nickerson continues to beat the drums for recognition of George Ross, the West Bay Road, N. S., farm boy, as the Canadian middle weight champion. Announcement that the Halifax Athletic Commission had become a member of the Canadian Boxing Federation caused the most recent verbal blasts.

What irked Nick most was the fact that the Halifax Commission paid a $50 affiliation fee.

"The Halifax Athletic Commission," says Nick, "having paid a fee to the Canadian Boxing Federation — $50 we judge — is now in a position to argue about the Canadian boxing champions, with the self-appointed triumvirate from Ontario and Quebec, who have set themselves up as rulers of all things connected with the prize ring in Canada."

"The fact that the Halifax commission had paid tribute to the Canadian Boxing Federation means nothing in Cape Breton. They maintain, and rightly too, that George Ross, who has never lost a bout since he turned to professional boxing, is the Canadian middleweight champion."

Nick says that Roger Whynott, Pete Zaduk and Ross were all unrecognized as champions for reasons that are "sheer rot."

He feels the "tardy recognition given the C. B. F. by the Halifax body will carry no weight in Cape Breton Island . . . they are at a loss to understand why George Ross should not be universally recognized as the middleweight champion of Canada even though the Cape Breton organization refused to pay $50 to Montreal interests."

"Their old-fashioned idea, it would appear, is that boxing championships are won by leather-covered fists, not by a fragile, lily - white hand signing a $50 cheque."

The Ontario district Olympic bicycle racing trials will be held in Oshawa on Saturday, with some 20 to 30 riders from the province expected to compete. Six riders will be selected at the close of the day's racing to take part in the All-Canada Olympic trials at Three Rivers, Que., July 1 and 2.

Mimico Mountaineers handed Fergus Thistles a 17-12 setback in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior tilt in Fergus Monday night. Veteran Jack Williams paced the winners with four goals.

Thumpin' Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox holds a 35-point margin over Cleveland's Lou Boudreau in latest statistics released in the American League batting race. The Sox slugger has a gaudy .398 mark while Boudreau has .363. George Kell, Detroit Tiger third sacker, is next with .352 followed by Bobby Brown of New York Yanks with .342. Ken Keltner leads the home run parade with 14.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cards hold a slim three - point lead over Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves in the National League batting wars. Statistics showed Monday that Musial owns a healthy .376 mark and Holmes .373. Wally Westlake is in third spot with .352. Hank Sauer of Cincinnati continues as home run leader with 19.

Weston West Yorks defeated Hamilton Tigers 14-11 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game in Weston Monday night. The Yorks were never headed, holding a 7-3 lead at half-time.

No-Hit No-Run Victory Scored By Maple Leafs

(By The Associated Press)

Improving with age, that's what Toronto baseball fans are saying today about Oscar Judd, 38-year-old lefthander of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Judd, the native of Ingersoll, Ont., who began playing organized baseball in 1934, pitched and helped bat the Leafs to a 7-0 no-hit no-run victory over the Syracuse Chiefs last night. The game was called at the end of seven innings because of rain.

The no-hitter was the first in the International League this season and also the first since July 29, 1946 when Syracuse's Earl Harrist hurled a 5-0 nine-innings no-hitter against Toronto.

Judd, who was purchased from the parent Philadelphia Phillies on May 17, now has won five games and lost only one for the seventh place Leafs.

Judd, in addition to his fine pitching for the Leafs this year has proved a dangerous batter. He has rapped out six hits in 19 trips, including three doubles and one homer for a .316 average.

Meanwhile, Montreal Royals regained first place from the Newark Bears. The Royals bear the Jersey City Giants, 6-3 while the Buffalo Bisons trounced the Bears 11-2.

Jack Banta scattered eight Giant hits to post his seventh straight win. He has lost once.

The Bisons knocked Bob Porterfield, great rookie Bear righthander, out of the box for the first time this season in beating the Bears.

Porterfield, who won nine in a row before losing his first game last Wednesday, was chased during a four run third inning Buffalo rally.

The tail-end Baltimore Orioles nosed out the Rochester Red Wings, 5-4.

The guys who were there say they saw the tussle and wrote about it — and as for the stewards missing the affair, the records show Meade drew a 30-day suspension for rough riding that day.

Player is Hot On Trail Of All-Time Record

Amarillo, Tex. June 15 (AP)— Bob Crues, whose arm went bad at the threshold of a brilliant pitching career, switched to the outfield and today is hot on the trail of the all-time home run record for professional baseball.

The big Amarillo Gold Sox right fielder, property of Boston's Red Sox, has slammed 31 over the fence in 52 games and if he maintains his present rate will have more than 80 when the 140-game West Texas-New Mexico League season ends.

The all time record is 69, set by Joe Hauser of Minneapolis of the American Association in 1933.

Last season Crues clouted 52 four-baggers. But this wasn't a league record. Bill Serena of Lubbock hit 57. But last year Crues didn't get his 31st homer until July 15, so he's a full month ahead of the 1947 schedule.

The 29-year-old Crues is hitting .420 at this stage of the season with 106 runs batted in.

CALVERT 1622 Famous Families LE MOYNE 1656

The fame and honour which the eleven sons of Charles Le Moyne, Sieur de Longueuil, bestowed on their distinguished father is unique in Canadian history. Soldiers, explorers and colonizers, they each contributed generously to Canada's greatness. The most famous were Charles, Baron de Longueuil; Jean Baptiste, Sieur de Bienville; and Pierre, Sieur d'Iberville. Between 1670 and 1680, Longueuil built a house, which still stands at Lachine, Quebec—a memorial to a distinguished Canadian family.

Great Families Create Great Nations

EARLY in the 17th Century, Calvert, head of the famous Calvert Family, distinguished English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, founded pioneer colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland.

In the New World Calvert's descendants drafted a constitution which was the pattern for the democratic freedom we now enjoy. The Calvert ideals of freedom and religious tolerance were perpetuated down through the succeeding generations of the Calvert Family.

The family is the corner-stone upon which great nations are built. Let each of us strive to promote within the great Canadian family the same concepts of freedom and tolerance pioneered by the Calvert Family, three hundred years ago.

The Calvert family encourage building among their settlers.

Is my face red from the other night. My little knowledge proved to be a dangerous thing. It flung me into the doghouse. Lucky for me that my partner had a forgiving nature.

There was I seated comfortably in the south seat. Not a care in the world. All I had to do was make a contract of six hearts in this deal:

West started off with an opening lead of the diamond queen. When dummy hand went down only one problem was in sight. Keep from losing more than one club trick. The rest was a laydown.

A palooka would have a cinch Take trick one with a dummy top diamond. Pull two trumps. Lay down club ace. Lead a small south club toward dummy queen. It was as simple as that.

Did I do this? Nah. Instead a clever endplay was figured out by me. After all, my recent writings have been describing all kinds of endplays by others. It was time I came to my own endplay.

Whenever I guess a missing king is at my left, it turns up at my right. So, this looked like a good time to lick the jinx. Having guessed that west held club king, I played east for it.

My first trick was with a top dummy diamond. Two heart rounds stripped opponents of trumps. Two top spades stripped me of diggers. Another diamond top and a diamond ruff stripped me of sparklers.

The stage was set now for my plan. A small south club was led to dummy. West went small. Dummy played the nine. East won it.

This threw east into the lead. A diamond or spade return gives south a club sluff and dummy a ruff. A small club return can run to the queen. If east has the king, this is the right play.

East returned a club and my south hand ducked. Up jumped the devil of a king in west and the fat was in the fire. It could very well be said that the fat was in my head.

The Movie Column

Hollywood, June 15 (AP) — Doris Day's stellar build-up has reached the point where Warners is trotting out its entire star list to support her, Jack Carson and Dennis Morgan in their next picture.

The film now is called "Two Guys and a Gal," and although the "two guys" are also starred, both admit it is a great vehicle for Doris, the former Les Brown band vocalist. The story takes place at Warners studio and all of the Warners star list will make appearances.

Producer Alex Gottlieb further brags that it will be the first modern-day picture with old-time musical numbers. The plot revolves around the filming of a mythical film, "The Gay Nineties."

Shorts Department

Fred MacMurray says he has given up independent producing. I'm a lazy guy," he admits. "Why should I knock myself out as a producer when there's as much money in acting—and fewer headaches." He reports he'll go to his northern California ranch after "Family Honeymoon" (with Claudette Colbert) and stay there until winter.

Mae Murray, star of the silent films, says she is coming back to films as producer-actress of an independent company.

David Niven tells me he'll take his whole family to England this summer, but he hopes soon to find a permanent home for them. His five-year-old boy was born in hospital which was bombed on his first night of life, spent 186 nights in air raid shelters, has had two mothers and several nursemaids and has spent his later years shuttling between England and the U.S. no wonder David wants to settle down.

The Customers Talk Back

Recently I asked some stars for reasons why the old folks were not patronizing the movies. It seems the readers have some ideas on the topic, too. Here are some of them:

"The world is so full of beauty that it is disgusting to sit and see shooting and fighting and wild life, especially when we feel that they are the pictures our grandchildren are spending their money on. Their morals need uplifting these days."—Mrs. C. H. Chaston, Victoria, B.C.

"Adult audiences are going to sporting events, where they get real thrills by clean people, not synthetic slush by old actors and actresses."—I.E.G., Houston, Tex.

ESKIMO GIVES GASP AT MANHATTAN

Arctic Baffin Land was never like this, gasped 15-year-old Rebecca Dahneekee, Eskimo girl who caught her first glimpse of the Manhattan N.Y. shoreline. She arrived on the Marine Jumper from Southampton en route home, and is travelling with the Rev. H. Arthur Turner, Church of England missionary, Mrs. Turner and their daughter, Jean. Rebecca (right with long braids) first saw the outside world six months ago when the missionary's widowed sister took her from the far north to Suffolk, Eng., for a visit.

Gene Sylvester Suspended By Ottawa Nationals

Ottawa, June 15 (CP)—Tommy Gorman, manager of the Ottawa entry in the Border Baseball League, Monday night said the right-hand hurler, Gene Sylvester, has been indefinitely suspended for jumping the Nationals. The case is being referred to League President J. G. Ward.

Sylvester, an important moundman in the Nationals' pennant and league championship triumphs last year, had won two and lost two in 1948 operations when he quit the team and went to Boston a few days ago.

Gorman said Sylvester telephoned that illness had taken him home and that he would return. However, he failed to turn up and his suspension was announced Monday night.

With six games in three days now facing them this coming weekend, the Nats are on the hunt for a new hurler. Manager Gorman said reports that a replacement for Sylvester already has been signed were unfounded.

ISLAND BIRD SANCTUARY

Pembroke, Wales — (CP) — Grassholm Island, off the coast of Pembrokeshire, was bought recently by Britain's Royal Society for the Protection of Birds for a sanctuary. Grassholm has an area of more than 23 acres and is the summer home of about 6,500 pairs of gannets.

Milk Production Reaching Peak

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—Ontario farmers are looking to Western Canada for help to harvest hay, the weekly crop report of the Agriculture Department said today. The demand was created by recent rains which quickened crop growth.

In Renfrew, where the first yield of hay was ripe a week ago, 200 men are required immediately. Haldimand county reports more applications for western help can be filled. Many Victoria County farmers plan to arrange an exchange of buck-rakes and balers to facilitate haying.

American buyers were reported offering attractive prices for cattle in some parts of the province.

Most cattle are on grass and milk production is reaching a peak.

Juvenile, Midget Teams Assisted By City Council

City council will assist the local parks board to the extent of $500 to provide lights for juvenile and midget ball games to be played at the exhibition park, it was decided Monday evening following receipt of a recommendation from the parks board.

With the recommendation from the parks board being read, Mayor Storey noted that this was something the city should support as it would greatly assist sport.

Alderman Lazenby asked, however, what the parks board intended to do with the $800 surplus they showed last year. To this Alderman Tice replied the board intended to use the money to repair the roadway from the main gates to the grandstand. "This road now turns into mud when it rains," he said.

Alderman Armstrong declared that granting the parks board the needed $500 would assist sport in the city. He declared that with industries locating here the city must keep up with the times and assist sport to this extent. Alderman Tice stated that Belleville was possibly doing less for sport than any other city in Ontario.

Alderman Not Satisfied

Mr. Lazenby, however, was not satisfied. He stated that the parks board this year would get approximately $15,000 from their grant of one mill on the assessment. "I say let them use their surplus."

Continuing the Alderman declared there should be more equality in the spending of money on the local parks system. Too much money was being spent on some parks and not enough on others. A park was needed in the north part of the city, but youths were forced to play ball on Memorial Park. "The grass was not even cut on this park," he said.

Alderman Armstrong pointed out that the parks board did not get the entire one mill on the assessment as out of this they were forced to meet debenture requirements. "Also operational costs were considerably up," he said.

Recommendation Introduced

Here Alderman Lloyd introduced the recommendation calling for the city to grant the parks board $500 for the purpose of supplying lighting for recreational facilities for the youth of the city.

Alderman Clarke wanted to know what department the $500 was to be charged to. Alderman Tice, as chairman of Tourist and Publicity, stated his department could pay a share if some other department would assist.

A recorded vote was asked on the recommendation with Mayor Storey and Aldermen Allin, Armstrong, Brown, Duffy, Lloyd, Lummiss, Tice, Vanner and Wilbur supporting the recommendation and Aldermen Clarke, Hyde and Lazenby dissenting.

Angus MacInnis Certain Employers Given Privileges

Ottawa, June 15 — (CP) — Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) said Monday night in the Commons that certain employers are allowed to "ignore and defy" the law if they do so because of the political affiliation of the unions representing their employees.

Mr. MacInnis, hitting back at Labor Minister Mitchell's reply to a question about the "basic causes" of the dispute between the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) and five shipping companies, charged two of the companies have "completely ignored" government-appointed conciliators.

Earlier, replying to Mr. MacInnis, Mr. Mitchell called the dispute "a jurisdictional scrap, to begin with."

"Secondly, the position is taken by some of the companies that they will not deal with an organization led by Communists."

One of the employee groups—the Canadian Lake Seamen's Union (Ind.) — was led by J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, a former Communist who may still be one, Mr. Mitchell said. The other was "admittedly" Communist-led.

(This was believed a reference to the C.S.U., often accused of Red domination.)

Question Brushed Aside

Mr. MacInnis said later that Mr. Mitchell "sort of brushed my question aside in a most frivolous manner." He read a newspaper report in which Mr. Mitchell was quoted as saying: "I am a great believer in conciliation and I don't believe you can settle labor disputes by putting people in jail."

"That is exactly the way this particular labor dispute is being settled," said Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis said two companies — Sarnia Steamships and Colonial Steamships — "completely ignored" a government-appointed conciliator, thereby making it impossible for him "to do anything" to resolve union-company differences. A conciliation board had been given the same treatment.

Mr. MacInnis said Canadians "logically and reasonably are desirous of combatting Communism."

"I cannot conceive of anything that is more likely to breed Communists than the attitude of these employers."

TOURIST BUSINESS IS GOOD BUSINESS

It's always a big time when the "boat comes in"
Our cabin by the lake - the nights are awfully cool

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"Maybe not," Norwich returned. "But I come from Mr. Bernardson. Look at this."

He held out a card. Bony brown fingers grasped it and placed it close before the light of the lantern; then:

"All right," said the guardian of the gateway. "Please come in."

The two stepped into a little courtyard which seemed to turn left under the lee of a dilapidated building and which, so Kearney had been told, actually came out in the adjoining street. The Arab proved to be a gaunt man with a lined and pock-marked face, sunken eyes, and an ominous expression.

They crossed to a corner of the yard, mounted four stone steps, and entered a little dimly lighted passage, having a window with an iron grating overlooking the courtyard. Under this window, upon the floor, were a dirty mattress, a bottle, a tin mug, and the remains of a meal upon an enamelled plate. The place was stuffy and full of cigarette smoke. It was evidently the sanctum of the Arab night porter.

"Please wait," said the bowwab, leaving them together in the dimly-lighted room. Shuffling footsteps died away in some dark place beyond, and Kearney was about to speak when Norwich shook his head urgently.

Standing there in an oppressive hush, a long way off in the building Kearney heard a sound.

Although at first he failed to identify it, immediately he knew that it was horrible. It was a very high sound, between a piping and a squeal; higher than the note of a rat. It was, paradoxically, so shrill as to be nearly inaudible....

Then, suddenly, he knew of what it reminded him....the amplified squeak of a bat! It was chilling; terrifying; in some way — unclean.

He exchanged a rapid glance with Norwich; and Norwich stood like a man petrified.

"For God's sake! what was it?" Kearney whispered.

"I can't imagine, sir.... Sah! Someone coming!"

"It was like..laughter.."

• • •

The emporium of Jo Lung was incredible as a fairy tale. It occupied all the rooms on two floors of a rambling old building, eight or nine rooms in all, and each one literally crammed with treasures. At times Kearney imagined that the covered-in ways of old Damascus lay just around the next turning; that the Street Called Straight and not Limehouse Causeway, adjoined this winder-khan. On entering other rooms, he was transported to the Seraglio Palace, and thought that he stood in the treasury of the Sultans.

Only the manner in which these priceless items were displayed served to dissipate such illusions. They were piled carelessly upon rough, trestle tables.

Here were lacquer cabinets, chests, and caskets, antique and modern; each one a choice piece. Damascened swords, Venetian goblets, whole services of Ming porcelain; prayer carpets of a quality seldom seen outside a museum; a collection of books in exquisite bindings; a great quantity of antique silver.

A highly civilized and well dressed Greek did the honors. "Mr. Jo Lung is unfortunately away," he explained to Norwich. "But if I can help, I am at your service. No doubt," turning to Kearney, who was endeavoring to hide his bewilderment, "you have a definite idea who you are seeking?"

Kearney conquered his astonishment. He endeavored to recall Dawson Haig's instruction. Jo Lung was the biggest "fence" — or dealer in stolen goods — in all London! Surprise visits had never yet caught him napping. This was a new move. Detective Sergeant Norwich had memorized a long list of stolen jewelry—principally foreign; and their job was to try to identify even one item in Jo's emporium. On this Haig could not ....and the cases of opium lay in an adjoining yard!

"My friend, Mr. Bronsen, has several commission," said Norwich. (Matt Kearney was "Mr. Bronsen.") "But mostly colored gems."

"Yes," Kearney broke in. "I'm commissioned by a New York client to complete a collection of sapphires."

"Sapphires!" The Greek raised heavy eyebrows. "I fear I am unfortunate. If Mr. Jo Lung were here he might be able to help you. But to the best of my knowledge we have few sapphires in stock at present. They are not," he smiled slightly, "very profitable just now. However, you shall see."

They passed along a corridor, went down three naked wooden steps and picked a way through what seemed to be a collection of lamps—lamps of perforated brass, of silver, and of gold; damps from Arabia, from China, and from Japan.

Detective Sergeant Norwich was all eyes.

They entered a room resembling a small shop, and the Greek, stepping behind a narrow counter, pulled out a tray from beneath and opened it for the visitors' inspection.

It was as he did so that the almost insupportable silence began to bear down again upon Kearney. The treasure house of Jo Lung was the most silent place he had ever known in the heart of a city. Its silence was uncanny....

"Unless Mr. Lung has others in the safe"—the Greek was speaking—"these are the only colored gems in stock at present."

Kearney bent over the tray, listening to the silence. Later, he was to realize what he really listened for. It was for a repetition of that ghastly laughter.

Now, resting his eyes upon the jewels, he suppressed an exclamation in the nick of time...."

The tray was arranged with some artistic care, and in its centre, under the harsh, unshaded lamp which the Greek had switched on, blazed a group of amazingly matched fire opals. Kearney clenched his teeth and bent lower, peering down.

Here lay evidence to justify a search of Jo Lung's premises! Beyond any possibility of mistake, this was the "Dakenham necklace"—the famous rope of opals which his Aunt Hilda, lady Dakenham, had taken with her upon the ill-fated voyage of the American yacht, Miss Minnesoto, lost with all hands in the Persian Gulf, less than a year before!

Yet—a query leaped to his brain—was it evidence?

26th Russian Veto Over A-Control Expected by U.N.

Resolution by U.S. Seeks Approval by Majority View

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lake Success, N.Y., June 16—(CP)—Russia is expected to use her 26th veto today in the United Nations Security Council to block a United States proposal for international atomic control.

The American resolution backed by Canada and Britain, calls on the council to approve the findings of the majority of the atomic energy commission which suspended its discussions May 17 because of deadlock on the question of control.

Russia demands that atomic weapons be scrapped before international control is set up while 14 of the 17 members which have served on the commission agree that a strict system of controls should first be developed.

Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko is reported to have prepared a long address on the subject to be delivered before the council this afternoon. He said he was not ready to speak when the resolution was introduced last Friday.

The majority of the 11-member council has indicated that it will introduce a substitute proposal in the event of a Russian veto.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada has urged that the problem now needs the wider forum of discussion afforded in the 58-member assembly where it is expected to be a major issue.

Supervisors of Truce

While Russia will be able to block the majority on the atomic issue, she was unable Tuesday to persuade the council to allow five Soviet military observers to help supervise the four-week cease-fire in Palestine.

Ironically, Count Folke Bernadotte, U.N. mediator, asked only hours before that 10 more observers be provided by each of the members of the truce commission—the United States, France and Belgium. Those countries already have provided 21 observers each.

The new observers would be "reporters" stationed in ports throughout the world to inspect ships bound for Palestine and report to Bernadotte on the number of men of military age among the immigrants.

Russia was supported only by the Ukraine, in her proposal that all members of the council except Syria be allowed to send a total of 50 observers to Palestine to supervise the truce between Arabs and Jews.

The nine other members of the council abstained on the vote. Seven affirmative votes were required for passage.

SAYS HOUSES FALLING APART

Toronto, June 16 — (CP) — This "Home, Sweet Home" business isn't necessarily so, suburban Scarboro township council learned. At a council meeting property owners G. Trotter and H. G. Coupland complained their four-months-old, $7,000 bungalows were practically falling apart. Roofs leaked and there were gaps under doors and walls, they said.

RAILWAYMEN LOOK TO GOVERNMENT IN WAGE DISPUTE

Advised Strike Action Could Only be Avoided by Intervention

Montreal, June 16 (CP) — Spokesman for 28,000 railwaymen today looked to Ottawa for government intervention in their wage dispute with the railways.

Officials of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other transport workers (C. C. L.) announced Tuesday that they had wired Labor Minister Mitchell advising him that strike action could only be avoided by government intervention.

The announcement was made shortly after Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Exchequer Court of Canada revealed that a mediation board attempting to settle the dispute had "terminated its proceedings without reaching an agreement."

The union message, signed by six members of the union negotiating committee, said "strike action by our members can only be avoided by the government taking whatever action necessary to make acceptance of our compromise offer to the board possible."

Details of the compromise were not disclosed.

In Ottawa, Labor Minister Mitchell declined comment on the announcement, deciding to wait to hear the facts first hand from Mr. Justice Cameron today in Ottawa.

Meanwhile hearings of similar demands by 18 International Brotherhoods, representing 112,000 other Canadian railway workers, will be resumed in Montreal June 30.

Mr. Justice Cameron also heads this board.

Both mediation boards were reconstituted by the Labor Minister after they had recommended, as conciliation boards, a seven-cent hourly wage increase. The railways accepted the conciliation board's majority report but both unions rejected it. Their original demands were for 35 cents an hour.

Greatest Skyscraper Planned in Houston

Houston, Texas, June 16 — (AP) — The worlds tallest building may be erected here. Officials of the United Building Supply Co. said yesterday they are considering plans for a structure 140 storeys, 1,366 feet high. That would be a foot taller than the Palace of the Soviets in Russia and would dwarf New York's Empire State Building by 116 feet.

SEES EGG PRICE RISE

Toronto, June 16 — (CP)—A. H. Hassall, sales manager of a Toronto wholesale distributing firm, said Tuesday that the present average of 56 cents a dozen for grade "A" large eggs "will be increased to at least 61 cents by July 1." He said the increase would be a gradual one.

ARABS REJECT PROPOSAL OF U.N. MEDIATOR

Will Not Declare Jerusalem Open City

Cairo, June 16 (AP)—The Arabs today rejected a proposal of the United Nations mediators to declare Jerusalem an open city.

Fawzi Mulki Pasha, Foreign Minister of Trans-Jordan, told newspaper men that the Arab League replied to Count Folke Bernadotte that if Jerusalem was declared an open city, Arab troops would be asked to evacuate positions they conquered there last month. He said this would be in contradiction of the cease fire terms.

An Arab League source also reported the League's political committee rejected an invitation to sit at a conference table with the Jews in negotiations for a permanent Palestine peace.

The Arabs held the old city of Jerusalem, a mile-square block in the heart of the Shrine City, when the four-week truce became effective last Friday. The Jews held most of the bigger modern city.

The Arabs now say the city's shrines, holy to three great religions, are safe under Arab protection and that the Arabs are granting free access to them.

Oral Proposals Given

One informant said Bernadotte gave the Arab committee an oral proposals Tuesday night, a few hours after the mediator arrived from his Rhode Island peace headquarters. The informant said the committee asked Bernadotte to put the proposal in writing and submit it officially for the U.N.

Egypt accused the Jews of inching toward their lines since the truce began and threatened to use force unless the front is restored. The Jews countered with accusations of their own.

The Arab warning was in a note the Egyptian government handed Tuesday night to Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator. It accused the Jews of exploiting the cease fire to grab strategic positions threatening Arab safety.

Committee Meeting

Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, Arab League secretary, said the League's military committee is meeting today. He said Bernadotte met Tuesday night with members of the League's political committee and discussed Arab complaints of alleged Jewish violations of the truce.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli spokesman said that Britain plans to give the Arabs a military camp today in Jewish territory, near Haifa. He contended this would violate the truce, because it would give the Arabs a military position they did not hold before the cease fire.

Jewish leaders are conferring in Jerusalem with the U.N. consular truce commission on the problem of getting food and water through Arab-held terrain to Jerusalem's Jewish population. The cease fire has not alleviated the supply situation in the city.

SHIP-TO-SHIP TRANSFER OF PASSENGERS

Prescott, Ont., June 16 — (CP) — A ship-to-ship transfer of passengers between two Canada Steamship vessels continues in the St. LLawrence River some distance from Prescott.. The move was believed undertaken to avoid members of the Canadian Seamen's Union at Prescott in dispute with the company.

Three British Planters Slain By Chinese Gunmen in Malaya In Revival of Red Terrorism

Singapore, June 16 (AP)—Malayan dispatches said Chinese gunmen killed three British planters today in a renewal of Communist terrorism along the Malay Penninsula.

The dispatches said the bandits—allegedly Communist-inspired—attacked rubber estates in the Sungei Siput area 20 miles from Ipoh, killed the three planters and took their valuables.

The planters were identified as J.E. Walker, J. M. Allison and C. H. Christian.

Gunmen also shot and killed a Chinese contractor on a rubber estate, 32 miles north of Taling. Police believed the contractor was killed as a reprisal for the arrest and conviction of trespassers on the estate.

A senior police officer of Sungei Siput stated that there was "no question that the murders were carried out by the Communist strong-arm corps which is out to destroy the rubber and tin industries in this country."

Walker, police said, had returned to his bungalow for breakfast when two Chinese on bicycles rode up.

They shot him from the door and window.

At the same time 12 Chinese, armed with sten guns and revolvers broke into Allison's office.

They seized Allison and Christian, tied them up, and took them to a bungalow after seizing an automatic revolver recently issued to Allison by the authorities.

The gangsters then marched them back to the office and killed them.

Sir Edward Gent, British High Commissioner announced that wide emergency powers would be conferred upon the authorities in the four areas of the Federation of Malaya in view of the prevailing lawlessness.

The death penalty would be imposed for the illegal possession of arms or explosives, he said.

C.S.L. Vessels Being Armed With Tear Gas, Shotguns And Revolvers to Repel Boarders

Toronto, June 16 (CP)— Announced arming of Canada Steamship Lines vessels with tear gas equipment, shotguns and revolvers to repel boarders Tuesday night brought an announcement from a Teamsters' Union that its members would respect picket lines of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) at C.S.L. warehouses.

The Teamsters' Union, an A.F.L. affiliate, instructed its members to refuse to move cargoes from C.S.L. dock sheds.

A spokesman for the Teamsters' Union said it is "backing the C.S.U. 100 per cent." The C.S.U. called a strike April 3 against five shipping companies, including Canada Steamships, which refused to deal with it on grounds it is led by Communists.

The other lines involved in the dispute—they named their ships with members of the rival Canadian Lake Seamen's Union (Ind.)—were Sarnia Steamships, Colonial Steamships, Northwest Steamships and Transit Tankers.

Capt. Norman Reoch, operating manager of the C.S.L., said Tuesday night that the last of his lines' ships will be equipped with tear gas guns in a day or two. He said every master and chief engineer had been armed with shotguns and revolvers and that tear gas guns were being issued to the company's ships. In addition, steam lines to repel C.S.U. boarders were being doubled on each ship.

Meanwhile, Mayor Lloyd Gallinger of Cornwall announced he would seek federal action to drive warning factions of the rival Seamen's unions from Cornwall.

These developments came as the C.S.U. started its prosecution in Toronto of Sarnia and Colonial Steamships on charges of violating federal labor laws. The case was adjourned until Monday.

In the action, being heard by Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow, part of the evidence was heard on the first charge, that of locking out C.S.U. members on ships of Colonial Steamships. The company pleaded innocent.

Three other charges, to be dealt with when the hearing resumes, are: Failure by the company to negotiate in good faith with the certified bargaining agency; company coercion and intimidation of employees; and alteration by the company of terms of an agreement without going through the established procedure of the regulations.

A story of a long dispute between the union and the company, carried through numerous processes of conciliation, arbitration, appointment of commissioners and conferences in Ottawa was told by T. G. McManus, C.S.U. secretary-treasurer.

Mr. McManus was the only witness heard Tuesday. He said his union had approximately 8,000 paid-up members, of which 400 had been employed by Sarnia Steamships and Colonial Steamships. He charged that the companies cancelled an agreement with the C.S.U. and refused to negotiate a new one.

21 Czechs Flee Country, Arrive In England

London, June 16 —(AP)— The Air Ministry announced today that 21 Czechoslovak refugees, including women and children, arrived by plane at a R.A.F. station in Kent today.

The Czechoslovak government said early this month that 1,280 persons had fled since the communist coup last February.

Today's refugees landed at the Manston R. A. F. station. This was the field on which Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Polish peasant leader, landed in his escape from Poland.

The plane, a Dakota, landed unexpectedly in the early hours of the morning. Its crew included two pilots, a navigator, a wireless operator and a flight engineer.

Two women, and two boys, 8 and 14, were aboard.

The other passengers were identified as men of military age, some of them married to English women still in Britain.

An R. A. F. officer at the airport reported:

"They were all extremely happy to get here. Most of them left the country because they had English connections. One of the men had to leave the country."

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 16 (AP) — Irgun Zvai Leumi announced Tuesday night it has become a political party under the name of the "Jewish Freedom Movement."

New Uses for Asbestos Drive Quarrying Operations Underground

Asbestos, Que., June 16 (CP) —Jet planes were far in the future when asbestos outcroppings forced Charles Webb to turn his Eastern Townships farmland into pasture, but 70 years later new uses for the mineral are driving the world's largest quarrying operation of its kind underground.

Asbestos blankets to insulate a pilot from the terrific heat of his jet engines are only one of the new products made of the mineral torn from open pits at the rate of 305,000 tons yearly. Now the operators (Canadian Johns-Manville) who provide a livelihood for Asbestos' 5,500 people have dug a hole 1,000 feet underground in search for more of the fibrous mineral.

Ever since the prosperous English farmer, W. H. Jeffrey, took over Webb's apparently useless farm in 1881 to quarry asbestos, it has been taken out of a big open pit now nearly a mile across and 300 feet deep.

Two years ago the operators finished sinking a 1,000-foot shaft to get at ore bodies far below the surface. This operation still is in the development state but already Asbestos men, used to working in the open, are beginning to push drifts toward the ore.

Underground work requires considerable training and the mining crew was built up from a nucleus of experienced men from gold and copper mines of the north.

They are filling the jobs requiring the most know-how, such as drillers, loader operators, timbermen, blasters and cage tenders. Local men without underground experience serve as muckers and general laborers and graduate to more responsible jobs as training develops.

Asbestos is mined from Siberia to South Africa but the mines here and at nearby Black Lake, Coleraine, East Broughton and Thetford Mines produce 70 per cent of the world's supply. Geologists estimate there is enough here to last for another 150 years.

Four Injured When Car Forced Off Roadway

Toronto, June 16 — (CP) — Provincial and city police are on the lookout for an automobile which forced a second car off the Princess Elizabeth Way on the eastern approaches to Toronto early today and fled.

Four persons were injured when their car plunged off the highway, struck a light standard, jumped a steel guard rail, and fell 300 feet down an embankment. Injured were the driver, Gerald Williams, 28, Mrs. Rose Hladun, 28, Gilbert McNamara, 31, and William Reid, 26, all of Toronto.

Police said two hitch - hikers who had been riding in the car which forced William's automobile off the road forced the driver to stop the car after the accident, but that he had driven away as soon as they got out. They said the driver appeared to have been drinking and deliberately forced the other car off the road.

MORE JOBS AND MORE WORKERS

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 15 — (CP) — There are more jobs available and more persons working in Niagara Falls now than there have been so far this year. Employment Bureau officials said laborers, auto mechanics, stationary engineers, butchers, cooks, bus and truck drivers are needed. Women telephone operators, stenographers and domestics are also in demand.

VOTING SYSTEM GETS GOING OVER IN THE COMMONS

Single Transferable Vote Turned Down

Ottawa, June 16 -- (CP) — The single transferable vote got a going-over in the Commons Tuesday but the members couldn't agree whether it was an improvement over present voting methods.

This is the system where the voter has more than one choice of candidate in marking his ballot paper. Some authorities claim it guarantees against the election of a candidate with only a "minority" of votes cast in his constituency.

Some members urged the adoption of the transferrable vote for federal general elections, contending it would improve the voting system, while others argued that it was so "complicated" that it would prove unworkable.

The bill, which finally was given third reading and now goes to the Senate, contained one important change — the extension of the federal franchise to Canadians of Japanese origin. The present law denies them a vote in federal elections if they are barred from voting provincially. Now, no exception will be made.

Besides the election bill, the chamber adopted a measure amending War Veterans Allowance Act to give an extra $10 a month to the majority of the 29,000 aged or needy veterans and widows of veterans now receiving payments under its provisions.

Two other bills amending the Veterans Insurance Act and the Veterans Rehabilitation Act also were approved.

First reading was given measures to reorganize the set-up of the board of transport commissioners and to appoint a commission to revise Canada's laws. The last revision was in 1927.

Study of health department estimates was resumed briefly in the late evening.

Almost to Voting Stage

The issue of the single transferable vote almost got to the voting stage in the election study—but not quite.

Robert Fair (SC—Battle River) moved an amendment to introduce it in the Federal election regulations only to have it ruled out of order on the ground it was improperly framed.

Police Say Girl Pretended Attack

Toronto, June 16 (CP)— Alice Tostowaryk, 19-year-old domestic was discharged from hospital today and police said she had "merely pretended" to have been attacked.

Police found the girl Tuesday night lying in a ditch in suburban North York township, apparently unconscious. Police believed she had been struck on the head.

Hospital officials denied earlier reports that the girl, who was missing from her employer's home since Monday afternoon, suffered concussion.

Police said no charges will be laid.

They added that the girl was treated recently in a Winnipeg mental hospital. Police said they believed she was impressed by the account of the death of Mrs. Jane Gordon, an abortion victim, whose body was found recently in the same vicinity, and fancied herself in a similar situation.

Accident-Prone Drivers May Be Detected by Their Living Habits

Banff, Alta, June 16 (CP) — Recent surveys show it is "highly probable that a man drives as he lives," Dr. W.A. Tillman of London, Ont., said at final sessions of the Canadian Transit Association Convention today.

"In present research an attempt is being made to determine if accident-prone drivers can be identified by their personality traits," said Dr. Tillman of the Department of Clinical and Preventative Medicine, University of Western Ontario.

"Studies completed on a group of taxi drivers tend to indicate that the high-accident drivers possess impulsive, immature living habits in distinct contradiction to the mature stable personalities which appear in the low accident drivers."

Also addressing the 300 delegates attending the Association's 43rd annual convention at the Banff Springs hotel today was W.E.P. Duncan, chief engineer of the Toronto Transportation Commission.

The three-day convention will wind up with a general business session later today and election of officers for 1949.

Mr. Duncan said no city can prosper and grow "without efficient transit service."

More than 20 per cent of all operating expenditures in the transit industry are expended on maintenance of vehicles, track line structures and electrical distribution systems, he said. Rise in cost of labor and material must be offset by an increase in efficiency of maintenance.

General Strike Wave Spreading Across France

12,000 London Dockworkers Out on Wildcat Stoppage

Clermont - Ferrand, France, June 16 (CP)— A spreading strike wave, reminiscent of last winter's cold civil war, crept over south central and northeastern France today, sparked by a general work stoppage in this French tire capital.

A general strike also spread throughout Belgium while London's shipping industry was crippled by a growing dock walkout.

At least 150 persons were injured here when police forcibly ejected strikers who had occupied the Berougnan rubber factory.

Police moved in on the rubber plant Tuesday night. An eyewitness said the company of state police and mounted republican guards were met by a barrage of missiles. Strikes used clubs made from gum rubber in a hand-to-hand conflict.

70 Police Injured

At least 70 police were hurt in the fighting, 46 of them severely enough to require hospital treatment. About 80 strikers were injured, many severely. Many of the injured, both strikers and policemen, suffered acid burns on their faces, doctors said.

By non, several thousand miners had quit their jobs at Brassac, St. Etienne and other communities in sympathy strikes. Tobacco plant workers quit at Riom. In northeastehrn France, several thousand mteal workers of Belfort voted to strike.

In the National Assembly, deputies prepared to debate the new strike wave, and the Communists expected to demand that the government of Premier Robert Schuman explain the violence here.

(In Brussels, Belgium, 250,000 steel and metal workers struck for pay increases of five per cent. Antwerp's Ford, General Motors and Chrysler assembly lines and the Bell Telephone factory were idle.

Protest Disciplinary Action

(In London, another 3,000 dockworkers quit work in a wildcat stoppage which has halted about 100 ships at the London wharves. About 12,000 of the port's 25,000 dockers now are idle, protesting disciplinary action against 11 longshoremen who refused to handle "dirty cargo."

(In Turin, Italy, a 24-hour work stoppage which paralyzed the city's heavy industry came to an end. The strikers were involved in a dispute over working hours.)

Jet Plane Crashes In Lake Ontario

Bowmanville, June 16 (CP) — A jet airplane crashed into Lake Ontario today about a mile east of Bowmanville and a mile out in the lake.

So far, its identity has not been established. However, R. C. A. F. officials at Trenton told provincial police here that a jet plane piloted by Sqdn. Ldr. S. Y. Broadbent, a veteran flyer, is overdue.

L. J. Brock, a local farmer, and his son Reginald told police they were working on the lakefront at about 10 a.m. this morning when they saw a silver plane spinning at "terrific speed" down towards the lake. There was a "great splash" about one mile offshore.

Ontario provincial police set out in boats for the scene of the crash.

Air Force Statement

An R.C.A.F. Central Flying School Vampire 17009, Pilot, Squadron Leader S.Y. Broadbent, took off from Trenton at 9:45 this morning and is still missing. Next of kin, Mrs. S. Y. Broadbent, 2 Sutcliffe Blvd., Trenton; home address 47 Flora Ave., St. Thomas. A report from Ontario Provincial Police at Toronto states an aircraft was seen to crash into Lake Ontario south of Bowmanville. R.C.A.F. aircraft and surface vessels from Trenton are searching the area.

WIFE FOUND SLAIN, MAN DEAD IN CAR AT OSHAWA HOME

Howard G. Bradley Believed to Have Bludgeoned Wife Then Took Own Life

Oshawa, June 16 (Special)—Believed to have bludgeoned his wife, Marie, age 65, to death with a blunt instrument, Howard C. Bradley, 65-year-old real estate agent, was found dead from carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage of the couple's home, 651 Simcoe St., N. early Tuesday.

Provincial police in charge of the investigation refused to confirm that the double fatality was murder and suicide.

The bodies are believed to have been discovered about 9 a.m. Tuesday by the couple's daughter, Mrs. Margaret Reed, who occupied a third floor apartment with her husband, Edward J. Reed. Mr. Reed is understood to have left for work before the discovery was made by his wife, who immediately notified city police.

As the Bradley home is situated just over the city line in East Whitby Township, provincial police were summoned. Inspector W. H. Clark of the CID, who was attending a county criminal court at Whitby was instructed to take over the investigation after Crown Attorney Alex C. Hall had been in touch with the Attorney-General's Department.

Crown Attorney Hall said tonight that he could not say whether an inquest would be held until he had received an official report from Inspector Clark.

Demand for Farm Labor in District Reaching Peak

With haying operations expected to be in full swing by next week, the demand for farm labor in the Bay of Quinte district is rapidly reaching a peak with approximately 100 applications from farmers being on file at the local employment service office.

In isolated cases haying operations have already commenced, the season being a week to ten days earlier than in the normal season. A bumper crop of hay is expected.

Forty-two Belleville district farmers have placed applications for Western Canada farm help, but none of these has as yet arrived.. Seventy-five dollars per month with board and lodging is the minimum wage to be paid to Western workers this year. This is an increase of five dollars per month from last year. The local office has an order in for 50 Western workers.

In additions to the applications for Western help there are 37 applications on file for local help, while 18 other farmers have applied for single Dutch men being brought to Canada under the Dutch immigration scheme.

ORIGIN OF "MESS"

The word mess, as used in such phases as "officer's mess," originally meant a portion of food, or provision of food for one party for one meal.

Part of Golfing Green Used to Sod Private Lawn

The current housing development on the Docter sub-division in the east end of the city will not see the complete finis of golf greens in the area—part of No. 3 green has been moved across the city to Wellington Crescent where it graces the front lawn of one of the residents.

Tired of seeing raw earth whenever they glanced out the window of their tidy new brick home, Squadron Leader and Mrs. R. W. Thompson, 15 Wellington Crescent, laboriously cut sods from the green of the former Belleville Golf course and they now present a finished picture to the Thompson lawn.

"My husband worked every night for four weeks" Mrs. Thompson proudly stated, "but it was worth the effort. Not only does it look better but it prevents the kiddies from tracking so much mud and dirt into the house."

Sodding the lawn admittedly was hard work but at least the Thompsons have a start on their neighbors who are depending on nature to provide them with grassy front lawns.

COURT INVOKES SECTION OF TEMPERANCE ACT

Toronto, June 16 — (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court declined Tuesday to interfere in the conviction of James Ashton for unlawfully taking liquor into dry Huron county. The court invoked a section of the Canada Temperance Act that prevents an appeal to the Appellate Court from a decision of a judge in chambers. Ashton was convicted in Goderich, Ont., although his defence was that he had not broken the Temperance Act in taking beer from Stratford in Perth county into Huron.

26 Dutch Persons Posted to Homes In Quinte Area

Visibly tired after their long ship and train journey from their native Holland, but expectant and enthusiastic of their establishing a new home in Canada, a party of 26 Dutch persons, including men, women and children, detrained at Belleville this morning destined to farms in the Bay of Quinte area.

Included in the party which detrained from the special train at the C.P.R. station shortly before ten o'clock, were 12 adults, including four married couples, and 13 children. In one family there were eight children, and in another four children. Four of the party were young single men.

The party was met at the station by local Employment Service officials, and by Mrs. J. Van der Vliet, of Trenton, wife of the district Netherlands Foundation representative who is assisting in arranging placement of the families. Mrs. Van der Vliet acts as interpreter for the Dutch families and introduces the various members to district farmers on whose farms they will live.

One of the Dutch families, comprising of man and wife and four children, went to Mr. L. J. Cummins, Corbyville, while two of the single men went to the Trenton district, with the balance of the party being destined for Prince Edward county.

In getting the new Dutch immigrants away to their proper destinations there was only one hitch — but this turned out to be a major one. A Cressy farmer from Prince Edward had applied for a Dutch couple with two or three grown children who would be able to assist on his farm. At the station he found a couple with eight children had been assigned to him and unfortunately he had not sufficient room to house them.

But local employment officials were not perturbed. They announced that another placement for the family would be immediately arranged.

Hillcrest Man Builds "Orange Crate" Houses, Sells One for $1,000

The spirit of the early pioneers is hovering over the little community of Hillcrest formerly known as Stoney Lonesome.

Hillcrest is north of the Canadian National Railways and is made up of small homes which the people have mostly built themselves. The housing shortage is still critical and while some of the people have been forced to live in tents and other makeshift homes there is a real pioneer spirit blazing away.

Daniel Louder who calls himself a "Jack of All Trades" has been a resident of Belleville for nine years. He is probably one of the first exponents of the "Orange Crate" house.

Salvages Waste Material

Daniel carted away orange crates from all the local merchants free of charge because as he said, "they were glad to get rid of them." By breaking up these orange crates he was able to get three feet of lumber for his house from each crate. He visited sales of lumber and bought odd windows and doors at very low cost and with a little manoeuvring matched them to his house. Today he has to his credit two houses and two garages built in the "orange crate" fashion. He has just sold one of the houses for $1,000 and the cost to him including the lot was $450.

Here is a list of his materials for a house 18x18 having four small rooms:

Nails; 52 cement blocks; 1 bag of lime; 8 bags of cement; 2,000 feet of lumber (orange crates—this is seasoned pine) at three feet to a crate; $52 worth of 2 by 4's; $55 worth of asphalt shingles, green and black.

Prefers Shingle Siding

Daniel is an individualist and says that shingles are good as siding material and he has shingled his house from the ground up. The house has a foundation and the cement blocks are used for it.

The garage is an interesting construction in that the orange crates weren't broken up but used whole and the inside of the garage is lined with shelves which come in handy for all sorts of things.

The flooring in the house is also done with orange crates and 2x6's placed close together to allow the crates to be nailed on. Then a second floor and break joints make the strongest floor anyone would ever wants.

Plywood walls are used to finish the inside.

Daniel says he can make a living on what everybody else throws away.

Municipal Bd. Approves By-Law On Bus Terminal

Application of the city for extension of its building by-law to restrict the Coleman Street area for the operation of a bus terminal was approved by the Ontario Municipal Board following the public hearing on the matter heard in the city two weeks ago. Report of the Municipal Board decision was received by City Solicitor Robt. A. Pringle this week.

Extension of the city building by-law to restrict the operation of a bus terminal in the Coleman Street area was asked by council following petitions from residents of that part of the city when it was learned the Collacutt Bus Company intended to erect a terminal in the area.

Decision of the Municipal Board, however, is subject to the application of the Collacutt Bus Company made to Osgoode Hall to force the local city engineer to issue a permit for the construction of the bus terminal. This application made prior to the passing of the by-law but was adjourned until after the public hearing by the Municipal Board.

The public hearing at the city hall two weeks ago saw considerable interest on the part of residents of the area concerned, many of whom voiced their objections. The city's case was presented by City Solicitor R. A. Pringle while Toronto solicitors represented the bus company.

Manly Macdonald Displays Artistry Before Students

In a practical demonstration of oil landscape painting before an audience of Grades 6, 7 and 8 of Queen Alexandra School, the well known local artist Manly Macdonald reproduced a local scene in the short space of thirty-five minutes.

Mr. Macdonald was welcomed by the principal of the school, W. G. Anderson, as one considered by the pupils as "our particular artist," and one needing no introduction.

Working on a large-size canvas from a smaller canvas, depicting a rural scene near Point Anne, Mr. Macdonald first outlined the shape pattern in charcoal. This he brushed lightly with a cloth to remove dust. The next step was to go over the outlines with oils, separating the light from the shadow.

Working with deft, quick, movements, Mr. Macdonald next did the basic colorings and the outlines of the horizon, mixing his colors on a large size palette and using three brushes. The next step was to paint in the sky and cloud formations. The sky is actually the main point of the painting and requires the most time and effort.

Gives Running Monologue

As he worked, Mr. Macdonald gave a short talk describing the various phases and color schemes. He explained, that all colors in nature painting are based on red, yellow and green. Nature colors are never pure but varied shades.

The far horizon was the next, dark in color. The mid-distance followed, first with the flat base paint and then filled in with the darker and light shading. The foreground base was painted in and then accented.

The completed scene depicted a rural scene near Point Anne, showing a corner of a ploughed field and three fields in the distance. The horizon was a dark blue, and the mid-distance showed three trees of various sizes.

Mr. Macdonald was warmly thanked on behalf of his audience of young art enthusiasts, and the staff of the school by Miss Hart who stated they were appreciative of skill that had gone into making a piece of nature seemingly come to life before their eyes. After the close of the assembly, Mr. Macdonald was surrounded by a group of future artists who admired and made notes of his paintings.

Dry Ice Tests Will be Continued, Await Clouds

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 16 (CP)— Although dry ice experiments over the Mississagi fire were not successful, the operations will continue, district Forester A.W. Leman said today. Cloud formations too thin to contain much moisture caused Tuesday's lack of success.

Dry ice is being shipped into the Sault for grinding and storage until such time as cloud formations allow the experiments, under the direction of K. Pettit, of the Meteorological Service, to continue, Mr. Leman said.

Meanwhile, no marked change was reported on any of the three large fires burning in the district Tuesday or today, although 25 miles an hour northwest winds fanned the fire lines on several sectors.

Heavy Rain Still Needed to Quench Remaining Fires

By The Canadian Press

The danger wasn't past yet, but in Northern Ontario today fire crews, aided by showers, steadily gained ground on the big forest fires they have fought since May 25.

In Quebec, where more rain fell early this week than in the Ontario fire areas, firefighters appeared to have the damaging outbreaks licked. Travel restrictions were lifted in five northern counties.

Restrictions on forest operations and bush travel were modified in Northern Ontario's Kirkland Lake area after weekend rains reduced the hazard.

T. E. Mackey, head of the Ontario forest protection service, said only the southern sections of the Chapleau and Mississagi fires between Sault Ste. Marie and Chapleau still were dangerous. It would take a heavy rain to quench those giant blazes.

The Mississagi forest reserve fire burned through 330 square miles of white and red pine while the Chapleau outbreak raged across 450 square miles of mixed timber, mostly pine and spruce.

650 Fires This Year

"We have had 650 fires this year," said Mr. Mackey. "Everything depends on the kind of weather we get in the next few days. At present no communities are in any danger."

During the last 15 years an annual average of 4,000 square miles (out of a national total of 400,000) of accessible forest has gone up in smoke. But it appeared almost certain that in central Canada, at least, 1948 would be remembered as the year of the big fires.

Loss in Ontario and Quebec this year already had been estimated at more than $34,000,000. Ontario foresters called the fire damage the worst in the province's history and, looking back over many years, said they could not recall any fire season when fires had been so big or had raged so long.

Travelling Public Taking Kindly To Bus Terminal

The travelling public is taking kindly to the operation of the Canadian Legion bus terminal recently opened on Dundas Street West, according to Legion officials.

Already the majority of the bus companies operating out of Belleville are using the new terminal as their headquarters, and are calling there regularly to pick up passengers and parcels while through buses make regular stops to take on passengers.

Throughout the day the terminal coffee shop does a steady business catering to the wants of the travelling public —who take advantage of the waiting room facilities offered. The time schedules of most bus companies operating in and out of the city are available at the terminal.

RIGHTS OF OTHERS

Peterborough, June 16 (CP) — T. J. Carley, Peterborough lawyer, said in an address Tuesday he believed the only foundation for any liberty lies in recognition of the rights of others. He told the final luncheon of the 168th district assembly of Rotary International: "Legislation will not prove an adequate safeguard. The basis of the enforcement of all laws must rest on the individual."

Huntingdon S.S. Convention Held

West Huntingdon — The annual Sunday School convention of Huntingdon township was held at Fuller on Wednesday, with morning and afternoon sessions ably conducted by the president, Mr. Clifford Green.

The Beulah Sunday School under the leadership of Superintendent Mr. George Wood conducted an impressive worship service for the opening of the morning session. Mr. Ernest Holland, secretary-treasurer for a number of years, reported the schools to be "going concerns." Delegates were present from each of the nine Sunday Schools in the township, as well as a number of visitors.

Mr. Burke conducted a song service using many old, familiar gospel hymns, sung without the use of hymn books or song sheets. Mrs. W. J. Fitchett was organist for the day.

Rev. G. R. Gray Speaker

The address of the morning was delivered by Rev. G. R. Gray minister in charge of the Missionary Alliance Tabernacle in Belleville, who gave an inspiring message on the subject, "Making the Sunday School Evangelistic." He urged his listeners to put an effort into Sunday School teaching, by giving more time to personal Bible study.

Ladies of the Presbyterian and United Churches at Fuller provided a noon-hour dinner for the delegates and visitors in the dining hall of the Presbyterian Church.

The afternoon session opened with a service of worship conducted by the Standard Church, with Mr. John Holden presiding. Rev. Mr. McMillan of Foxboro Presbyterian Church spoke on the subject, "Making the Sunday School Worthy of Its Calling," and following this address Mr. Arthur Wilson led in a panel discussion, which aroused considerable interest, and included four five-minute addresses, as follows:

"I Can't Teach Without Praying," by Mrs. L. Elliott.

"Securing Personal Commitments for Christ," by Mr. H. R. Burke.

"A Method of Teaching I Have Tried," by Mr. Philip Carr.

"A Plan We Tried in Our School," by Mr. Wesley Farrell.

Mrs. Milton Shaw contributed an appropriate solo.

The closing address was on the theme, "As the Father hath sent Me, so send I you," delivered by Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of Lakefield.

Reporting for the Courtesy Committee, Messrs. Philip Carr and Wesley Farrell thanked the officials of the Fuller churches, the speakers, and all who assisted in making this convention a decided success.

The officers elected for 1948-49 are as follows: President, Mr. George Wood; Vice President, Mr. John Holden; Secretary Treasurer, Mr. Ernest Holland. All departmental secretaries as of the past year were re-elected.

Canada as Recreation Grounds

Canada has all the opportunities for recreation for her people and for those who come to this land. Newly arrived D.P.'s from the Continent of Europe who have undergone hardships untold as a result of war and the consequences of the disruption of populations by the tyranny of Hitler find this out for nature has been kindly beyond all measure to North America with her blessings.

Now recreation is the spirit of play and is essentially basic and fundamental in growth and life. It brings mental and physical health and it has other values, for Dr. A. S. Lamb, director of physical Education at McGill University, once said that "there is perhaps no force so powerful in removing racial and religious prejudices, in bringing language problems and in developing co-operation and one's social nature, as recreation and the spirit of play."

How important this can be can be realized by the opportunities which are offered to all by Canada's endowment with nature's riches, among them, fresh air and a bracing climate which does not enervate. The spirit of play has full opportunity for development of all possibilities open to the people of this country.

"Health News" stressed the play side in a recent issue in these lines:

"Time off for health, relaxation and fun
Is too vital to fritter away;
Pick out some pastime, some hobby you like,
And keep young and peppy with play!"

While education has been made compulsory for all children, the same has not been done for health, except to a limited degree. In this regard, it is the belief of some physical educationists that students in Canadian schools should not only be concerned with health knowledge and health practices, but they should also develop a sense of responsibility in identifying their own health problems, and also the problems of their homes, schools and communities.

In physical and mental health in individual and nation and in the meeting of the peoples of various nations this spirit of play or recreation, is a health-giving principle, deeply at work.

Source of Prairie Rivers

The prairie rivers, the Bow and the North and South Saskatchewan — where do they come from? This could be a simple geography question on a public school examination paper. The Woodland World, a new publication by the Canadian Forestry Association, an answer which lifts the problem out of the public school examination field and presents it as a matter of vital importance, says Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Between a half and a quarter of the water in these rivers comes from glaciers on the eastern slopes of the Rockies. These giant ice packs are melting and running away through the rivers at an average rate of 100 feet a year.

What happens when the glaciers are gone? From 25 to 50 per cent of the water normally flowing through the prairie rivers will not be there. With the lowering of the rivers' flow will come a lowering of the water table with a great drop in the productivity of those grain lands. The rivers will have to depend on melting snowfall and rains in the mountains to provide every drop of water they carry. Dry years and drought such as never before may well be the result.

This problem is being tackled by the Eastern Rockies Conservation Board at a cost of six million dollars to the Dominion and Alberta governments with an additional sum annually.

The work of this board will provide a new answer for the geography question. Forests will take the place of the glaciers as reservoirs to hold back floods and modify droughts.

"If we can't have perpetual glaciers on the East Slope," the Woodland World points out "we surely can have perpetual forests. The record of the future will tell us year by year that the glaciers are moving backward and the new forests are marching forward."

First Gas Turbine for Cars

Britain has perfected the world's first gas turbine for road vehicles. The prototype engine was shown for the first time at the Industries Fair, Birmingham. The smallest gas turbine ever made, it is a masterpiece of precision engineering. It is 7 inches in diameter, 5 feet long and weighs only 250 pounds. Its steel blades are half an inch in size and its brake horsepower is 160 — equivalent to a modern 35 to 04 h.p. engine. A remarkable feature of this engine is that although its "natural" fuel is diesel oil, it will run on anything that burns with a continuous flame — petrol, paraffin or even old candle ends.

Canada Builds Ships

Today the Dominion is building more ships than the United States. Canada is now the sixth largest shipbuilding country in the world. The United States is eighth on the list. The following figures published by the Financial Post show production in tons for the last quarter of 1947 and the first quarter in 1948:

Great Britain	2,138,035	2,173,381
France	293,675	295,389
Sweden	264,685	261,605
Holland	237,527	255,199
Italy	215,200	219,922
Canada	163,042	148,250
Denmark	130,529	134,685
United States	123,364	135,852
Spain	104,475	108,431
Belgium	82,224	81,280
Norway	77,189	808,832

Canada has had a long and honorable tradition of building stout ships. The tradition is being maintained. The Dominion has become not only one of the great trading nations of the world but an important contributor of bottoms to carry the commerce of nations. — Winnipeg Tribune.

Helping Immigrants

Alive to the religious needs of immigrants, the United Church of Canada working in co-operation with the Dutch Reform Church, is interesting itself in the Dutch newcomers to Southwestern Ontario. This will serve two purposes.

The Dutch are a religious type of people. While attempting to establish themselves in their new country, the strengthening influence of religion will be an advantage. They and their descendants are going to be citizens of Canada for a long time. It is good to have them connected with a church, because religious people are generally the best of citizens.

By thus interesting itself in the Dutch immigrants, the United Church will also help in the assimilation of them into the Canadian way of life. In a locality such as Chatham, which has a Dutch Reform Church, the immigrants will probably wish to attend it. In other areas, if they join the United Church, or any other church, they will mingle with the best type of Canadians, will make friends and learn more easily and more rapidly how to get along in their new land. — Windsor Star.

No Place Like Home

The well-ordered homes of the people have been called the strength of a nation. Home is itself a sort of school; in fact, it has been described as "the seminary of all other institutions." But it is also "the sphere of harmony and peace; the spot where angels find a resting place." Washington Irving says that home should be "the happiest place in the world" and where there is the right atmosphere it is always so.

Too many young people in these days are seeking their pleasure outside the home and thereby are missing much of the real joy of existence. It is to be hoped that the attention now being given to this important topic will result in a greater appreciation on the part of parents and young people alike of what home could and should be—a blissful "earthly paradise." — Hamilton Spectator.

Britain's Royal Air Force in April flew 8,400,000 miles without one accident and without incurring a casualty of any kind to either passengers or crew.

Ill-fortune never crushed that man whom good fortune deceived not. — Ben Jonson.

NATURE'S FANCY WORK

Does Mother Nature now and then,
Grown weary of producing men
And beasts and fishes of the seas
And elm and oak and maple trees,
With artistry exquisite make
Some little thing for beauty's sake?

Now flashing by from tree to tree
The wild canaries I can see—
Small birds of feathers black and gold,
A child within his hand could hold—
So beautiful, they seem to be
Bright bits of breathing jewelry.

When resting from the tasks that irk,
Does Nature take up fancy work
As women do, and there and then,
With skill denied to maids and men,
Such gems so lovely shape and mould
As wild canaries, black and gold?

20 YEARS AGO

June 16th., 1928

The members of the Y's Men Club last night were the guests of Bert Adams and James Alexander at Bide-A-Wee cottage, a delightful summer home on the bay shore. A supper, mainly consisting of hot dogs, was served to the guests and later a ball game was staged. George Pauley, a prominent and popular Y's man was re-elected president of the club for 1918 by the directors.

Miss Ella Gardiner, B. A., is retiring from the teaching staff of Albert College after forty-three years of outstanding service.

Beautiful Billy Burke will be seen in the moving picture, "Let's Get a Divorce" at Griffin's Theatre tomorrow evening, and Ethel Barrymore will appear in the moving picture, "An American Widow" at the Palace Theatre this evening.

The closing exercises at St. Agnes School were interesting and enjoyable. Many visitors were present.

In the opening game of baseball here this season the local team defeated Napanee by a score of five to one. Mayor Allan McFee threw the first ball. There was only a fair sized crowd present, but it was a good game. The following composed the teams: Belleville, — Gerow, Campbell, Watkins, Brennan, O'Neil, Smith, Yohn, Bathurst and Reeves; Napanee, Rose, Shorts, Schultz, Warner, Allison, Tremble, McNeil, Derry and Wond. The umpire was James Erskine.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

Coming out of a garage where he had just left his car for urgent repairs, a friend of mine took the short cut, out a side gateway and along a lane.

On the ground, he saw a pin.

"See a pin and pick it up
And all the day you'll have good luck!"

Now: my friend needed luck. He had just been talking to a garage foreman who couldn't give him an estimate on the cost of the repairs until he had taken the transmission of the car down. It might be $40 or it might be $140 . . .

My friend stooped to pick up the pin. At which moment, a truck came out of the side gateway of the garage and gave my stooping friend such a bunt as he will never forget. He might easily have been killed. He was only bruised and shaken up.

"What the dickens," demanded the astonished truck driver, when he picked the victim up, "were you crouched down like that for?"

"I was picking up a pin," explained my dusty friend, "for good luck."

"You will have better luck," admonished the truck driver, "if you stand up where people can see you . . ."

In this age of ever-increasing mechanical transport and ever-narrowing cities, it is time some of our favorite superstitions were overhauled. In the paper the other day was a story about a man who, in order to avoid walking under a ladder, stepped off the kerb and was clipped into hospital by a taxi cab.

When a black cat ran across the pavement in front of him, a motorist jammed on his brakes and a truck slammed into him from behind, doing $300 damage. That was the fastest action I ever heard of in the case of a black cat bringing misfortune.

Without some superstitions to beguile the childish in us all, life would be pretty matter-of-fact. But it seems to me we should get rid of all save what you might call indoor superstitions.

Family of Eleven On Way to Canada

Southampton, June 16 (CP) — A family of 11 were among the hundreds of emigrants bound for Canada aboard the Aquitania when it sailed for Halifax Tuesday.

Heading the family party was Walter G. Osmond, 55, a builder of Blackfield, Hampshire. With him were his wife, Mildred, five sons and two daughters, a daughter-in-law and a four-year-old grandchild.

Osmond said:

"We have sold our home and everything we have, so we have to make a go of it in Canada because we won't be able to come back. None of us has definite work and we haven't fixed a home yet.

"But friends are meeting us in Kingston, Ont., and we hope they have obtained accommodation for us there."

BAN CARS EXCEPT THOSE FROM U.K.

Singapore, June 15 (AP)— The governments of Singapore and the federated Malaya States have banned the import of all automobiles of 20 or more horsepower except those manufactured in the United Kingdom. In 1947, Malaya imported 865 passenger cars from Canada.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLASS, D.D.

PREACHING

People may tire of preaching but Jesus Christ made preaching the central thing in His gospel, and He intends that it shall play a major role in the life of believers.

There are millions of people in this enlightened country of ours who are quite confident that they can live their lives very well without availing themselves at any time of God's divine ministry of preaching. Sometimes they stay away from church because they feel that the preaching is poorly done. More often it is because they have allowed some other interest to crowd church-going out of their schedule. But the most superficial reading of the Bible clearly indicates that God expects preaching to go on continually and expects men and women to listen to that preaching and profit by it.

There is no one so good or so intellectual that he can afford to neglect a ministry upon which Jesus himself laid such emphasis. If he believes he can neglect it with impunity, he is deceiving himself.

WIFE FOUND SLAIN,

The body of Mrs. Bradley was found in night attire in the couple's bedroom, her head battered. Bradley was found in the garage, where he had apparently climbed into the front seat of his automobile and wrapped himself in a blanket after attaching a length of hose to the car's exhaust. Coroner Dr. H. M. McDonald admitted that the death was an obvious case of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Several girls who had visited the home Monday night said Mrs. Bradley then appeared in good spirits. 'Margaret (Mrs. Reed) belonged to a sewing club and we meet at members' homes. We went up to her place last night and Mrs. Bradley let us in at the front door and told us to go on upstairs. Everything seemed all right when we left around 11 p.m." one girl said.

She described Mrs. Bradley as being "her usual pleasant and affable self, when she showed us upstairs."

Neighbors stated they had never heard of any trouble between the couple, who were prominent citizens of Oshawa. Mr. Bradley, born in East Whitby township was a partner with his brother, H. Edgar Bradley, and nephew, Bruce H. Bradley, in an insurance and real estate firm. A member of the board of Simcoe Street United Church, he was also deeply interested in the Oxford Group (Moral Re-Armament) and had been a Red Cross blood donor during the war. He was also a member of the Oshawa Lawn Bowling club.

His wife, formerly Marie Catherine Golay, was a graduate nurse of Bowmanville General Hospital.

A private funeral service will be held for both deceased tomorrow afternoon with interment at Mount Lawn Cemetery.

VOTING SYSTEM

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), one of those who was returned on a minority vote, agreed that Canada's electoral system was "archaic" and that the time had come for reform.

T. L. Church (PC—Toronto Broadview) said the vote would find no favor in the two central provinces. It was too complicated.

John A. MacNicol (PC—Toronto Davenport) said many countries had tried the so-called improved voting systems, which were nothing more than "freaks", and had discared them.

Reject Motion

The Chamber, sitting in committee of the whole, rejected by a standing vote of 58 to 39 amendment moved by Don Brown (L—Essex West), chairman of the Indians Affairs Committee, which would have extended the vote to Indians on reservations.

Other Liberals and Lewis Menary (PC—Wellington North) also opposed the amendment. Remaining Progressive Conservatives, including John Charlton (PC — Brant) C.C.F. and Social Credit members voted for it along with David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) and William Benedickson (L—Kenora-Rainy River).

State Secretary Gibson said adoption of the amendment would raise many problems. While some Indians wanted the vote, others were opposed to it because they feared it would lead to abolition of treaty rights.

Bill Wins Approval

Mr. Gibson told the Chamber the franchise still was being denied to Doukhobors because of long-standing government orders which exempt them from military service.

The veterans allowances bill won approval over the demands of opposition members for increases greater than those proposed by the government. They sought boosts from $30 to $40 a month for single recipients and from $60 to $70 for couples.

Progressive Conservatives, Social Crediters and C. C. F. members also joined in urging that the Act be extended to Imperial veterans with 20 years' residence in Canada and to Canadians who served only in Britain during the First World War.

As adopted, the Allowances Act eliminates any reference to deductions for casual earnings but places the top amount of allowable regular outside income at $125 a year for single and $250 for married recipients. The $10-a-month increase can be made retroactive to last Oct. 1 if considered "necessary."

Vote Party Lines

N. J. M. Lockart (PC — Lincoln) said he couldn't understand why the committee voted on party lines.

The morning sitting was taken up with heated dispute over government legislation to provide for the appointment of exchequer court judges to the chairmanship of the Board of Transport Commissioners and to enable Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald of Nova Scotia, the first such appointee, to take over the post.

Opposition members, led by John T. Hackett (PC — Stanstead), criticized the government's policy of appointing judges to boards and commissions.

Justice Minister Ilsley replied that such appointments were appropriate at times and pointed out that the Transport Board itself has a judicial function in that it is a court of record.

WHY NOT WEAR BLINDERS?

There is a popular impression that tinted lenses, spectacles or sun glasses protect the eyes or prevent eyestrain or rest the eyes or strengthen them in some unexplained way.

Any one with normal eyesight and fair health should be comfortable under ordinary bright sunlight without tinted or smoked or darkened or other spectacles. Only when it is necessary to work or play in or against the glare of the sun directly upon the eyes or intense sunlight reflected from snow, water, sand or other surface, need smoked or tinted spectacles be used.

It is never advisable to wear tinted or smoked or dark spectacles indoors under artificial light or outdoors at night.

For night driving tinted spectacles or smoked, darkened, tinted or dimmed screen only increase the danger because the glare of approaching headlights is due mainly to the contrast between the extreme brightness and the surrounding darkness, and tinted or dimmed glasses or screens cannot change that.

If the eyes feel unduly fatigued after a long drive, either day or night, the trouble is more likely uncorrected or improperly corrected error of refraction or of muscle balance.

The individual who obviously squints, scowls and strains to see whatever he or she is looking at, may do so merely from bad habit but more likely needs glasses or a change of glasses—that is, correction of whatever change there has been since his or her last eye examination.

For protecting the eyes against intense glare of sunlight on snow, water, sand, spectacles, goggles or screens of polarizing glass or other material are generally satisfactory.

It is a good rule to have the advice of your oculist about wearing any kind of dimmed or tinted glasses or sun glasses, if you contemplate frequent or habitual use of sch tinted lenses or cheaters.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Gray Sickness

A year ago I saw something in your column about the gray sickness. It failed to make an impression because at the time... but now I realize.

(Mrs. S. W.)

Answer—Don't let it get you down, Ma'am. A million other girls have had the same experience and generally they get along all right. Just hitch up your — take up your pen, put away your postcards, and ask for the pamphlet Deficiency Anemia—The Gray Sickness, inclosing a stamped envelope bearing your address. Despite increased costs I still furnish the printing, compiling and preparation of these pamphlets—but I can't afford to pay the freight too.

Tired Eyes

My eyes tend to become tired and bloodshot easily. Had vision retested recently, have been wearing glasses which are all right. Would this be from lack of iron or some vitamin?

(Miss W. E.)

Answer—Possibly insufficient intake of riboflavin, one of the entities of the B complex. It can do no harm to boop your B complex intake, not just for a week or a month but for life. In the red book What to Eat and Why you will find practical information on the foods that are richest in B complex. For copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Hansenosis

As an impressionable child I was frightened by a motion picture in which one character was a victim of leprosy in the legendary sense of the word. This fright reached into adulthood. During my thirties I suffered from nightmare on the subject, sometime to an extreme degree. But now, thanks primarily to your own and Frank Colby's campaign to spread the light of truth about Hansenosis (Hansen's disease) I am no longer morbid about it. There must be a great many people who harbor false and cruel notions about this disease.

(L. S.)

Answer—Yes, and such people should write the National Leprosarium, Carville, Louisiana, inclosing twenty cents for a copy of the magazine published by resident patients. It gives a more pleasant and truthful picture of the situation and outlook.

Leg Cramps

I must express my grateful thanks for your pamphlet about cramps at night. I had been a great sufferer and lost a good deal of sleep from painful cramps in legs and feet, but since I "booped" my intake of calcium and vitamin D I have enjoyed complete relief.

(H. C. H.)

Answer—On written request (no clipping, please) any reader who provides stamped self-addressed envelope may have the pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains. So-called "growing pains" in children and leg, foot or sometimes hand cramps, occurring mostly in the nighttime in mature or elderly persons, are, in my opinion, commonly due to calcium and D deficiency. These pains should not be confused with the dull ache in legs that is common manifestation of B complex deficiency.

Prostatic Obstruction

I have been doctoring for over a year for prostrate enlargement.

(C. R. D.)

Answer—Bladder trouble in men past fifty is very likely due to prostatic hypertrophy or enlargement of prostrate, which more or less obstructs the bladder outlet. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Bladder Trouble.

Bill of Rights Scheduled For Thorough Airing

Ottawa, June 16 (CP)—Problems which would arise from a bill of rights based on constitutional amendment are scheduled for a thorough airing today.

The parliamentary committee on human rights and fundamental freedoms, continuing its study of requests for legislation guaranteeing civil rights, will hear from Justice Department experts.

Justice Minister Ilsley warned Tuesday of the "implications" of changing the British North America Act, the Dominion's constitution.

Earlier, the committee ruled out the alternative of a bill of rights based on federal statute. Legal opinion was that recommendations in briefs submitted to the committee required, in most cases, changes in the B.N.A. act.

Mr. Ilsley stressed that the first requirement in connection with a B.N.A. act amendment is to determine whether parliament may legally make changes.

He said suggestions submitted by the Committee For a Bill of Rights did not list "implied restrictions" and "consequences." He said that the Canadian parliament "ceases to be supreme the minute this goes into the constitution."

Earlier Tuesday the committee read briefs by the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association and a group of 16 Chinese organizations.

The C.D.N.A., taking the stand that basic freedoms are "insecure" in Canada, asked for a law guaranteeing freedom of the press. The Chinese brief appealed for "fair play and equal treatment" for the 35,000 Chinese in the Dominion.

The Chinese groups asked particularly for repeal of a law requiring Chinese men to be naturalized citizens before their families may join them in Canada. They also listed certain British Columbia laws which "clearly discriminate against the Chinese as a race."

They recommended that every person be guaranteed the right to buy or rent property, obtain accommodation in hotels, enter theatres and use public places "without distinction as to race."

Business Spotlight

By The Canadian Press

Part of the present movement by business to interpret itself to the public is described by Henry L. Gassard, director of education of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada in a report to the Associations current annual meeting at Manoir Richelieu, Que.

It was put in motion only during the last year and to date has consisted chiefly of a correspondence course in the essentials of the investment business which was taken by more than 300 employees of member firms.

This now will be followed by more advanced courses, and consideration is being given to making all courses available to employees of banks, life insurance and trust companies and possibly to the general public.

Further, as stated in Mr. Gassards report:

"It is reasonable to expect that two years hence our program will be complete and that we will be in a position to approach Canadian universities with a view to their making use of the material which we have developed."

J. A. Gardiner, retiring president of the association, comments:

"I would strongly recommend that when the advanced course is completed, a diploma should be given to those obtaining a sufficiently high rating, and we might well give consideration to the formation of an institute of investment education and the use of a proper title for our graduates."

Markets Tuesday

Oils rallied on the New York Stock Exchange and all stocks were generally firm. At Montreal, industrials were at a new high but golds continued to skid, hitting a new low. Oats and barley strengthened on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange on the basis of reports that an unknown quantity of Canadian oats had been sold overnight for export to a European country. Wheat made a belated rally at Chicago.

Prices Committee Scheduled to Hold Closed Meeting

Ottawa, June 16 — (CP)—The Prices Committee is scheduled to hold one of its most important meetings today.

Its members plan to hold a full executive session — closed to the public — to consider the questions of the committee's report to parliament and its own life. The meeting was originally scheduled for last weekend but was cancelled because too many members had conflicting engagements.

There is in existence a tentative report, prepared mainly by government economists under the direction of Chairman Paul Martin. It would require approval from the committee before it could be presented to Commons.

At the same time, for more than a month there have been hints here that the government has studied the evidence of the committee and hopes to make some practical use of it in an attack on the cost of living.

Much of the evidence taken by the committee has been condensed and a shortened version has been submitted to members of the government.

Finance Minister Abbott had ruled out any possibility that action might take the form of reimposition of general price controls.

"The most reliable indication of the government's intentions was one source's prediction that such action "might be taken after parliament rises."

State Secretary And Vandenberg Close to Split

Washington, June 16 — (AP) —State Secretary George Marshall and Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.)—the chief promoters of bi-partisan co-operation on recent foreign policy —are closer to a major split right now than they ever have been.

The issue is the tariff-cutting Reciprocal Trade Act.

As a result State Department officials may swallow their objections to the newly-voted revival bill and recommend that President Truman accept it rather than veto it.

If Marshall determines on that course, he probably will have to overrule Will Clayton, his former under-secretary and now special adviser.

Clayton, who fought the trade act battle in Congress, has been described as feeling that the bill which went to Truman Tuesday is wholly inadequate to continue a workable tariff reduction program.

Vandenberg, on the other hand, helped write the compromise measure and argued in the Senate that its limitations would not injure the tariff-cutting project.

The Michigan Senator furthermore has had some rather uncomplimentary things to say about the State Department.

He called its attitude toward the revival bill "stubborn" and said he was "shocked" to learn that the department had refused to give senators certain foreign trade records.

That tariff law gave the Truman administration the power to slash import duties in return for similar concessions from other countries.

Truman and the State Department urged the usual three-year extension.

Instead, the Republican-controlled House of Representatives passed a one-year extension which would have (A) let the federal tariff commission suggest limits on proposed tariff cuts and (B) given Congress veto power over any cuts which exceeded those limits.

Russian Bride Not Finding Life Hard in Britain

London, June 16 — (CP) — Mrs. Nora Murray, first wartime bride of a Britain allowed to leave Russia, today shook her blonde curls and smiled at a letter describing life in Britain as too hard for women.

"I stay here," said the 28-year-old Russian university graduate whose father once was mayor of Stalingrad. "I'm wonderfully happy."

As her three young sons played in a bombed site outside her prefabricated home in North London, Mrs. Murray was shown the letter written by Mrs. Nina Brand, Russian war bride who since has returned to Moscow.

In the letter, published Tuesday by Pravda, Communist Party organ, Mrs. Brand said that life in London was "like being in prison."

Mrs. Murray avoided comment on Mrs. Brand's complaints. She said she met her husband, John, during the war in Stalingrad where he worked for the British embassy.

Later Murray joined the army and Mrs. Murray lived in a top floor room in a North London working-class district where her sons were born.

When her husband was demobilized a year ago, Mrs. Murray said, "we had to start from scratch — no money, no nothing."

Now? Her husband has "just got going" in business with other former servicemen.

Here are some of her comments on British life:

"I admire your civil administration, your fair rationing and, above all, the spirit of your women in making the best of everything."

"Food is not plenty but sufficient. Clothes are good . . . shops beautiful and I love window shopping."

On the debit side she said her sons could not go to Eton—"and if Eton is the best school I want it for my sons." In Russia her sons could go to the best schools and universities free.

COUPLE PAROLED

The couple's story of post-war hard luck so moved the court that they were freed on parole for further hearing.

Philadelphia — (AP) — A red-haired Irish-American who learned to handle crowds as a member of a family of 17 using one bath says there will be no gate crashers at the political conventions here.

Andy Frain, sometimes referred to as "king of the ushers," said today that anyone thinking of crashing the gate can forget about it.

"Why, Jeff Davis, king of the hoboes, is hounding me already. He says he's got to have tickets for 20 delegates.

"And one-eyed Connolly will be around. He's about 72 now. But one-eye hasn't crashed one of my gates in 25 years. I'll give him a job at a basement door and then padlock it. If I don't he'll let a million guys in."

Frain isn't talking through his hat when he brags that only those who belong will be in Convention Hall's 16,000 seats. For 15 years Andy has handled the Kentucky Derby crowd and guarded the gates at six previous National Conventions.

2. They both had the same maiden name: Adams.
3. They were sisters.

SERVING CANADIANS [C-I-L] THROUGH CHEMISTRY

"Chemistry?... I DON'T HANDLE IT!"

YOUR STOREKEEPER may think he doesn't handle chemistry, but everything he sells from costume jewelry to refrigerators, is in whole or in part, a chemical product.

Chemistry is a vital factor in fabrics and foods, leather and toys. It's at the cosmetic counter and in the hardware department. You find it more and more whenever you shop—as nylon hosiery, fabrics and bristles, in new plastic articles and as "Cellophane" wrappings to protect goods and make them more attractive.

The chemical industry never stands still. It continues to create new useful products and to improve many old ones. It contributes to the well-being of all of us . . . with the C-I-L oval the symbol of an organization devoted to serving Canadians through chemistry.

For instance...

RODANT

Rats are clever and hard to kill . . . they have long been a destructive, disease-carrying scourge . . . but chemistry is resourceful. It comes up now with "Rodant", a tasteless poison—deadly to the common rat. It is a product of Canadian Industries Limited, Head Office, P.O. Box 10, Montreal.

Lancaster, Pa., — (AP)—Here's a housing note for the bird world. The nest of the lordly American bald eagle in Lancaster county is vacant.

The National Audubon Society reported Tuesday that for the first time since 1936 there are no eaglets in the famous Mount Johnson Island aerie below Lancaster in the Susquehanna River.

Dr. Herbert Beck, custodian of the Society's sanctuary, said normally two and possibly three young eagles would be taking off about now for their first flight.

He figures either mother baldy died of natural causes or she was shot by a hunter who didn't know or didn't care that the national bird is under federal government protection.

It would have to be mama, Dr. Beck said, for if anything happened to "papa baldy" another male would have moved in.

Eagles, he added, live by "baronial rights" and once they select a nest they never use another, nor permit any other birds to settle within their chosen domain.

Los Angeles — (AP) — There was quite a stir in the lobby of the Ambassador Hotel Monday when two barefooted men, heavily bearded and clad in burlap sacks, attempted to see President Truman.

The word went around the Nature Boy was at hand: "No, I'm not the Nature Boy, but I'm a friend of his," said one of the callers, Bob Wallace, with a smile.

The two said they represented an organization called "Kingdom of Heaven," dedicated to healing the sick, and wanted to pay their respects to the president. A secret service man politely informed them the president already had more appointments than he could handle.

Tokyo — (AP)— Japan, digging deep into its patched kimona for new revenue, is considering taxing bachelors, mistresses and baths.

In Kyoto prefecture, it is blandly but officially proposed to tax a man for his "number two," the Japanese parlance for mistress.

In Akita prefecture, a 600-yen ($12) levy against bachelors over 18 and unmarried women over 16 is being considered. For those who are too poor to get hitched, the prefectural government proposes to make loans for the ceremony.

Officials in Fukushima prefecture poked around and discovered that 100,000 or 300,000 homes have individual baths. They announced that those enjoying such luxury — instead of using the public baths — would be taxed.

Denver, Colo. (AP) — Police potshots at squirrels in Denver were approved Monday by the Colorado Supreme Court.

The court justified city orders for police to shoot squirrels "running at large as wild animals."

The decision arose from a challenge by Paul Atkinson, listed as a taxpayer who liked to feed the squirrels.

He sought damages from police for killing squirrels.

Special Session B.C. Legislature Will be Called

Vancouver, June 16 (CP)—British Columbia has called a special session of the legislature to vote relief funds to speed rehabilitation plans for homeless families and destitute victims of the province's now—receding floods. The session will open July 7.

Meanwhile, danger of disease threatened evacuees of the inundated Fraser Valley as they waited the time when they could return to their homes.

The provincial health department has warned that before houses can be re-occupied, thorough inspections must be made. Inoculations against typhoid fever are being carried out, an estimated 18,000 persons treated thus far.

Two Tiger Moth planes and a Helicopter, meanwhile, have carried out a fight against mosquitoes, spraying stagnant water in the Fraser valley with powerful insecticides.

Tuesday saw the resumption of rail traffic between Vancouver and the east, the first since May 28. A 55-car freight train carried first class merchandise for the city. Tonight the first rail passengers will be carried since the break in railway service.

Tuesday also marked the end of "operation sandbag." Squadron 4435 was ordered to return to its home base at Edmonton.

However, the R.C.A.F. announced that units will continue to drop supplies to interior and Fraser valley points and that regular aerial reconnaissance patrols and photographic survey flights will be maintained.

Global Aid Bill Heading For Stormy Reception

Washington, June 16 (AP) — The Senate's $6,125,710,228 global aid bill headed today for a stormy reception in the economy minded House of Representatives which last week voted many millions less.

The Senate approved the unprecedented sum by a 60 to 9 vote shortly after midnight. If rejected by the House — as it undoubtedly will be — the bill be sent to a joint conference committee for agreement on some middle ground before Saturday's adjournment.

The Senate action added well over $1,000,000,000 to the House approved bill. It did this chiefly by restoring the world-wide assistance program to a 12-month spending basis instead of the 15 months demanded by the House. In actual cash, the Senate bill increased the House amount by only $145,000,000, and was still $408,000,000 short of the amount President Truman asked .

Both Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep. Mich.) and State Secretary Marshall had urged the Senate to restore all of the House cuts. Vandenberg charged that the House had used a "meat-axe technique" which "guts the enterprise."

Chairman Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.) of the Senate apropriations committee estimated the increase to be "in excess" of $1,100,000,000. His House counterpart, Representative John Taber (Rep. N.Y.) already has served notice that he will vigorously oppose the Senate action.

The gigantic foreign aid bill eased through the Senate with comparatively little debate. The measure earlier had passed its major test when the Chamber voted, 64, 15, to restore the 12-month spending period originally authorized by Congress for the $5,300,000,000 European Recovery Program.

Simultaneously, it was announced that the College of Cardinals would be asked to approve the creation of two new saints, the Blessed Jean de Lestonnac, French founder of the Order of the Daughters of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and Vincenza Gesosa, Italian co-founder of Sisters of Charity.

Texas Schools Must Stop Segregation

Austin, Tex., June 16 (AP) — Judge Ben Rice Tuesday ordered Texas schools to stop segregation of Latin-American children. The court enjoined such seggregation except for first graders. In this exception beginners could be segregated to teach them the English language. The ruling was made in a suit brought in behalf of 20 children of Latin-American descent who charged discrimination through segregation.

Contest was part of the official round of similar affairs which will be climaxed in the fall of Atlantic City with the selection of "Miss America." Pictures of Stalin And Tito Cause Work Stoppage

New York, June 16 (AP)—Cargo for a Yugoslav vessel, which longshoremen refused to load after they found portraits of Prime Minister Stalin and Marshal Tito on the ship, remained on a Brooklyn pier today.

The 10,000-ton passenger cargo ship, the Radnik, originally was scheduled to sail at noon today with a cargo including including food, automobiles, trucks jeeps and ambulances.

Sixty three dock hands, members of the International Longshoremen's Union (A.F.L.), quit loading the ship Tuesday after they found hammer-and-sickle insignia and Tito and Stalin pictures adorning the walls of the ship's main lounge.

"We loaded the Jap ships before the war and you remember how they threw the stuff back at our kids," said Salvatore Camarda, a delegate of Local 37. "I say we must not make the same mistake again."

Joseph Ryan, International Union President, said he does not "blame the men for doing what I wouldn't want to do myself."

He added, however, that the union did not "condone the stoppage" since the "people we have working agreements with don't own the ship."

Newhouser's Two-Hit Pitching Makes Detroit Night Baseball Inaugural Smashing Success

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The inauguration of night baseball in Detroit proved a smashing success—thanks to the strong left arm of Hal Newhouser.

The Tiger southpaw, pitching the first home night game in Detroit history, gave added proof last night that he still is the best lefthander in the American League when he twirled a two-hit 4-1 triumph over Philadelphia Athletics.

It was the seventh successive victory for Newhouser and the fifth in a row for the Tigers. Newhouser's record now is eight victories and four defeats. Only Cleveland's Bob Lemon, with nine victories, has won more games.

A near-capacity crowd of 54,480 saw the Tiger outfield provide Newhouser with all the backing he needed. Left fielder Dick Wakefield continued his terrific hitting since his return to the regular lineup by belting his third home run of the season. Right fielder Pat Mullin smashed his ninth four-bagger in the same eighth inning. Centrefielder Hoot Evers batted in the other two runs with a pair of singles. Both homers came off loser Joe Coleman who had beaten the Tigers three straight.

The Detroit victory narrowed the third-place New York Yankees' lead to two games. The Yankees were beaten by the White Sox 9-8 in an 11-inning thriller in Chicago.

Barney McCosky, traded by the Tigers to the Athletics back in 1945, apparently escaped severe injury when he crashed into the concrete wall while attempting to catch Wakefield's home run drive. McCosky was carried off field on a stretcher in extreme pain. It was believed the leftfielder suffered only a back bruise.

Indians Retain Bulge

Boston Red Sox handed the Indians a 7-3 setback in a night game in Cleveland. The American League leaders, however, retained their three- game bulge over the runner-up A's.

Southpaw rookie Mel Parnell gained his second victory with a neat seven-hitter in outpitching Lemon.

Johnny Sain pitched Boston Braves into undisputed possession of the National League lead by defeating Chicago Cubs 6-3. Sain allowed six hits in chalking up his seventh victory.

Boston's victory, coupled with Pittsburgh's 2-0 triumph over the Giants in New York, enabled the Braves to break their first-place deadlock with the Giants. The Polo grounders fell into a second-place tie with Pittsburgh.

The fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Phillies 2-1 in a night game in Philadelphia. The sixth-place Dodgers nipped Cincinnati Reds 5-4 in Brooklyn. Eddie Stanky paced Boston's 10-hit attack with two singles.

Forty-year-old Fritz Ostermuller limited the Giants to three singles. Clint Hartung allowed only four hits in eight innings, but two were made by Ralph Kiner and Frank Gustine, and each scored a run.

A throw by catcher Andy Seminick with second base uncovered on an attempted double steal permitted Stan Musial to score from third in the eighth inning with the run that gave the Cardinals victory over the Phils.

The Yankees overcame a seven-run third inning by the White Sox to deadlock the game 8-8 in the eighth, but the Sox came back with a run in the last of the 11th to win.

Quinte Beverages And Bankers Win Softball Tilts

In a Commercial Softball League double-header at the Alemite Field Tuesday evening the Quinte Dry Beverage team swamped the Stewart-Warner nine 14-3 in the opener while the Bankers, displaying marvellous form, downed the American Optical crew 6-1 under the lights.

"Lum" Carson on the mound for the Beverages held the Stewart-Warner in check until the sixth inning when they pushed across three runs. It was the first time that Carson has been scored on this year. The Quinte Dry hurler had pitched 14 1-3 innings without allowing a run, striking out 25 batters, until the sixth frame.

Mother of 21 Children Builds Her Own Home

Atlanta, June 16 — (AP) — Mrs. Maude Ethel Pope, a 38-year-old expectant mother — for the 24th time — appeared at the city's hospital here seeking relief from a backache, acquired while digging a well and building a house.

Mrs. Pope, whose eldest living child was born when she was 13 — she had two who died before then — said the housing problem had been with her nearly all her life.

"Everytime I have another baby," she said, "the folks we rent from make us move. So I just got tired of the whole thing and decided to buy a lot and build a house.

"Bill — he's my husband — has all he can do working to support us," Mrs. Pope continued, "so I had to do all the work. He helped me lay the first beams because they were too big to tote, but from then on it was my job."

Mrs. Pope began working on the house and well in August of last year. She dug the well some 25 feet deep using just a pick and shovel.

"It was mighty hard on my neck and back," she commented.

The Popes have 17 boys and four girls.

HORSES ATE POISON

St. Thomas, June 15 — (CP)— Two horses belonging to E. Earnshaw, farmer near Port Burwell, died recently, days apart. Investigation shows that they were poisoned by remains of an orchard spray, dumped several years ago in a field and later covered with rubbish.

20-Pound Northern Pike Taken On Light Tackle

Jasper Park Lodge, Alta., June 16 — To take the largest northern pike of which there is any record from the waters of Jasper National Park was the good fortune of Fred G. Dehning, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, Sunday evening in Lake Talbot. The fish weighed 20 pounds, measured 42 inches from its snout to the center indentation of its tail, and 19 inches in circumference. The method of its capture by Mr. Dehning, a guest at Jasper Park Lodge, verged upon the miraculous and probably sets some sort of unique record in these famous Canadian Rockies fishing grounds.

With George Morrow, of Edmonton, and Harold Couzens, of Winnipeg, Mr. Dehning took some time out from attending the sessions of the third annual convention of the Canadian Feed Manufacturers Association in progress at the lodge to indulge in his favorite pastime — fishing. The party journeyed to Talbot Lake, some 18 miles from Jasper, and went out upon its amethyst surface in a row boat. Eight or nine very fine samples of northern pike, weighing between four and seven pounds, were caught by the party in a very short time.

Played Catch 25 Minutes

While his two companions carefully manoeuvred the boat, Mr. Dehning played his catch for about 25 minutes, without a gaff or net in the boat. He realized it would be impossible to take his prize while on the water. The boat was beached and Mr. Dehning carefully drew the fish into the shallow shore water. A skillfully aimed blow with a paddle by one of his companions rendered the pike hors de combat, and the capture was made.

The fishermen were amazed to find, when they had their trophy safely in hand, that the pike had apparently struck for bait, missed it, but somehow one of the three little hooks, not more than three eights of an inch in size, caught it in the hard bony structure of its snout, about half an inch under the left eye. Without any trouble, Mr. Dehning removed the little hook with thumb and finger. He was using an old 18-pound test line at the time.
